All refined sugars were advanced 5c on Tuesday of this week. Foreign markets are very strong. Beet and raw sugars are firm and every indication that another advance may eventuate. The demand this year for sugars is reported among the trade as being better than last.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The market in molasses is featureless. There is practically no demand, as the trade throughout the country seems to be well supplied. Brokers report little doing on account of inability to get offers accepted.

TEA.

Since our last report the market has remained about the same for all kinds of tea, particular interest, however, being taken in musters of new teas arriving per Empress of Japan, or in parcels lying in Yokohama or Kobe for shipment. Prices are exceptionally low, but as against this the appearance is much inferior to last year's tea. Locally the Japan trade is quiet. Cables just received advise scarcity of low grades. Prices have been so low that it has not paid to pick these teas. High grades, of course, are maintained in price. Ceylon, greens and blacks, are quiet and very little trade is turning over. The same applies to China teas.

CANNED GOODS.

New strawberries, raspberries, beans and peas are coming into the market, deliveries being made by the canners. Reports indicate that the corn crop is looking well. Upon the contrary tomatoes are in need of warm weather and rain. There is no change to report in prices and the business turnover as usual at this time of year is small. Salmon continues strong. Lobsters are maintaining their high price. It is reported from abroad that the French sardine crop will be better this year than it has been since 1901. Small sardines have appeared in great abundance in the fishing grounds on the western coast of France. It now seems certain that the absence of sardines last year and the year before was due solely to the cold and boisterous Spring. This Spring, which has been a normal one up to date, finds the smaller variety of the famous little fish already on hand in abundance, and the packers look forward to an excellent catch. This information will doubtless be of interest to importers, who were compelled last year to place many orders for sardines in Spain and Portugal, from which countries they received a product much inferior to the sardines of France.

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Local market is quiet. Quotations on new valencias are out and opening prices are lower than last season. Currants, it is expected, will be short crop this year by about 10 to 15 per cent. Sultana raisins are firm. Nuts are looking up slightly. New crop of figs is reported as likely to run under last year's pack, but quality is very good. California dried fruits are selling at astonishing low prices. We quote :

Green Fruits.

Nothing much to report in the way of changes this week. On Monday four carloads of California fruits were sold at auction. The fruit consisted principally of pears, peaches and plums, the pears selling from $1.60 to $1.80; plums from $1.40 to $1.75, and peaches from $1.60 to $1.75. Two loads of Georgia peaches arrived and only sold from $1.50 to $1.75. Bananas are somewhat of a glut in the market, and prices have dropped 25 to 50c a bunch. A car of Canadian apples in baskets was received on Monday, and brought from 15 to 20c the basket. Tomatoes are in good demand at 60 to 70c per basket. The demand for raspberries has fallen off, everybody seems to have been loaded up.

Vegetables.

The increased receipts of new potatoes have pared down prices somewhat. New green corn at Bonaecours market is selling from 9 to 12½c per dozen. In quantities for retailing as low as 7c is ruling. Cucumbers are coming in freely now, though it is not expected that the crop will be large this year, in fact for pickling purposes it is claimed a great shortage will have to be faced.

Fish.

Business is on the quiet side on account of the absence on Summer vacations of the larger portion of regular buyers of fish. There is a fairly good demand for western dore, but supplies are short at present. Gaspe salmon is entirely out and British Columbia salmon in consequence is starting to come in with ready sale at about 15c. It is not expected that any quantities of western fish will reach this market before about September 10. Some No. 1 green codfish are arriving, but prices are high; they are worth from $5.50 to $5.75. Skinless codfish is scarce; prices are firm. We quote :

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 4, 1904.

WITH the continuance of hot weaing rapidly, goods going out in ther, large stocks are not movsmaller consignments; that is, such perishables as butter, lard, etc. The demand is fair, and the slight depression in the market noticed for a week or two is passing away. Prices rule on the average, with little alteration. In groceries the only change is an advance of 1-8 cent per lb. in sugar.

There are big demands for fruit in all lines, with plentiful supply and reasonable prices. The only line not arriving in the best of condition is pineapples, they coming by boat. For that reason they are not as plentiful as other fruits. Pears, while abundant, are to some extent not up to the usual good quality which generally is sent up from the south. Watermelons are very popular, and range from $3.60 to $5 per doz. They are at the wholesalers in carload lots and are in fine condition being sent by the refrigerator cars, which are now coming into general use for the shipment of all kinds of fruit from California. The expense comes a little higher, but people are easily willing to pay the extra cost, provided they get a good article. The same principle obtains in everything.

Oranges and lemons are still scarce, this being the between season; Valencias are the variety obtainable. Canteloupes go at $5 per crate; bananas from $2.50 to $3; pears, $2.25; plums, $1.50 to $1.75.

The announcement that plums and prunes were a failure on the lower mainland of British Columbia is borne out. The continued dry weather has settled the matter, and the fruit is dropping off the trees to such an extent that in many instances the orchards are bare. The cause of the bad crop occurred early in the season, the blossoms not taking well. Native plums have come in, and are going at 75c to 80c per box.

Local apples are now on the market in small quantities, but are expected to come in large consignments very soon. These are the white variety, and are sent down from Chilliwack. The class is good, and there will be a good crop this year. In short, the only failure in crops is in the plums and prunes. Apples are selling at from $1.25 to $1.50 per box. California apples, which have for some time past been in the market, will, of course, drop out now that the home-grown article is in season.

Wholesale men were a little surprised by the flood of apricots on the local market from Washington State. They expected the price to be fairly high, because of the shortage in California, and the always good demand for this fruit for preserving. Instead large quantities came from Wenatchee, one firm alone importing 5,000 crates. The quality is not so good as that of California, but they went in the absence of something better. The season now is about over.

Advices from Dawson are that all the fresh fruits are in the market there, watermelons, cherries, peaches, celery, pears, etc. Prices range high, the cost of importation being heavy, but the demand is good. Figures change rapidly, for the fruit has been a long time picked. An instance of this took place in cabbages, when one of the dealers cut the price of cabbage from 11 cents to 6 cents, and other dealers are forced to sell at a loss to move their supply before it spoils on their hands. Prices generally are tending downwards, with the summer imports, and this will continue for another month, until the frost sets in. There is no special feature in the market there this week.

It was reported a week ago that the flour mill at Enderby was to be removed to Lethbridge, Alta. On the contrary, the correct information in relation to the matter shows an enlargement of the industry. The mill at Enderby will remain, and another will be constructed at Lethbridge, which will act as a sort of feeder to the one at Enderby.

A syndicate, with considerable capital, has secured options on several ranches in the Lansdowne district of the Okanagan, and it is said it purposes to take up all the available land in that section, and go into fruit raisng on scientific principles. Lansdowne can hardly be excelled for the purpose, and will easily rival the famed Coldstream.

Wheat is slightly lower, and hay is down $2 per ton, as the new crop is now being received on the market.

Yukon trade promises to be good this year, and several large orders have been received from Dawson houses.

A rise is being looked for in cured meats, in addition to the increase already noted.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Aug. 5, 1904.

The Dominion Exhibition is now over and all the exhibits are quickly being removed.

All markets are steady with the exception of sugar which has again advanced 5c.

Sugar—The market has again advanced 5c and Montreal granulated is quoted now at $5.20 per barrel and $5.10 in sacks; yellows at $4.60. Wallaceburg the market quotes at $5.10 in barrels and $5 in sacks.

Canned Vegetables—The market is firm in all lines. Prices are generally well maintained and we will be unable to quote prices on the fresh supplies of corn and tomatoes until the stocks are available.

Flour—The market has now advanced on No. 1 and No. 2 patents, quoting No. 1 at $2.55, No. 2 at $2.35 and No. 3 holds good as quoted last week at $1.80.

Rolled Oats—The market is steady and prices firm; 80-lb sacks are quoted at $2.25; 40-lb. sacks at $2.30; 30-lb sacks at $2.35; 8-lb sacks at $2.65; and 6-lb. sacks at $2.85.

Coffee—The market now quotes No. 5 green Rio, good quality, from 9 3-4 to 10c per lb.

Evaporated and Dried Fruits—The market is firm but all kinds of evaporated fruits are scarce. Ne stock of evaporated apples will be on the market till about November 1. Evaporated apricots, 1904 stock, choice quality, are quoted at 13 1-2c per lb.

Green Fruits—The market is now fairly steady. Oranges are quoted at $5 a case; lemons, $5 a case; bananas, $2.75 to $3 a bunch, peaches $1.35 a case; pears

$3.50 a case; plums, $2.00 a crate; Washington apples, $2.50 a box; apples, $6.00 a barrel; watermelons, $4.00 to $5.00 a dozen as to size; tomatoes, $1.50 a crate; blue berries 7c lb.; rhubarb, 2c a lb.; native cabbage, 3c a lb.; and cucumbers 65c a dozen.

Eggs—The market situation is steady and the demand is heavy. Eggs are jobbing to the trade at 21c per dozen.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N.B., Aug. 10, 1904.

BUSINESS is but fair. The higher price quoted for flour has caused an improved demand. Our western friends, particularly those who wish to sell us goods, should remember our Exhibition to be held next month. They cannot find any better advertisement or any way to so quickly gain the favor of our people than by making a good display. In this way they can bring their goods to the personal attention of the best buyers, not only of the city but of the Province. We continue to have cool weather. Perhaps the coolest Summer for years.

The trade have been somewhat surprised at the continued low price of rice rather lower prices being quoted this week. Jam, of which a large quantity is brought here from Ontario, is quoted rather higher. The chief feature in the local market is the high price of fish in all lines. Stock is very light.

Oil.

While buyers found the prices rather higher than at this season last year, the fact that prices are much lower than they have been quoted during a large part of the year, caused the booking of the large part of the Fall orders early. In paint oil, linseed is quoted somewhat higher. Turpentine is held firm. Lubricating oils show no change. Coal oil is easier, though quite full prices are still asked.

Salt.

A cargo was landed this week, containing both Liverpool coarse and fine salt. There is but a fair demand. Part of the cargo was put in store. There is further supply afloat. Prices are kept firm, and it is to the advantage of buyers to have orders filled ex-vessel, this saving storing charges.

Green Fruit.

Dealers complain that sales are rather light. At this season California pears have a large demand. Prices this season are quite low. California plums are also low. In apples the sale so far has been light. Georgia peaches are quoted low and are splendid stock. We expect to have New Brunswick apples next week. Bananas are plentiful. Oranges are high. Lemons remain unchanged. Native tomatoes are now being received. Melons have but a slow sale.

Dried Fruit.

There is but a light spot business. The lower prices quoted on the coast for California raisins have somewhat upset the market. Freshly seeded, 1903 stock is offered at exceptional figures and spot 3 cr. loose are also very low. The quality of the goods make them very desirable. Malaga raisins are quoted, in layers and seeded, at prices about the same as Californias. Loose are rather higher. So far any information received makes the price of Valencias about as last year. Currants have not yet been generally quoted. Figs are quite firm. Dates are low. In prunes prices are very low this season. It should mean a large sale for the larger sizes. In peels, citron is quoted well above opening prices. Evaporated apples are rather higher with stocks light.

Canned Goods.

There is nothing of special interest Owing to an arrangement among the trade nearly all the dealers quote the same prices. New peas are now freely offered. In all lines fair spot stocks are held. Corn is perhaps the exception. Strawberries and peaches are very firm. Owing to the short pack of Spring salmon, this grade is held very firm at the high price. New lobsters are now on the market at light prices. Sardines, haddies, and kippered herring are very firm. Stocks are light. So far the pack of sardines has been very small.

Sugar.

Price has again slightly advanced, making price well above the figures quoted a few weeks ago. Market is very firm. Dealers continue to carry full stocks.

Molasses.

While there is quite a full stock of Porto Rico held here, market is firm at rather higher prices. The stock of Barbadoes is not large.

Fish.

Dealers are almost out of business for want of stock. Salmon season is over. Fresh haddock and cod are very scarce. Dry cod were perhaps never so scarce at this season. Prices are high. In pickled and smoked herring there begins to be increased demand, but stocks are very light, particularly of smoked herring. While the season is yet quite early in these two lines, the outlook is bad.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

This line has shown some business during the week. Ontario flours have shown an advance. Some millers are also quoting higher prices on Manitoba. There is a fair demand for feed at even prices. Oats are very scarce and hard to get. Oatmeal is still held at the high prices. Cornmeal is firm. Beans seem the weak point but even they are firmer. There is a limited sale. Barley and split peas are still scarce.

CHEAP POTATOES.

A recent report from London, Ontario, announces that new potatoes are appearing in large quantities, selling at from 60 to 70 cents a bushel or about 90 cents a bag. The tubers are splendid in size and the crop is large. This means cheap potatoes.

CAPITAL INCREASED.

The Robert Greig Co., Limited, of Toronto, have been authorized to increase their capital from $65,000 to $150,000 by the issue of 1,700 shares of new stock of $50 each.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are offering some special values in Japan teas at low prices.

S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal, call buyers' attention to their pickling spice in this week's issue. These spices are carefully selected and cleaned and should interest grocers at this time.

Mr. E. D. Marceau's ad. in this week's issue presents tempting features to the trade. Interested buyers will find prompt reply to inquiries.

Simpson's Lime Juice in ½-pint bottles may be had from H. P. Eckardt & Co.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are doing a good business with "Crescent" brand tomato catsup in quart bottles.

WALL PAPER.

PRESENT DAY MURAL DECORATIONS.

By Arthur Seymour Jennings.

THE public taste in mural decoration fluctuates almost as much, if not as rapidly, as that in ladies' dresses. The requirements of to-day are very different from those of ten years ago, and, no doubt, in another decade other and dissimilar styles will be in vogue. Indeed, the demand for novelty, while not so pronounced in England as it is in some countries abroad—the United States, for example—is very real, so that art students and designers may always be reasonably sure of finding a market for their work, provided, of course, that it is novel and really decorative.

We may leave aside from present consideration those features of modern decoration which have proved to be but short-lived, and direct our attention to the styles which have remained in favor for a long time, or appear to be likely to do so.

Taking wall papers in their various grades first, the question has often been asked whether the fashion is set by the manufacturers, or whether it is distinct demand on the part of the public. Probably each contributes to the result. The wall paper manufacturer who produces a new style, or a series of hangings quite out of the ordinary run, usually "makes haste slowly." The production of a single new design means the risk of not a little money, as the cutting of the blocks or cylinders from which the design is printed is somewhat expensive. For this reason only a few patterns that are distinctly novel are brought out in one season. If they meet with favor—if the sales justify it—the "line" is largely increased the following year.

It is worthy of note that a custom of the wall paper trade, widely followed, is to reprint a selection of certain designs every thirty years or so. At present there is a demand for pearl, white moire, and striped papers that were popular in the "sixties."

We may now consider the new styles which are most sold to-day, and first among these must be placed "ingrain" papers, or those which are colored in the pulp from which the paper is made. This class of paper is usually either quite plain, or printed with a stripe, or with a small dotted pattern technically known as "powdering." This pattern is almost always printed in the same color as the ground, but a little darker. Often the difference in tint between ground and pattern is so small that the design can hardly be discerned. The wide use of these plain or nearly plain papers is generally admitted to be one of the best evidences of the process of applied art in mural decoration in recent years.

It may, at first sight, be thought that the use of plain papers does not give much encouragement for the artist. As a matter of fact, however, they are but rarely used, excepting in conjunction with a comparatively bright and often elaborate frieze. The reader who has studied design will be quick to understand why this combination gives such satisfactory results. We will take a well-furnished dining-room as an example. Here we probably have a good many pictures upon the walls, and the plain background, if the proper hue is chosen, forms a setting or foundation for them, which adds to their beauty instead of detracting from it, as is almost invariably the case when a conspicuous pattern is employed. The "powdering" design, so unobtrusive, yet serves to nicely break up those portions of the surface where there are no pictures, while the broad, boldly-drawn frieze, probably full of coloring, gives a fitting cap to the wall surface, and forms a combination effective and decorative. And, be it observed, it hardly matters how strong the colors are in the frieze, because it is above the line of pictures, while the expanse of plain surface will probably require a firm coloring in order to produce a proper balance of parts and a satisfactory whole.

It is in the design of the frieze that the artist will find his greatest opportunities. We do not now refer to the ordinary patterned frieze or border, designed on what Mr. Lewis F. Day calls the "turn-over" principles—that is, of a pattern having its left and right identical—but rather to that class of design which is most sought at the present time. There are two divisions to this class, or perhaps they might be more properly considered quite separately. The first is the "landscape frieze," the second the "hand-stencilled frieze."

BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY IN U. S.

THE following are extracts from a report of the United States Department of Agriculture on the beet sugar industry in the United States during 1903 :

There are now built and ready for operation five beet sugar factories, four of which were not ready for operation during the campaign of 1903. There were fifty factories in operation and eleven additional ones which were built and put in operation during the year 1903. While the product of beets per acre is at present only eight to nine tons, as compared with thirteen tons per acre in Germany, the introduction of extensive farming of the beet fields will speedily change these conditions. With careful farming the beet grower will be able to raise fifteen tons per acre in districts depending upon rainfall, and seventeen tons per acre in irrigation districts. The prevalent price of beets during the year was $5 per ton, and it costs about $30 an acre in rain districts and $40 an acre in irrigation districts to raise them.

While the product per acre is greater in the Old World than it is in the United States, at the present time the sugar content of the beets raised in the States is much higher. Seven or eight per cent. is the average in Germany, but in the United States the average is sixteen or seventeen, and frequently runs up to twenty and even twenty-five per cent. in isolated instances. The factories now produce 220 pounds of sugar per ton of beets, and much improvement is possible in this respect.

At present the average extraction of sugar by the factories in the United States is about eleven per cent. of the weight of the beets. An extraction one per cent higher would mean twenty pounds in sugar from a ton of beets, which at four and a-half cents per pound is worth ninety cents. An extraction two per cent. higher would mean forty pounds more sugar worth $1.80. An increase of three per cent. in the extraction would mean sixty pounds more sugar worth $2.70, and an increase of four per cent. eighty pounds worth $3.60.

During the year 1903 in the United States there were 242,576 acres in beets, the average yield being 8,418 tons. Altogether there were 2,076,494 tons of beets raised, from which 485,209,087 pounds or 240,604.4 tons of sugar were manufactured. The average price of the beets was $4,999 per ton and their average sugar contents was 15.08.

RUSSIA'S FOREIGN TRADE.

RUSSIA'S foreign trade in 1903 across her European borders amounted to $309,770,000 in imports and $489,131,850 for goods exported. The following are the principal participants in that trade:

	Exports.	Imports.
Germany	$119,686,000	$121,385,500
Great Britain	112,270,000	57,680,000
France	39,088,500	14,471,500
Austria-Hungary ..	19,055,000	117,368,500
Holland	52,015,000	.....
Belgium	22,402,500	.....
Italy	29,200,500	.....
United States .	2,729,500	32,239,000

It is estimated that of the Russian exports to Holland and Belgium (consisting principally of grain) $33,990,000 worth were reshipped thence to Germany. Russia's imports from the United States in 1902 were valued at only $19,776,000. The great increase for 1903 is owing to larger importation of cotton and the enhaned cost of the same, as also to the increased imports of agricultural implements and machines from the United States. The 1903 importation of Russia exceeds that of 1902 by $38,316,000 in value, which has its cause in Russia's favorable crop in 1902. The largest increase among the imports is that of agricultural machines and implements, figuring $13,029,500 value, against but $9,373,000 for the year before. In all other machines of iron and steel Russia's importation for 1903 shows a decline amounting to about 25 per cent. as compared with the average of the three preceding years. Of Russian exports showing large gains for 1903 as compared with 1902 are to be noted wheat and rye, butter and eggs, white soft sugar, naphtha. timber and lumber and iron ore. More than half of Russia's total exports consists (in point of money value) of grain, the exports of the latter (including flour and bran) amounting to $246,005,500. Butter exported amounted to $16,274,060, and eggs to $26,265,000. Last year Russia shipped abroad nearly three times the quantity of white soft sugar exported during the previous year.

China, Crockery and Glassware.

Create a Demand for China.

IN this line particularly the merchant who limits himself to staples gets the small end of the profit business, and the unsatisfactory part besides. A customer will waste time haggling over the price of sheeting or white cups and saucers, because they make up the actual needs, and the money goes hard. When a piece of merchandise strikes her fancy and creates a desire to possess, she pays the price with little argument. The merchant who once brings himself to see the possibilities within the scope of this department will make better and more profitable use of it. There is a good profit to be extracted besides any amount of good material to use with beneficial effect on the business as a whole. This latter qualification is really the best side of the line. This does not mean that profits need be sacrificed, but rather that it is possible to get a double draw. There are not many lines of goods where the consumer is so completely at sea as to value. Most any piece of china among the endless variety suggests greater value and higher price than it could be sold for. The ornamental nature of the goods carries this suggestion, hence they are always interesting when presented in a clean, attractive manner. Right here is where a great many merchants err. They allow the department to shift for itself, and when there is occasion to show a lady the goods, they are anything but attractive, being soiled and dust-covered. The clean, well-kept wholesale show rooms about the market should prove an object lesson to merchants.

Buy Ware of Repute.

THERE is a well-timed tendency in the trade of this country to depart from the once predominent feature, that of buying only the cheapest goods obtainable, and in no branch of trade is this change more noticeable than in the crockery trade. Only a few years ago every dealer, both wholesale and retail, bent his best energies on looking up dinner and toilet ware that had nothing to recommend it save its low price; the ware being frequently so poor that breakage in transit amounted to 25 per cent.

Several of the cheapest makers have since gone out of business, but there are many still left in Staffordshire, and these have succeeded in improving the outward appearance of their ware, but with little or no improvement in the quality. The result is that many of these goods are still being bought by Canadian dealers from want of a thorough knowledge of the nature of the ware. The ordinary dealer may never obtain such knowledge from personal experience, and crockery may only be a side line with him, but he can easily safeguard his interests by buying only ware of known repute.

A Potting Triumph.

For many years the problem of making crockery to stand the rough usage incidental to that of large hotels, railways and steamships, has been a vexed one. By the introduction of the welded edge, made exclusively by John Maddock & Sons, this problem has been absolutely solved. The welded edge has been conceded to be a veritable triumph. The old roll rim formerly made by them in common with other makers, has now been entirely discarded by Maddock & Sons for obvious reasons. The roll rim they state is practically no protection against chipping, whereas the welded edge reduces chipping to a minimum. The roll rim makes the articles unnecessarily heavy, whereas the welded edge adds but little weight, yet adds materially to the strength and durability of the ware. Besides, these goods are craze-proof, hence do not absorb grease or other substances. They are in use in the four quarters of the globe, and Maddock's Canadian representative, E. W. Klotz, of Toronto, will be pleased to send free booklet of testimonials from satisfied users in all parts of this continent, to any one desiring a copy of this interesting publication.

Reliable Lines.

BUYERS of crockery, china, glassware and lamps, owe it to themselves to see the lines being shown by Taylor & Mulveney, Hamilton, before placing their orders for this class of goods. This firm has shown great progress, and to accommodate their rapidly growing trade have lately been compelled to almost double their warehouse room. Their present floor space is some 4,000 square feet, and this space is taxed to the limit to handle the large and varied stock carried.

Fancy china is a strong feature here, and the new goods now being opened out in this line all bespeak the excellent taste shown in their buying, every piece from the cheapest plate or cup up to the most expensive set all show the same careful selection.

In English dinner ware the lines shown are very attractive, and, being from such makers as A. Meakin Co., J. & G. Meakin, Grindley & Co., the quality is assured. Several lines are carried in full open stock, which is a great advantage and convenience to the retailer, as extra pieces or matching can be procured at any time.

Hot Weather Try-Out.

THERE is no better time in the whole year to try out the merits of this department than the hot weather months. These months of slow and uncertain business will figure as days turned to profitable account if the people can but be induced to come to the store in quest of bargains which can be offered in these lines. Such bargains fit ready-money and easy-to-buy ideas. The showing can be made most enticing and generous, so there need be no cause for disappointments on the part of the trade, in the matter of choice. This hot-months selling fits in at a time when the store in general is sorely in need of stimulating merchandise—something to make a noise with—something that fits the weather and the season; nothing better than glassware running to berry sets, tumblers, water sets, etc.

How's the stock of generous size water pitchers and water sets? Don't miss the greater part of this easy money by keeping a stingy assortment of none too clean glass pitchers for your customers to look at and pass by. A window full of water pitchers may sound big, but it does not mean such a tremendous assortment. You know a few dollars makes a bigger showing in this line than in most any line in the store. An assortment of half-gallon pitchers offered at $1.55 a dozen by a local house would make a good showing with a 25c price card, but marked at 19 cents give a stock the appearance of being particularly low in price. Such a leader would make the assortment offered at $2.00 look up as wonderful values at 25 cents. The same would hold good with other offerings, as you scale up the price. It is not a very hard matter to get a dollar and earn more for crystal glass fire polished pitchers that look the value.

FIRST USE OF TEA.

BY whom or when the use of tea for drinking purposes was first discovered is lost in antiquity. It is spoken of as a famous herb in Chinese literature as far back as 2,000 years B. C., at which time its cultivation and classification were almost as thorough and complete as they are today. One of the ancient legends says that its virtues were accidently learned by King Shen Nung She, the Chinese monarch who is also known as "the divine husbandman," who, the record says, flourished forty centuries ago. He was engaged in boiling water over a fire made of the branches of the tea plant and carelessly allowed some of the leaves to fall into the pot.

The liquid which he expected to come from the vessel simply as sterilized water was miraculously converted into an elixir of life by the accidental addition of the tea leaves. Soon after it became highly esteemed in all the oriental cities and was used as a royal gift from the Chinese monarchs to the potentates of southern and western Asia.

This same King Shen Nung She not only earned the title of respect by which he was known through the discovery of the virtues of tea, but because of being the first to teach his people how to make and use plows and many other implements of husbandry.

Biscuits And Confectionery

Making Biscuits in Australia.

THE first process in biscuit-making is mixing the dough. All the necessary ingredients, such as flour, sugar, eggs, butter, flavoring, etc., are placed in the mixer, which is set in motion and so completes the dough mixing. Leaving the mixer it is passed on to the next process, which in the baker's phraseology is termed "breaking the dough." The heavy rollers operate either way, and press this dough out until any lumps are thoroughly broken. The dough after leaving the first breaker is next cut into squares and passed on to more rollers until the third set reduces it to the thickness of the required biscuit. It is then carried along until it comes underneath the stamper. This cuts out the biscuits and stamps them with the name. The edges and scraps of dough pass upwards, where they fall on a tray and are returned to the breakers for re-rolling. The biscuits continue to travel straight along on trays, which are transferred to the ovens.

This all seems simple enough, the most important part, of course, being the ingredients and their proportion, but in order to turn out a uniform-looking article great care must be taken to see that the ovens are kept at a regular heat. For most biscuits this stands at 370 to 400 degrees.

All the ovens used for biscuit-baking are what are known as traveling ovens, the trays containing the biscuits simply being carried by an endless chain from the inlet to the outlet. Two kinds of traveling ovens are used, the first being filled at one end with unbaked biscuits, which are received at the opposite end baked. The time given to baking, however, is so short that it might almost be termed drying. The older pattern of circular traveling ovens are on much the same principle, the difference being that in this case the trays travel round with a circular motion instead of straight through the oven. This enables them to be filled and emptied by the same operator.

The attractiveness of a biscuit is always enhanced by a bright, fresh appearance, and in order to obtain this it is necessary that the baking should be done with a slightly moist heat. For this purpose steam pipes are fixed over the ovens, and as the trays pass through light jets of steam play upon the surface, with the result that the desired effect is produced. As the trays are received out of the ovens they are stacked up to cool off, when the biscuits are removed and sent to undergo the next process. If they are plain sorts this is simply packing, but with fancy kinds the jam and icing have first to be applied.

An Electric Bakery.

WHILE cooking by electricity possesses many advantages, it has never been adopted generally or on a large scale on account of the lack of economy. Recently in Montauban, France, a bakery has been equipped to operate by electricity, being so arranged that at any time a return may be made to the usual method of heating the oven by wood. In this establishment the oven is circular, 10 1-2 feet in diameter and 1 foot 7 3-4 inches high, with a single opening at the front. The electric current passes through a series of resistances formed of wire and arranged on a frame which may be raised or lowered by an arrangement of pulleys. These resistances are divided into four groups, two of which, consuming the most current and therefore producing the most heat, are placed in the centre of the oven. At the beginning the resistances are lowered, connected in parallel and the current passed through for one hour and twenty-six minutes, when the proper temperature for baking is attained. The unbaked loaves are then inserted, after the frame carrying the resistances has been raised. Naturally, when the oven is once heated there is required less expenditure of energy to maintain the temperature, which may be regulated at the will of the baker. The current is derived from an ordinary 110-volt street circuit, and must be given to the bakery at an advantageous price to make the experiment successful.—Harper's Weekly.

PROPRIETARY MEDICINES.

IN the Senate on August 5, Senator Sullivan moved for a statement showing the names of all liquid mixtures known as patent of proprietary medicines, purporting to remove the most varied forms of disease occurring in the human body. He said many of these drugs contained 40 per cent., more 30 per cent. of whiskey, whilst good Hollands contained 25 per cent., and lager beer only from 2 to 5 per cent. These pernicious compounds were sold freely, often as vegetable compounds. The physician conscientiously endeavored to do the best he could for his patients. If he lent himself to any secret remedy he fell, never to rise again. These compounds were made of ordinary ingredients. A day or two ago an aperient pill was sent around with the compliments of a member of Parliament as a fruitive," but all the fruit about it was a little lemon flavor in the coating. There were, again, fabrications of diseases anti-febrine. He did not know how many antis. As to testimonials, he could go into the street and for 25 cents get a poor fellow to give him a testimonial about any disease he liked to inflict on him, and have a fresh disease next day. If the advertisements were cut away the sale of these things would cease. He commended Sir William Mulock for his intention to keep advertisements of these things out of the mails.

He introduced this motion because of the action of the College of Physicians of Ontario. Many a woman had been made a drunkard, and the home ruined by these things. When he was a student he was cautioned as to giving tinctures which were merely alcoholic solutions of substances water would not dissolve. He was not conjuring up any bugaboo. If the Senate could veto the sale of these things they would have justified their existence. It was a fearful thing to think of a Government granting the power to poison their own people. There is no restriction to the sale. He challenged contradiction.

HAY FROM QUEBEC.

LARGE quantities of old hay are being imported from Quebec into Halifax and other points on the western shores. This is being done in anticipation of a considerable shortage in the local hay crop, especially in the vicinity of Halifax. It is known that the crop will be shorter than last year—which was also a poor year—Yarmouth being the only county in the province where an average cut is looked for. A gentleman from Sackville, who was recently here, said the crop in that section of New Brunswick will also be poor. In an average season he usually cut 300 tons—this year he will not get more than 100. Large quantities will have to be imported, as there is no reserve stock in Nova Scotia to fall back on. In former years there has been, but the shortage last year drew on it and this year finds the barns all empty. The continued dry weather has burned the crop in this province, but fortunately in Quebec the cut is heavy, and there are also thousands of tons of old stock still on hand. There is no reason to believe that the price in Nova Scotia will be any higher than it is at present unless there should happen to be a shortage in the United States.—Halifax Herald.

GREEN FRUITS

THE CANADIAN FRUIT CROP.

DIVIDING the apple crop into Fall and Winter varieties, the reports show medium to full crop of the former. In the apple sections, from which the bulk of the Winter fruit will be obtained for export, the crop is not as large as last year, but may be classed as light to medium. A very clear distinction must be made between Fall apples and good storing stock. The reports from Great Britain and Europe generally show a very large crop of fruit that will come into direct competition with our Fall varieties, and may slightly affect the market for Winter fruit; but up to the present time European fruit has not competed seriously with our best keeping varieties. The apple crop in Canada appears to be singularly free this year from the attacks of insects and fungus diseases. It is quite probable that the codling moth will not be a serious pest, but there are indications that the spot may yet develop to a slight, if not a serious, degree.

Pears, except in British Columbia, will be a light crop. There will be very few for export, but the quality of those will be good.

Peaches and plums are almost an absolute failure. There are, however, a few favored sections where the Winter did not materially affect these two fruits, and in such orchards the crop will be medium.

The grape crop will be fairly good, but in the large producing districts of the Niagara Peninsula black rot has shown to a serious extent, and it is impossible to predict the extent to which the crop will be curtailed by this pest.

Strawberries have been very uneven. Where they were not Winter killed the crop has been good, but the Winter killing was so general that the yield has been a small one.

Raspberries were also a light crop.

Cherries in British Columbia have been a full crop, but a light crop throughout Ontario. In the rest of Canada, wherever grown, they have been light to medium.

Black currants are a full crop. Red currants not quite so good, but still a large crop.

Canadian Fruit at St. Louis.

CANADA holds her own among the states and countries of America in her fruit display at the St. Louis World's Fair. Even with California included, when real domestic value is considered, there is perhaps no exhibit in the horticultural department which compares with that of Canada, for oranges can never take the place in household economy that apples do, and for apples of high quality and great variety Canada stands unapproached. In her display of apples alone she is showing no less than ninety-four varieties in their natural state, just taken from cold storage. In addition to these, fully fifty choice varieties are displayed in bottles preserved in liquid compounds. The average fair visitor may well open his eyes at this, but he sees in addition forty to fifty varieties of choice pears, an equal number of varieties of plums, several different kinds of grapes, cherries in great variety, and, to cap it all, a long list of the choicest peaches. We can imagine him saying in amazement, "Does all this fruit grow in Canada?"

A Test Case.

On behalf of Mr. E. D. Smith, M.P., a writ has been issued against the Canadian Express Company. Unstated damages are asked. The trouble is over the failure of the company to carry out its contract respecting the delivery of fruit for the plaintiff. Mr. Smith shipped some fruit from Aylmer, Ont., to Aylmer, Que. The Canadian Express Company carried it as far as Ottawa, intending to turn it over to the Dominion Express Company at that point, the Dominion Company having an exclusive office in Aylmer, Que. But the Dominion Company refused to carry the fruit from Ottawa to Aylmer, Que., because the Canadian Company had carried it the greater part of the journey; consequently the fruit remained in Ottawa, and Mr. Smith suffered heavy loss.

Fruit Show at Toronto.

Fifteen hundred dollars in prizes will be given at the Fruit, Flower and Honey Show to be held in Toronto during the second week of November. Among the important gatherings that will take place at the time of the show will be the annual meeting of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, and the Ontario Bee Keepers' Association, while a meeting of delegates from the various horticultural societies of the province will also be held. The Ontario Government has made a grant of $1,000 to aid the exhibition, which has been supplemented by a grant of $200 from the city of Toronto. Particulars regarding the show may be had by writing to the secretary, Supt. H. B. Cowan, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

A Valuable Report.

The 40th annual report of the Fruit Growers' Association of Nova Scotia has just been published, and as usual is an interesting number. It contains a verbatim account of the proceedings at the annual meeting held at Bridgewater, January 27 and 28, with all the reports and addresses there delivered. Some of the papers read were: "Varieties of Apples for the Commercial Market," and "Pruning," by A. McNeil, of Ottawa; "Conserving Soil Moisture," by W. S. Blair, Nappan; "Causes of Failure in Beginning Fruit Growing," by W. T. Macoun, Ottawa; "Shipping Apples in Boxes," by J. D. Sherwood, Wolfville, and "The Business End of the Orchard," by R. I. Messenger.

Fruit for Winnipeg.

The fruit inspectors at Winnipeg have expressed the opinion that better transportation services and better packing were necessary to bring fruit to Winnipeg in good condition. The consensus of opinion seemed to be that fruit shipped from Ontario was too long on the way, and not properly packed, or rather in a great many cases carelessly packed. Fruit would arrive in good condition, but within twenty-four hours after its arrival it would be ready to throw away, due to the fact that it had been so long on the road.

Hint to Apple Exporters.

Very large quantites of apples may be successfully placed in the district of Leeds and Hull, Eng., says J. B. Jackson, the commercial agent of the Canadian Government stationed in that district. To this end intending apple exporters are invited to correspond with Mr. Jackson direct. He says it will facilitate matters materially if intending shoppers will specify the kinds of apples and amounts per month which they intend shipping.

Export of Canadian Apples.

The export trade for Canadian and American Fall apples will be somewhat restricted, but owing to the better quality of Canadian apples they will still have the preference in the European marketsf There will be the nec?ssity, ever, of rigidly excluding all second quality fruit. Fall fruit of first-class quality will in all prabability bring a fair price, but it is almost certain that second quality fruit will not bring much, if anything, over the cost of marketing. The supply of good Winter stock of apples suitable for the British market during the months of January, February and March is not excessive, and it seems reasonable to expect that the demand will be almost equal to that of last year.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions

"Finest in the World."

WHEN Mr. Alexander MacWillie, of Toronto, was on his travels round the world in the interests of the Heinz Co., of Pittsburg, he had a splendid opportunity of seeing the grocery stores of the world and comparing them with one another. As there were very few nooks and corners of the earth into which Mr. MacWillie did not peer, what he has to say on the grocery stores is authoritative. Here is his description of a store in Johannesburg, of which an illustration is supplied on this page.

The photograph is one of the display windows of the store of C. H. Thrupp & Co., grocers, Johannesburg. Located on the fashionable shopping steeet of the Golden City, these windows with their generous supply of plate glass shelves, fixtures of solid brass and nickel, and electric light fittings, are undoubtedly the most attractive grocery display windows in all the world. The effect when the lights are on is particularly striking and attracts the attention of crowds of passers-by.

The interior of the store is in keeping with the exterior—furnished to the smallest detail in mahogany—with plenty of plate glass and splendidly equipped provision, confectionery, fancy grocery and toilet goods departments. Taken as a whole the store of C. H. Thrupp & Co. is without an equal in Europe or America so far as artistic, substantial and aristocratic appearance is concerned. The business of this firm has been established over fifteen years. The stock represents direct importations from America, Asia, Europe and Australia, and the clientage is representative of the wealthy city of Johannesburg, where the purchasing public are exceedingly exacting in the matter of high quality, large variety and prompt service.

Store Front of C. H. Thrupp & Co., Johannesburg, S.A.

An Odd Window Display.

A Chicago druggist recently had a novel window display to advertise a certain kind of candy. One end of the window was banked up and covered with a good imitation of sod. On this two or three logs, charred on one side and six or eight inches in diameter, were laid close together as they would be in a camp-fire. To the inner or charred side of the logs were pasted long strips of red and yellow tissue paper. A fan concealed below blew the strips of red paper up between the logs making a very realistic imitation of flames. A concealed electric light shone upon the tissue paper and helped to carry out the dilusion.

Over this mimic fire an iron pot filled with candy was suspended on three sticks, and a show card bore the words, "Our candies are always fresh." The display attracted a good deal of attention and many thought that the tissue paper flames dancing against the bottom of the pot were real fire. This kind of artificial fire could be used in a great many ways in window decoration.

A Novel Display.

A Chicago seed store attracted considerable attention to its windows by exhibiting an incubator filled with eggs. A large card bore the sign, "These eggs are due to hatch June 11th," and on the hatching day the window was surrounded from morning till night by a crowd of curious people patiently watching for the chicks to materialize.

Some time before, the same store had a hen with a brood of newly-hatched chicks in one of its windows. While a hen and chickens are by no means an unusual sight, they never fail to attract attention.

United States Wheat Exports.

THE statistics of exports of breadstuffs from the United States for the fiscal year 1904, which ended on June 30 last, shows an extraordinary falling off in comparison not only with the year before but with a considerable number of years before. "The world's crop was the largest ever gathered," said Bradstreet's, "but our rivals, Argentina, Russia and India, have supplied the great export surplus, and we have had to be content with, in some respects, the least satisfactory trade for many years past."

The following figures of United States grain and flour exports as given in Bradstreet's from the Government returns will be found of interest:

	Wheat Bushels.	Wheat Value.	Flour Value.
1904.....	44,158,744	$135,815,918	$67,841,274

The export of wheat from the United States during the past fiscal year was the smallest in any fiscal year since 1877, twenty-seven years ago, while the value of the grain exported was the smallest there is record of for at least thirty years. The export of flour was the smallest since 1899, but the higher prices paid make better comparisons with most past years. Reducing flour to its wheat equivalent, a total export for the fiscal year of 119,441,719 bushels is reached, which is the smallest aggregate sent out from the United States since 1891, while the value of the wheat and flour exports is the smallest since 1896.

Afraid of Canadian Competition.

THE United States millers are alarmed over the continued growth of our exports of wheat and flour. At a recent meeting of the Millers' National Federation at Buffalo, they referred to "the ruinous competition of Canadian wheat in European markets."

They cannot see any way of stopping Canada's production of wheat. Canada is destined to be one of the world-factors in wheat production. They admit that, but are anxious to preserve their milling industry. To do so, they must have a law which will allow them to import Canadian wheat, grind it and export it without having to pay any customs' duties. This is the problem which they are endeavoring to meet. At present the Canadian wheat is being ground either in Canada or in England, and flour from Canadian wheat is superior to and is displacing United States flour in the British market.

At present the United States has a drawback law which was intended to allow a refund of the duties paid on imported materials used in the manufacture of imported articles. It does not, however, provide for such cases as the grinding of Canadian wheat and the mixing of the resulting flour with flour from United States wheat. The millers are anxious for a special law to enable them to secure a refund of duty paid on Canadian wheat without the necessary "identification" of the present law.

Canada must preserve its own milling industry and the Government should see that the conditions are kept favorable for the grinding of Canadian wheat in Canadian mills. If the United States millers wish to share in this trade, let them build branch mills in Canada, as the manufacturers of agricultural implements and locomotives have done. — August Canadian Magazine.

Canadian Flour in Japan.

IN his first report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Mr. Alexander Maclean, the newly appointed commercial agent of the Dominion in Japan, pays especial attention to flour, the bulk of which now comes from the Pacific coast states of the American Union. He says that some Japanese bakers say that they are unable to get from Canadian flour more bread per pound than from American. Others say, however, that they are able to get a trifle more, some as much as 15 per cent. more than from American flour. One good baker stated that at present the difference against Canadian flour averaged 50 cents per barrel, so that he was unable to use it, except for fancy baking. Were the price equally on a par with the American, he could use it largely, whereas he at present only uses the American article. Australian wheat and flour having been coming into the market somewhat lately, and as prices are put between the Canadian and American, the market to some extent has been opened for the sale of both wheat and flour from the antipodes.

Will Come to Montreal.

MR. ALEXANDER McFEE, of the Montreal Corn Exchange, expresses the opinion that with a good crop in the American west this year the amount of American wheat and corn that will come down the St. Lawrence route will greatly exceed that of any previous season. A large increase will be rendered possible by the greatly increased tonnage that is now running on the route from American as well as from the Canadian lake ports. The Canadian fleet of eight steamers has a capacity of 408,229 bushels, while the fleet of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Navigation, which comprises ten steamers, will be able to handle 790,000 bushels. This will mean that every two weeks after the crop begins to move out of the country over 1,100,000 bushels can be brought to Montreal by the cheaper Canadian all-water route.

Rust in Northern States.

Mr. H. V. Jones, the Minneapolis crop expert, who has recently made a trip through both the Dakotas and Minnesota states, reports that he found large areas of wheat ruined by rust in South and North Dakota and abandoned as worthless. Rust continues to spread, taking new territory every day. The wheat crop of South Dakota is placed as low as 35,000,000 bushels, provided there is not another day's damage. This is 20,000,000 under the Government's July report. North Dakota, says Mr. Jones, will give a greatly reduced yield under the most favorable conditions, while Minnesota will about hold her own.

Master Bakers Meet.

NEARLY 150 delegates attended the third annual convention of the Canadian Association of Master Bakers at Hamilton on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The first business on Tuesday morning was the address of the president of the association, E. Parnell, London. This report dealt hopefully on the future of the organization, and referred to the sanitary conditions in the bakeshops and the desire to introduce modern machinery. The necessity for the organization was commented upon, and references made to the harmonious conditions existing between employer and employe.

Secretary Jas. Acton, Toronto, followed with his report. He said that when the organization was formed two and a half years ago there was a membership of two score. Now there were representatives from Vancouver to Newfoundland. One feature of the year was the call for a standard three-pound loaf in Ontario. The law says that the loaf should be four pounds, and an effort will be made to have this changed so that three pounds will be the standard. A standard loaf should be the watchword for the coming year, and he hoped that legislation would be granted allowing the bakers to make whatever size loaf they chose so long as they were stamped. This would remove a great deal of unpleasantness between municipalities and the bakers. He advocated Sunday labor, characterizing it as a necessity, and hoped that the membership would increase so that the influence of the organization would be doubled.

The remainder of the session was taken up with hearing addresses and discussions thereon. Prof. Harrison gave a lecture on bacteriological examination of samples of Canadian flour, following which D. M. Tod, Oshawa, read a paper on what inducements can be offered to bring young men of intelligence into the baking trade. There were two other addresses, Mark Bredin of Toronto on machinery in the large bakery, and Wm. Vair of St. Thomas on the same topic, this last being followed by a discussion.

Swindled.

A clever scheme, of which a number of Ottawa grocers were the victims of late, has come to light. It appears that a man in the garb of a boatman has been in the habit of going to grocers and stating that his craft has just come in and has ordered supplies of groceries to be delivered at the Queen's wharf. After giving the order the man went to some of the stores a second time and secured an advance of $1, saying that it would be paid back when the groceries were delivered. A number advanced the money, but when the dock was visited by the delivery rig neither boat nor man were in evidence. At the same time, however, the merchants were out the amount of their temporary loans.

Standard Grain Co.

At a meeting of the Standard Grain Co., held in Winnipeg, organization was completed and the election of officers carried out. T. M. Banting, grain dealer of Banting, Man., was elected president, C. C. Smith, of Smith & Hunter, proprietors of the Antler Roller Mills of Carnduff, N. W. T., a director. A Laycock of Foxwarren, is vice-president; F. W. Robinson of Winnipeg, manager, and J. C. Browne of Winnipeg, secretary-treasurer.

CONDITION OF WESTERN WHEAT CROP.

WHEAT cutting in Manitoba is pretty generally expected to take place about August 21. A continuance of fine weather for two more weeks will assure the largest crop ever reaped west of Lake Superior.

Dr. Saunders, director of experimental farms, who is now in the west, telegraphed from Brandon on Monday: "Have seen crops east and west of Winnipeg to Brandon. Wheat on Summer fallowed land very promising; on stubble and Fall ploughed east of Portage crops seen are below the average, but grain averages better west of Portage. Earlier sorts of wheat are plump in berry, and hardening. Later sorts still soft. Mr. Bedford, superintendent of the experimental farm at Brandon, has just returned from long trip through southern Manitoba. He found the grain everywhere fully an average crop. North of the main line of the C. P. R. in Manitoba wheat is said to promise fully an average yield. Crop not so well advanced as usual; generally estimated about a week late. Weather very favorable."

THE C.P.R. REPORT.

On Tuesday the Canadian Pacific Railway issued the most exhaustive crop report compiled this season from the advices of its agents throughout the west. The tone of the advices is favorable. Sufficient rain has fallen generally throughout the country to keep the grain in good shape, except along the Estevan branch between Elva and MacLean, where farmers are complaining of dry weather. The La Riviere, Souris and Miniota sections report from two to ten hours' rainfall during the week ending yesterday, while there were only slight showers generally along the main line and Prince Albert branches.

There are a few streaks of untoward conditions in the report, which are, however, without exception only local in extent. A hailstorm near Killarney did much damage, but crops generally in that vicinity are reported as looking extra well.

A U.S. AUTHORITY'S VIEWS.

Charles S. Clark, manager of the Chicago Grain Dealers' Journal of Chicago, wired his paper from Winnipeg last Saturday: "Dealers in attendance at the annual meeting of the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association agree to a man that a remarkable improvement has occurred in the condition of wheat during the last two weeks. Although the crop is ten to fourteen days late, recent weather has been pushing it. Straw is short and strong, heads long and filling fast. Stand is so thick that in many places a yield of 35 to 45 bushels is expected. Fifty per cent. of the crop is now through blossom, and by the middle of next week all will be through. Cutting will commence in all districts August 20th to 25th. Estimates of the average yield for Manitoba and Assiniboia vary from 18 to 20 bushels to the acre, with the assurance of greater yields if frost holds off until September 1st, in which case the crop from 3,450,000 acres seeded will amount to 69,000,000 bushels. The last crop, according to a very carefully-compiled report issued this week by Secretary Fowler of the asociation, who has every facility for learning of each bushel marketed, was 52,320,000 bushels. With favorable weather these Provinces can easily spare 17,000,000 bushels more for export than last year. Reports of red black and blue rust in Spring wheat of the Dakotas and Minnesota, which have come from Minneapolis in quick succession, are looked upon with suspicion, and reports of grain rust are expected next. No rust here, and recent arrivals from Dakota fields report none."

Macaroni Wheat.

THE interesting announcement is made that marcaroni wheat from Northern Russia has been successfully introduced in the United States and thrives in the semi-arid regions of the West, a crop of 10,000,000 bushels being in sight this year. Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture, says that no experiment in scientific agriculture undertaken by the department will prove of greater value to the people, since it will provide a valuable harvest for the rugged and almost barren sections of part of the American Northwest. North and South Dakota will produce 8,000,000 bushels this year. Reports received by Secretary Wilson from the farmers trying this wheat indicate that it thrives in abundant sunshine, does not require a large amount of moisture, resists vigorously the attacks of the smuts and rusts and is a strong grower, yielding largely (from 25 to 100 per cent.) in excess of the ordinary bread wheats. A Washington letter gives the following interesting account of the characteristics and uses of this wheat:

The several varieties of Macaroni wheat, while differing widely in their chemical and milling properties, nevertheless possess many traits in common. They have strong straws, which prevent lodging; also heavy chaff, furnished with long beards, which protect the kernels from the fierce heat of the sun and prevent shattering—a grave objection to our common blue-stems.

Macaroni wheat has many uses that will make it acceptable and valuable in American dietaries. In fact, it is deserving of a much more extended use than it enjoys at the presnt time; and no doubt when the manufactured products are to be had fresh and at a reasonable cost their consumption will increase enormously. The first and most obvious use of macaroni wheat is in the manufacture of macaroni, vermicelli, and other forms of edible pastes. At present time this country is importing these products largely. In 1903 these imports amounted to 28,787,821 pounds, valued at $1,171,922. Three years ago not a single factory in the United States was making macaroni from macaroni wheat. All that was made in this country was of an inferior quality and was sold as such on the market; being produced from bread wheats. Now several factories are using American macaroni wheat, and some are proudly branding their products "The best in the world, made in America from American-grown wheats," etc. It is safe to predict that in a short time all our factories will be using American macaroni wheat.

A second use for macaroni is for the purpose of "blending." This high grade flour mixed with a low grade bread wheat flour makes a most valuable article for bread-making and pastry cooking. In Southern Europe blended flour is largely used, and no doubt its use in the United States will increase as the supply becomes abundant and its value understood.

Montreal Shipments.

Compared with last year there has been a great falling off in the receipts and shipments of grain at the port of Montreal so far this season. The following table offers a comparison:

Receipts—	1904.	1903.
Wheat, bushels ..	6,850,000	11,739,000
Corn, bushels	943,000	4,288,000
Shipments—
Wheat, bushels ..	4,667,000	9,000,000
Corn, bushels	803,000	3,665,000

Total receipts of corn and wheat were, therefore, 8,300,000 bushels behind last year, while the shipments show a proportionate decrease. The Canada Atlantic Railway has brought down 2,718,000 bushels of grain, as compared with 4,642,000 to date last year.

Record Shipments.

The Frontenac Cereal Co. recently shipped their first carload of Orange Meat from Kingston to Australia.

Third Reading of Tobacco Bill.

ON Friday, August, 5, the bill introduced into Parliament by Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Inland Revenue, intended to stamp out the contract system used by the American and Empire Tobacco Companies in their business relations with Canadian jobbers, was given its third reading and sent up to the Senate. The most general opposition to the measure expressed in Parliament was to the effect that too great power was placed in the hands of the Government. Mr. R. L. Borden thought that the Attorney General should be empowered to go before the courts and secure a judicial pronouncement, cancelling the licences of offending companies, rather than that the matter should be left in the hands of a Minister of the Crown.

The Tobacco War in Australia.

ABOUT three years ago, says The Melbourne Age, the great American tobacco corporation, which had obtained control of the tobacco trade in the United States, turned its attention, in accordance with the usual policy of monopolistic trusts, to Great Britain, with the view of capturing the trade in that country. The British manufacturers, recognizing the seriousness of the attack with which they were threatened, sank their rivalries and formed themselves into a strong organization to meet it. A great struggle then ensued for the British trade. Hundreds of thousands of pounds were spent by the rival combinations. The result of the battle was a compromise, under which the British manufacturer was allowed to retain control of the home trade, but had to surrender the greater portion of the export trade to a company in which the Americans had a decidedly predominant interest. This company was formed with a capital of £6,000,000, and its object, in the words of the president, was to "conquer the tobacco trade of the world," having a special eye on that of the British colonies.

On March 14, 1903, it was announced that Dixon's Tobacco Co., Limited, and W. Cameron, Bros. & Co., Proprietary, Limited, had been amalgamated as the British-Australasian Tobacco Co., Limited, with a subscribed capital of £1,500,000. A circular was issued at the time explaining that the object of this amalgamation was to fight the American and British combination, which has declared its intention of capturing the colonial markets. "During the last few months," the circular stated, "strong indications have pointed to the fact that the attention of this company is being directed to Australia, and in order to better meet the anticipated attack, and before wresting from Australia the control of its tobacco industry, Dixon's and Cameron's business have lately been considering measures of joint action for mutual defence. Negotiations have resulted in the decision to follow the lines of the British precedent."

It was subsequently stated that the Dixon and Cameron combinations had secured the Australian business of T. C. Williams, of Richmond, Va., the famous tobacco manufacturers and the largest exporters of aromatic tobaccos to the Australian States. There was a second notification stating that the business in Australia of David Dunlop, of Petersburg, Va., the maker of the well-known Derby brand of tobacco, and the chief exporter of dark tobaccos to Australia, had also been taken over by the British Australasian Co. on a hundred years' lease.

Towards the end of last year it was announced that a movement was on foot for consolidating certain large interests in the Australian trade. Shortly afterwards the announcement was made that J. Kronheimer Proprietary, Ltd., of Melbourne, and W. D. and H. O. Wills (Australia), Ltd., had amalgamated, under the title of Kronheimer Limited. The next move was the absorption of the National Cigarette Co. by Kronheimer Limited and the closing of the factory. Kronheimer Limited were appointed sole distributors for the American Tobacco Co. of Australia, who control a very large number of the leading brands of cigars made in Havana and Manila. They were also appointed sole agents for the David Dunlop and T. C. Williams tobaccos, the agencies of leading brands of imported cigars and cigarettes were taken over from the old companies, and the State Tobacco Co. handed over their distributing business to Kronheimer Limited. Then Messrs. Alfred Gross & Co. announced their retirement from the Australian trade, and finally the British Australasian Tobacco Co., Limited, passed over the distribution of their manufactures to the same concern, imported tobaccos and nearly the whole of the distributing trade in locally manufactured tobaccos. local cigar and cigarette trade is also in their hands. The movement started a year ago by the formation of the British Australasian Tobacco Co., ostensibly to fight the British American combination in its attempt to capture the Australian trade, has evolved into a monopolistic agency which transacts the distributing business for both combinations, and which practically dominates the whole of the tobacco trade in Australia. It is evident that the trend of events has been viewed with alarm by retailers. A meeting of the Tobacconists' Association of Victoria held recently, unanimously agreed to form the association into a limited company, a step which is no doubt intended to strengthen the position of the retailers should any aggressive action be taken by the powerful combination in the wholesale trade.

Consumption of Cigarettes.

ACCORDING to Mr. Maclaren, M.P. for Huntingdon, who has been trying to force an anti-cigarette bill through Parliament, the manufacture and sale of cigarettes in Canada grew from 34,000,000 in 1890 to 83,000,000 in 1895, the year in which the American Tobacco Co. appeared on the scene and started manufacturing in Canada, turning out 82,000,000 of the total output that year. In 1900 123,000,000 were manufactured, of which 102,000,000 were produced by the American Tobacco Co., and last year the manufacture had grown to 216,000,000, of which 191,000,000 were produced by the company named.

Tobacco and Baldness.

A MEDICAL man is responsible for the theory that the smoking of tobacco tends to develop baldness. For some reason or other every mysterious disease is attributed, sooner or later, to tobacco, says The London Globe. But there were brave men before Agamemnon, and there was disease before the days of Sir Walter Raleigh. Julius Cæsar, who lighted neither churchwarden nor Havana, was wont to comb his thinning locks forward over his brow in order to cloak his baldness, and Elisha certainly could not have preserved his hair at the period when he was insulted by ribald boys. From earth's earliest ages there have surely been men walking under the everlasting firmament with smooth and shiny heads, and we altogether protest, therefore, against the addition of baldness to the cumulative charges brought against tobacco.

It is one of the saddest evidences of mortality's inherent and incurable baseness that tobacco, which is certainly one of mankind's chiefest blessings, should be forced to bear out into the wilderness of medical theories nearly every sickness and evil which, so far, the sacred weed has been unable to remove.

Less Cigars Made.

THE inland revenue collection for the London division for July amounted to $35,438 53, as compared with $36,771.43 for the same month of 1903, showing a decrease of $1,332 90.

With the exception of the revenue derived from cigars from the factories, the items were little changed from those of a year ago. In July last year, cigars turned out of the London factories yielded a revenue of $9,319, while last month the amount collected from that source was only $7,355, a decrease of nearly $2,000. The cause of this is said to be a feeling of uneasiness on the part of the cigar manufacturers regarding the hotel licenses. When the license year commenced the holders of licenses merely got a three months' extension, and they were given to understand that if the law was not observed as it should be some heads would surely drop. As the decison of the commissioners to grant renewals for the balance of the year was not made known until nearly the end of last month, the cigar manufacturers went slowly. Hence the output of the factories was less, and consequently the revenue was reduced.

Philippine Cigars and Tobacco.

NEARLY all the tobacco grown in the Philippines is utilized in the manufacture of cigars and cigarettes, which are sent to Spain, to India, the East Indies, China, Japan and other Asiatic countries. While Manila tobacco and cigars will never supplant those of Havana in the American market, says a contemporary, there is every inducement to extend the industry and cater to the American taste. People who have lived in Manila will tell you that they prefer Manila cigars to Cuban, and that everybody else will after they become accustomed to them. They certainly have the merit of economy. You can buy the very best qualities of cigars for less than $10 a hundred, and as long as they are fresh they have an excellent flavor, but as they become dry they take on a weedy taste, which explains why they are liked so much better there than elsewhere.

The two enormous cigar factories employ several thousand men and women.

In former times tobacco was a government monopoly. Like every other foreign plant, it was introduced by the friars. The first cuttings were brought from Mexico. In order to promote its cultivation, every family in the agricultural district was required to produce a certain number of plants annually, and a heavy fine was imposed when the crop was short.

The tobacco was all shipped into Manila and assorted by experts. The inferior leaves were burned, and none but the best were made up into cigars and shipped into Spain. During the earlier part of the nineteenth century there were several riots and many local disturbances on account of the vigor with which these regulations were enforced. The profits of the monopoly to the government grew and grew until they finally reached several millions of dollars, and were so tempting that the privilege of manufacturing cigars was finally awarded to favorites of the crown, and gradually fell under the control of private individuals and companies.

Prof. F. Lamson Scriber, chief of the Bureau of Agriculture, is doing everything he can to promote the tobacco industry by teaching the farmers improved and economical methods of production. He has given them many useful hints derived from Cuban plantations. He is also teaching them to study the diseases of the plant and the methods of preventing and curing them, and how to treat the injurious insects that are constantly invading the fields. The quality of Manila tobacco can be much improved, Mr. Scribner thinks, but the farmers are very conservative and are reluctant to abandon old methods for new ones.

THE OFFICE END

DEVOTED TO THE OFFICE STAFFS OF BUSINESS ESTABLISHMENTS

THE "FOLLOW UP" SYSTEM AND ITS ADVANTAGES.

By Henry C. Hammack.

BEING assistant to the president and general manager of the Lima Locomotive & Machine Company, Lima, Ohio, who also has charge of the sales department, I found it necessary to devise a scheme to follow up our inquiries from prospective customers for locomotives. I started a system three years ago, at first in a rude manner, yet it answered the purpose and brought the desired result, and since then I have improved on it as opportunities presented themselves.

We have two card index boxes of about 1,200 cards capacity each. In these boxes the principal cards are carried. In one box we have an eighty-division alphabetical index, and in the other box two sets of monthly and daily guides. Now, when we receive an inquiry two cards are filled out; one is filed in alphabetical index under proper letter; the other card is filed ahead in monthly and daily guides, 15 days from date inquiry is answered.

This is the beginning of the usefulness of the "Follow Up" system. In our business, as well as in other classes of business of similar nature, it often becomes necessary to know whether we have ever quoted a certain party without wasting so much time as would be required in order to go through correspondence in letter files, and the card filed in the alphabetical index will at once be found useful for this purpose. You can turn to these cards and find this information in one-fifth the time required to look up correspondence.

These cards also serve another purpose: Throughout the different parts of the country there are a great many commission houses and houses that buy and sell second-hand locomotives. These parties frequently write for prices for customers, asking that we quote price reserving them a dealer's commission. Our rule is to allow no one a commission on sales to customers whom we are already in correspondence with or old customers whom we have sold to before. As soon as we have inquiries from these commission or second-hand houses, we can tell at once by turning to the cards in alphabetical index whether we are in correspondence with parties mentioned or whether we have made prices to them. This is also a saving of time, probably money, in case letters should be misplaced in file by some error and could not be found at time of looking up correspondence. There have been times when we had to rely on correspondence entirely.

The cards carried in the other box are filed ahead 15 days from date of answering inquiry; after the 15 days' time has elapsed, the card is taken out and we go over the correspondence in letter files to see if we have heard from parties in the meantime, and if not a "call up" letter is written them. Then the card is filed ahead another fifteen days.

If no response is received to our first "call up" letter, a second letter is written; if no response, then a third letter is written and so on until four letters have been written. Mostly some sort of a reply is received to our first letter. If the reply is favorable, we file the card ahead 10 or 15 days for consideration. It may be that before the first 15 days rolls by we have the matter in such shape that a sale is about to be effected.

If we receive favorable inquiries from a section of country where one of our salesmen is traveling, correspondence is at once forwarded to him for further attention. Or if it happens that a number of inquiries are received from one section of the country, then a salesman is sent out to look after same. In case orders are received from parties making inquiries, cards are taken out of index box containing monthly and daily guides (which we call "running cards") and marked across face, "Sold a certain weight locomotive," whatever it may be, then filed away in alphabetical index in other box, taking out the card originally placed in alphabetical index and destroying same.

In case it is desired to file card away containing inquiry which is received from parties from whom we cannot get any response, or parties not being in the market or purchasing elsewhere, the card is taken out of the index box containing "running cards," and marked across face, "cannot get any response," "are not in the market, made other arrangements," "purchased second-hand locomotive," "purchased new locomotive elsewhere," whichever the case may be. These cards are filed away in alphabetical index (taking out original cards and destroying same) until the end of the year and then filed away in transfer case for future reference.

This system having been in use only three years, has saved the company many thousands of dollars. I can recall one instance where the fact of this system being in use brought about a sale of a locomotive which sale alone amounted to $7,000. It was this way: We answered an inquiry received from a prospective customer quoting on an engine. We made out cards as usual and filed them away in the proper way. When the 15 days rolled by the card was taken out of the "running cards" and correspondence looked up, but we found we had received no responce. We at once wrote them a "call up" letter and it developed that our first letter quoting price had never been received by customer. As soon as he received the call up letter he wired us, stating that letter making price had never been received by him, and asked for a duplicate. The duplicate letter was received O. K., and after considering our proposition wired us his order. Afterward, in writing us, explaining the matter, he stated that he supposed, as we did not answer his letter, we did not care to make him a price and he had decided to order elsewhere. This simply shows the benefit of the system in one instance.

This system enables us at all times to have our prospective customers, also customers whom we have sold and parties whom we were unable to effect a sale to, at our finger ends, which is quite a benefit to any sales department.

A system along this line could be applied to most any kind of business, and parties who have not yet got out of the "rut of the old way" will do well to establish it. I am quite certain that good results would be forthcoming inside of three months after system was established.

"Let the GOLD DUST twins do your work."

Why break your back to keep your floors clean ?

GOLD DUST

will do the work twice as well, in half the time, at half the cost. It's the modern cleaning substitute for soap. A household without GOLD DUST is almost as badly off as a ship without a rudder. For your own sake try GOLD DUST in cleaning. You'll never again be without it.

Wasting Your Energies?

If it pays to push an article, it pays to push it to some purpose and to push more with an object of gaining permanent trade than of temporary profit. If the demand for any article stops when you stop pushing it 95 per cent. of your energy has been wasted.

You waste no energy whatever in advocating the sale of the "Griffin" Brand of Dried Fruits and the "Thistle" Brand of Canned Fish, because people who buy them once will buy them again and again. Briefly, the intrinsic merit of both these articles backs up the highest praise you can give them.

"Griffin" Brand Dried Fruits.

Seedless Raisins and Prunes. Dried Apricots, Peaches and Pears in all their original goodness. A revelation to the grocer who has been buying other Brands.

Selected with the greatest care and shipped in original boxes right from the Vineyards and Orchards on the Pacific Coast.

Look for the "Griffin" trade mark before you buy.

"Thistle" Brand Canned Fish.

Canned Haddies, Kippered Herring and Herring and Tomato Sauce. Selected, cured and packed by Captain Austin of The Thistle Canning Co., Little River, N.S.

Absolutely clean, rich, delicate, appetizing. Prepared right at the water side where they are caught. The brand of highest quality and so recognized the world over.

Just like fishing

Building up trade is just like fishing.

If you use the right kind of bait and cast your line where the kind of fish you want are most plentiful, you'll quite likely get a number of bites.

Then if you go about it right you are pretty sure to land most of them.

Apply the illustration to business.

If you want to catch the grocery trade, cast your line where all the good grocers in Canada congregate every week —looking for bait to build up their businesses with — in THE CANADIAN GROCER. But

Suppose results don't come at fust
What be yew goin' tur dew?
Take out yewr ad, and kick yewrself,
An' go ter feelin' blew?
Uv course yew hain't; yew're goin' tew fish,
An' bait an' bait again;
Bimeby some nibbles 'n bites 'll come,
Then yew'll pull 'em in.

Our Department of Advertising Service is now providing good bait for a number of our advertisers—and stands ready to help a few more in this connection.

Drop us a line about it.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELING IN CANADA*

SPECIAL TO THE BIRMINGHAM DAILY POST.

FOR several years past Canada has loomed large upon the horizon of commerce. Such glowing accounts of its prosperity have reached this country that the most somnolent of British manufacturers have been awakened to the existence of the great Dominion in the far Northwest. As a result, the last six months or so have witnessed an irruption of British commercial travelers into the colony in numbers—so I have been assured—far greater than have ever before been known. I myself was one of this crowd, and, as anything that can add to the general knowledge of the conditions of traveling in Canada is of special interest just now. I propose to give a resume of my experiences, pro bono publico. It is perhaps pardonable to state that, although new to Canada, I am an old hand "on the road," with an experience that embraces nearly every European country. I am, moreover, perfectly familiar with the goods I have to sell. My impressions, therefore, are not those of a novice; nor are my experiences those of that other very common type in Canada—the commercial adventurer, who has scraped together a few scratch agencies in goods he has never handled before.

It was with high hopes and no small expectations that I set out for these fresh fields and pastures new. If I did not indulge the vision of a virgin soil, unfurrowed, as yet, by the plough of the British commerical, at least I felt reasonably sure that I would find a people well-disposed towards English goods—a people alert to see the merits of a new idea, keen to appreciate freshness of design, able to discriminate between the substantially and the flashily made articles, and, above all, a people who, when they bought at all, would buy largely. Alas that I should have to record it, but the truth must prevail! one after another I came to see these illusions shattered. And I have amply convinced myself that my experiences were not exceptional. I have compared notes with some dozens of other travelers, like myself, on their first journeys to Canada, but none did I meet whose verdict differed materially from my own.

One Fond Belief Gone.

First, to take the predilection for English goods, which we at home suppose to be the hall-mark of the loyal Canadian. This fond belief must go the way of other false faiths. In Canada, as elsewhere, patriotism stops short at the pocket. Whatever of patriotic sentiment the Canadian permits to enter into his business philosophy takes the formula of "Canada for the Canadians," and he is a supporter of home industries first and foremost. True, in next degree, his loyal feelings to the Old Country prompt him—all other things being equal—to favor England as against the foreigner; the preferential tariff is the token thereof. But in his tastes, in his habits, in the ordering of his mode of life, his leaning is all towards America. Alike in the furnishing of the dwelling house, in the plant of the factory, or the equipment of the hotel, in the system of railways, sanitation, lighting, street traffic, even in sport, Canada follows the lead of the United States. It is the inexorable gravitation of the lesser body to the larger. Not only so, but the operation of the natural law has been helped forward by the long neglect of the colony by the Mother Country, till the wonder is that it has not sapped the political allegiance as well. When remonstrated with upon this condition of things, the Canadian rejoins—not without good reason on his side—that it is only of quite recent years that England has deigned, either in politics or in commerce, to cultivate the Canadian connection. Thus it is that the American influence is the most serious obstacle the British manufacturer has to fight in the belated bid which he is now making for the trade of Canada.

In ornamental or decorative goods—such as jewelry, plated goods, art metal ware, lamps, glass, crockery—it is the American taste that has to be catered for, and the trend of that taste is to the light and the flashy, as opposed to the plainer, better finished article that is usually characteristic of Britsh make. In ironmongery, in cabinet and builders' brassfoundry, in heating or cooking apparatus, in electric light, plumbers' or sanitary fittings one has to meet the keen price-competition of the Americans and their, in many cases, cleverer patents and handier notions. But, even where these do not debar, one still has to reckon with American ideas and ways in matters culinary or furnishing; one still has to conform to American standards and regulations, which the Canadians everywhere blindly adopt. Even in the domain of sport it is the same tale; baseball, not cricket, is the national game of Canada; the "buggy," not the dogcart, is the popular turnout; cycling is practised only by masses as distinguished from the classes; the machines ridden are of the flimmiest Yankee type, and Yankee go-as-you-please ideas, which prevail equally in Canada, dispense with all such superfluous accessories as bells, brakes, or lamps. In hats, hosiery, and "footwear" one does not need to be in the trade to see how slavishly the Canadian copies his Yankee cousin.

About Preferential Tariffs.

"Oh, but," says your Englishman, "we have now got the preferential tariff." It is not generally known at home—or, if known, it is but imperfectly realized—how little that preference counts for in the fight. It may be well, therefore, to state that, although it is a rebate of one-third of the usual duty, it amounts only to 10 per cent. upon the value of manufactured articles, which, for the most part, are subject to a duty of 30 per cent. In other words, while the American article pays the full duty, the British gets in for 20 per cent. net. It is but a little start which we thus get in the trade handicap, and such as it is it is neutralised by the proximity of the great manufacturing districts of New England and Pennsylvania.

In raw materals or in bulk goods it may sometimes be sufficient to turn the scale. But I am here concerned for manufactured articles, such as are the staple production of Birmingham and the Midlands, and in these a difference to the consumer of a shilling in the half-sovereign is all too small to countervail against ingrained habit, taste, or custom.

Thus it comes to pass that a man may take to Canada the goods of any of our most celebrated English makers; these goods may be excellent in design, faultless in finish, right in price; but, if they are a departure from the American style and taste prevailing in the Dominion, he will find no market for them. This happened to myself with two separate and distinct, but most widely known, English makes, which sell not only in Great Britain and in at least one British colony, but all over the Continent of Europe besides.

Nor is the difficulty of introducing new makes confined only to cases of being "up against" America. I have never found a people so hard to win over to a new idea as the Canadians. This constituted the greatest surprise of my tour, being, I confess, the very antithesis of what I had expected. I had with me one line of goods that was absolutely a new creation—a departure from anything that has hitherto been made in that particular line, the nature of which I am not at liberty to indicate. Earlier in the year I had taken a journey with these goods through the greater part of the Continent of Europe, where they had been readily, even eagerly, bought all along the line. In Canada I could get no one to take them up. "There was no 'call' for such goods," I was told. Similarly it fared with a number of household patents I was carrying, goods that are in regular demand at home and on the Continent. There was nothing in the nature of these articles to render them inapplicable to or unsuitable for Canadian requirements. But they were new, and as yet had not been "called for." Hence it was next to an impossibility for me to awaken interest in them. And these are the people who are incessantly dinning it into the ears of the slow-going old Britisher that they are always "right in front of time."

The reason for this extraordinary lack of interest in new goods—as distinguished from eagerness after cheap-jack "novelties"—is, in my opinion, to be sought in the fact that in Canada the private firm scarcely exists at all. Alike amongst the retail "stores" and the wholesale "jobbers," the trade is in the hands of limited companies to a far greater extent than is the case in Europe. The result is that the traveler comes little into contact with the heads of firms, but has to do almost entirely with the departmental buyers. For the most part these are very young men—much too young, according to our old-fashoned English notions, though, in his own estimation, there is no Canadian of five-and-twenty Summers who is not capable of managing anything on earth. Paradoxical as it may sound, their very youth is antagonistic to the new idea. Lacking the stimulus of the competition of a few first-class private firms, these departmental buyers run pretty much all in the same groove. Their trade horizon is limited to what they know will sell, and, being answerable for the success of their departments, they are "taking no risks." "Fryingpans are 'called for,'" they say; "therefore show us fryingpans, and we will go into your prices; but do not bother us with an article that is to supersede the fryingpan, and which we should have all the trouble of introducing to the public." Give them regular goods to handle, and they will expend themselves in claptrap "ads," in trade puffs, and in the cutting of prices. Therein lies the chief element of Canadian business "smartness."

Canadians Slow as Customers.

My next indictment will touch the Canadian "on the raw." There is probably no charge he would more vehemently resent than that of being "slow." "You English are so slow," they never tire of telling you. Yet, as buyers, of all the peoples I have ever had to do with, the Canadians are the slowest. Not in coming to see your samples—that they do with alacrity; curiosity being the motive power. But afterwards, even when the customer has decided to give you an order, you may prepare for a period of exasperating delay before you can get him to make it up. This is especially the case with the young man buyer I have spoken of. He takes no account of time—that is, of your time—to which he helps himself with all the easy assurance of the young man in a young country. It may be that you have to do with more than one department in a store. If so, you are in a bad case, for each departmental order has to go through a highly-elaborated routine system; each individual buyer will procrastinate in turn, and the traveler may be kept hanging about interminably before he is "through" with the firm. My own experience in this direction convinced me that for the despatch of business the time-honored methods of the British War Office are rapid and up-to-date compared with a Canadian "store." When you do get your order it will probably be woefully out of focus with the scale of bigness which you have been in the habit of associating with all things American. For your Canadian, being so far in front of time, has always got his stock "laid down" for about eighteen months ahead. At least this is what he tells you. And although he handles so-and-so-many thousand dollars' worth of this or that particular class of goods per annum just now he can only manage to squeeze a little lot of your goods to see how they "catch on." It is the old story, only one hardly expected to hear it in the New World.

It is only fair to state—and the fact is an interesting one—that these characteristics of the Canadian business man go hand-in-hand with a great affability of manner. Accessibility is another of his good points. The traveler on his first journey has no difficulty in getting to see the heads of firms or of departments, at practically any time in ordinary business hours. This is due in a large measure to the Canadian's native geniality, for I have nowhere suggested that he is not a "good fellow." It is also due to his adoption of the American business principle—which we English might also copy with advantage—of seeing everbody, so as to be sure of missing no one. But these very virtues are akin to those of the pleasant-mannered dentist. Myself, I am old enough to have become case-hardened. But many a bright young Englishman did I meet, enchanted, on his first calls, with the cordiality of his reception, only to find him afterwards disgusted and dejected in inverse ratio with the subsequent disilusionment.

Some Reflections.

The abounding prosperity of the Dominion cannot be gainsaid, and that there are trades in which big and regular business is done by English firms need not be stated. That such trades and their representatives are subject in much lesser degree to the conditions I have described also goes without saying. Which and what these trades are it is not my province to indicate. I am merely offering a gratuitous guidebook to such English firms as may contemplate opening up trade relations there, and am giving them some idea of what they may expect. I have endeavored to show that the Britsh manufacturer has a lot of leeway to make good before he can catch up with the American. Canadian trade is not, as some fondly imagine, an over-ripe apple ready to fall into any British maw that chooses to open for it. For firms unknown out there—though their names be household words at home—it is an uphill fight all the way. Nor need English houses hope to win their way by reason of being "old established." Age does not command respect with the Canadian; he at once begins to talk of "cobwebs." The story goes of a store in a Canadian city, while, having enjoyed a long monopoly was suddenly confronted with a opposition shop. "Established over 100 years" the old firm put over its doorway with conscious pride. "Established last week but come to stop 100 years" read the signboard which the new-comer promptly stuck up in reply. And there is no doubt which of the two would appeal the more successfully to Canadian sentiment.

I know no country in the world where traveling is so expensive. If a man takes samples with him he will have to plank down one-fifth of their value before he can open out at all. Duty is charged, too, on his traveling cases or baskets, at the arbitrary valuation of the customs officials. None of this duty is recoverable when he leaves the country. This is an exaction which is not practised by the most arbitrary of European Governments: it is not "fiscal policy," it is sheer blackmail, and should be strenuously taken up by the English Chambers of Commerce. The distances in Canada are enormous, and the freight traffic both slow and uncertain. Consequently the traveler must always despatch his cases by "express" at very heavy cost. Hotels are excellent but high-priced. One misses the handy English "boots," or the Continental "commissionaire," to do little odd jobs. All small services must be dispensed with or paid for at exorbitant rates. There are no outside porters to take one's cases to a customer; these must be sent and fetched by a "transfer company" at a cost of a "quarter" (one shilling) per package each way. And so on, through the whole gamut of petty expenses—from the "shoe-shine" at 10 cents (5d.) a time to the cab at 2 1-2 dollars for a ten-minutes' drive. In short, the intending traveler must be prepared to pay a dollar for every shilling he would spend at home. If he has the feeling that he is only getting value for the shilling, he may console himself with the thought that he is taking out the balance in "experience."

A USEFUL ADVERTISEMENT.

The Grocer in Montreal has been presented with a thermometer by Mr. D. B. McRae. Mr. McRae is the eastern representative of the Wilson, Lytle, Badgerow Co. Ltd. and the T. A. Lytle Co. Ltd. "The trouble is," he said, "everybody wants one once they see it, and I haven't an express wagon with me. Don't tell anyone of this or I'll be flooded with demands." With thanks to Mr. McRae we will not tell anybody but don't doubt if a request is made on the office at Toronto one of these useful and sensible presents will be forthcoming.

JAPAN TEA SHIPMENTS.

The Grocer has received the following statistics regarding shipments of tea from Japan for the present season up to July 15 from C. M. Bernard & Co., Yokohama, Japan :

To	Lbs.
New York and East	6,472,053
Chicago and West	7,129,949
San Francisco	1,628,223
Canada	1,144,268
Total	16,3 4,493

Decrease to same time last year, 3,037,-703 lbs., excepting Canada, which has increased 364,259 lbs. At present popular prices for teas suitable for Canadian market orders are pouring in from that country, ruling prices for medium and low grades being the same as for the year 1901. Fine first crop teas, however, have been higher than last season, and as the supply is very short, holders of them expect to make handsome profits.

JAPANESE RED CROSS MEDAL.

Mr. Shaw T. Nishimura, of the Japan Central Trades Association, Montreal, has just received through the Imperial Japanese Consul-General in New York, the silver medal and badge of an honorary member of the Japanese Red Cross Society. The medal which is of silver is embossed on one side with the mythological phoenix surrounded by leaves of the rice plant, while on the reverse side is inscribed in Japanese the words "Japanese Red Cross Society, twenty-first year of Meiji" (which is the year 1887 when the society was formed). The medal is depended from a band of orange colored ribbon with blue stripes, bearing in the centre a raised Japanese sun. A certificate of membership and a button of same color as the ribbon supporting the medal, accompanied the latter. The button is worn daily in the laped of the member's coat, while the larger medal is only used on national or society holidays and days of rejoicing Judging by the reports from the seat of war Mr. Nishimura will have plenty of occasions for displaying his membership in the Red Cross Society of Japan, and no one is more proud to do so.

RUINS OF ROYAL YEAST FACTORY.

AS THEY APPEARED ON APRIL 20TH 1904.

BUT—WE ARE NOT DOING SO BADLY!

Since being cleaned out by fire we have not said much but all have been busy "sawing wood."

Result has been that in JULY, 1904, we made in our TWO LITTLE TEMPORARY factories, and shipped—— more MAGIC BAKING POWDER more GILLETT'S LYE

more ROYAL YEAST

and just as many other goods as in JULY, 1903. (Had all orders been filled SALES WOULD HAVE BEEN DOUBLE AS MUCH.)

That duplicate set of machinery we had in reserve is what did the business.

In this connection we desire to thank our friends (both Wholesalers and Retailers), for their patience with us during the trying period we have just passed through, and for the many kindnesses shown us. Before long will be able to fill all orders the same day as received.

Instead of handling "GILLETT'S GOODS" sparingly, it will then be all right to put some steam behind the work, urge the sale of the various articles and have salesmen do likewise.

GILLETT'S CREAM TARTAR—Our trade for these fine goods is immense and we cannot possibly keep up with the demand. DO YOU HANDLE IT?

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

Co-Operative Trade in Denmark.

IT is obvious to one who has been in England a short time that something is radically wrong with the British dairy industry. That the English themselves realize that something is out of joint is evidenced by recent discussions and the arrival at the conclusion that English dairying needs co-operative organization.

More foreign than domestic butter is consumed in England, and its average price is less than that of the home butter, even after freight and middlemen's profits are paid. England's imports of butter are chiefly from Denmark, about nine-tenths of Denmark's entire butter export coming hither. Denmark exported 220,000,000 pounds of butter in 1903, of which 200,352,000 pounds came to the British Isles. Denmark received therefor nearly $50,000,000.

An explanation of this situation, unpleasant if not alarming from the British view point, is found in the Danish farmers' co-operative societies, which seem to be able to successfully meet and overcome difficulties which would wreck individuals unsupported by organization, and which seem by their united effort to defy competition in the marketing of their products. There are said to be over 1,000 such co-operative societies in Denmark, with fully 150,000 members. Besides these are the co-operative creameries, numbering 1,057, with 150,000 members.

It is stated that the butter trade of Siberia is being organized in the same way, apparently by Danish companies which are establishing branch organizations in that country. If the statement be a fact, it would give color of truth to the charges made in England that much of the so-called Danish butter is in fact Siberian.

The egg trade is similarly organized in Denmark, and, as in the case of butter, over nine-tenths of that country's exports of eggs come to the United Kingdom. The Danish co-operative egg exporters' societies contain 65,000 members. Besides other elements of success in their working, they are said to be extremely careful that no stale eggs are exported.

Glazed Butter in Germany.

UNDER the caption "Glazed butter" German papers state that it has long been known in Germany that butter can be glazed by the use of sugar; that is, it can be coated with a glass-like sugar covering. This method, the papers state, seems to become of some importance, as it recently has been used on a large scale in England for butter sold in forms.

The Druggists' Journal calls attention to the usefulness of this innovation and says that butter so treated keeps fresh for a longer time than if not treated. It is first carefully kneaded and washed, then put into forms weighing 1 pound each, and placed in a cool room. The glazing is done by painting the surface with a hot sugar solution. The brush used should be very soft and the painting should be done quickly. The sugar solution melts the surface of the butter, and the sugar and melted butter form a sort of varnish which protects the butter against deterioration from outside influences.

Produce Merchant's Death.

DEATH came suddenly last week to D. A. McPherson, one of Montreal's best known produce merchants, in a tragic manner. He fell from the steamer while passing through the Coteau Rapids. It was several days before the body was recovered. The funeral took place Monday morning from his late residence, 946 Dorchester street, to Bonaventure Station, thence to Lancaster, Ont., for interment. Among the floral tributes which were very abundant and beautiful, were wreaths from the St. James' Club, and the Produce Merchants' Association.

The pallbearers were: Messrs. T. Ryan, P. W. McLagan, Col. Black, Alex. Stephens, Dr. G. T. oRss and Wm. Redmond. The chief mourners were Messrs. D. A. McPherson, Barclay McPherson and Wilfrid E McPherson, sons; D. W. Sutherland and J. McL. Sutherland, nephews.

Members of the Montreal Produce Merchants' Association attended in a body, while the Montreal Board of Trade was also well represented.

Among those who attended were: Ald. Robertson, Capt. Muir, Messrs. Geo. Hodge, Jonathan Hodgson, A. C. H. Froemcke, R. Clancy, D. W. Campbell, Wm. Stewart, Frederick Fowler, Rev. Dr. Ross, Wm. Smith, J. Alexander, H. Allen, R. Ware, Wm. Nivin, H. D. Hislop, John Orpe, Frederick Duckett, W. A. Ritchie, Geo. Thompson, E. F. Craig, Joseph Hibbert, W. Currie, J. Dalrymple, A. C. Wieland, Arthur Hodgson, John McKergow, W. P. Hibbard (Cowansville), Wm. J. Farrell, Alex. Grant, Robert Ballantyne, M. J. Murphy, N. F. Bedard, A. McCulloch and A. D. McGillis, and J. Stanley Cooke.

Packers' Strike and Canadian Trade.

In an interview with D. J. Rattray of D. Rattray & Sons, Montreal and Quebec, general agents for Armour & Co., for the Province of Quebec and Ottawa Valley, The Grocer learns that they have booked large business in pork, canned goods, oils, etc.; owing to the Chicago strike shipments have been somewhat delayed, but they are now coming forward promptly, and recent advices say the packers expect to have everything working smoothly during the next few days.

Canadian Eggs Scarce in England.

The latest report on trade conditions in the district of Leeds and Hull, Eng., prepared by J. B. Jackson, Canadian commercial agent, states that Canadian eggs are difficult to obtain there although one sees Russian, Egyptian and Irish eggs on every hand. The prevailing price of eggs in Leeds and Hull at the present time is about 25 cents a dozen.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—The smoked meat market is very strong at the present time, so much so that sellers practically have things their own way. Prices are firm at the advance which amounts in one case to a half cent. There is an active export demand for bacon and lards are all advanced a quarter cent. In fresh meats there is a big decline in the price of beef, not on any special account, but following the usual tendency at this time of the year. Spring lamb is down considerably as the season is far advanced. Heavy hogs are omitted from the list as there is no demand for them. We quote the following prices:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$ 0 08½	$0 08½
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12½	0 13
Roll bacon, per lb	0 09	0 09½
Small hams per lb	....	0 13
Medium hams, per lb	....	0 13
Large hams, per lb	0 11½	0 12
Shoulder hams, per lb	0 08½	0 09

Heavy mess pork, per bbl	15 00	15 50

Lamb, spring	7 00	8 50
Veal	6 00	8 50
Hogs, light	8 00	8 25

Butter—Receipts of butter continue large but by far the greater part of it is of poor quality. Dealers report great difficulty in procuring a first-class quality and can find a local demand for almost all of it. Dairy butter is plentiful but it is reported in some quarters that there is a dearth of creamery. As a result prices rule high. We quote:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 19	0 20
" solids, fresh	0 17½	0 18½
Dairy prints	0 14	0 15
" in tubs	0 12	0 14

Cheese—Prices are this week a quarter of a cent higher. On the boards there has been a falling off of a quarter cent from last week's high price of 8 5-8. The reason given for such high board quotations is an increased foreign demand. There is little doubt, however, that this is an excuse rather than a reason. England will not pay the price on large quantities and sellers are endeavoring to bluff them into a higher level. Elevating prices to stimulate demand is a rather left-handed way of doing things and little good will result. The exporters who are scared into paying extravagant prices are few and far between. Board results for the week ending August 16 were as follows:

Provisions—A steady business continues in all kinds of provisions and the receipts on Monday numbered 2,840 packages of lard and 321 of tinned meats. Owing to the heavy receipts of live hogs a decline was noticed of 25 cents per hundred and packers at once made brisk demand for stock. Plenty of sales were made at $5.75 per hundred, weighed off cars. Fresh killed abattoir stock is firm, with good demand. Sales were made at $8 for light weights, and $7.75 for heavy, per hundred. A good volume of trade is being done in ham, bacon and lard. We quote:

Butter—Steadiness has marked the butter market. Enquiry for export has fallen off somewhat, possibly owing to the recent rise in price. In comparison with the rates paid on first cost butter Saturday at country points, prices on spot on Tuesday fell below the parity. Townships butter was ruling from 19 1-2 to 19 3-4 cents. Quebec's dropped a little below at 19 to 19 1-4c, though in several instances sales were made at much less than these prices. These, however, were exceptional and abund-

Butter Exports—An immense increase has taken place in the export of butter, the total for the week ending August 13th being 35,986 boxes; of this, 30,769 were of local shipment, and 5,217 through. The corresponding week of 1903, the total shipments were 16,698. It might be noted that the through shipments have not increased nearly so much as the local. The local export of butter has nearly trebled since last year in the corresponding week. The total shipments since May 1st, 1904, were 205,878; for the same period in 1903 there were 136,142, while in comparison with the shipments of 1902, which were 228,314, there is a falling off this ...

Cheese—Dull and featureless is the cheese market, a general sagging tendency being evident. Sellers of all kinds of cheese were loath to confess a decline; in fact, in order to make at sale at all, concessions in price were made of 1-8 to 1-4 of a cent per pound. Sales of Ontario white cheese, on spot, were reported as low as 8c Quebecs also were in some cases sold at a similar figure. This business was principally between shippers. Finest stock of all kinds may be quoted as follows: Ontarios, 8 5-8 to 8 7-8c; townships 8 1-2 to 8 3-4c; Quebecs, 8 1-4 to 8 3-8c. It is self evident that prices were advanced unjustly last week, and a reaction has already set in which may cause further decline.

Cheese Exports—The exports for the week ending August 15, were 98,255 boxes, of this 85,559 were local, and 12,696 through. In comparison with the corresponding week of last year, the local business decreased nearly 12,000 boxes, and as the total shipments were 115,270 boxes, the general falling off is apparent. The total exports make the falling off more apparent still. For instance, since May 1st the shipments total 911,884 boxes, and for a similar period in 1903, they were 1,271,733.

New Brunswick.

Provisions—There is still too little business in barrelled meats to make market prices show much change. Pure lard has been sold this week lower than ever. There has been a continued demand for hams and rolls at good figures. In fresh meats domestic beef is low and prices have been shaded on western. Lamb is very plentiful but holds at a fair price. Mutton, veal and pork are dull.

MOLASSES AS STOCK FOOD.

EVER since molasses fell even approximately to the value of corn, pound for pound, says The Produce Markets Review, it has advocated the use of molasses for stock feeding purposes. It bases its argument upon actual experiments in feeding molasses, which began in the south as early as 1882, when, with a large sugar crop, the molasses market collapsed in so far as the prices of low grades were concerned. Since that time the investigations of many scientists have demonstrated that a pound of molasses as a food article has at least the value of a pound of corn; that molasses, being in a liquid form, is more readily digested and assimilated into the circulation of the system than any of the coarser stock foods, which require a large part of the energy that they create in order to digest them; that apart from these excellent qualities, there results from molasses feeding a quick recuperation of flagging energies as well as excellent nutrition.

The Omnibus Co., of Paris, France, owns over 10,000 horses, and during the year has many accidents with these horses, including an average of 700 broken legs per year. It was thought that perhaps the food of the horses rendered their legs fragile, and experiments began in 1901 to ascertain what could be done to remedy this great evil. One kilogram of sour mash had been used in the daily ration of the horses, and in 1901 this was substituted by an alkaline molasses combination. It will be recalled that while some very low grade Louisiana molasses contains as much as 10 per cent. of ash, that beet molasses, less available for a foodstuff, is characterized by its large amount of ash, and the substitution of this alkaline molasses had a quick effect, and in 1902 the number of broken legs was reduced to 79, and it was concluded that the fragility of the animals bony structure was due to the absence of the requisite mineral elements in their rations.

The Grocer knows of increased inquiries in Canada at the present time for molasses preparations as stock foods, which are coming more and more into popular favor.

CEYLON AT ST. LOUIS

THE record of the change from coffee to tea as the staple product of the distant island of Ceylon is asserted to be the most wonderful chapter in the history of tropical agriculture. Thirty years ago one million tons of coffee were annually exported and no tea. Now 150 million pounds of tea are produced and only a few tons of coffee. London has always been the central market for tea; but with the prospect of so vast an addition to the world's supply, the planters of Ceylon twelve years ago created a voluntary fund for the exploitation of Ceylon tea all over the world with the exception of the British Isles, The United States and Russia were the first countries to be taken in hand, the "conversion" of America commencing with the Chicago World's Fair in 1893. Since then a Ceylon commissioner has lived in or annually visited the North American continent, to advise, advocate and disseminate information concerning the special merits of the article. The movement was seriously extended to Canada only about six years ago, and the relative progress made in this country has been markedly greater than in the United States. About the same time, a number of planters decided to turn out green tea instead of black, thus meeting an important demand on this side, at the same time reducing the abnormal supplies of black tea to the London market. The success of this branch of the industry is sufficient evidence of the wisdom of the new departure.

While private enterprise maintains the effort of exploitation during ordinary years, the Ceylon Government itself participates in international expositions and meets the expenditure incurred. As at Chicago in 1893 so at St. Louis this year, besides erecting a handsome pavilion the Government has taken space in half a dozen exposition buildings, viz., agriculture, forestry, fish and game, mines and metallurgy, varied industries, liberal arts, and education. The Government building was modelled after the Buddhist Temple of the Tooth in Kandy, and is a storehouse of Oriental novelties and valuable specimens of work in gold, silver, ivory, tortoise-shell, wood carving, etc. The accompanying illustration, taken on the day of the formal opening, represents the officials and staff of twenty Singalese waiters who have served afternoon tea (both green and black) on the spacious verandahs of the Ceylon Government building to a crowd of visitors since April 30.

IMPORTANT OFFICIAL REPORTS.

FROM Ottawa important official reports have been issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce, which have been sent from the Canadian agents at Sweden and Norway. After quoting reports from the various countries, that agent summarises a deduction from the crop prospect of Europe as follows :

"The above goes to prove that there will be a heavy demand from all over Europe for grain and foodstuffs, and if Canada gets a good crop this year a good price ought to be obtained for the surplus."

Mr. D. H. Ross, Canadian Commercial Agent for West Australia, reported from Melbourne, July 16, to the same department, as follows :

"Record orders are being forwarded this year from Australia to Canada for agricultural implements and machinery. The principal Canadian manufacturers enjoy excellent representation, to which circumstance is attributable the splendid and widely-increasing business done. Quite a number of inquiries are going forward to Canada by this mail for outside lines, near to this country."

Some apparent inattention has hampered Canadian trade with the Commonwealth. It appears from the report of Mr. Ross that "despite the efforts of the American tobacco combine, there is undoubtedly a fine market in Australia for the better class of plug tobacco." But, unfortunately, an order for this article placed with a Canadian concern, was filled with such indifferent material that it was deemed best not to put it on the market at all, lest it might ruin the prospect of future business."

Shortage of B. C. Salmon Pack.

THE Anglo-British Columbia Packing Co., Vancouver, report that the salmon run is now sufficiently developed to enable them to gauge approximately the pack of sockeye for this season. Their estimate is as follows:

Naas River, 15,000 cases.
Skeena River, 90,000 cases.
River's Inlet, 95,000 cases
Outside rivers, 35,000 cases.
Total, 235,000 cases.

Fraser River pack to date is 90,000 cases, and it is said to be finished. Thus the total pack will be 325,000 cases of sockeye salmon.

The total packs of all grades of pervious years were as follows:

1903—473,000 cases.
1902—625,000 cases.
1901—1,236,000 cases.

Allowing in addition for a considerable pack of Fall fish, the year's total is likely to be abnormally short.

Fish as Food.

According to the New York Tribune fish, with few exceptions, is below meat in nutritive value in proportion to bulk, but the same elements are contained in both. It is only necessary to eat enough fish to secure the same amount of essentials. The nutriments of the human body are proteine, fat and carbohydrates. Besides these practically all foods contain a large percentage of mineral matter.

The fish containing the most nutriment are Spanish mackeral, salt water eels, salmon, shad roe, salted mackeral and dried cod, "boneless codfish," caviare, salted, smoked and dried halibut, and of the canned fish, sardines, salmon, fresh and salt mackeral, tunny, haddock, lobster, crab, and shrimp. Nearly all of these mentioned are equivalent in nutritive value to an equal amount of veal. California salmon, No. 1 salted mackeral, caviare, salted, smoked and dried halibut, canned sardines, canned salmon, and canned salt mackeral are equivalent to the average of beef, veal and mutton. Cabiare, indeed, contains twice the nutriment of almost all meats, and is almost equal to side pork, which contains the highest amount of nutritive elements of any meat. The large proportion of nutriment in pork, however, it may be incidentally remarked, is fat, it being the lowest in the scale as regards proteine, the most valuable nutriment.

Fraudulent French Sardines.

ATTENTION has been called, says J. K. Gowdy, of Paris, France, to the fact that although the product of the French sardine fisheries has fallen off considerably in the past three years the exportation of sardines from France has not diminished, and it is noticed that the quantity of sardines imported into France is almost double the quantity consumed there. During the last eleven months the importations into France reached 10,337,370 pounds, while the annual consumption is estimated at 5,511,500 pounds.

The French sardine is excellent, both fresh and preserved. It ranks high when preserved on account of the careful preparation it undergoes in this country and the quality of the oil used. The cost price to the factory of the usual-size box of French sardines (weighing about 0.71 pound) is about 12c, while the cost of the same size box of Spanish or Portuguese sardines in France, freight and duty paid, is only about 6 cents.

Sardines are imported into France in two different ways:

1. In boxes of the usual size, with a deceiving mark or label, such as is shown in figures 1 and 2. On the top of the box, in this instance, the words "Sardines Francaises" are carefully covered by a thin coating or paint which is easily removed. Only the initials "E. D." and the words "Qualite Choix" are apparent when the box passes the French customs, but it becomes "E. D. Sardines Francaises, Qualite Choix" after entry; the address "Usine a Port Louis, France" on the side undergoes the same transformation. The boxes are, of course stamped on the bottom "Produit Importe," but this indication of foreign origin is too vague to be of much value. Another method of deceiving is to print the name of the place of origin in very small letters, or to hide it in a figure printed on the label, which is in French.

2. Sardines are imported in large boxes and repacked in the usual-size boxes, with labels and other indications in French.

The "Chambre Syndicale" of food products of Paris has taken an active part in the pending negotiations to have a new bill passed increasing the duty on imported sardines from 25 to 50 francs per 100 kilos (from $4.25 to $6.95 for 220.46 pounds), and insisting that the name of the country of origin be stamped in the tin. The bill also prohibits the importation of sardines in bulk, as it is an easy matter to repack them in small boxes and thus evade the law. The increase of duty would not be sufficient to check importation; it would only increase the cost price of foreign sardines in France by 6 centimes (slightly over 1 cent) a box, thus raising it from 6 to 7 cents to 12 cents, which is the cost price of French sardines to the French manufacturer.

All labels on the boxes, such as "Firmin Jullien, Setubal, Portugal," with the origin in very small letters; "Societe Parisienne," with the words "Produit Importe;" "Poissons Choisis" in French, "Packed in Spain" in English; and "Importe" in French, stamped on the tin, and many others, are intended to present the goods as French sardines to the majority of consumers both at home and abroad.

The Danger to Fish.

The Ontario Government recently had its attention drawn by some fishery officers to the destructiveness of the ling, or burbot, and the desirability of adopting some means of cutting it off. Investigations have proven that this ling feeds on the best fish life of the northern Canadian waters. Its flesh is useful for food only in Winter time. It is known to devour fish half the size of itself, and at the same time is a notorious consumer of spawn. In the Quebec fishery haunts this destructive feeder has been found in lengths of two feet. Imagine the number of fish such a glutton may consume in one year. Fish buyers, consumers, and all interested in the finny tribe, regret that nothing has been done by the Quebec Government so far to protect fish from this pest.

Fish Notes.

The Grand Trunk Railway System has an attractive exhibit in the Forestry, Fish and Game Building, at the St. Louis Exposition, consisting of mounted specimens of fish, hunting and fishing scenes, etc. The Intercolonial Railway has also an interesting exhibit of specimens of live fish.

THOSE ADULTERATED JAMS.

EVIDENTLY the new Minister of Inland Revenue is a man of action. He is about to take action against manufacturers, importers and storekeepers throughout Canada who have been defying the provisions of the Food Adulteration Act by selling products that are not what their labels purport. Sometimes the substitutes are harmless. In other cases the mixture is injurious to the health of the consumer.

An official chemical analysis recently made of ground spices, such as peppers, alspice, mixed spices, cassia and cinnamon, cloves and ginger, showed that of 188 samples collected only 88 were genuine, 7 of the remainder being classed as doubtful and 93 as adulterated. The examination further showed the presence of chips and dirt, charcoal, hairs, stone, husks and shells, sand and sweepings. The Grocer interviewed a prominent spice man on the situation, who met the seriousness of the imputation with a poor excuse, namely, "How can the Canadian consumer expect to get any other than an adulterated article when he will have nothing but the very cheapest on the market?" No one will contend for a moment that there is any justification whatever for Canadian manufacturers wilfully violating the provisions of an act framed in the first place for the protection of the consumer against impure products. Such a matter should be dealt with in no half-hearted fashion, and there is every reason to believe that Mr. Brodeur will do his part. It is unfortunate that questionable methods should have been brought to light, but as "evil will out," the only thing to be done is to nip it severely in the bud, and probably a few prosecutions will suffice. Another alternative, and one of the most effective safeguards for the consumer, by the way, would be the widespread advertisement of the names of the manufacturers who foisted these adulterated goods on the market. At this juncture it is interesting to remember the vigorousness with which the Food Adulteration Law is enforced in England. A certain spice manufacturer was recently convicted there of adulterating his products and sent to the common jail for a lengthy period as a penalty for defrauding the public.

A recent analysis of jellies and jams showed that only 14 samples out of 74 were genuine. Fifty-five were classed as adulterated and five as doubtful. The examination included samples of raspberry, strawberry, plum, pe ch and miscellaneous jams and jellies, and revealed the presence of many substitutes and of glucose, coal tar dyes, salicylic acid and other foreign substance. In some cases the mixing was not positively injurious to the users, in others it was, but in either case the public was deceived and misled in open defiance of the law of the land. As one prominent wholesaler recently remarked, the offence might be reduced to a minimum as far as the actual injuriousness of the adulterative to the public health was concerned, but the lamentable fact remained that the consumer was getting something different from what he bargained for. When he paid for a chicken he did not want a hawk.

Hitherto the samples of jams, jellies, etc., for analysis by the Department at Ottawa have been gathered promiscuously from the retail grocery trade. Hereafter the officers of the Department will also visit the premises of manufacturers and importers.

THE PLACE AND THE MAN.

SUCCESS in business depends more upon the merchant than upon the location of his store. There may be exceptions to this, but this seems to be the rule. Two instances in proof of this assertion come to mind. In a certain city there was a dry goods store kept by three maiden ladies. The store was on the corner of a thickly populated part of the city. Thc windows were alway crowded and the store was always dark and dingy, while the floor was several inches below the sidewalk. The business was what might be termed a two-penny ha'penny one, and only enabled the owners to eke out a bare existence. One after the other the proprietors died and the store finally fell into the hands of a young man who had business ideas. The windows were properly dressed after that and it was not long before other changes were made in order to give the store a more modern appearance. That is not so many years ago and to-day it is one of the most successful of the smaller class of department stores in that part of the country. The windows are modern in every respect and the store is well lighted by day as well as by night. Price cards are freely used and the columns of the local newspapers are liberally patronized. If the original owners were to come back to the old scene they would be prostrated with astonishment at the innovations which have taken place.

CANADA AT ST. LOUIS.

SOME people have been heard to pass uncomplimentary remarks on the Canadian exhibit at St. Louis. "Unworthy," and "inadequate" are terms occasionally heard. But, notwithstanding, the Canadian exhibit is doing a good work and the genius who arranged it, deserves the thanks of the country for the results which are now begining to be felt.

What chiefly merits praise is the remarkable arrangement at the rear of the Canadian Building. Here is located a well-lighted picture gallery, illustrating the career of the new settler in the North West. First is to be seen a painting of the pioneer, breaking his first furrows. By easy stages, the spectator watches the progress of the man, as he brings his farm into order, builds his home, and settles down to a life of pleasant exertion. It is a regular panorama and it is all true.

And now comes the crowning triumph of genius. As the pleased spectator turns away from the final picture, he walks directly into,—an immigration office. Already many an American farmer has studied the pictures, has passed into the immigration office, picked out a location in Canada and made arrangements for transportation. Truly the work of the Canadian Commission has not been in vain.

EARLY FRUIT MARKET.

THE wholesale fruit dealers of Toronto have for some time been advocating an early morning market as a means of simplifying and improving conditions existing locally. Only a walk through the market any morning during the busy season is necessary to convince one of the justice of their contentions which are as follows:

The railroads and express companies entering Toronto ought to offer special rates on consignments of fruit shipped during the night for delivery early the next morning or where the distance is small on early morning consignments. This would do away with irregularity of shipments, which as a matter of fact continue to arrive at all hours during the day. The result is that prices cannot be fixed early in the morning for the day and a buyer who purchases on first morning deliveries runs the risk of seeing his competitor on the next corner get his supplies at a cent or two reduction later in the day. It is in the best interests of trade that competion should be keen, but this under present circumstances is out of the question.

A word ought also to be said on behalf of the wholesale fruit men themselves, who are kept at the market at all times of day and night to serve their customers. The necessity would be removed if only there were one market in the day and that an early morning one. The possibility of this rests entirely with the railways and express companies.

FRESH FISH IN THE GROCERY STORE.

THE modern grocery store is a subject of interest to all progressive merchants. The changes that have taken place during the last two decades in the retail grocery trade are numerous and valuable, not only to the merchant but to the consumer. The days when sugar was handled in hogsheads, salt in heavy barrels and cereals in their original packages, direct from the mill, are passed and the convenient smaller packages put up in sizes to suit the prompt requirements of trade are an evidence of thoughtful improvement.

While all the changes are in the right direction and in keeping with the requirements of modern trade conditions, there is a branch of the grocery trade that has been neglected, or rather that has not received the attention at the hands of grocers generally warranted by the value of the business; we refer to the handling of fish, and particularly fresh fish. The very suggestion of handling fish in conjunction with staple groceries may strike the average merchant as unreasonable, but a careful study of the subject and of the possibilities for profitable trade in fresh fish, will convince him that some thought should be given to it.

The old-fashioned methods of shipping and handling fish cannot compare with those existing at the present time. In former years the trade was mostly confined to the barrel salt fish, or green cod trade, and the sight of the packages in front of or inside the grocery store was neither an edifying sight nor a fragrant trade-bringer. The odor of fish is very penetrating and as such susceptible articles as butter, tea and cheese did not improve through proximity to the fish, it was thought best to exclude the latter from the grocery stock. With a marked improvement in methods of transportation and delivery the handling of fish has become a comparatively easy matter, and grocers who will take the trouble to study this branch of their business will be surprised to find how profitable it can be made and how little care is required in handling fish.

The Grocer has always taken an interest in everything pertaining to the fish trade and has for many years paid close attention to the possibilities of this branch with a view of showing how such a healthful article of diet as fish can be profitably handled. Our Maritime fish trade is enormous but nothing to what it may be made by encouraging the consumption of fish. The secret here undoubtedly lies in educating the retail grocery trade to handle fish scientifically. It is gratifying to note that there are already a number of Canadian grocers supplying their customers with fresh fish in season, and in every case profitable trade is reported.

SIGNS ON BUILDINGS.

THE GROCER was much impressed with the pertinancy of a letter received some time ago in which the correspondent volunteered the information that in certain towns in the Maritime Provinces little or no attention is paid by the merchants to having suitable signs on their places of business. Apparently there are yet some retailers who fail to appreciate the significance of an attractive business sign, on which both the firm name and general lines of merchandise carried are designated. The day is long past when buyers found their way to a grocery store by instinct and since the sense of sight ranks higher than that of smell there is a scientific reason why a good sign advertisement should be a good trade bringer. No practical demonstration is needed to prove that people in this enlightened age have to be coaxed a little to buy even the necessaries of life; they must in the first place know where to go and the merchant who sits in obscurity, trusting that trade may stumble in on him is helping neither himself nor the other man towards a solution of this difficulty. What strikes the eye is the pride of life, and a striking illustration of this in trade circles as well as of the truth that even the small things count, is the fact that a small investment in an attractive business sign is one of the most judicious methods of advertising and one of the best trade bringers known.

MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE HOME

THE Hon. John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, has returned from a several months' trip to Europe. Mr. Dryden is convinced that there is something crooked about the bacon trade over there, and that Danish labels are being put on Canadian bacon. Professor Day who is at present in Denmark, will make a report on this subject to the Department of Agriculture on his return.

Mr. Dryden says that Danish bacon has a better reputation in England than Canadian bacon and commands a higher price. Canadian canned goods are not as highly thought of as the products of other countries up to the present, and the demand for them is comparatively small. Steps, however, can and will be taken to improve this industry. Mr. Dryden also thinks there is room for improvement in the Canadian dressed beef industry.

U. S. EXPORT DWINDLING.

THE summary of exports of domestic products from the United States for July and for seven months of the calendar year, issued by the Bureau of Statistics affords material for reflection in so far as it shows a continuance of the falling off previously exhibited.

According to the New York Journal of Commerce this was to be expected, and there is little chance of its being arrested before the effect of the new harvest begins to be felt. The fact is that the American surplus of some of the leading staples for export had been pretty well exhausted three months in advance of the coming in of this year's crops. Taking all breadstuffs we find the value sent abroad in July to be only $4,332,762, against $11,366,699 last year, while for seven months the decrease was from $113,865,771 to $50,621,702, or more than one-half. This is in spite of rather better prices. Of the loss for the seven months about $26,000,000, or nearly half, was in wheat, of which the export has dwindled nearly to nothing, while the remnant of the supply has become the subject of speculation that gives it an exaggerated "market value." The July export of wheat in quantity was only 114,180 bushels, against 3,884,972 last year, and for the seven months 9,323,820, compared with 42,081,141. Over half the July export went from Baltimore and the rest from the Gulf and Pacific ports. By far the greater part of the seven months' exports of wheat were sent from Galveston, New Orleans and the Pacific Coast. The record for corn is not so bad, but only 2,080,101 bushels were exported in July against 5,155,671 last year, and for seven months 28,051,719 against 66,766,934.

Cotton exports continued in July to the amount of 99,457 bales against 72,978, but the increase in value was proportionately small, because last year it was taken at the speculative price of 13.8 cents a pound, while this year the export price in July was 10.9 cents. Taking the eleven months of the cotton year, however, the average export price this year has been 12.6 against 9 cents last. The value of exports for seven months shows a decrease of $7,399,568, the quantity having fallen from 3,149,489 bales to 2,095,125. For eleven months the figures are 6,734,802 bales last year and 5,999,923 this. The effect of the decrease of exports traceable to comparative crop deficiency appears also in provisions, of which the export fell off $3,131,873 in July and $7,253,896 in the seven months compared to last year, while for the longer period there was an increase of $4,030,202 in live cattle, hogs and sheep. Putting together the values of the live stock and the provision products there was a decrease from $16,172,142 to $12,245,245 in July, and from $115,270,321 to $112,046,627 in the seven months. Mineral oil made up the loss in the aggregate of exports to the extent of $881,126 for the month and $7,355,448 for the seven months, so that the total stands $29,107,123 for July and $360,685,845 for the seven months, compared with $38,768,877 and $421,197,728 for the same periods in 1903.

The meaning of these statistics is not far to seek. The production of wheat and corn in the United States last year showed a reduction in proportion to domestic consumption, and the surplus for export was relatively small, especially for wheat. The bulk of this surplus was carried off early, beginning in the late months of last year and leaving little for this Summer. But for the abnormal price of cotton due to the fact that the crop was short and for the exportation of about two-thirds of the supply, the record for domestic exports would have been much more unfavorable. It is not likely to be improved for the current month, or perhaps for September and the prospects are for a permanently reduced proportion of what are called "domestic products" in U.S. exports. It is already certain that less wheat in quantity, and probably less in value, will be sent abroad next year than this, while there is likely to be an increase in cotton and corn and perhaps in provisions. A prominent authority on trade conditions recommends Uncle Sam to devote his attention to the further cultivation of export trade in manufactures, which is not to be done by keeping up domestic prices, but by diminishing cost of production and facilitating exchange for foreign commodities.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Aug. 18, 1904.

Groceries.

IT is expected that the grocery trade will take on new life now that the travelers are back from their holidays and have started on the war path to solicit Fall orders. This is the season when trade begins to pick up, and indications point to a big volume of business during the coming Fall.

Trade during the week has been brighter than usual. The sugar market continues strong and a surprisingly good business is reported. In fact the sugar trade during August has been a surprise in view of the fact of the estimated shortage of the fruit crop. Canned peas, 1904 pack, are being delivered to the retail trade, and general trade in canned goods of all descriptions continues brisk; 1903 pack sockeye salmon is pretty well cleaned up in the market, wholesalers being practically reduced to cohoes and pinks. Increased sales of New Orleans molasses are reported at firm prices. A scarcity of low grade Pekoe Souchong tea is reported locally as well as increased inquiries for Japans. The coffee market is very firm both in Rios and milder grades and prices of Rios have advanced. Spices are without special feature. Tapioca shows signs of stiffening in price. The market in foreign dried fruits is quiet; a drop has occurred in California prunes, but little buying is reported as yet in spite of the fact that stocks in the hands of wholesalers are low. Currants are firm and some business in Comadra figs is reported. Peanuts are active and easier in price.

CANNED GOODS

There has been a brisk demand for canned goods of all descriptions during the week under review. New pack peas are already being delivered to the retail trade. It is not expected that corn and tomatoes will be ready for a month yet, meanwhile surmises are for a poor to fair crop; 1903 pack sockeye salmon is practically used up and it is only hoped that the retail trade have sufficient on hand to supply their customers until the 1904 pack is on the market. Lobsters are firm and the prices of herrings is higher than usual owing to the higher price of raw fish. Potted meats continue to be good sellers. We quote the following prices:

SUGAR

We have to record this week a further advance of 1-8c per lb. in raw sugar, large sales having transpired on the basis of 4 1-4c, duty paid, New York, at which the market remains nominal. Last week just before we went to press, large purchases were made by American refiners, totalling about 100,000 tons, including beet, Java and West Indian sugars. These sales pretty well cleaned up the market. Since then further purchases have been made in Europe at 10s 6d, f. o.b. Hamburg, which is equivalent to a landed parity of 4.24c duty paid for 96 test cane sugar.

Arbuckle Brothers who did not participate to any extent in the heavy buying, came into the market later in the week and secured about 11,000 tons, part from store, part afloat, and the balance embracing 45,000 bags Cuban centrifugals for August shipment, all at full landed cost of 4 1-4c for basis 96. Since then the market has been developing indifference on the part of buyers and sellers, while quotations remain nominal on basis of last sales. At the moment refiners have their wants fairly well supplied and are disposed to defer further purchases; on the other hand, stocks in importers' hands is barely 15,000 tons and there are few unsold nearby sugars. Sellers are disposed to hold for present prices and holders of Java centrifugals are asking an advance of 3d per cwt.

Recent cables from Europe report continued unfavorable weather for growing crops, and mail advices say that during July the rainfall in Germany was only 1.10 of the normal rainfall for the last 25 years. Mr. Licht estimates the damage to the beet crop from drought in Germany at 20 per cent. and in Austria at 15 per cent.

There has been a marked advance in Europe for the week, quotations for 88 per cent. going to 10s 6d, basis f.o.b. Hamburg, for August-September shipment, which is equivalent to a duty paid parity of 4.23c for 96 test centrifugals. There are no indications of further changes for the immediate future and it is believed by some that the market has reached the upward limit for the present.

Receipts at United States Atlantic ports for the week ending August 10 were 21,374 tons, meltings were 42,000 tons, leaving total stock of 146,750 tons. Combined stocks of United States and Cuba at same date were 229,250 tons, a decrease of 34,126 tons compared with the previous week, and of 280,647 tons from last year. Total stocks of Europe and America of latest uneven dates were 2,001,250 tons, or a decrease of 415,558 tons, compared with the same date last year.

There are no changes to note in Canadian refined and the demand for the month has been exceptionally good, in fact unusually so for August. It remains to be seen how far this will affect the demand during the approaching months. In New York refined the only change to record is a decline of 5c per 100 lbs. on sugar packed in 100 lb. sacks; other quotations remain unchanged. Our quotations are as follows:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

TEAS.

The tea trade during the week under review has been quiet to fair, the chief feature of the local market being the scarcity of low grade Pekoe Souchongs, which have advanced 1½d. This tea is considered an especially good seller in the Canadian market.

There have been more inquiries for Japans, with a few selling. The Japan tea business has been appreciably brighter during the week, buyers apparently realizing that the season is now at the best, not only for price but for the most suitable grades of tea. Lower grades have advanced 1c per lb. in Japan, but are still very cheap.

Reports from India on green tea are to the effect that very few have been brought to sale, and that the outturn will be much less than last season, most of the gardens having reverted to blacks. Greens have made a show of improvement in leaf and cup quality. In India and Ceylon blacks there is little new to report beyond a gradual improvement in the quality of Ceylons with a corresponding hardening tendency in price. We quote the following prices :

COFFEES.

The coffee market has ruled firm during the week at higher prices. Green Rios are quoted this week as follows : No. 7 at an advance of ¾c; No. 6 at an advance of ⅝c; No. 5 at an advance of ½c, and No. 3 at an advance of ¼c. The advance in prices is thought to be due not to the manipulation of the market by speculators, but rather to the unfavorable crop reports being received from the countries of growth. Cables report that frosts in Brazil have damaged the growing coffee. The general idea of the trade is that owing to the drouth last season and reduced acreage owing to abandoned plantations, the yield of the 1904-05 crop will be smaller than the 1903-04 crop, and with damage by frost to the 1905-06 crop another comparatively small yield is anticipated.

A cable received by Geo. Musson & Co. from London this week says the market for milder coffees is rising, and that public sales are higher.

Locally trade in coffee is quiet. The advance in Rios since August 1 has been fully 85 points, and the market is still strong. Our quotations are as follows :

SPICES.

A seasonable demand for spices continues at unchanged quotations. Increased local sales may be expected shortly in view of the proximity of the pickling season. The New York market, with which the Canadian market moves in sympathy is reported to be firm, especially in ginger. Cable advices say that no additional arrivals of African ginger are expected, the crop being practically over. Our quotations are as follows :

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

The rice and tapioca market continues without special feature. Rice is a little easier and tapioca is firmer than last week, with the price hardening. The movement of new crop rice will soon be under way. We quote the following prices :

Foreign Dried Fruits

The principal item of interest in the dried fruit market at the present time is the extremely low price of California prunes. For some reason or other, some say because the trust is broken up, and others because this season's crop is so large, the bottom has dropped out of the California prune market, and for the lower grades, prices have been ruling as low as 1c per lb. f. o. b. at the coast.

Actual stocks on hand in Toronto are very low. The opinion is expressed that the price to the retailer is not likely to be altered materially, in view of the fact that the demand here is more and more for higher grade prunes. The man to suffer will be the grower. California raisins are in somewhat the same predicament.

The chief shippers of raisins in Spain, at a meeting over which A. Rogers, of Wm. Rogers & Co., of Denia, presided, decided that no raisins should be loaded at any port in Spain before August 20. This will make arrivals due in Canada about the last of September. The object of the shippers is to prevent the usual scramble for earliest fruits, which results in the establishment of prices that prevent fruit from going into rapid consumption, and has, moreover, had a bad moral effect on the fruit farmers by giving them erroneous ideas of the foreign demand.

The last report on currants indicates a strong market at the recent advance. Whatever fluctuations take place importers may reconcile themselves to the fact that there will be no quotations on currants this year. The estimated crop of 145,000 tons only exceeds by about 10,000 tons the usual yearly exportations. It must be further taken into account that since this estimate was issued considerable damage has been done to the growing crops by rain, and that the Retention Law will withdraw from the available supply a quantity equivalent to 35 per cent. of the quantity exported. Thus it is clear that the currants available for export will fall short of the usual consumption by 20,000 to 30,000 tons, and in consequence it is not thought that the present cost of about 5c d. p. at Canadian ports is too high a figure, particularly as the history of the currant trade shows that the normal consumption is not greatly affected by the slightly higher range of prices.

Locally some sales of Comadra figs are reported. We quote the following prices :

FOREIGN NUTS.

Trade in foreign nuts continues quiet but seasonable. The demand, as usual at this time of the year, is principally for peanuts and cocoanuts, in both of which large sales are reported. The experiment of introducing Japanese peanuts to the Canadian trade has proved very successful, and next season will undoubtedly see much larger quantities consumed in this market.

Peanuts are from 1 to 2c easier in price. Bordeaux walnuts have dropped 2c, and filberts 1c. California almonds are off the market. Taragona almonds are reported to be about 1-3 an average crop, and filberts less than ¼ an average crop. Prices on almonds are expected to range about 40s f. o. b., although one shipper is reported to have offered 250 bags at a few shillings less than these quotations, while some others refuse to quote until goods are actually on the market. New crop October filberts have soared from a little above 40s to 64s 6d, c. and f. New York, and the bulk of orders for Canada have yet to be placed. We quote the following prices:

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Receipts of eggs for the week have been somewhat larger, but prices are higher than ever. Dealers stand to lose a great deal with eggs at the present level. There is a large local demand for good eggs even at the high prices. They bring now 17 to 17½c, and some Toronto retailers are asking as high as 22c for fresh eggs. Such a price in the middle of August is unreasonable and entirely unjustifiable.

HONEY

The honey trade is picking up gradually and provision men report increased inquiries during the week under review. Small quantities of new crop honey have been received and are quoted at 8c per lb. for extracted honey, and $1.50 to $1.75 per doz. for honey in the comb. Indications point to a short crop. We quote the following prices :

Honey, extracted clover, per lb	0 07	0 07½
" sections, per doz	1 65	1 75

BEANS.

Beans, and especially white beans, are in steady demand at unchanged prices. Next week's issue of The Grocer will contain a summary of the condition of the growing bean crop in Ontario. Some beans are being held in the country in expectation of higher prices. Our quotations are as follows :

Beans, mixed, per bush		1 25

" handpicked, per bush	1 55	1 65

Green Fruits.

Up to date prices of California fruit have been very low, the average being below that of last year. Complaints may be heard from the shippers on the ground that there will be no profit in handling California fruit this year unless conditions soon change.

During the week of August 8-13 ten cars of California fruit were sold at auction. The prices for the first five days of the week were very good, while the average of Saturday was very poor. The supply of raspberries is practically over, those left on the market selling from 8 to 9c per box. Tomatoes, owing to over supply on the market, have taken a sudden drop and are now selling at from 20 to 30c per basket.

Large lots of Canadian peaches are arriving from the Niagara district daily. The bulk of these peaches seem to be of an inferior quality, owing doubtless to the earliness of the season for this fruit. As a result they are divided into two classes. Canadian "Triumph" firsts are selling at from 75c to $1 per basket. "Triumph" seconds are selling at from 40 to 60c per basket. Lemons are a trifle easier this week although there has been no change in prices.

At present there is an over supply of bananas on the market and prices have dropped as a result. Unless the conditions improve there is a likelihood of another drop in prices. Canadian apples are coming in freely, the quality generally being superior to that shown a week ago. We have added to our list this week pears, Lawton berries, and sweet potatoes. Canadian pears are now arriving from different points in Ontario. Although it is rather early in the season for Canadian pears the outlook is for a good supply.

Taking the fruit trade in general business has been very brisk during the week. Our quotations are as follows.

Vegetables.

The demand this week for vegetables continues good and is being filled almost exclusively with home-grown products. Good cauliflowers are very scarce and an inferior kind has been put on the market in order to meet the demand. The season for rhubarb is practically over. Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

The price of wheat still keeps advancing as a result of the prospects for a poor crop this Fall. The demand has been good during the week. Manitoba Northern Nos. 1, 2 and 3 have each advanced 2c per bushel. Red and white "old" have each advanced from 6 to 6 1-2c per bushel. This year the price of new Fall wheat is 2c less per bushel. SEEDS.

After a few weeks' lull the Ontario seed market has again opened. During the week under review the wholesalers have been buying alsack clover seed freely. It is yet too early for red clover and timothy seed, so that the only thing on the list is alsack clover, which is bringing from $4.65 to $5.75 per bushel.

Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool.

As a result of the wool market being at a standstill people who have been holding on to their wool are now offering freely. During the week under review hides have become more plentiful. Lamb skins have advanced 5c, while shearings have advanced 10c; otherwise there are no changes. We quote:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Groceries.

Montreal, Aug. 18th, 1904.

DESPITE the mid-summer period, trade is generally good. Collections from the country are improving and everything points to an excellent Autumn trade. It is expected that local trade in the Province of Quebec will be light during the next two weeks, owing to the fact that most of the travelers are on their holidays. Sugar remains in its strong statistical position, and, if anything, the tendency is towards a firmer market. Flour has proven an interesting commodity during the week, having advanced 10 cents a barrel. Molasses is comparatively quiet, there being an abundance in the market. In canned goods, sardines are considered stiffer, although no change in the price has taken place yet. Higher prices are expected. Japan teas have advanced, and there is a good demand. Spices and cloves continue firm and it is expected that cloves will be in a strong market before the new stock comes in late in the year. Buckwheat flour is practically unprocurable. Small cheese are in great demand and a notable advance has taken place of a cent a pound on Canadian stock. All kinds of fish are reported scarce and from the eastern fishing grounds the news comes that dog-fish are destroying everything. Haddock is extremely scarce The period is now on for excellent supplies of green fruit of all descriptions. Vegetables are coming in freely. Malaga Grapes are on the market in abundance and are in excellent quality. Dried fruits are reported interesting from the fact that Malaga raisin vines have suffered from heavy winds and rain, and it is generally believed that, while a fair average crop may be expected, the yield will fall short of that of last year. Higher prices are in sight for currants. Valentia almonds are reported to be an excellent crop. Jordans may possibly be short. Special reference is made to this elsewhere. Higher prices are expected for French peanuts. Canned meats are selling well and a good strong market is expected to continue. Eggs remain strong and it is very difficult to get a fresh egg. Coffees are in steady demand, and prices are expected to remain firm for some time. Canned fruits and vegetables are reported in good demand and the prices of new pack goods seem to be acceptable to the trade.

SUGAR.

The advance in sugar has been maintained and the demand has kept steady all the week. Even further advances are expected, owing to the excellent demand for fruit preserving now dominating. In comparison with the same period last year, sugar is in a much stronger position. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES

Tameness rules in the molasses market, because everyone is well stocked and the demand is comparatively light. The price of Barbadoes still remains 28c however, and brokers find little acceptance for their offers at these prices. We quote:

COFFEE.

As prophesied some months ago in The Grocer, coffee is growing stronger every day, and with the reported shortage of crop in various countries of production it is only sensible to believe that good stiff prices may be paid for it. The local market is easy and not a great deal is moving at the time of writing. Coffee, however, is worth watching, as some heavy receipts are reported to be coming in shortly. We quote:

TEA.

Low grade Japans have advanced one cent in the country of production. This naturally has affected the local market by curtailing sales. Local dealers are compelled to fill orders at a loss under such conditions. Other teas have not changed much and news from abroad shows that the imports of Indian tea have been very moderate, and those from Ceylon somewhat larger. New season's Indian teas are, generally speaking, of lower grade than usual and so far the samples of Assam or Darjeeling growths have not been choice. Stocks are considerably behind those held at the same time last year. From Ceylon one house writes on July 14, that the weather up to that date had been very unfavorable for tea manufacture, but it was thought a change for the better had taken place about that time. New season's China tea (black) and red leaf Congous, are on the market. The quality of the better sorts Keemuns and Kintuck is not so good as last year. Green teas are still very cheap and both Gunpowders and Young Hysons show excellent value to buyers.

CANNED GOODS.

Abundance of new fruits and vegetables are passing daily into the hands of the canners. These articles are almost certain to maintain an easiness of price. The turnover in all kinds of canned goods is not large, with the exception, perhaps, of canned meats, which is usually increased by the picnic season. Canned fish, especially salmon, holds strong and the demand has never sagged for a moment. The stiffness of sardines is reported to be based upon the small catch on the French coast and higher prices may easily be expected. Canned corn and canned tomatoes still remain in a very firm position and are comparatively scarce. New crop tomatoes will shortly appear and relieve that difficulty. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Watt, Scott & Goodacre report as follows:

Malaga raisin vines have suffered somewhat from heavy winds and rains and it is hardly likely that the yield will equal that of last year, although a fair average crop may be expected. In a general way it is concluded that prices will rule below last year's figures.

Owing to the comparative failure of our small fruits' crop, we expect renewed demand for comadre figs by jam makers this year.

There is being circulated an opinion that the glut in California and consequent low prices there, will interfere with the importation of Valencia raisins. We have never found California loose muscatels and Valencias conflict to the detriment of the latter until after the Christmas trade, which is 70 per cent. of the business, is concluded. There is reason to believe that the Denia business will be transacted in a very sane manner this year.

Bad weather, collpase of the bear movement, with the resulting covering by shorts, general appreciation of the size of the crop, and also of the new legislative measures—these factors have contributed to higher price levels for currants.

The Messina market for filberts has advanced further. The yield is now placed at 25 per cent. of that of last year.

The crop of Valencia almonds promises to be a good one, almost as large as that of last year. Jordans, however, may fall somewhat short. Unfortunately the attitude of speculators portends some danger as they have had constantly rising market in September and October for the past two years. The only stock remaining in Malaga consists of Jordans, approximately some 8,000 boxes, chiefly of confectioners' grade. The fact that these are known to be in existence, but withdrawn from the market, indicates that they will be probably shipped mixed with new goods by unscrupulous packers.

Prospects in vicinity of Bordeaux for French walnuts continue favorable and a good average crop is expected. In the Grenoble district a drought is being experienced, making the reports from that territory rather less favorable than from Bordeaux.

Price for fresh cracked shelled walnuts, September shipment, is of course influenced by the future crop. Bordeaux Cerneaux are freely offered at a very low figure.

The market for French peanuts continues to advance and higher prices are looked for.

Green Fruits.

Steadiness marks green fruit in all varieties. The auctions are copious with pears and peaches. A large sale took place Saturday bringing good prices. Raspberries have been selling abundantly at 7 to 8c a box, Lawtons black bringing 10c per quart basket. Apples were offering from 15 to 18c a basket. Peaches selling from 30 to 35c a basket, and pears 35c. Offerings of imported fruit seemed to be short on Saturday, but improved rapidly on Monday and Tuesday, owing to the increased receipts. A couple of cars of bananas were sold at from 45c to 55c a bunch, the demand being good. The first offerings of California muscatels, met with good demand at $1.55 to $2.10 per crate. Plums are considered comparatively scarce, selling at $1.30 to $2.30 a box. We quote:

Fish.

With two fast days in this week, the demand for fish is likely to be accentuated. Saturday is Assumption Day, and is honored all over Quebec Province. Fishermen from the east have wired dealers here that dog-fish are destroying the fish everywhere in the different grounds. Fresh haddock is very scarce. Skinless cod still is short. All lake fish seem to be scarce. Another two or three weeks is expected to elapse before any quantities of the British Columbia fish are expected. Fresh halibut has advanced a cent a pound and the demand is very good for all kinds of fresh fish. We quote:

EGGS.

The receipts of eggs increased extensively early in the week and the demand is fairly good. There is still a strong tendency towards firmness, as the supplies in sight are not by any means large. First-class guaranteed fresh eggs are bringing 21 cents, candled 17 1-2 to 18 cents, and straight gathered 16 1-2 to 16 3-4 cents per dozen. We quote:

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

Flour has advanced 10 cents per barrel. The reason assigned is a continued strength in all the leading wheat markets, and a steady upward tendency of prices. The Lake of the Woods Milling Co., were the first to advance prices. This makes their Five Roses Spring wheat patent sell at $5.15 per barrel, and red patent at $4.85 a barrel. The prospects are that if the present prices for wheat are continued, flour will go still higher. We quote:

TRADE CONDITIONS IN MARITIME PROVINCES.

Halifax, Aug. 15, 1904.

THE conservative policy adopted at the beginning of the year by Halifax wholesale merchants has necessitated the dropping of some weak accounts, thereby lessening to some extent the volume of business. The midsummer lull is now about over, and those travelers who have been enjoying short vacations are now getting back on their territory once more and sending in very fair orders. City merchants are extending invitations to their customers to attend the Provincial Exhibition, which opens in three weeks' time, and make the personal acquaintance of the heads of firms.

Now that the trouble at Sydney is over, conditions in eastern Nova Scotia have improved. In all other parts of the province there has been a continuance of industrial activity, the only cloud being the low price of lumber, which has led to the failure of one or two firms. The apple crop throughout the Annapolis Valley promises to equal that of last year in quantity, although the quality will not be up to the mark, a great deal of the fruit being badly spotted.

High prices are being paid for fish. In fact sales of dry cod ex vessel were made last week at $5 per quintal, the highest figure for many years at this season. The catch is larger than last year in this province, but smaller in Newfoundland and elsewhere. There is a good deal of business doing along the western shore.

Rails are laid on the new railway from Liverpool to within four miles of Halifax, and it is expected to have regular trains running within a month. On the eastern shore the Whitman's at Canso are building a cold storage plant for the preservation of bait for the use of the deep-sea fishermen. The building and plant will cost $50,000, and towards its erection the Dominion Government contributes $20,000. It is to be ready in November for the Fall run of bait fishes, and it is hoped that when it is in operation the bankers will not again suffer such loss of time in procuring bait as has occurred last year and this.

Molasses is very firm with an upward tendency. The agreement of jobbers fixing a uniform selling price on this article is being well carried out, and is having a very beneficial effect. Porto Rico at present is jobbing here at 35c in puncheons, 36c in tierces, and 37c in barrels.

Prices of pork and beef continue strong. Owing to the strike it has been a difficult matter to get supplies of some brands of American beef and pork. There can hardly be said to be a quotable market, as prices rule according to the jobbers' ability to make the delivery. Spot stocks are very light.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,

St. John, N. B., Aug., 1904.

BUSINESS continues fairly good. Money is, however, somewhat scarce. It is a bad habit which many of the retail dealers have allowed themselves to form expecting the wholesale house with whom they do business to help them meet their paper. It is a request they should be ashamed to make except for very special reasons.

Markets are very firm. Flour, sugar and fish are higher. Pork products, particularly pure lard, are low. Dried California fruits are also very low. There is a prospect of a new outlet for some of our lumber,—the shipment to Ontario and the west of shooks for barrels. Western shippers of flour, salt, etc., have for some time found great difficulty in getting barrels, in fact some shippers have found it impossible. Already some sample shipments have been made and favorable reports received. Cream of tartar is rather easier.

Oil.

There is an improved consumptive demand for burning oil. Large contracts for Fall have been made. Prices have shown no change since the change in duty, at which time a reduction was made. Lubricating oils have just a fair demand. In paint oil, linseeds are firm at the last slight advance. Turpentine remains unchanged. In cod oil business is dull, with the market rather easier.

Salt.

There is a fair stock of Liverpool coarse sale held and some factory filled. A further cargo is expected next week. Buyers should place their orders for shipment while landing, and so take advantage of lowest prices. In Canadian there is a steady sale.

Canned Goods.

Prices are unchanged. The free arrival of new peas has tended to lower prices. Spot corn and tomatoes are light stock. Dealers, however, do not wish to carry any over. In fruits, firm prices are held. Peaches and strawberries have the largest sale. Except a fair sale for blueberries, gallon apples and pineapples, there is little sale for other lines. Meats are unchanged. Fish will be high this season. The pack of best salmon is very light. Domestic fish, such as sardines, haddies and kippered herring, will be light. Lobsters are scarce and high. Best grades are largely exported.

Green Fruits.

Dealers are inclined to complain a little. Apples begin to be a feature in this business. New Brunswick apples are now offered. Bananas, while having a large sale, feel the competition of other fruits. California pears are low. The California peach is not a favorite. Plums are plentiful. In oranges, prices are high. Lemons are quite firmly held at full figures. There is but a fair sale for melons. In berries the season is about over. Eastern barrel pears are now offered.

Sugar.

The sale has continued heavy. There has been another slight advance and the market is very firm. Full stocks are held. Foreign sugar continues to arrive.

SYSTEM OF AN INSTALMENT BUSINESS

WITHIN the last decade there has sprung into prominence a style of business that has for its supporters a number of people who represent by far the greater part of the buyers of all classes of goods. It has developed such an importance as to be adopted by several of the largest retail houses in America, and from appearances is spreading into every branch of the retail business. The instalment system has found its strongest adherents in the housefurnishing trade, and until recently was confined almost entirely to that branch. There are at present, however, in Canada several clothiers and dry goods men who are confining themselves to this style of business, and claim that not only are they doing a large trade, but they are also filling a position that is a boon to the working classes.

The latter claim they base upon the fact that very many people are deterred from the purchase of articles of necessity or luxury because of their inability to provide the needed cash. They are perfectly honest and competent to pay if given time, and the man who allows them to buy in instalments is a benefactor. Whether the customers being made up by his collections on goods reclaimed or by his extra charge on the goods sold.

In the first place the prime necessity of an instalment business is a perfect system, one which meets every requirement of the extended intercourse between customer and merchant, that fully protects the merchant, and that simplifies the bookkeeping which might be considered a requisite feature of such innumerable and lengthy transactions. Without a system that answers all these demands, an instalment business will be beyond the powers of any man, whereas with a careful study of the perfections of modern systems, and the possibilities afforded by a mind that is master of detail, there can be evolved methods and principles that make this style of business of astonishing simplicity.

In a necessarily abridged article like this hundreds of exceedingly useful details must be omitted. But with the larger principles before him any merchant can establish a system that will need only the improvements offered by the experience rapidly acquired in handling such a business.

At the very outset the instalment merchant is faced by the most difficult part of the system—the selection of risks. After a few years experience the worry of this will wear off, but at first the success of the business argument of the opponents of the system, that the instalment business is an encouragement to extravagance and a discouragement of thrift and economy, is a question which can be settled omly in individual cases.

The principle of the entire business is that, by the instalment system, customers can build up an attractive home, without credit, without cash, and possessed of nothing but honesty and an income that is not large but steady. Lacking property and capital qualification, the merchant protects himself by retaining, in the contract, his title to the goods sold until they are entirely paid for. His protection is limited and somewhat unstable even in this, but as judgment is supposed to be used in the granting of the privileges of the system, he is reasonable and amply protected, his losses through dishonest seems to depend upon each customer applying for business.

The system treated here is that of one of the largest housefurnishings houses in Canada, and in it will be noticed a strictness and an attention to detail that is not treated as a necessity in the smaller business.

Every applicant must, of course, supply information concerning himself. The upper half of the form given has to be filled in at the dictation of the applicant, while the lower is compiled from the record kept of previous transactions. Every source of information must be taken advantage of, and upon it all the merchant has to pass as to the safety of the account. The manager or proprietor should o. k. all accounts.

When an application is o. k.'d, or before this has been done, the periods of payment have to be decided, whether weekly, fortnightly or monthly, and the salesman is then ready to take the order. As a rule a certain sum is demanded down, varying according to the size of the account and the reliability of the customer. Thus a set sum can never be named off-hand by the salesman as a cash payment.

The amount of the instalments depends more closely upon the size of the account, and varies from 25c weekly to two or three dollars. Weekly is the favorite period of payments, and such payments are insisted upon by most merchants. Almost all wages or salaries are paid weekly, and the oftener the payments are made the more likely the customer is to be punctual.

A sample of the order form is given. The one shown is the office copy with the cost price of the various articles filled in in the last two columns. The customers copy ends before these.

On the back of the form used for these sales there is printed the lease or agreement under which the goods are sold. The customer signs this at the bottom. As will be seen from the wording the merchant is as fully protected as he can be. This agreement is absolutely necessary not only to protect from lapse of payments, but also from seizure of the goods by other creditors.

There are two methods of making the periodical payments open to the customer. He can either call at the office on the pay-day, or make the payment to the collector, who is a necessary part of all large instalment businesses. For evident reasons the majority of customers prefer to call and pay directly. In either case the customer must be provided with a pay card, which is filled out week by week at the office or by the collector. This card is too simple in construction to need a sample. It merely contains the name, address, amount of bill, ledger number, and columns for date, amount paid and collector's name. A convenient style is formed of a sheet of ledger paper, 7½ inches wide by 8½ inches long, folded in the centre lengthwise. The card thus folded is printed on all four pages, with proper debit and credit spaces. The first page is a debit page and the remaining three are devoted to credit payments. The collectors carry a similar card.

The ledger is a book specially prepared for this business and consists of a small page or section devoted to the transactions of each month. In the form shown one month's entries are made, occupying one page. Facing it are a number of half pages, each of which is marked for a month of each side.

The collector, whether he be an employe devoted only to this, or the proprietor or his clerks, must be controlled by a system that shows no carelessness to customers. Collections must be made regularly and on the appointed day. Too great care cannot be exercised in the selection of collectors, as upon them to a great extent depends the success of the business. Policy, firmness, honesty, gentlemanliness, judgment and persuasive powers are necessary characteristics.

There are, of course, other forms of more or less importance in the instalment business, such as those for "delivery," "returned goods," and "changes of address," but those given will convey a good idea of the outline of the system, and are prepared with a care of detail that must characterize all transactions in this business of trust. If a merchant should see fit to adopt this style of business he must first of all spare no amount of trouble, study and attention to every detail. Without a perfected system failure is sure to result.

DIVERSIFY YOUR TRIMS.

WHEN you get hold of a good idea don't work it to death. For instance, there is one trimmer we know whose work could be recognized if you saw it in South Africa. He has a certain drape which he has utilized for the past three years or more. Another man we know can put in handsome backgrounds and beautiful designs, but he uses them for months, until they become as familiar as the store front, and cause all his work to look stale. It is an old time saying, trite and true, that variety is the spice of life, and to nothing is this more applicable than to window work.

It is permissible to use the same background say two or three times, but even then it should be with a distinctly different line of goods. For instance, to take out a wall paper show and put in something decidedly different, such as crockery, glassware, etc., is the proper way.

FURTHER ADVANCE IN FLOUR.

ANOTHER jump took place in flour on August 17, when, following the example of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., which advanced flour 10 cts. per barrel, the Ogilvie Milling Co. stepped in with an advance of 15 cts. This makes them both on the same level; the Lake of the Woods "Five Roses Spring Wheat Patent," selling at $5.30, and "Red Patent" at $5.00 per barrel, while the Ogilvie Flour Mills quote, "Royal Household Spring Wheat Patent" at $5.30, and "Glenora Patent" at $5.00. There is a marked sympathy existing in the market, with the steady advance in the prices for the raw material in spring wheat markets. Prospects are at present, that flour will go still higher. An advance has also taken place of 10c. to 15c. per barrel, in the price of winter wheat patents, and 90 per cent. straight roller flours. The Ogilvie Milling Co.'s quotations also effect bran, which is now selling at $18.00 a ton, and shorts at $20.00 a ton.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Aug. 12, 1904.

BUSINESS in every respect is quite up to the expectations of the trade, and all markets are fairly steady with the exception of sugar, which has been advancing slowly for the past few weeks and has again taken an upward turn of 5c.

Sugar—The market again advanced on the 9th inst. 5c. Montreal granulated is now quoted at $5.25 in barrels, and $5.15 in sacks. Yellows, $4.65. Wallaceburg is holding prices good at $5.10 in barrels and $5 in sacks.

Rolled Oats—The market is steady, quoting 80-lb. sacks at $2.25; 40-lb. sacks at $2.30; 20-lb. sacks at $2.35; 8-lb. sacks at $2.65, and 6-lb. sacks at $2.85.

Flour—The market is now steady and prices firm, quoting No. 1 patent at $2.55; No. 2 at $2.35, and No. 3 at $1.80.

Cornmeal—The market continues firm and prices steady, quoting cornmeal at $1.75 per sack and 90c per half sack.

Canned Fruits.—Canned strawberries are now available, which the market quotes at $3.25 per case. Other lines of canned goods are expected to be on the market in the course of a few weeks, and prices will undoubtedly be higher than last year, owing to the crop being small. Jams will advance in price on account of the scarcity of fruit and the high price of sugar.

Evaporated and Dried Fruits—The new stock of evaporated apricots is now on the market. They are quoted 13c to 13½c per lb. There are practically no evaporated apples to be had, and new stock will be on the market in the course of a few weeks. Currants are advancing in price owing to the available stocks in Greece being scarce on account of the wet weather.

Green Fruits—The market holds prices a little easier in some lines, quoting oranges $5 a case; California lemons $5 a case; bananas $2.75 to $3 a bunch; peaches $1.35 a crate; plums $2.25 a crate; pears $2.50 a crate; apples in boxes $2; watermelons $4.50 to $5, according to size; American apples per barrel $5 to $6; blueberries 7c a lb.; rhubarb 2c a lb.; Ontario tomatoes $1.25 a basket; cucumbers 50c a doz.

Canned Fish.—The market is now quoting 1904 Fraser River salmon one to five cases, at $6.75 to $7 per case; cohoes $5.10 to $5.25 per case; humpbacks $3.75 to $4 per case; finnan haddies $4. to 4.60 per case. All lines of canned salmon will likely advance as the run this year is very light. The market quotes 1904 pack lobster at 1 lb. at $3.65 to $3.75; ¾-lb. at $2.65 to $2.75; ½-lb. at $2.10 to $2.15 per doz.

Salt.—The market is firm and is still quoting salt lower that last year, as follows: 3-lb. bags at $3.25; 5-lb. bags at $5.25; 50-lb. cotton sacks at 49c a

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special Correspondent of THE CANADIAN GROCER

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 11, 1904.

BUSINESS generally is reported active in all lines, and payments are satisfactory, with but few features in the market. The price of Japanese rice has stiffened this past week, lard has declined a half cent, but otherwise there is little to note, with the exception of flour. Following the rise in the east, western dealers are also advancing the price, and yesterday an increase was made of 10c. Locally, conditions sometimes hold such an increase down for a time. One or two of the large wholesalers may have on hand a fairly large stock of flour, which is sold at the former figure, even after the raise has been declared, and it necessarily arises that other dealers must hold back, to keep in the competition.

Prices in the tea market are maintained for the present, but a reduction is looked for. Japan product is better than last year, and the price is lower. China teas are still firm in the price, caused by the demand in the European market, which was nearly altogether out of them. As soon as these wants have been filled the prices may be a little better for the consumer. The price of Indian teas is about the same as in former years, and the quality, if anything, a little better.

Fine washed coffees are advancing, caused by the shortage in crop. An instance of this may be seen in the difference in the number of bags received in San Francisco from Costa Rica. Last year 23,000 bags were imported, and this year but 3,000. All that are coming on the market are being absorbed, and the article is still scarce and dear in consequence.

There is a full market in fruit, and good demand. More local apples are now coming in, and they are well sought after. The local fruit will be much in evidence from now on. Oranges are high, owing to the lateness of the season. Pears are more plentiful and are lower, as are grapes and watermelons. California peaches sell for $1.25, and Washingtons $1.10 and $1.15. Local peaches are few as yet, and the demand for them is light. California Bartletts, .25; plums, $1.50 to $1.65; local plums, 50c to $1; Gravensteins, California, $1.75 to $2.25; local yellow transparents, $1 to $1.85; valencia oranges, $4.25; lemons, $3 to $3.50; hothouse tomatoes, $2 per crate of 20 lbs.

A carload each of bananas and watermelons are due from the south. The former are going at $2.75 to $3.25 per bunch, and melons at from $3 to $4.25 per dozen. The refrigerator car service this Summer has been excellent, and as a consequence the fruit on the Vancouver market is of the very best.

There have been several complaints in Victoria because of lax inspection, but this was remedied last week, when a new officer was installed. Since he has been attending to the duties there has been more fruit condemned than during the whole term of office of his predecessor. Mr. Thomas Cunningham, inspector for the province of the Provincial Board of Horticulture, is very particular in regard to fruit inspection, and every box is rigidly examined. The object is to prevent the introduction into this province of destructive pests, and up to the present he has been very successful. None have been reported, and as long as the inspection is carried on so well, both in regard to fruit and nursery stock, the province will be free. It also results in a better class of fruit for the consumer, for it must be perfect to pass.

Dawson's markets have been weak and quiet. Fresh fruits have been more numerous in variety, but the weather has not been warm enough to encourage their rapid consumption. Prices in all lines rule low and there is little likelihood of a change for a month or so. Fresh salmon is plentiful there, the fish coming up the Yukon, and being caught in front of the city. The fish sell at 18c wholesale, and 25c retail.

Last year was a small one as far as the salmon pack is concerned, but this year will be far less. In fact, the pack for 1904 will only be about half. Up to August 6th, last year, the pack was 63,900 cases, and this year it is but 31,265, for the Fraser River. At Skeena River it is about 75 per cent. of that of 1903, though more is expected. The weather there has been very stormy, and as a result the fish have gone deep, avoiding the nets, and appearing in great numbers in the higher reaches of the Skeena River. At Rivers Inlet, the only run of any importance occurred, and all the canneries there, with the exception of one, packed more than last year. The pack on the Sound is also very low, and now that cohoes have appeared the run of the best fish is presumably over.

Rates on flour and wheat to Asiatic ports from the Pacific Coast have been increased from $4 to $5 per ton. Small shipments will not be affected.

George A. Paulson, of the grocery firm of Paulson Bros., Rossland, was struck by a train a week ago and fatally injured. He was deaf and did not hear it approaching.

J. A. Kirkpatrick & Co., of Nelson, have decided to adopt the cash system on and after August 1st.

Charles W. Slipp, manager for Brackman-Kerr Milling Co., at Rossland, for the past year, has gone to San Francisco to take a responsible position with a wholesale furniture house there.

R. M. Hood has retired from the management of the Nelson branch of the J. Y. Griffin Co., to take the Kootenay agency of the Blue Ribbon Tea Co. The latter company has appointed a resident representative owing to the expanzion of business, and will make an effort to introduce the tea into Washington, Idaho and Montana, with Nelson as the centre.

A WELL-KNOWN MAN DEAD.

The death was announced last week of Mr. Fred L. Kimball, of Waterloo, Iowa. The late Mr. Kimball was known to the grocery trade as editor of the Egg Reporter, Creamery Journal and Kimball's Dairy Farmer.

He passed away at the early age of 38 years, full of honor and success. His widow and young son, F. L. Kimball Jr., will have great sympathy in their bereavement. As authorities on their respective trade matters, his papers will live long after his demise, and while his place cannot be entirely filled, it is hoped that a measure of continued success will still attend them.

A LUDICROUS ERROR.

The Grocer notes with regret that in the description of the Frontenac Cereal Company's exhibit at the Winnipeg Exhibition, contained on page 44 of its last issue, a line was omitted, which gave an unintentionally ludicrous turn to the write-up. Readers will kindly note that it was not Mr. Blakeslie who weighed 560 lbs. and created so much interest, but a darky woman. The Orange Meat man is not guilty.

Association News

TORONTO RETAIL MERCHANTS' ANNUAL EXCURSION.

ON Wednesday, August 10, The Toronto Retail Merchants' Association held their annual excursion to Niagara Falls. Members and friends of the Association to the number of 1,200 patronized the outing this year, and gave as their verdict that it was one of the most successful in the history of the Association.

The excursion party left by the early morning Niagara boats, arriving at the Falls about 11 o'clock, where they separated, each to spend the day after his own fashion. The feature of the outing was a reception tendered the Toronto Retail Merchants by The Natural Food Co., Niagara Falls, N.Y., at their magnificent factory, which has now a continental reputation. Over 800 visitors were shown over the plant, where they saw all the process of manufacturing shredded wheat biscuit and triscuit in actual operation. At the conclusion of their sight-seeing the party were entertained at a novel luncheon, consisting entirely of the products of The Natural Food Co., served in such a variety of ways as to entirely nonplus the hundreds of uninitiated housewives present. This section of the visiting contingent were not slow to appreciate the handsome appointments everywhere ; but they veritably went into ecstacies over the spotless cleanliness of the enterprise, where every room and appliance is as clean and white as a parlor. The unanimous opinion among them was that "there never was such a deliciously clean place."

It is to be hoped that Canadian manufacturers may see their way clear to continue such entertainments, especially when they cannot fail to see that the advantages to be derived therefrom are mutual.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. W. H. Lever, of Lever Bros., the English "Sunlight" soap manufacturing firm, was in Toronto last week.

Mr. P. C. Larkin, of the Salada Ceylon Tea Co., is visiting the "Salada" branches in New York, Boston and Buffalo.

Mr. D. B. Odette, commission merchant, Windsor, has announced himself as a candidate for the Conservative nomination for the Dominion Parliament, in opposition to Mr. R. F. Sutherland, M. P., in the next election.

Mr. W. D. Harrington, collector of customs at Halifax, died on August 15. Mr. Harrington was at one time M. P. P., representing Halifax County, and for years carried on a successful grocery business.

Mr. R. A. Donald, of the Pure Gold Mfg. Co., Toronto, has been appointed chairman of the Toronto branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association for the ensuing year.

Mr. D. J. Byrne, head of the firm of Leonard Bros., wholesale fish merchants of Montreal, has just returned from a pleasant business trip to eastern fishing points.

Mr. M. Stevens, of Stevens, Hepner & Co., Port Elgin, Ont., was in Montreal this week, promoting in his own capable way the interests of his firm's brushes and brooms. Mr. Stevens reported business excellent all over the Province of Quebec.

Mr. Mark Sanderson, of Leith, Scotland, who will be remembered by all who met the Scottish team of curlers in January, 1903, was a welcome visitor in Montreal this week. He is the guest of Mr. S. B. Townsend, Melbourne avenue, Westmount. It might be mentioned that Mr. Townsend is the sole Canadian agent for Sanderson's Scotch whiskey.

The Toronto office of THE GROCER was favored this week with a call from Mr. Brittain, of A. H. Brittain & Co., Montreal, agents for Black Bros. & Co., of Halifax and La Have. Mr. Brittain is calling on the Toronto wholesale grocery and fish trade, and incidentally "converting" a few of the Toronto dealers to handle more boneless and shredded codfish than they have ever done. He sees a big future for the codfish trade in Canada, but thinks we do not as yet fully realize in Toronto "wherewithal we should eat." Everybody knows of the wonderful salmon fisheries of the Pacific Coast ; not so many know that the codfisheries on the Atlantic Coast are equally significant, the value of the output of the latter for the season of 1903 having been over $4,000,000.

Mr. Brittain talks and eats nothing but codfish, and has no difficulty in convincing his friends that he has specialized in his chosen department, a scheme which seems to be coming more and more into favor among the rising business men of Canada.

The commercial travelers of Hudon, Herbert & Co., for the Province of Quebec, will bid good-bye to work at the end of this week, and will take two weeks' holidays. They are hard workers and The Grocer wishes them the best of a good time. These travelers are: E. A. Prevost, J. N. Cabana, J. A. Chevalier, P. Panneton, J. I. Lalonde, T. Fourner, and D. Giguere.

Mr. W. F. Thomas, of Thomas Bros., Limited, St. Thomas, Ont., was a visitor to Montreal last week. The Grocer ran across him at his company's eastern warehouse, St. Paul street, and renewed old acquaintanship. Besides being extensive manufacturers of brooms and brushes Mr. Thomas stated that the demand for their improved washing machine had developed to such an extent that special salesmen were required to pay exclusive attention to this branch of their business. Mr. A. R. Tourgis is agent in Montreal and through hard work and a pleasing personality is working up a good trade.

Biscuits And Confectionery

Mr. Walter M. Lowney in Montreal.

MR. WALTER M. LOWNEY, of Boston, Mass., was a visitor to Montreal during the past week. Mr. Lowney's name is suggestive of all that's good and delicious in the chocolate and cocoa line, and the legend "Name on every piece" has worked its way into the minds and memories of a continent. Readers of The Grocer are no doubt familiar with the well-advertised and attractive-looking lady on the chocolate and cocoa packages made by Mr. Lowney, and it may be interesting to learn something of the personality of the man, his struggles, plans, and ultimate success. About a decade and a half ago Mr. Lowney conceived the idea that there was room on the market for an absolutely pure and high-grade chocolate bon-bon, and starting in a small way he produced an article which he intended the trade to sell at 40c to 50c per lb., something so different from the ordinary paste goods then on the market. He was met with very discouraging reception, confectioners and grocers alike stating that "people wouldn't pay 50c per lb. for this class of goods; there was no demand; it wouldn't pay to stock, etc." However, with a persistency and an enthusiasm born of conviction, he persisted, introducing his goods to a few here and there, gradually finding that business was going ahead. Being a strong believer in advertising, Mr. Lowney used the magazines, trade and other papers freely, never letting up on posting the public of the "really good thing" he had to sell, until to-day Lowney's chocolates are for sale from ocean to ocean both in the United States and in Canada.

The original factory on Commercial street, Boston, an immense building employing hundreds of hands, was found inadequate for the development of the business, and a large tract of land was purchased at Mansfield, Mass., about 25 miles from Boston. Here a seven-storey building was erected, equipped and fitted throughout with the latest and most improved machinery for the preparation of cocoa and chocolate. The convenience and health of the empioyes is one of Mr. Lowney's strongest considerations, everything tending to hygienic comfort and benefit is carried out. Large and well-equipped dining-rooms, kitchens, lavatories, etc., are provided for the help, of whom there are more than 1,500 on the pay roll. On the land surrounding the factory Mr. Lowney has erected a number of cottages for those employes with families, and more are in course of construction.

The representative of The Grocer was presented by Mr. Lowney with an illustrated souvenir of the two factories, (Boston and Mansfield), and a glance through the catalogue, with description of the different departments, was certainly a revelation to him. Space and lack of technical knowledge precludes a detailed description of these two modern chocolate and cocoa works, and it is only by a personal visit that one can be able to grasp the perfection of everything depicted.

Asked as to the reason for the increase in consumption of chocolate and cocoa, Mr. Lowney said: "People are realizing more and more every year the value of chocolate and cocoa as a perfect food. Chocolate contains the highest percentage of food value, that is, comparing values pound for pound. Cocoa, naturally, has not the value of chocolate on account of the extraction of the oil. As the public becomes convinced of the superior merits, the healthy and invigorating qualities of chocolate over other beverages, it will turn to the more frequent use of chocolates and cocoas. Manufacturers are finding out that it pays to place a good article on the market, and the better the article the better everybody in the chocolate and cocoa trade will profit. I started out to make pure goods, and pure goods I am turning out.

"Business in Canada," continued Mr. Lowney, "is increasing satisfactorily, and we have lately been obliged to open up a branch warehouse in this city to attend to the steadily increasing wants of the trade. Canadians are somewhat slower in taking hold of new lines of goods, and more conservative in their tastes and habits, but I feel satisfied that the next decade will show a very much larger consumption of chocolates and cocoas than in the preceding period. You are a tea drinking people; we a coffee people, and the change from coffee to chocolate and cocoa is easier than from tea to chocolate and cocoa."

Mr. Lowney entered into a close and interesting description of the various processes of manufacture, the business of their Chicago branch, and the general conditions of the cocoa trade in United States, all of which were most entertaining and instructive.

Mr. W. M. Littler, of St. John, N.B., the general agent for Canada, has taken charge of the branch on St. Paul street, Montreal, and all orders are attended to from there.

Mr. Lowney's was only a flying visit to see how the Canadian branch was looking. Apparently it is all right, as the offices are light and neatly furnished, with a large warehouse in the rear. The sample room contains show cases displaying the great variety of bon-bons, cocoas, chocolates, etc., prepared by Mr. Lowney.

Adulterated Chocolate.

Dealers in chocolate and confections should buy only of reliable makers as few articles afford a more favorable opportunity for adulteration. In some cases the husks are ground with the nibs making it gritty, rough and difficult of digestion. The law should provide for the labelling of the article, with the formula and name of maker, and the analyst should do more than indicate what he finds. If there are injurious ingredients they should be pointed out and their use forbidden. The discovery subsequently, that the same things are used, should invite a punishment in keeping with the offence. One thing is certain, that our food should be pure and good, and that any attempt at the adulteration of them should, when detected, be followed by the severest penalties.

Cape Colony Biscuits and Cakes.

The quantity of biscuit and cakes imported in 1902, by Cape Colony was 3,8I9, 799 lbs., of the valne of £106,814, the figures for 1903 being 4,643,539 lbs. and £59,061 respectively. The increased quantity and decreased value of the biscuits and cakes imported in 1903 were due to the sale of these articles by the military authorities at very low rates.

SUGAR REFINERY'S JUBILEE.

FIFTY years before Canada had federated into the Dominion, the Canada Sugar Refinery was founded. Its history and the history of the Dominion began almost together and they have kept pace together ever since. It was fitting therefore that the fiftieth anniversary should be celebrated last week, with due ceremony. The event took the form of a large gathering of the employes, at which presentations and congratulatory addresses were made. Silver services were presented to several veteran employes.

The address to Sir George Drummond, who succeeded the late Mr. J. J. Redpath in the management of the refinery, was as follows:

To the Hon. Sir George Drummond, K. C.M.G.:

Sir—On this occasion, the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the Canada Sugar Refinery, we, your employes, deem it a fitting and proper time to give expression to the high regard and esteem we entertain towards you, and to congratulate you upon the high honor conferred on you by His Majesty King Edward the Seventh.

We wish also to return our grateful thanks for the generosity and sympathy which you have always shown towards your employes and their families, in time of trouble and distress.

We sincerely trust and hope that you may long be spared with Lady Drummond to enjoy the recent honor conferred upon you.

On behalf of the employes, (Signed)
ALEXANDER BOWER,
Chairman of committee.

Montreal, Aug. 12th, 1904.

An address was also presented to Mr. McMenamin, who has been in the employ of the company since its inauguration. The address was as follows:

"We, the employes of the Canada Sugar Refinery Company, Limited, wish to offer you our hearty congratulations upon this golden aniversary of your connection with this company. Your long and successful services have well merited our highest praise and recognition, and we take the opportunity this celebration presents to beg your acceptance of the accompanying purse of gold in token of our goodwill and esteem.

"On behalf of the committee,
"ALEX. BOWER."

Prior to the presentation of the address a photograph of those present was taken.

A pleasant feature of the event was the presentation of silver services by Sir George Drummond to Mr. and Mrs. McMenamin, Mr. and Mrs John Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Bower and Mrs. James Robertson. He also presented loving cups to Mr. McMenamin and Mr. Bower.

Sir George thanked the employes of the company for their faithfulness and said that he would continue to do all in his power to further their interests.

Those present included the following: Mr. James and Mrs. McMenamin, Miss Parker, Mr. E. W. Parker, Mr. Maurice Drummond, Mr. Frank Redpath, Mr. and Mrs. Huntley Drummond, Mr. and Mrs. John Bennett, Father Daniel McMenamin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert, Mr. Charles Senecal, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Bower, Mr. and Mrs. George Bower, Mr. and Mrs. A. Y. Blomeley, Mr. John Colfer, Mr. M. Morrisey and Mr. John Duncan.

The committee in charge of the arrangements was as follows: Messrs. A. Bower, Geo. Bower, C. Senecal, J. O'Down, J. Smith, R. Bennett, J. Haddlesey, R. Lamoureux, J. Colfer, J. Kelly, Louis Mosse, C. Godsall, M. J. McCarthy, M. C. Morrissey, T. Ward, A. H. Thomson, J. G. Gagnon, A. Y. Blomeley, J. Duncan, J. O'Brien, J. Shea, V. Groulx, F. Denniston, F. Pilon, J. Blake, M. Mahorey, N. GREEN FRUITS

England's Fruit Output.

IN his latest market report, the Canadian Commercial Agent at Leeds and Bristol, Eng., says a decided drought has set in in England, extending over almost the whole of England, and especially severe in the north. This has almost entirely ruined the raspberry crop, and there will be a decided shortage of this fruit in England. Raspberry jam is used extensively there, and there will be an extremely brisk demand for this product from Canada. There is an excellent market for any quantity of this product, which should be packed in 1, 2, 4, 7, and 14-lb. jars (net weight of fruit).

Apparently there will be quite a small crop of plums in England, and there is no reason why good Canadian plums should not be shipped there. Especially would this apply to the larger and finer varieties of Canadian plums. They should be sent in boxes and well packed. Possibly it might be necessary to pack each plum rolled in tissue paper, but even with this extra trouble the shipping of this fruit should be extremely remunerative. The above remarks will also apply to pears, which are always in great demand in the District of Leeds and Bristol, and bring very handsome prices. Last year there were over 60,000 tons of raw plums and pears imported into England.

Fruit Prospects.

Harvest and Fall apples will give an average yield in most Ontario orchards, but the Winter sorts, more especially Spies and Baldwins, will be comparatively scarce. Pears will range from poor to good in yield, except in British Columbia, where they will be plentiful, but peaches will be light generally. Grapes give promise of being a good crop, although there is danger of some late varieties being caught by frost, owing to the backwardness of the season. Reports from Great Britain and Europe generally show a large crop of fruit, which will come into direct competition with Canadian Fall varieties, and may slightly affect the market for Winter fruit. Up to the present, however, European fruit has not competed seriously with Canada's best keeping varieties. Plums are the most scarce of all, the crops in the majority of large orchards being very light, while in many cases there is no fruit whatever. Small fruits, such as raspberries, currants, gooseberries, Lawton berries, etc., are reported as fair to good all over the country.

Banana Cultivation in Colombia.

BANANA cultivation in the district of Santa Marta was begun in the year 1890, but it was not until the year 1892 that exportation commenced from the district. At first, prices were high, and it was generally thought that banana cultivation required little or no real agricultural attention. Severe failures have, however, established the following necessary conditions for the production of bananas for export. The plantations must be located in good soil, with natural protection from all strong winds, good drainage, either abundant rainfall all the year round or irrigation during the dry season, judicious thinning out of trees, reducing the number of stalks to three or four each set of roots per year; and, lastly, a good and rapid means for transport to the steamer at the shipping port. The districts of Riofrio, Sevilla, and as far as the Fundacion River, lying from 60 to 80 miles inland from the Atlantic port of Santa Marta, offer the most favorable conditions for the cultivation not only of bananas, but of cocoa and sugar cane. These lands are of excellent quality and depth, and, lying as they do to the eastwards, at the foot of the great Sierra Nevada de Santa Marta, are especially well protected from all violent winds, and out of the West Indian hurricane zone. They are abundantly watered by several large rivers. There are thousands of acres which are still untouched. The great advantage of these lands is that they are not easily exhausted by cultivation, cutting down a banana field and ploughing every six or eight years, being all that is necessary to restore the land to its original high-class production. Some of the best plantations in this district are the ones which have been established for over twelve years. In 1894, the export production of the district reached some 13,000 tons of fruit. The revolutions of 1895, 1897 and 1903, restricted advances in this trade. The export for the year 1903 was some 15,000 tons, and that of 1904 is expected to be about 25,000 tons, as a considerable extension of cultivation has taken place and is still going on.

There are at present about 4,000 acres irrigated and under banana cultivation, and the produce requires for its transport to the United States a steamer every week. These vessels run direct from Santa Marta to New York in six or seven days, and offer the most rapid transit to Europe. The transport of the fruit is carried on by the Santa Marta Railway Company, a British concern, who are doing a great deal for the development of the Santa Marta district. —Planting Opinion.

Warning to Apple Shippers.

The Fruit Division, Ottawa, is warning apple shippers that in order to grade as No. 1 or XXX, apples must be fairly mature. Apples that have not taken on their proper color and that otherwise show marks of inferiority as the result of being pulled too green cannot be graded anything higher than No. 2.

Canadian Cider in England.

THE demand for Canadian cider in England is reported to be increasing every day. During the last month or six weeks there have been many inquiries for Canadian cider, but when referred to the Canadian manufacturers, the invariable answer has been that they were sold out, and that no cider could be shipped until late in the Autumn. This seems unfortunate, especially when one takes into account the thousands of bushels of good cider apples which were allowed to go to waste in Canada last Fall.

Canadian exporters will do well to take advantage of the vast possibilities for this product in the English market. Last year the United States exported to Great Britain about 250,000 gallons of cider. The price for Canadian cider in England at the present time is, wholesale, from 40 to 42c per gallon in 40-gallon casks, and from 62 to 65c per gallon retail.

Some Canadian exporters have expressed the opinion that last year may have been an exceptional year, and that there might not be the same demand for Canadian cider in England another season. In order to allay such suspicions it may be said that Canadian cider is only just now becoming known and appreciated in the English market. There is certain to be from now on an increasing demand there for Canadian cider, which will take the place of cider from the United States in the same way that Canadian cheese has outclassed and displaced the American article. If the quality exported is the best, an increased demand and remunerative market are already assured.

How to Increase and Maintain Canadian Trade

(By J. S. Larke, Canadian commercial agent for New South Wales, Queensland and New Zealand.)

AUSTRALASIA though large geographically has not a large population, being about three and three quarter millions in Australia and three-quarters of a million in New Zealand, but these four and a half millions are the largest consumers of imported goods, per head, of any people. The total importations from abroad for 1902, the last returns published, were:

Australia	£40,678,239
New Zealand	9,611,428
Total	£50,289,667

This is at the rate of £10 14s 3d per head. Of the imports into Australia £23,848,526 were from the United Kingdom, £5,484,902 from the British colonies, and £11,444,775 from foreign countries. Into New Zealand the figures were:

From the United Kingdom	£6,851,452
From the British Colonies	2,569,505
From foreign countries	1,905,766

The proportion of imports from foreign countries has increased rapidly during the last ten years, both in Australia and New Zealand, as the following percentages show:

Imports Into Australia.

1891-95	71.27	11.64	17.09
1901-2	59.06	12.24	28.70

And Into New Zealand.

1891	67.2	24.2	8.6
1901	58.3	24.6	17.1

The imports from the United States which are of special consequence to Canada were:

	1891.	1902.
Into Australia.	£2,558,320	£4,989,812
Into New Zealand	361,795	1,318,937

Relatively the Canadian trade has more than kept pace with this rapid expansion, though still far behind in volume. The imports from Canada were:

	1891.	1902.
Into New Zealand	1,941	33,516

The two hundred and fifty million dollars of imports represent a vast variety of goods and varies with the seasons. In times of severe drought Australia imports foodstuffs, flour, meat, butter, cheese and even vegetables, but at all times they include the manufactured products of almost all civilized countries. There is scarcely an article made in Canada that is not sold here or could not be sold here.

Disadvantages of the Australian Market

The disadvantages are two: Its remoteness, but this is inherent in all foreign trade, and Australasia is not farther from the centres of production in Canada than from those of other countries. The distance necessitates a slower return for the capital invested, higher rates of exchange and insurance and increased risks, but these are items which must be considered in making up the cost price of the goods.

The other is unequal freight facilities which Canada possesses for reaching the market as compared with European countries and parts of the United States. There is no doubt that the average rate of freight is lower on goods from Europe than from Canada and the communication is less frequent, but on the other side by means of the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Australian steamers, Canadian manufacturers can land goods when necessary to the populous side of Australia quicker than can his European rivals. Increased trade will improve the freight rates.

Advantages of the Australian Market.

The advantages are that these countries are British countries, doing business in the English tongue, with British methods and with British integrity. They use the Imperial weights and measures, and though their currency differs from that of Canada, it is well understood by Canadians. Their tastes, wants and circumstances have great similarity to those of Canadians, and small modifications, as a rule, need to be made in Canadian goods to meet their requirements. In New Zealand a substantial preference has been given to certain British goods, and while no such preference has yet been given in Australia; there is here a sympathetic market in which there is a preference for British productions.

Australia, therefore, presents to the Canadian exporter of certain manufactures as inviting a field as is open to him.

The Goods.

It is to be presumed that this market is desired not so much for the disposal of the uncertain surplus of occasional over production in Canada as for goods made directly for export. The two classes vary widely and require different treatment. The manufacturer who purposes to export must first determine whether he has the equipment to promptly supply the goods when a demand has been created and at the price at which others do it. It is useless to undertake the cost, and it requires considerable expenditure of opening a market and then discover when the orders come in that he cannot fill them. The money will have been spent for nothing, and worse than nothing, as it has given him a bad reputation.

Competition is Keen.

Competition is very keen in Australia. Every manufacturing country has its representatives here who closely watch all laches of rivals and take advantage of them. Most countries are protectionist and sell abroad cheaper than at home; subsidized ships bring goods cheaply and the Canadian exporter must learn if his goods are of the quality and price to compete. After having determined upon his capacity to produce the goods the next business of the exporter is to ascertain from every available source the knowledge of the market here from them and the character and prices of similar lines sold.

Must Be Up-to-date.

One thing will be evident from what has been stated respecting the competition in this market that it is hopeless to attempt to do business with antiquated styles or with goods made by out-of-date methods. They must be the very best.

Mercantile.

This includes not only the selling of the goods, but all the processes of conveying them to the buyer and receiving payment therefor. Most Canadian exporters act as though their responsibility ended with the making and selling. Selling only begins trade, the proper execution of the other processes contributes largely to its maintenance.

Selling.

The new exporter must keep in mind this simple fact: He and his goods may be household words in Canada, but both are absolutely unknown in Australia. He may be the soul of business integrity and his goods equal to or a little better in quality and price than those of any other maker, but no one here knows either, and a knowledge of both is necessary to a permanent trade. As a large proportion of the imports received here are paid for before the goods are seen there must be a confidence in the exporter as well as in his goods. This comes only by experience, and this takes time. Hence the exporter may expect small orders at the outset.

Make the Goods Known.

The first step is to make the goods known. In raw products samples and price-lists will bring orders but rarely in manufactured goods. Catalogues, descriptions and prices are necessary, but behind them must be the living representative who understands the goods and can present their merits. If the Canadian will think for a moment how he secured success in Canada, he will see the force of this, for successful selling requires the same methods in Australia as in Canada. Business of any extent is not made permanent here without a seller.

Where the business can be made large enough to support the expense, an Australian branch should be established. The agricultural implement and bicycle trade of Canada is an illustration of the wisdom of such a policy.

If the extent of trade is not deemed sufficient to warrant a branch, a representative from Canada should be sent out to open up the trade. In either case, great care should be exercised in selecting the man. He should not only be a good business man and salesman, have thorough knowledge of his goods, but have so much the confidence of his principals that reasonable freedom of action can be given.

Where it is not advisable to follow either of the above methods, a manufacturers' agent can be employed. To do the business without an intermediary has been the aim of Canadian exporters, but such attempts have failed. The fact that travelers are such a necessity in doing business in his home market, so close at hand, should convince the Canadian exporter of the truth of this statement. It is better to delay entering the market than to employ an incapable agent.

Again, good agents are not good in all lines, and the best are prone to take on lines to which they cannot do justice. It is important to know and definitely fix the territory covered by an agent. Australia is of very large extent and few commission houses cover the whole of it. Firms in different States may be required, but care must be taken that they do not infringe upon each other's ground. When a representative is appointed, the Commercial Agent of the Canadian Government of the territory in which the agent does business should be notified, in order that he can give all the assistance in his power in securing an opening for the goods and watching over the interest of that branch of Canadian trade.

Buying Agencies.

The largest Australian houses have branches or buying agencies in London and some in New York. Occasionally business can be done through them, but, as a rule, they only buy lines already known in the Australian trade. It is difficult, therefore, to secure an entry for new goods through them.

What would much assist the Canadian export trade to Australia would be the formation of an export company with sufficient capital and managed by men of ability and character. There are many manufacturers in Canada who could supply goods suitable to this market, but who have not the means of getting into it. A company could buy varied lines and sell them here to advantage.

Such a company should buy as well as sell in Australia, and by exchanging goods would reduce the cost of exchange and make a double profit. There are sufficient articles in the wool, hides, skins, meat, gums, hemp, sugar, copra, etc., of Australia, now bought in a roundabout way to make a large exchange.

In making prices it must be remembered that Australia is a market open to the world, but that it will pay a fair price for an article that suits it. The seller must, however, prove that the article is good and in making up his price must consider the expense of doing so. He must further remember that the Australian dealer is concerned not as to what the Canadian manufacturer gets, but what the goods will cost him landed in his warehouse. Freight is as important an item in his cost as the price paid for the goods. The Canadian exporter can better ascertain the charge for transmitting his wares to the buyer than can the latter. Particularly is this true in regard to inland charges. The exporter should, however, free himself from liability of fluctuation in rates as much as possible. When shipments are made via New York or Liverpool it will be enough to quote absolute prices f.o.b. New York or Liverpool. The Australian buyer can ascertain the rest. In shipping via Vancouver, unless otherwise advised, quotations should be absolute to the port of destination. The price-lists should be free from local technical terms, perfectly clear as to extra charges, and should give such information as will enable a buyer to get at the landed cost. The exporter should study the rise and fall of the cost of producton and if by securing better rates of freight or lower cost of production prices can be reduced, or if on the contrary they require to be advanced, the agent should be promptly notified by cable, and there should be a suitable code for that purpose. Mails are too slow for export business Cabling will show an agent that his principal is taking an interest in his business and enable him to take quick advantage of changes.

Orders.

Unless otherwise provided for, every order should set forth particulars as to goods, prices, terms of payment, time of shipment, method of invoicing, packing and addressing route by which shipment is to be made and whether it is to be by steamer or sailing vessel.

The head of the firm should require that every person in his employ be responsible for carrying out these details, is fully informed of them and that he strictly does his duty. The failure to do this is responsible for many of the Canadian failures in the Australian trade.

Canada has yet no daily mail to Australia. There are two direct routes, the Vancouver having sailing every four weeks and the San Francisco one each three weeks. The mails are, therefore, generally one each three weeks. It is more necessary in Australian business that correspondence should be prompt than where the missing of a mail is of slight importance. Every order received should be acknowledged on receipt, and more particularly so if there is any misunderstanding of any part of it, or the goods cannot be shipped at the date specified. There is no justification for six and ten months elapsing between the giving of an order and any acknowledgment of it from the exporter. Acknowledge it to the firm giving the order as well as to the agent taking it. If the order be large or the prospects of the future good enough to warrant it acknowledgment should be by cable. It need cost but a couple of dollars and the Australian buyer will appreciate it.

(To be concluded in our next issue.)

SPECIAL NOTICE to the TRADE.

IN a previous issue of the Grocer we called the attention of the Trade to our very tender Sugar Pea. We now beg to call their attention to another line of peas which we believe to be first-class value. We refer to our brand "Midget" Peas. This is a pea just one grade larger than Petit Pois, and is selected from what is the most tender peas in the entire pack. It can be retailed at ten cents at any point in Ontario where the freight rates are only ordinary. As a straight ten cent line we believe it the best value to the consumer of any pea we pack. We finished packing peas on the 30th July, and all through the pack the weather was perfect for packing peas, cool and moist, so that the raw material was kept in fine condition. Taking the pack as a whole, we have every reason to believe it is the finest in quality that we have ever packed.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Flour Trade of Canada.

THE chief topic of interest in flour and cereal circles at the present time is the firmness of of the flour and cereal markets. Flour continues to advance, although it is not keeping pace with wheat. This is readily seen from the fact that the advance in flour per barrel from the lowest level at the beginning of the season has been 35c, while the advance in wheat during the same period has been 60c per barrel.

At the present time no Canadian flour is being exported to Great Britain, the reason being that the conditions of the export trade do not warrant the price of wheat prevailing in the home market. Ontario wheat brought $1.01 per bushel during the past week, the exact equivalent of the price ruling in Liverpool. One Canadian grain and flour exporter estimates the exportation of Fall wheat from Ontario to the Old Country for the present season at 25,000 bushels, and says the volume of flour exported will be correspondingly small. A representative of The Grocer moreover gleaned the interesting information that a large shipment of wheat in store at West St. John, N.B., for the English market is about to be brought back to Ontario mills for grinding and consumption at home.

The reason for the unusual activity and firmness of the Canadian flour market is undoubtedly the unfavorable crop reports being received from the United States. A prominent grain man estimates that the United States will require every bushel of grain for home consumption. Some estimate this year's output of grain at considerably below the normal consumption over there. It is not thought, however, that this fact will necessarily mean increased American business for Canadian grain and flour exporters, because of the heavy duty on flour and cereals entering the States. If Uncle Sam hasn't enough to supply the normal consumptive demand at home, he will simply revert to some other foodstuff.

The present prospects in Canada are that the crop of Ontario Winter wheat will not be more than half an average crop. The crop in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, barring accidents until the grain is threshed, will be from 10 to 15 per cent. larger than last year's, or about 70,000,000 bushels. This increase in the West will make up for the shortage in the Eastern part of Canada so that the actual output of Canada will be larger if anything than last year. Ontario, however, will not have any soft wheat to export and will have to draw from Manitoba to a large extent for to supply the home market.

There will be a big surplus of Manitoba wheat for export purposes and the general impression is that the prices ruling in European markets will be favorable. As a matter of fact they are rising over there, although somewhat more slowly than in Canada and the United States; the rise in wheat in the Liverpool market during the past two months has been 13c per bushel, while in Canada and the United States it has advanced 20c. England will require as much or more hard wheat this year than usual, and when it is remembered that Minneapolis will in all probability have very little to export, and that Russia, another important source of supply is in a similar situation, Canadian exporters may have reason to congratulate themselves within the next few months.

The Wheat Area of Argentina.

A SPECIAL agent of the Department of Agriculture of the United States Government who has been making a personal investigation of the agricultural conditions and resources in the South American republic has issued the following statement:

"The exports so far this cereal year beginning January 1, amount to nearly 67,000,000 bushels. The present area devoted to wheat in Argentina is 10,000,000 acres, and Senor Ronaldo Tidblom, an Argentine authority in agricultural matters, says that 'there are more than 80,000,000 acres in the republic that could be immediately devoted to successful wheat farming if there were the farmers to do it.' Beyond this immediately available land is a great area stretching southward into the territory that used to be called Patagonia.

"The actual wheat area is rapidly increasing and getting into a region of very great extent and adaptability, superior to that of the region in which it was started. Wheat growing will increase in proportion to the population, the extension of railways and river navigation. If we see settlers—farmers—going to Argentina in large numbers and staying there; if the Government offers sufficient inducements to get the right sort of men to go and to stay—then we may look for a tremendous production of wheat. The railway service will be provided as fast as there is a demand for it. The Southern Railway, which dominates the Province of Buenos Ayres and all the southern part of the country, is enterprising, has practically unlimited resources, and will extend its lines to secure new territory years before it will pay any dividends. It has repeatedly done this. The same may be said of the Western and Pacific Railways, which are developing the country to the west, only not to the same extent. Most of the Argentine railways are owned by the same group of English capitalists, and they work quite harmoniously together."

It is British capital that is developing Argentina as a wheat-growing area and developing it on such a scale that that country has already outstripped the United States as a grain-exporting country. Great, however, as are the possibilities of further development, there are many difficulties to be contended with. There is no lack of land, but there is a decided lack of land-tillers. Argentina has to depend largely on the races of Southern Europe—mainly Italy, with Spain second; and other nations figuring only to a slight extent—for immigration; and the immigrants it gets are not settlers who anchor themselves for good on Argentine soil, but are forever thinking of the homes they left and of going back some time. The immigration and emigration figures of Argentina for the past five years are instructive:

	Immigrants.	Emmigrants.	Net Immigration.
1902	96 080	79,427	16,653
1901	125,951	80,251	45 700
1900	105,902	55,417	50,485
1899	111,083	62,241	48,842
1898	95,190	53,536	41,654

"The net immigration is thus seen to be small—amounting to less than half the gross immigration. And it is a population of uncertain character which is thus being added yearly to the total population of Argentina. Some two-thirds of the Argentine farms are rented.

"The methods of farming are described as being somewhat backward, the grain-growers being slow to avail themselves of labor-saving agricultural machinery. However, such machinery is coming more and more into use.

"One great advantage possessed by Argentina for growing grain for export trade is the proximity of the wheat-growing area to the seaboard. The average railroad haul to tide-water for the country now under grain cultivation is only about 150 miles, and for the remote interior points only about 300 miles. These are small distances compared with what the bulk of the wheat grown on the North American Continent and exported has to pass over before reaching the seaboard. The water haul to Europe is, of course, much longer from Argentina, but the far more expensive land haul is for the great agricultural regions of that country a matter of comparatively slight importance.

"The immigration problem is the serious one. Settlers such as those who are attracted to the country in such great numbers and who come here to make homes for themselves are what Argentina needs, but does not get. The immigrants to that country rent land instead of acquiring ownership, and after a few years, having accumulated some money, turn their thoughts to the matter of returning to Italy or Spain. The climate is temperate throughout a considerable part of the country; but the northern races seem to prefer the north temperate zone to the south, and to be averse to approaching the equator even for the purpose of crossing it to try a climate in the southern hemisphere like that of their northern homes.

Condition of Grain Crops.

LATEST reports on the grain crops of Ontario indicate that the Fall wheat harvest is about two weeks later than usual, and that the yield will probably be the poorest among the cereal crops. The outlook for Spring wheat was not much more cheerful, but barley and oats have done well and the yield is generally above the average. Last year Ontario produced 26,000,000 bushels of wheat; this year's crop is estimated at 8,000,000 or 9,000,000 bushels, and by some as low as 5,000,000 bushels. In the latter estimate, however, only wheat is included that will grade No. 2.

Wheat cutting has begun at several of the important wheat centres of Manitoba and it is expected that harvesting will be general there by August 20. Farther west the crops are maturing rapidly and are in splendid condition. The hailstorm of last week is reported to have done considerable damage to standing crops in the vicinity of Brandon and Carberry. The cool weather has been favorable on the whole to well-filled heads though it has prevented the grain coloring as soon as usual.

Within a radius of 50 miles around Regina the yield of wheat on Summer fallowed land will be up to the average. The crop on stubble land that has not been ploughed will be light. Indications point to a good average crop. In the Prince Albert district the wheatfields are in splendid condition and the prospects in Southern Assiniboia are equally promising.

The Winnipeg Commercial says: We do not profess to have special information as to the standing of the crop south of the line, but we do know that the prospect for the crop in Manitoba and the Canadian Northwest is on the whole very promising at the present date, for a yield of from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 bushels larger than last year. The crop is a week to ten days late. The weather at seed time and during the growing time has not been equally favorable over all districts, but in the last two weeks the weather has been generally very favorable everywhere, so that in the aggregate the prospect is good. The bulk of the crop is now at the filling stage, and it has still to run the gauntlet of crop accidents, but with favorable weather and no accident for the next four weeks a full average in yield and quality would be assured. At the present writing we consider the prospect under a continuance of favorable weather good for a yield of 65,000,000 bushels.

Latest reports from the United States show a deterioration in the condition of Spring wheat during the last month of 6.2 per cent. This is only a partial reflection of the impairment of crop conditions up to date, as the worst reports concerning the effects of rust have been received during the ten days since the completion of the data upon which the Government report was based. On the basis of the acreage and percentages of average condition given by the federal statisticians, experts now figure the combined yield of Winter and Spring wheat at 590,000,000 bushels; but if the reports of damage during the past ten days be only partially true it may easily happen that the production will fall to 550,000,000 bushels, or even below that total. This would afford an abundant supply for domestic food and seed requirements especially as consumption would be likely to be curtailed by high prices; but it would cut the exportable surplus to less than two-thirds and probably half of the comparatively small shipments from the crop of 1903.

Aside from the anticipated lowering of the promise of the wheat crop the report is generally favorable. The condition of corn is 8.6 per cent. higher than it was a year ago, and that of oats 7.1 per cent. better than at the close of July last year. Taken in connection with the previous high estimate of the condition of cotton, the Government's favorable report concerning important crops other than wheat should be encouraging to business interests. Bumper crops of corn and cotton and abundant yields of minor agricultural products will go far to offset the adverse effect of a disappointing yield of wheat.

Reports from agents of the Trade and Commerce Department in Ottawa show drought in almost all parts of Europe, with especially disastrous effect on hay and oats. An abstract of the reports is as follows:

Christiania—Poor outlook for crops; want of rain; such a dry season not known for 60 years. Hay is nowhere, as drought is general throughout European countries. Importations must come from United States and Canada.

Copenhagen and Petersburg—Grain poor; hay and oats particularly so.

Vienna—Oats poor; wheat light to medium.

Paris—Wheat medium; oats insignificant.

Genoa—Grain crop goes under a medium, or about one-fourth of last year.

At Variance With the Labor Unions.

The Postum Cereal Co., of Battle Creek, Mich., have engaged in a lively conflict with the labor unions of the United States, as a result of which the latter have declared a boycott against Postum Cereal and Grape Nuts. The cause is the fact that the Postum Cereal Co. refused to withdraw its advertisements from certain newspapers which had antagonized the unions. All the labor papers have served notice on their constituencies not to buy the above products until the Postum Cereal Co. obeys their demands.

In retaliation the Postum Cereal Co. has inserted advertisements in a number of the larger newspapers within the past fortnight giving the history of the controversy and detailing their views on labor organizations in general.

Tobacco Crop of Mexico.

IN view of the interest shown in Canada in regard to Mexican trade conditions, the following information on the tobacco crop of Mexico is not without interest. A recent issue of the Mexican Investor states that the tobacco crop of Mexico for 1904 is estimated at 800,000 arrobas of 25 pounds each, or about 20,000,000 pounds, produced in the following districts:

	Arrobas.
San Andres Tuxtla	160,000
Valle Nacional	50,000
Ojitlan	40,000
Acayucan and Jaltipan	5,000
Tlapacoyan and Cordoba	108 000
Simojovel	150,000

The above are all in the State of Veracruz.

Territory of Tepic	150,000
Other districts	65,000
Total	800,000

The tobacco exported is mainly the production of the San Andres Tuxtla, Valle Nacional, and Ojitlan districts, in the State of Veracruz. All of it goes to Europe, Amsterdam and Hamburg being the largest buyers, and London and Liverpool next in rank. No Mexican tobacco in any quantity goes to the United States, because of the very high duties, which are really prohibitive.

Nearly the entire San Andres crop, and over one-third each of the Ojitlan and Valle Nacional, have been sold and exported.

The Tlapacoyan tobacco is used exclusively in small factories for making cheap cigars and cigarettes, consumed mainly by the Indians.

The whole of the Tepic crop, which is considered of the best flavor, has been purchased by the Buen Tono cigarette factory.

All the exports are in form of "tabaco labrado"—that is, made up into cigars and cigarettes. The following table shows the quantities exported annually during the twelve fiscal years from 1890-91 to 1901-2, according to figures published by the Treasury department:

	Kilograms. Pounds.
1890-91	307,300=677,289
1891-92	394,336=869,116
1892-93	373,513=823,222
1893-94	361,326=806.362
1894-95	366,514=807,806
1895-96	401,946=885,889
1896 97	420,232=926,191
1897-98	389,697=958,892
1898-99	404,701=891,961
1899-1900	276,967=610,435
1900-1901	284,283=626,550
1901-1902	241,710=432,728

It will be observed that the export trade in tobacco has not increased during the twelve years, as the heniquen and other productions have, and the reason is that the home manufactures have developed so largely every year that the home trade gives a home market at as good prices as the export trade; in fact, the manufacturing capacity and the home consumption are increasing more rapidly than the tobacco plantations, and these have increased considerably.

To Prevent Tobacco Mold.

WHAT should prove of great value to tobacco farmers throughout the country is the discovery of an anti-mold remedy by an American chemist. The compound is said to be neutral, quite a departure from the old compounds, which are largely acid and will be known as the cherry-capillary solution. Its main function is to rapidly permeate the entire leaf through the midrib and sub-arteries, and as the inventor claims, absolutely and permanently destroy mold.

Since January 1 numerous experiments have been made on different varieties of molded tobacco, and it is averred that in each of these complete success was secured. The new remedy is a liquid which is used in the form of spray. The tobacco may be treated either through the butts or the leaves. It is claimed the butt treatment is to be preferred, as by this plan tobacco need not be taken out of the case to be treated. If the leaves are sprayed the inventors claim the mold will disappear in a week to ten days. If the butt treatment is given, it will take three or four weeks. About three quarts of the liquid are used for 300 pounds of stripped tobacco.

In addition to removing all traces of mold permanently, the inventor claims that his discovery exerts a chemical effect upon nicotine, changing its properties into other agents, which are highly desired in the manufacture of cigar wrappers. The intense "bite" of the nicotine is largely removed by the solution. A more glossy leaf, a brighter and more brilliant appearance, and a finer texture are also secured, and it is claimed that tobacco treated by this preparation holds fire longer than untreated.

Year after year tobacco growers have had more or less difficulty with mold. It is claimed that not since 1844 has an important patent been issued for a remedy to fight this evil. For the past two generations the method employed to remove mold has been to spray the leaf with diluted "high wines," wood alcohol generally being preferred. However, unless the tobacco be removed to a more favorable atmostphere the mold will reappear. For this reason a cure that will destroy mold effectively and prevent its recurrence without continually shifting the tobacco from place to place will be welcomed by the trade.

Use for Tobacco Stalks.

IT is the practice of many tobacco growers to cut the tobacco stalks with an ensilage cutter, obtaining in this way a fertilizing material regarded by them as worth four or five times the price of stable manure. In fact, the value of stalks is more and more appreciated, and each season finds the ensilage cutter added to the equipment of the tobacco farm.

The cutting of the stalks comes at a time when other work is not pressing, and does not involve great expense, especially when this item is taken into consideration with the aditional fertilizing value that the stalks have over the uncut.

While many of the farmers use the stalks on their tobacco land, others prefer to spread them on grass land or use them in connection with other crops. The cut stalks are easy to apply, being spread by hand or preferably with a manure spreader.

The stalks of the tobacco plant are said by investigators to contain more nitrogen than the stem of tobacco leaves, and to contain less potash than the stems. The nitrogen in the stalks runs from 3 to 4 per cent and in the stems from 2 to 3 per cent; the potash running 4 to 5 per cent in the stems. The potash is free from chlorine and most of it in soluble form. Tobacco stems are sometimes treated with nitrate of soda in order to bring up their percentage of nitrogen. Both the stalks and stems seem to be lacking in phosphoric acid, analysis showing about one-half of one per cent.

Analyses made at the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station years ago showed that large amounts of plant food, and particularly of potash, are contained in the stalks of tobacco from which the leaves have been stripped.

Actual field tests show that barn-cured stalks from an acre of tobacco weigh about 3,500 pounds and contain about 32 pounds of nitrogen, eight of phosphoric acid, 13 of lime and 49 of potash. That is, about one-third of the plant food taken up by a tobacco crop is contained, after curing, in the stalks.

Tobacco in the Grocery.

ONE of the most important, yet unimportant, departments of a grocery business, is the tobacco department says a western contemporary. The department is important to the men who patronize it, but the grocer makes it unimportant by neglecting it. As a rule, a few leading brands of chewing tobacco and smoking tobacco are kept in stock, and all the other goods are the cheapest that can be purchased.

The reputation of the "grocery store cigar" is proverbially bad. If you want to damn a cigar that you are giving to a friend, tell him it came from a grocery store; he knows that that means that it is a miserably poor piece of goods, which cost the grocer somewhere between $14 and $24 a thousand. Where you find a grocery store and a drug store side by side, you will see the druggist selling cigars, tobacco and cigarettes in large quantities and making a handsome profit, while the grocer has a showing of green and blue and yellow labels in his showcase, but no sales.

This is poor business policy. There is an excellent profit in 5 cent cigars that cost $30 or $32, and a fine profit in 10 cent cigars that cost $60 to $75, and a reputation for carrying such goods brings men to the store who buy groceries as well as tobaccos and cigars. Consistent pushing of a cigar department in a grocery, supplemented by high-grade goods, will bring more profit and more popularity to a store than any other one line that a grocer can handle.

Chronology of the Lucifer Match.

THE first really efficient lucifer match must be put to the credit of John Walker, of Stockton-on-Tees, England, who, in 1827, placed them on the market under the name of "congreves," in compliment to Sir William Congreves, the inventor of the war rocket. These matches were sold for a shilling a box, which contained, besides a few dozen matches, a little piece of folded sandpaper, through which each splint of wood had to be drawn before it could be made to inflame. An original tin box, stamped with the royal arms and bearing the word "Congreve," is preserved as a curiosity in one of the London museums.

As in the case of all other industries, this was initiated by hand labor alone. The splints of wood were no doubt originally dipped in the igniting composition one by one, but subsequently they were tied up in bundles and dipped en bloc, the workman giving each bundle a twist with his hands, so that the end of each splint would be free to move a certain extent and absorb a little more of the compound than it would if kept quite still.

The next advance was to fix the splints in a frame, so that each was separated from its neighbor, and this frame, containing about 1,500 matches, would be brought down on a marble slab upon which the composition was spread. The tipped matches still in their frame would then be dried in air for a few hours and afterward placed in a heated chamber to complete their desiccation. Manual labor is now almost wholly dispensed with in the manufacture of matches.

The employment of yellow phosphorous for the charging of matches made the industry a very unhealthy one, and the workpeople, if not in the best of health, ran the risk of contracting a terrible disease, known as necrosis of the jawbone, the vulgar name for which was "phossy jaw." With improvements in manufacture this evil has now been eliminated.

Hints to Smokers of Havanas.

LIGHTING a new Havana a downtown professional man the other day, after taking a few whiffs, blew into his cigar and forced a lot of smoke out of the fiery end. Then he laid it aside and permitted the spark to die out. When asked for an explanation he said: "Well, I learned that habit some years ago, and I find that a cigar which has been lighted and then allowed to go out makes a much better smoke. I take several vigorous draws in order to bring the heat well through the weed. If a cigar becomes cold while it is saturated with smoke it has a musty odor, consequently it is necessary to blow steadily and quite hard before extinguishing the spark, in order to clear out all the smoke that has been drawn in between the layers of tobacco. After permitting the cigar to lie ten or fifteen minutes, or even a half hour, I find on relighting it that the flavor has greatly improved. The why and wherefore I am not philosophical enough to explain, but I know it makes a cigar better. It also improves a toby. Try it and you'll agree with me." —Pittsburg Despatch.

Tobacco Notes.

The cigar dealers and jobbers of Phliadelphia will hold a tobacco fair on October 17.

Mr. S. Myers, of the American Tobacco Co., who has recently visited Canada, says the company isn't worrying over Hon. Mr. Brodeur's bill. It is reported that the Canadian dealers will now form a branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association to help Mr. Brodeur enforce the law.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELING IN CANADA

By Mr. P. B. Ball, Canadian Commercial Agent at Birmingham, Eng.

IN August 19 issue of The Grocer was published a special article from the Birmingham Daily Post on "Commercial Traveling in Canada," written by an English traveler who had just returned to the Motherland from a business trip to Canada. The Grocer has pleasure in reproducing in this week's issue an answer to the above article contributed to the Birmingham Daily Post by Mr. P. B. Ball, Canadian commercial agent in Birmingham, Eng.

It was not my first intention to answer your specially contributed article on "Commercial Traveling in Canada," published in your issue of the 9th, but I have had a number of letters from people asking if the conditions as stated in the article are actually so. One gentleman writes me in a most cheerful mood, and asks me what I think of the loyalty of the Canadians now after reading the article. He further states that he intends sending the paper to the Liberal candidate at Oswestry. This letter is distinctly funny.

I am also favored with letters from some large business houses who intended attempting to do business, but who are rather doubtful after reading of the complete Americanization of Canada. I have one from one of the largest firearm manufacturers, and whose house is a household word with us among those who wish to use the highest class of guns, revolvers, and rifles, but a firm which has never had a direct representative and whose name never appears in a paper so that the average Canadian might find out that such a firm exists. If we do get a chance to buy anything from this celebrated firm, we either have to come over and buy it or pay about four profits between their list and the purchaser.

The writer of your article has my most sincere sympathy. I extremely regret that his visit to Canada was so unfruitful, but I think his failure, at any rate partially, is due to himself. He went out as he states as "an old hand on the road" with an experienced gained by traveling through Great Britain and the Continent, but evidently knowing nothing of matters as they obtain in Canada. As being an old hand he did not think it worth while making enquiries which might have saved him both time and trouble. I do not know the nature of his business, but it seems to be something in the household furnishing line. The patriotism of Canada did not impress him strongly, and he regretted that it stopped short at the pocket. No doubt he thought he would be able to sell his "improved frying pans" amidst the waving of the Union Jack, and the singing or playing of the National Anthem. Canadians do not associate business with loyalty to that extent.

The Preference.

Canada merely gives Great Britain a preference of one-third of the amount of duty, and, as the gentleman observes, "all things being equal the British manufacturer has the preference." What more can any fair business man want? His remarks on some subjects remind me of the ideas held by the average manufacturer in Great Britain 25 to 30 years ago. He believed that anything that sold in Great Britain or any Continental country was quite good enough for Canada. That idea I am glad to say has been obliterated from the minds of a large number of your manufacturers. It has been my privilege to have been in rather close touch with the British manufacturer and merchant since 1876, and I can speak feelingly on the change which has come over many of them. They will give us an opportunity of buying what we want. He is willing to go out and fight for his market, but that does not seem to suit some travelers.

The writer of the article sneers at our modest little 10 per cent. preference. He evidently expected that he would get 33 1-3. How high did he think our tariff was? It strikes me that if it had not been a British colony but had been Germany that gave this 10 per cent., he would not have belittled it quite so much. He partially states the truth of his failure when he says that he had to meet the keen competition of the Americans, and in many instances their "cleverer patents" and "handier notions." That covers a great deal. Moreover, he does not credit us with originating any ideas. All is done by the "Yankee." (He forgets the telephone.) He allows that the Britisher's indifference has lost him a large quantity of our trade. What did he think we were going to do? Sit and suck our thumbs, or take what was given us? No, we bought the best goods the American, Frenchman, and German could produce, as well as a large quantity of British goods (but not the amount that we should had we been properly looked after). We also took what we considered the best ideas for ourselves in certain goods, and manufactured them.

Americanization of Canada.

The gentleman evidently was not conversant with a great many matters as they obtain on the other side of the water. He complains that we have adopted American ideas in the systems of railways, hotels, sanitation, lighting, street traffic, plumber's fittings, heating apparatus, etc. This may be so, but unfortunately you have not educated us to a sufficient degree. But, from my own experience, I may state that so long as the world lasts you never would get the Canadians to take up some of the articles used by yourselves. The heating and cooking utensils as used in this country, and also your ranges, would certainly not suit us. You burn soft coal; we burn anthracite. I do not suppose that in fifty households in Canada you would find a cast-iron pot such as is used in almost every house in Great Britain, or, if found in more, it would probably be an heirloom.

We once used British enamelled ware, but you were beaten out of the market, and we had to go elsewhere, Germany. We would gladly return to England if possible, but all you do in the matter is to manufacture the basis, send them to Germany to be enamelled and then brought back. So far as heating apparatus is concerned, no one in Canada could live with the heating appliances you have in your houses here. We are very much in advance of you with regard to plumbers' supplies. You make beautiful goods, but we do not see the sense of putting a ton of metal in an article when half a ton will do. Hence the idea in the minds of some that we want flashy, flimsy goods.

The gentleman is very much disappointed because we use "buggies" instead of "dogcarts." Well, if he had to rid ten miles over one of our country roads in a "dogcart" there would not be very much left of him.

In men's hats and hosiery we import no more from the States than we do from you, and so far as footwear is concerned he does not seem to understand that a man requires a pair of waterproof boots here, while in our Summer he will wear a fine calfskin boot, and in the Winter he protects his feet with what you call a "golosh." But the gentleman should not complain of that, for I see even England has adopted American boots, and American boot shops appear in all your large cities.

Referring to the close proximity of the United States to Canada, and giving that as one reason against the selling of British goods, he, like many more, seems to think that there is only an imaginary line between the States and Canada, on the one side of which an American porter stands and hoists the packages across at no expense. For this gentleman's information I may say that it costs as much to send a ton of stuff from Pittsburg to Toronto as it does from Liverpool to Toronto.

Limited Companies.

I take exception to the statement that the majority of houses are in the hands of limited companies. Seven out of ten jobbers and dealers are private firms, and a large proportion of the balance are managed by one family, who have all their money invested in it, although it is called a limited company. Probably not more than 50 per cent. of our manufacturers are in private hands, but I do not think this is very different from things in Great Britain. He objects to having a buyer for every department. I do not think this idea is confined to Canada alone. I fancy Great Britain does a great deal in that way, and it seems to me to be indicative of good sense. If the gentleman went to sell goods to Whiteley, of London, I do not suppose he would expect Mr. Whiteley himself to buy them.

Of course it is a very serious thing that so many young men should have been appointed to responsible positions, but I fancy the gentleman himself must have had a very severe turning down by one of these twenty-five-year-old Canadiand which makes him speak in the way he does of them. If he was spoken to about the slowness of the British it was probably an allusion to the length of time it would take him to fill an order. In many cases if we were doing all our buying from Great Britain we would have to stock for more than eighteen months.

It was one of those unfortunate things in life that this gentleman could not get the principals of houses to drop everything and attend to him. No doubt business men here drop everything at once and attend to the traveler. From my knowledge of trade matters on this side it is only at certain hours that a traveler can see a buyer, and he seems to have found our people accessible at all times.

I think the visit to Canada has probably done the gentleman good, and he will probably go out again and do a good business. I can quite see why he could not sell more goods when an advantage of 10 per cent. looks so small. A good many houses I fancy would be rather glad to work for that much gross profit. Some of his wonderful ideas have been exploded, and he finds after all that the word "British" is not in itself enough to sell goods. If the manufacturer goes out to Canada with the idea that his goods are the only goods in the world he will be mistaken, but if he goes with the idea, as your correspondent says, "that he will get a good reception and be well treated," and shows an article that the Canadians want, and not insist too much that what he has to sell is what we must have, but will make what we want, then there is no doubt that he will do business.

Traveling in Canada.

With regard to expensive traveling. So far as the duties are concerned, and his complaint that paying duty on his packages was blackmail, all travelers have to pay this duty, no matter from what country they come. Had he been willing to take a little advice he would have gone to Canada with the invoice of samples and packages, and he probably might have paid a little less. It was annoying no doubt, but not more so than it is to a Canadian who visits Great Britain and is charges 4s on a broken pound package of tobacco. They are both Government rules, and there is no getting away from them. Railway fares are cheaper there than here. From Montreal to Toronto is 666 miles return, and the fare (first-class), including Pullman sleeping car, amounts to £4; but had he taken a little advice from those who knew he would have joined the Commercial Travelers' Association, and got his fare about one-third less, and would have been allowed about 200 lbs. excess baggage. The fare from Birmingham to Glasgow, 576 miles return, is £4 10s, and if you took a "Pullman" you would want your pocketbook full.

We have not outside porters as here We cannot get the men, but we have something which may cost a little more with our transfer companies. He objects to fivepence for a shine—he should have said that he got a polish which would last him for a week, not the dabbing on of a bit of blacking such as you usually get at hotels on this side. If he got a polish in a London hotel of the same class as he got in Canada it would cost him sixpence. Hotels of the class he used in Montreal, Quebec, and Toronto could not be found in this country for twice the money. A man may go through a bill of fare in Canada and get his choice of three times as much as he would get at one meal here for the same price. Everything is table d'hote, and a bill of fare for three meals is put before a traveler which could not be got for three times the money in Great Britain. It is an exaggeration to say that you can get as much for a shilling in England as you can get for a dollar in Canada. Little expenses may amount to more, but the larger ones are not so much. Of course, if he is going across the Continent he is traveling ten times the length of the British Isles. If he goes from Montreal to Toronto he goes farther than from London to Glasgow, and probably if a man is accustomed to take two weeks to travel that distance on this side it naturally would amount to less. The shorter trips give him a chance to average his expenses.

In spite of the gentleman's remarks, there is a large business to be done if the British will go after it, and make what we want, but it is absolutely useless for a man to go to the other side thinking he can sell any "old thing" just because it is "British."

CANADIAN TEA FIRM AT ST. LOUIS.

MR. P. C. LARKIN, proprietor of the Salada Tea Co., Toronto and Montreal, has just returned from a tour of the Salada branches in the United States, including Buffalo, New York and Boston.

In an interview with The Grocer, Mr. Larkin states that his firm is making good progress in the United States, and that ultimately Ceylon and Indian teas will have it their own way over there. Instances of this are seen in the increased demand for Salada, and the frequent inquiries for it received daily. In Boston to-day every wholesale and practically every retail grocery store stocks Salada. The same is true of Buffalo, Pittsburg, Detroit, and throughout the New England states. In greater New York over 1,500 retailers carry Salada; in Chicago over 1,000; in St. Louis in the neighborhood of 600, and similar conditions prevail in all the principal cities of the United States. On August 18 a large telegraph order was filled from San Francisco; all going to show the prominent place Salada has secured in the United States market.

The Grocer is reproducing in this week's issue, a photograph of the Salada tea exhibit in the Ceylon Government building at the St. Louis Exposition. Mr. Larkin says the exhibit has already done Salada a great deal of good, and will be productive of much more before the end of the fair. It may interest readers of The Grocer to know that the same exhibit is repeated in the India Government Building, so that Salada has no less than three exhibits on the fair grounds. Tens of thousands of visitors are availing themselves of the opportunity provided for a close inspection of Salada tripple exhibit, and through the courtesy of those in charge are gleaning much valuable information concerning far away India and Ceylon.

The accompanying illustration gives a fair idea of the actual exhibit. One of the most striking features is its size. Nothing is crowded; eastern bronzes and richly carved teak wood furniture are scattered about in luxurious profusion. Oriental rugs, tapestries and cashmere silk curtains are much in evidence, but wherever a bit of wood work is visible the eye is afforded a veritable treat in the way of Indian carving and arabesque work. The illusion is complete when a dark-skinned native in Indian costume appears on the scene and serves a cup of Salada tea after the fashion of the east.

Something for you to think about

ARE you selling more RED ROSE TEA than you did a year ago? Most merchants are, and many tell and write me that they are selling very little of any other brand, and find that by pushing RED ROSE, they increase their sales more than when they were selling other brands.

Does it not appear reasonable that your customers have more confidence in you and the goods you sell, when you recommend only one brand of any one kind of goods?

There can only be one that is the best.

If RED ROSE TEA is THE BEST, that, without doubt, is the one you should recommend. If it is not the best, recommend the one that you think is.

MONTREAL RETAIL BUTCHERS' PICNIC.

A MONTH ago The Grocer had the pleasure of chronicling the outing of the Retail Grocers of Montreal at Delorimier Park. In this issue a like pleasure comes in reporting the annual picnic of the Retail Butchers' Association of Montreal, or, as their very handsome and elaborate programme puts it "22 eme Pique-Nique Annuel de L'Association des Bouchers de Montreal," which took place on Wednesday, August 17. The Butchers' Association of Montreal has just reason to be proud of itself. Founded in 1870 the society after hard work and enterprising propaganda has become a power in the city, and its influence is socially, commercially, fraternally and politically one of the most prominent. Its progress from its formation with a membership of 35 members in 1870 has been steady and solid and to-day its list of members numbers 300 with prospects for a large increase very bright. Thanks to the wise and prudent administration of its officers, the financial condition of the society is excellent, with a reserve fund strong enough to meet future exigencies. Its presiding officers have been men prominent in their trade in the city and it is largely due to the close interest and attention given by these officers in the past that the present prosperous condition of the association is due. Among its past presidents may be mentioned the following: D. Contant, J. B. Bourrassa, F. Bayard, E. Lavigne, E. and Alf. Leduc the well known St Henry packers; Jos. Denis, Macduff Lamb, of University street market; P. Bedard, and others. The present incumbent of the chair is J. Lamoreaux one of the hardest workers the society has had, who spares neither time, money nor interests in advancing the welfare of the association. Mr. Lamoureaux is assisted by a committee of hardworking and keen-sighted business men H. Portras, treasurer; J. A. Beaudry, secretary (Mr. Beaudry is also secretary of the Retail Grocers' Association); correspondent secretary, Aug. Prevost.

The trades of the grocer and the butcher are closely allied both purveying to the requirements of the inner man. In these days, particularly in cities and in the larger towns, they are often combined, and it naturally follows that the picnics and excursions of the two associations are patronized mutually by members and friends of both. The picnic on Wednesday last was no exception to this mutual enjoyment, and the grocers of Montreal turned out freely to assist their confreres in making it, as it turned out to be the banner picnic of the year, nearly 6,000 persons being present to enjoy the games and races provided by the committee.

One of the interesting features of the Butchers' Picnic is the annual parade of delivery wagons and private turnouts, with members, etc. This year owing to the threatening weather of the early morning, the turnout was not so large as last year's, but small as it was in comparison with its predecessors, it was sufficiently large and representative to attract attention and praise from the citizens on the route of parade. Accompanied by a band the procession left Champ de Mars at 10 o'clock, arriving at Delorimier Park at 12.30. Here under a large tent, the officers, invited guests and representatives of the press, partook of such a lunch as can only be spread by such connoisseurs and bon-vivants as the butchers of Montreal. Speeches were made by Mayor Laporte, Ald. N. A. Lapointe, Ald. Levy, Hon. Robert Bickerdike (one of the founders of the Association), N. Chartrand, president Retail Grocers' Association; C. O. Gareau, president Dry Goods Association; Mr. Watson, president Boot and Shoe Association; Alf. Leduc, ex-president Butchers' Association; Mr. Montet, of La Presse, on behalf of the members of the press present; J. Lamoreaux, president, and J. A. Beaudry, secretary Butchers' Association, and others.

After luncheon the games were entered upon and carried out with promptness and satisfaction to all, except the losers. Some 25 events were on the programme, and with the large number of entries for each, president Lamoreaux and his committees were kept more than busy. Just as the last event had been pulled off Jupiter Pluvius, who had been keeping magnanimously in the background all day, concluded to take a hand in the sport, and started to pour out his blessings upon the thousands present, thinking no doubt that as the inner man had been moistened the outer man should restore the balance.

Prime Cuts.

That four-in-hand turnout with President Lamoreaux, Secretary Beaudry and Ald. N. A. Lapointe was a most magnificent rear guard for the procession.

Mayor Laporte received a splendid reception at the pavilion, and in his speech aptly referred to the similarity of interests and aims of the Butchers' and Grocers' Associations.

Alf. Leduc of course had to win that foot race. As at the Grocers' picnic he showed that "St. Henri" was in front.

O. Lefebvre of "Chinese Starch" fame, was enjoying himself up to the limit finding many friends to greet him.

Jos. Ethier, of Laporte, Martin & Cie., was one of the judges of the horse racing.

The crowd of over 6,000 people was one of the largest of the season, and seemed to thoroughly enjoy itself.

The absence of gambling was a feature favorably commented on by the patrons of the picnic. The wheel of fortune is certainly getting a thorough shaking-up all around, the police authorities keeping a close eye on the artists.

President Lamoreaux's bullock balloon created amusement. It was certainly a good ad.

"Tommy," the famous horse of "El Presidente" Cigar Co., ran his special race alone and received thunders of applause at the finish. It was a good and novel feature and much enjoyed.

Vice-President Maynard of the Retail Grocers' Association and 2nd Vice-President Limoges of the same society were popular participants in the festivities.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—The strength of the market of last week in smoked meats is continued this week. Prices are firm, and it is probable that long clear bacon and lard will be still higher in the course of a week or two. Stocks are low, which fact assists in sustaining prices. The fresh meat market is quiet, the holiday season telling strongly against it. Beef is a little weaker, although prices remain about the same. Spring lamb has taken a sudden leap to 9c., but will in all probability be down in a couple of days to its old level around 8c. We quote :

Butter—Conditions in the butter market remain about the same, with receipts large. The export demand is off a little this week, but prices are as strong as ever. Dealers complain of the poor quality of butter offered. The damp weather, with its long, rank grass, has resulted in soggy butter that neither packs or keeps well. One dealer asserts that he has never seen a season of such a poor quality of butter. This feature shows up most strongly in the tubs. We quote this week :

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 19	0 20
" solids, fresh	0 17½	0 18½
" in tubs	0 12	0 14

Cheese—Two reasons are given for the advance in cheese on the boards a couple of weeks ago. One is that higher prices are expected on account of the spoiled cheeses reported in England. At least, the rumor reached this country, and probably had something to do with it. But from all appearances, it was a game of bluff almost pure and simple. If buyers had an idea that they could scare the Englishman into falling over himself in getting into the market simply by inflating prices they may find themselves mistaken. Dealers' prices remain firm, with a little falling off in the board prices. Stocks held in this country must be large, as the make has been unprecedented. Unless an improved export demand soon appears, there is sure to be a lower level of quotations. Board reports are as follows :

Provisions—A general steadiness marks provisions of all kinds. There are plenty receipts of live hogs, and a good demand. Sales continue at $5.75 a hundred, off cars weight. A general demand has been noticed for fresh killed abbatoir stock, and prices remain unchanged since last week. Canadian bacon is reported to be selling finely in the Old Country, enquiries have been frequent and there is a steady market. Lard is still active, and business good We quote:

Butter—An excellent business has been carried on in butter, and early this week at the wharf, a thousand boxes were cleaned up at 19c. From the Old Country encouraging news has arrived, and the situation is stronger for export Drought and hot weather in the Old Country has caused a scarcity of good stock, and Canadian butter will be in better demand than ever, no doubt. An exceptional price has been realised in 1 1-4c for Quebec creamery.

Butter Exports—The exports of butter are continually increasing, the total shipment for last week, ending August 22, were 32,398 boxes; of these 28,259 were local shipment. For the corresponding week of last year, there were 21,371 boxes and of these 18,912 were of local shipment. The total butter shipments since May 1, were 238,276 boxes, and of these 210,860 were local export. For the corresponding period of 1903. there were 157,513 boxes shipped.

Cheese—A slight improvement has been noted in the cheese situation since last week. Considerable steadiness has been reported, and export enquiry has improved. Early in the week 7,000 boxes sold at 8c. In one small lot there was some competition between two firms, and a quarter to three-eighth cents more was bid. It is quite interesting to compare the offerings of a year ago at this time, when in one morning at the wharf, 12,000 boxes of cheese were offered. It mighily easily be exclamed, "Oh, what a falling off was there!" From abroad it is learned that consumptive enquiry must have increased considerably, as the total stocks in London, for instance, are not much larger than they were a year ago, at this time. Cheese may improve.

Cheese Exports—For the week ending August 11, there were 84,647 boxes of cheese and of this 69,171 were local. For the corresponding week of last year, the falling off for this year is very noticeable, there being 96,985 boxes shipped. Since May 1 the total shipments amounted to 996,531 boxes, and in 1903 they were 1,368,718, so that the falling off is all the more marked when the aggregate is shown.

Provisions—There continues to be a very light inquiry for barrelled pork and beef, little change in price reported. In lard holders of stock begin to see signs of a firmer market. Hams and rolls command full figures. In fresh meats domestic beef is easy and the outlook seems favorable to low prices. Western beef is unchanged, veal and mutton continue dull, lamb is selling freely at somewhat lower prices. We quote the following prices:

A BIG FRUIT SHIPMENT.

Thompson liner Kildona, which sailed from Montreal last week, carried a large consignment of fruit from the Government Exhibition Building, Ottawa, and which will be shown at the September Trades Exhibitions in London and Liverpool. Some of the specimens were preserved in antiseptic fluid, so that they would be fit for displaying next May at the Liege Fair in Belgium. After the fruit has remained two weeks on exhibition at the British fairs it will be disposed of in the natural condition. Apples and pears form the chief part of the shipment, there being also some peaches and plums. All the fruits were gathered in Ontario and Quebec, but it is expected that some samples from Nova Scotia will be procured before the exhibitions are over; they are this year's crop. The products of the dairy, canned goods and confections were shipped some weeks ago.

The Federal Government is also sending fruit to St. Louis, as well as a large quantity of immigration literature.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. H. P. Eckardt, of H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, has returned from Georgian Bay to the strenuous life.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Paul, who have been holidaying in Europe, have just returned. Mr. Paul is one of Montreal's oldest and popular family grocers.

Mr. W. P. Downey, the energetic agent for Hires Root Beer, and many other grocers' specialties, has been enjoying the holidays with his family at Old Orchard Beach.

Owing to the courtesy of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association, Mr. W. H. Seyler, of the Montreal staff of The Grocer, was able to enjoy their annual outing in Montreal this week.

Mr. W. R. Powell, manager of A. Keith & Sons brewery, Halifax, N. S., was in Montreal Sunday and Monday of this week. Mr. Powell was entertained by Mr. W. P. Downey, a well-known Montreal business man.

Mr. A. S. Muskratt, of Lakhipore, Assam, India, a prominent East India tea planter, was in Toronto on Friday last. Mr. Muskratt has been doing the World's Fair at St. Louis, and is taking a flying trip through Canada prior to returning to India. He is much interested in the development of the Ceylon and Indian tea trade in Canada.

Mrs. A. C. Gray, assistant secretary of the Board of Trade, Toronto, visited the Montreal Board of Trade recently. Mrs. Gray is an accomplished and capable woman of known ability, having been connected with the Toronto board for a number of years, where she has survived numberless changes of secretaries. Mrs. Gray has been spending a pleasant holiday in Quebec.

George Cassidy, one of the British Columbia fish packers of Vancouver and New Westminster, visited Montreal and Toronto during the past week. In going about Montreal he was accompanied by Mr. D. J. Byrne, of Leonard Bros. Mr. Cassidy was arranging some business for his firm, and he reported the catch of salmon very light. Everywhere there seemed to be a fair demand for all kinds of salmon.

Mr. Henry Wright, Toronto, president of the A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., and their Mr. H. W. Bender, sales manager, for the United States, with offices in New York, will tour the principal cities of the United States in company with Mr. P. Lebrou, president of the Grande Societe of Roquefort, France, the manufacturers of the genuine "Societe" Brand of Roquefort Cheese. The A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co. are sole agents for this brand, and do a very large business with it, both in Canada and the United States. The party will visit Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Detroit, St. Louis and Chicago, returning then to Toronto.

Mr. T. A. Snyder, of Cincinnati, whose name perhaps is known almost as widely as the illustrious Lipton himself, in connection with a catsup labelled "Snyders," visited Montreal this week. Mri Snyder arrived in Montreal in his own yacht, the Palmetto, a beautiful little craft that attracted considerable attention in the harbor during the two or three days of his visit in Montreal. His representatives, Rose & Laflame, made it their pleasure to show Mr. Snyder the beauties of the city. Mr. Snyder was much impressed with Montreal as a business centre, and left to continue his outing on the St. Lawrence. He was accompanied by Mr. Roberts, a well-known business man of Philadelphia.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

It will pay every grocer to attend the fire sale of the Eby-Blain Co., Toronto.

A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co. report that they have on the way the largest shipment of fancy cheeses ever imported into Canada. The variety consists of Roquefort, Gorgonzola, Swiss, Edam, Pineapple, Limburger and English Stiltons, which are claimed by the various exporters to surpass in quality anything they ever exported.

Crockery and Glassware

Limoges Ware.

THE United States' commercial agent at Limoges has submitted the following interesting information on the china industry of that city: The growth of the china industry at Limoges presents a very interesting chapter in the history of French art and enterprise. All the wonderful development that has taken place—the discovery of kaolin at St. Yrieix, the building of factories, the establishigg of a name and market throughout the world—have occurred within the last century. Limoges ware is considered by connoisseurs second to none in points of excellence. Its hardness, clearness, translucency, and general adaptation for table ware and decorative uses is unsurpassed.

KAOLIN AND CLAYS.

The first important factor in this china is the kaolin. What are reputed to be the purest deposits of this clay in the world are found in the quarries around St. Yrieix. There are many other decompositions of felspathic rock in other sections of France and in Great Britain, but they all contain more or less water, iron, mica, magnesium, and often sulphur. An excess of water is extremely injurious in making the very delicate paste used by the Limoges potters.

The different grades of this china are frequently caused by mixing the cheaper and impure clays from other quarries with the true kaolin. The color and weight of the ware is apparent immediately to the eye of an expert in china. The body of the glaze consists principally of feldspath and kaolin; many manufacturers add to these a certain proportion of ground china. One of the features of Limoges glazes is the entire absence of lead. This mineral forms an important factor in American and British enamel, but the excessive heat required to fire the hard china would make lead practically useless. The entire process of manipulating the clay and firing differs in France from the methods used in other countries. The American and British potters make a very hard bisque and a very soft glaze, while the French reverse the order of manufacturing.

Before the kaolin is delivered at the factory, it is washed and ground and all impurities removed. After its reception at the works it is again washed, and a pump carries the liquid up into a receiver, where it passes between two electro-magnets to remove every particle of iron that might remain in the clay; this mineral discolors the china (often forming black spots, so much objected to). The liquid is then poured into bags and transferred to a hydraulic press, where the superfluous water is forced out of the clay. The bags are emptied on a sort of platform covered with zinc, over which run heavy rollers. Great care is taken to prevent the paste from touching iron, the cast-iron rollers being encased in zinc. When the clay has finished its course under these rollers it is placed on another zinc-covered disc and worked by similar cylinders. These mixtures give a plasticity and evenness to the paste that no other manipulator has been able to impart. The paste is now ready for the potter.

MACHINERY.

Nearly all the moulding and jigging is done by machinery. The plaster is placed upon a jigger, or revolving disc, which is thrown in and out of gear by the foot. The knife gauge can be so arranged that the same machine can make several kinds of moulds. This machine economizes hand labor and contributes very much to the rapidity with which work can be done. There are machines for making plates, saucers, and platters. A machine reduces the paste to the desired thickness, while another throws it on the mould, and the plate is finished on still another. One man usually works these three machines. He makes just as many plates as he can change the moulds necessary for each one of the three. These machines work automatically. Steam power is generally employed. They work so evenly that there is no danger of imperfections in the articles made. There are two machines for making hollow ware, such as cups, soup tureens, bowls, and deep dishes of all kinds. In one of these there are two pedals, one regulating the pressure made on the paste, and the other throwing the machines in and out of gear. The gauge is so arranged as to fit into both hollow and curved ware. There is not only a down motion, but a side motion, to the gauge, which makes it conform to the irregularities of the mould. This machine has reduced the cost of manufacturing soup tureens, sauce boats, salad bowls, and covered dishes. A subsequent issue of The Grocer will contain additional information on firing and decorating Limoges ware.

Increasing Popularity.

It is a comparatively short time since Maddock's Welded Edge Hotelware found its way into the Maritime Provinces. Repeat orders soon followed the first shipment, supplemented by a series of special orders for hotels, clubs and steamships in St. John, Sydney, Woodstock, etc., with their own crests or badges on the ware. E. W. Klotz, of Toronto, the Canadian representative, now feels assured of the increasing popularity of this durable ware, from the fact that unsolicited reports have recently reached him to the effect that next year these goods will be still more extensively used. This gratifying statement is but another evidence that the excellence of this ware is being appreciated in Canada as it is in other parts of the world where it has been given a trial. It also shows, as has been indicated in a former issue of The Grocer, that Canadians do buy ware of repute.

Years and Years!

For years and years the most persistent buyers of Windsor Salt have been the most successful cooks. One woman has told another about the salt that doesn't cake, the salt of unequalled purity, whiteness, dryness, and each woman is a link in the chain that has been forged from one little word, "confidence."

A woman can make or mar your success in business. She can influence trade—above all, she does like to talk. Think of the cumulative effect of years and years of constant talking—constant praise for Windsor Salt.

MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE.

AS a special feature of this week's issue The Grocer is pleased to submit a full report of the Maritime Board of Trade convention at Moncton on August 17, 18 and 19. This is the twelfth consecutive time the amalgamated Boards of Trade of the Provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island have met in a convention which now ranks as one of the most important on the North American continent.

A Board of Trade is the place par excellence for the consideration of all matters affecting the industrial or commercial interests of a nation; none can speak with such knowledge and authority upon these things as those who are actually engaged in mercantile pursuits. The legislators of a nation are, as a rule, more or less closely in touch with its business men; at any rate it is the latter who wield the greatest influence in Canada, and those who make the laws must in the long run take their queue from the merchant, the banker, the lawyer, etc.

At the present time Canada is face to face with a number of important questions such as the proposed "Transcontinental Railway line," "the fast steamship line," "Government ownership," and the "preferential tariff," all of which must be dealt with summarily; in turn there are other questions affecting only certain parts of the country. Nothing but good can come from the discussion of these problems by such a representative organization as the Maritime Board of Trade, whose constituent members are among the most representative business men in Eastern Canada.

NO IMPAIRMENT OF REPUTATION.

THE rust which is damaging the wheat crop in certain sections of Manitoba will not dull the bright prospects of the Great West.

Patches of rust in one season are not indicative of Manitoba's normal wheat growing condition. This is so patent that the ills of to-day will not seriously injure the high reputation earned by years of experience.

DISASTROUS SALMON PACK.

THE run of sockeye salmon on the Fraser, one of the greatest salmon producing rivers in the world, now over for the present season, will be the poorest by half in the history of the salmon fishing industry of British Columbia. Last year was supposed to have been the greatest failure since the inception of salmon fishing on a large scale; this year's pack will, however, be away below that of 1903. A fair idea of the shrinkage can be had only by a comparison of this year's pack of 65,000 to 75,000 cases with that of 1901, which totalled 1,236,000 cases.

British Columbia merchants will be undoubtedly the first to suffer on account of the poor pack. When fish are plentiful employes of the salmon canneries distribute "hard cash" to the extent of two or three million dollars among the trade. This year the various trades will miss this extra volume of business. The eastern Canadian trade will also be affected by the big shortage in sockeye salmon. In expectation of this, opening prices for the new pack were considerably higher than those of last year. During the past week these prices have advanced fifteen per cent., and it is reported that there are practically no sellers at the coast. It is believed that the requirements of the wholesale trade have been pretty well met by this time at contract prices, but it looks as if the few dealers who have not yet contracted for sockeye salmon will be "out of the swim" with a vengeance. A curtailment in the consumption is not improbable in view of the high prices expected to rule. Another direct result will be an increased consumption of cohoes and pink salmon in eastern markets, and a corresponding stiffening in the level of prices therefore.

HIGH PRICES FOR WHEAT.

THE language of the wheat market although general rather than particular, at the present time, is to be construed as indicating higher prices for wheat during the coming months than have ruled for many years. At the bottom of this fact the world's production is 190,000,000 bushels short. The European countries to which Canada exports will require more wheat than usual but it is doubtful whether the yield here will be sufficient to permit of as large an export as last season. Eastern Canada will require all her wheat for home consumption and will in all probability have to draw upon the Northwest.

In Manitoba and the Territories the situation is uncertain. There are conflicting reports concerning the damage likely to be sustained by the growing grain crops from rust, and the actual conditions cannot be estimated for another week or ten days. The opinion is expressed, however, that the West will not have as much grain for export as usual. Nothing can take the place of Manitoba hard wheat in the eyes of the British miller, which means that although the English market just now is not in it with the high prices ruling in Canada, the situation across the water will presently be more favorable to sellers.

A PERSONAL VIEW OF THE WEST.

IT is recognized that if a man is to develop his business to the fullest extent he must keep in personal touch with the conditions under which it is conducted. Not only should he have personal knowledge of the operations or processes by which his wares are produced, but he must have intimate acquaintance with the conditions under which they are sold.

Nor can any business man gauge the conditions existing in one section of a big country like Canada by intimate knowledge of the conditions prevailing in other sections. A manufacturer might, by careful study, acquaint himself thoroughly with the conditions affecting the sale of his goods in Ontario, and so adjust his operations to make the most of his business. Yet, this knowledge of Ontario's needs would be of small avail in an endeavor to build up a business connection in Manitoba and the west.

The conditions prevailing in the west are essentially different from those in the east. In the east there is, in most lines, strong local competition by manufacturers, so the primal need is economy of production; to reduce to a minimum the costs of manufacture. Generally speaking, Canadian manufacturers have so studied the needs of Ontario and Quebec that they are able to maintain their position against foreign competition; they are able, in short, to get their full share of the business in these provinces.

In the Canadian west, however, conditions are materially different. There are practically no manufacturers, though it is only a question of time till there will be in Manitoba and the west. Nearly all manufactured goods must be imported. Heavy freight charges on the one hand, and the keen competition of U. S. manufacturers on the other, combine to create conditions more difficult to solve than those they have encountered in the market nearer their base of production. In fact, the situation demands separate study and distinctly different treatment than is necessary in Eastern Ontario.

The western market is too important for the manufacturer to neglect, however. The increase of population in Manitoba and the Territories has probably been, during the last year or two, greater than in all the rest of Canada together. In equal proportion the demands for all the necessities of life have increased in the west. So great has been the growth of consumption in some lines that in many cases Canadian manufacturers have not been able to keep the western market supplied, the result being that in many cases there has been a steady growth of immigration.

The arguments that apply to the manufacturers can with equal force be used in regard to the wholesale houses. If any firm desires to do business in all parts of Canada it must recognize that the competition of United States manufacturers is a more serious problem in the west than in the east, that the transportation and storage problems of the east are in no degree comparable with those of the west.

In short, if a business man desires his business to be more than provincial he should get a footing in the west as early as possible. And to get a proper footing he should visit the country himself and take enough time to study the needs of the country thoroughly.

IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE.

JUST when Toronto's fire district was being covered with sightly buildings, just when the unfortunate business men were in strongest hopes of being safely housed for Winter, and of seeing a resumption of business that has been delayed for almost five months, all their hopes and those of the city for the building up of an unsightly block in the centre of the wholesale district are dashed to the ground by the strike of the builders' laborers. And although they represent unskilled labor, the Masons' Union, contrary to the established practice of unionism, and in direct contravention of their contract with the master builders, have inaugurated a sympathetic strike.

In the burnt district to-day, over one week after the commencement of the strike, scarcely a hammer is heard, and not a brick is being laid save in the cases where the imminent completion of the work induced contractors to grant the extra three cents an hour demanded. And it is all because a union of unskilled laborers are unsatisfied with two dollars a day of eight hours.

Last year the same union, after a thirteen weeks' fight, during which they were offered 21-2 cents an hour extra—within a half cent of what they asked—were forced to resume work at the old wages. Taking the working year of the length stated by the union —150 days—each week of idleness means the increased pay demanded of a third of a year, so that the fifteen weeks they have been idle already in the past two years will equal (supposing they win) the additional earnings of five years at the higher wage. The strike wage must not be considered, since this should in justice be returned, during busy years, for the benefit of striking laborers who have helped to contribute the amount in question.

And in this strike, as in every other, there are a great number of married men with families who are forced to quit work, much against their will. In this case over a quarter of those at the meeting voted against the strike and it is natural to suppose that a greater majority of the disaffected attended than those who desired to continue work.

However, justice or injustice has very little to do with the solution of a Toronto strike. Might is right, and a stand once taken will be adhered to to the last moment by both parties. In the meantime such large buildings as those of the W. R. Brock Co. and Gordon Mackay & Co. are lying half finished, although the wage demanded without recognition of the union, has been offered.

THE CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION

ON August 29th, the directors of the Toronto Exhibition Association will once more throw open the gates of Exhibition Park to the public, and for two weeks, what will be known as The Canadian National Exhibition, will be full swing. As in past years, so in 1904, the directors have spared no effort to keep up the reputation for sterling excellence, which the Toronto Exhibition has always enjoyed.

Exhibits.

The plan of the Exhibition covers two distinct fields. On the one hand are the exhibits of art, science, industry and agriculture, and on the other hand the amusements, provided in music, pyrotechnic displays, special acts and social gatherings.

The exhibits include, in the manufacturers and liberal arts section, all that is newest and best in Canadian industry, and these are displayed in the handsome new Manufacturers Building.

The fine arts are represented by a collection of paintings and sculptures, to be found in the Art gallery, also a new and admirably arranged structure.

In the live stock and agricultural section, the exhibits cover the best of everything that is produced on the Canadian farm. Processes of manufacture are illustrated in a special building. Cats, dogs, poultry and other pets have a section devoted to themselves, and last, but not least, there is the women's section, which includes a great variety of articles made by or of special interest to women.

Amusements.

As a special attraction during the whole exhibition, the management have secured the services of the famous band of the 42nd Royal Highlanders—"The Black Watch." This band will play three times a day. Before the grand stand this year will be performed each evening a pyro-military pageant, descriptive of "The Relief of Lucknow." This will be followed by a display of fireworks.

The special acts before the grand stand will include Dare-Devil Schreyer in his 108-foot dive from a bicycle into two feet of water; Winschermann's marvellous troupe of trained bears; Adjie and her lions and the Bickett family in aerial acrobatic feats.

Corresponding to the "Pike" at St. Louis, will be "Vanity Fair," a gathering of interesting and entertaining specialties, where old and young alike will derive instruction and enjoyment.

The Black Watch Band.

Apropos of the appearance of the Black Watch Band in Canada, it might be explained that the famous regiment, of which the band forms a part, was organized one hundred and sixty-five years ago, and has been employed almost continuously in the defence of the Empire ever since. Its first great service was in Flanders in 1743, its last at Magersfontein in 1899. In the interim the regiment passed through bitter struggles during the War of the Revolution, hardships in the West Indies, arduous service in the conquest of Canada. This long period of active service stamps the regiment as one of the greatest in the British Army.

The Black Watch Band is a worthy adjunct to the 42nd Regiment. It consists of 60 pieces, including pipers, and has a reputation for excellent playing that is as world-wide as is the fame of the Regiment for brave fighting.

Manufacturers Exhibit.

The new Manufacturers and Liberal Arts Building contains 165,000 square feet of floor space, and has been especially constructed to permit of the best possible display of specimens. The enterprise of Canadian manufacturers is becoming each year more widely known, and even at this early date, the number of applications for floor space indicates a completeness in the displays of this department which will far outdo any previous year. The exhibits of manufactured articles are being more perfectly divided into their various sections than has heretofore been the case, and visitors are assured of much interest and entertainment in their examination of the numberless lines of goods to be found in this building. So extensive will be the display of manufactured goods, that an annex has been provided to meet the overflow.

Manufacturers' Building—Canadian National Exhibition.

The Process of Manufacture.

In the Process of Manufacture Building is to be seen the active work involved in the production of a great variety of useful articles. The making of rugs and carpets; the manufacture of silk materials; the printing and binding of books; the making of shoes and boxes; the production of almost countless articles of daily use, from the raw material to the finished article, are illustrated. These demonstrations, completely given and intelligently explained, will afford to those who witness them some slight idea of the great value and importance which the manufacturing interests of the Dominion possess in the building-up of Canada's prosperity and greatness.

Three Masterpieces.

One entire room of the Art Building has been set aside this year for the exhibition of three original masterpieces aggregating in value $200,000. These are the property of and are exhibited through the courtesy of Sir George A. Drummond, of Montreal. They are the "Raising of Jairus' Daughter," by Gabriel Max; the "Last of the Girondists," by Carl von Pilotz, and "A Moorish Conqueror Surveying the Spoils of a Christian City," by Benjamin Constant.

New Administration Building.

Hitherto one of the most annoying inconveniences to which exhibitors have been subject has been the lack of a concise and systematic arrangement in the administration department. The offices of the various departments were located here, there and everywhere, with the result that exhibitors were compelled to go from point to point to arrange for reservations and to make other arrangements for displaying their various lines. This year a new administration building has been erected on the grounds, which should prove of great convenience to exhibitors. In one large room have been grouped together the representatives of all the buildings and all the departments. Whether one is showing a traction engine, a thoroughbred horse or a dainty piece of embroidery, entries can be made and display arranged for by application at this central office.

Cheap Railway Fares.

As usual in past years, special arrangements have been made with the transportation companies, under which the lines entering Toronto will provide cheap rates during the continuance of the Exhibition. On special days, extra low rates will be provided. These travelling arrangements are always carried out to the letter, and those contemplating a visit to the Exhibition will find everything in this respect to their satisfaction.

Judging live Stock—Canadian National Exhibition.

A QUEER FORM OF JEALOUSY.

IN an editorial recently a Toronto paper endeavored to prove that Montreal was so influential with the railroads and the Federal Government that Toronto was being side-tracked. It was claimed that either of the big Canadian railroads, C.P.R. or G.T.R., had it in their power to bring Toronto within much nearer distance of Ottawa than it is at present, but that such an improvement had been headed off by Montreal influence. Mayor Laporte of Montreal, when interviewed on the matter, laughed heartily at the statements shown him. He said that he was very glad that Montreal had so much influence with the authorities. It was, however, absurd to imagine that any class or body of men in Montreal had ever done anything to get the better of Toronto. He believed that the interests of the Canadian cities were identical. He used as an illustration the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild, of which he is president. He explained that the vice-president lived in Toronto and other officers were spread throughout different cities in Ontario. There had been no assertion to the effect that the Grocers' Guild had done anything to militate against the business prestige of Toronto. As president, he declared that he had done all that he could possibly to promote the co-operation of the wholesale grocers in Toronto. He believed that what was true in this respect was true in all other lines of business.

ASSOCIATION NEWS.

The grocers of Smith's Falls have formed a Retail Grocers' Association for their mutual benefit. The officers are as follows:

President—Wm. Hyndman.
Vice-President—L. Rice.
Secretary—J. Halpenny.
Treasurer—W. W. Williams.
Inside Guard—E. A. Gilroy.
Executive Committee—H. Layng, F. S. Harrison, W. Fitzpatrick, J. S. Cook.

The association will hold its regular meetings the last Monday night of each month.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Grocers will note a valuable seller in Blueol, which is forcibly described by J. M. Douglas & Co., Montreal, as "the housekeeper's favorite." Blueol is attracting attention everywhere on its merits. Another favorite of the public is Lea & Perrins Sauce, which this firm represents.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie are making a run on small Roquefort cheese this month. They are offering them at a remarkably low price of 27 1-2c and their announcement is worthy of consideration. They have some good news regarding canned goods.

For the pickling season S. H. Ewing & Sons have a rare variety of spices to offer the trade.

The Ozo Co., of Montreal, are making a bid for trade in a striking expression of "What makes good pickles?"

THE MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE

Tenth Annual Convention, held at Moncton, N.B., August 17, 18 and 19, 1904.

A Report of Proceedings—Yarmouth, N.S., the Next Place of Meeting.

THE tenth annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade at Moncton, N.B., on August 17, 18, and 19, 1904, was a remarkable one in many ways. This meeting marked the close of the first decade in the board's history and must have been peculiarly gratifying to those who during these years have worked so diligently to bring the business men of the Lower Provinces to a better understanding and a closer unity for the furtherance of common interests.

The meeting at Moncton this year was one of the most numerously attended in the history of the board and the matters considered and passed upon were both many and important. As might be expected the transportation problem in its many phases was the chief consideration of the board, and the practical business insight, the thorough familiarity with detail and the splendid breadth of outlook brought to bear in the discussion of such matters as the "Fast Atlantic Service," and "Steel Ship-building" at once raised the deliberations of the Board to a high plane.

The board is well called "The Maritime." The flavor of the sea permeates its very atmosphere. It is the source of their wealth of the Maritime Provinces, the foundation of their industries and they know it like a book; a slip in nautical information calls down upon the perpetrator the reprimand of some veteran of the seas, stern for the truth.

Senator Josiah Wood, of Sackville, presided at the meetings, which were held in the hall of the Y.M.C.A. building.

The Convention Opens.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the president, the Hon. Senator Wood, of Sackville, took the chair and called the meeting to order. Before proceeding with the regular routine of business the president had the pleasure of introducing to the members Mayor James T. Ryan, of Moncton.

Welcomed to Moncton.

Mayor Ryan, on behalf of the City Council welcomed the Board to the city of Moncton. He referred to his city's interest in transportation, and expressed the conviction that nothing but good could come from the discussion by such a body as the Maritime Board of Trade of the problems relating to inter-provincial trade, railway and water transportation, and other kindred subjects to come under consideration. The visit of any members of the board to Moncton was always welcomed. The hope was further expressed that at no distant date the city might again have the pleasure of welcoming the board. Mayor Ryan's address was received with applause.

WHERE THEY MET.

Moncton, the scene of this year's Maritime Board of Trade meeting, is a thriving city of 12,000 inhabitants, situated on a bend of the Petitcodiac River 20 miles up from the Bay of Fundy, and formerly known as Moncton-on-the-Bend. The city is the headquarters of the Intercolonial Railway, the road dividing here, one branch running to St. John, and the other to Halifax. It is distinctly a railway city, a large percentage of the population finding employment either on the Intercolonial itself or in the shops in connection therewith. In these shops repairs are attended to, and most of the rolling stock used on the road constructed. The other industries of the city include a foundry and machine shop, an engraving company, a woolen mill and a cotton factory.

The city is also a wholesale centre of some importance, boasting in the possession of two wholesale groceries, one wholesale hardware and one dry goods establishment. Eight or nine handsome churches attest the piety of the inhabitants, while the private residences appear comfortable and home-like. What Moncton chiefly prides itself on, however, is the "Bore." Other cities have bores, but Moncton's never stays long enough to tire one. It hurls itself up the Petitcodiac River twice every day five feet high and at the rate of 10 miles an hour. It is truly a wonderful sight and draws many tourists and sightseers during the Summer season.

Already a railroad centre, Moncton expects great things from the Grand Trunk Pacific which will probably have its terminal here, as well as from the Mackenzie and Mann line, which that enterprising firm are constructing down here. Owing to its favorable situation Moncton is bound to figure largely in the transportation question, as it concerns the Maritime Provinces and may not inaptly be termed the "Railroad City of the East."

The Roll Call.

The roll was called by the secretary, Charles M. Creed, and a very fair representation found to be present, some delegates from distant points arriving during the day. The list of representatives from the local boards was as follows:

Committee on Orders.

On motion of M. G. DeWolfe the minutes of the last meeting being in the hands of the members in pamphlet form were taken as read and the board proceeded to the appointment of a committee to determine the order in which the various subjects proposed by the local boards might be discussed. The committee was selected as follows: W.

S. Loggie, F. W. Summer, Chas. Stewart, W. M. Jarvis, Capt. Jos. Read, F G. Boyer, H. W. Turner, A. E. Atlee, J. A. Laws, H. A. Rice, C. Jameson, J. E. DeWolfe, Wm. Yould, Capt. C. O. Allen, A. J. Craig, R. W. Starr, C. H. Armstrong, A. W. Cruise.

The committee retired immediately, and the veteran secretary of the board, C. N. Creed, of Halifax, submitted his report, which was as follows:

Secretary-Treasurer's Report.

To the President and Members of the Maritime Board of Trade :

Gentlemen, — Your secretary-treasurer begs to herewith hand you his report for the current year. All the various resolutions and recommendations passed at the last annual meeting were forwarded as directed, and copies of important resolutions which required the attention of the Federal and Local Governments were forwarded to the Ministers of the various departments. Copies of the proceedings of the annual meeting as contained in The Canadian Grocer, of Montreal and Toronto, were forwarded to every board of trade in the Maritime Provinces, as also to the delegates who attended the meeting. At the opening of the Federal Parliament copies of the resolutions were again forwarded to the Minister and the members of Parliament from the Maritime Provinces interested.

The correspondence connected with the same, as also the correspondence with the various boards, being too voluminous to read, are now on the table for the inspection of members.

CORRESPONDENCE WITH BOARDS.

This has been steadily kept up, and I have much pleasure in being able to report that the majority of the secretaries have promptly responded to my notices, and the subjects for discussion at the annual meeting have this year been forwarded to the various boards in advance. This is most desirable, as it gives the delegates something to think about, and enables them to come to the meeting prepared to join in the debates on the subjects suggested.

ANNUAL REPORT.

As instructed at the annual meeting, I prepared and published a report with the date on which the board was organized, the officers and council for the year, a list of the past presidents, and the places at which the annual meeting had been held each year, and a list of the affiliated and the unaffiliated boards and the by-laws, copies of which were forwarded to all boards of trades in the Maritime Provinces, and circulated generally as occasion presented.

NEW BOARDS.

During the year three boards have been formed in Nova Scotia, viz.: Antigonishe, Chester and Mahone Bay. Antigonishe and Chester have affiliated, and so soon as Mahone Bay gets in working order, I hope to have it affiliated also. The affiliated boards now number 35, the unaffiliated boards now number 12; total, 47.

UNAFFILIATED BOARDS.

The unaffiliated boards have had every attention paid them. I have written them frequently and sent them notices of the date of the annual meeting, and asked them if they were not ready to affiliate to send delegates. They seem to be taking more interest in their own boards, and many boards that have been inactive I feel during the coming year will be working with renewed vigor.

I have used my best energies during the past year for the advancement of the board, at the same time doing all in my power to assist your worthy president, in which effort I had the advice and able assistance of Mr. M. G. DeWolfe, of Kentville, and the corresponding secretary, Mr. Chas. D. Stewart, and am pleased to report the result of the year's work has been most encouraging.

ACCOUNTS FOR THE YEAR.

The accounts for the year are all prepared, but as several boards will pay their per capita before the close of this day's meeting, they will be presented tomorrow for your approval. All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Sgd.) CHARLES M. CREED,
Permanent Secretary-Treasurer.

M. G. DeWolfe, in moving the adoption of the report of the secretary, together with the thanks of the board, said he had been in touch with the secretary throughout the year and it was difficult to appreciate the amount of work that had been carried through by Mr. Creed. He had been particularly energetic in stirring up the local boards, and keeping up the interest in the larger body. It was a difficult matter at times to get the local secretaries to answer communications from the larger board, but he had much pleasure in knowing that much improvement was to be noted in this direction.

W. M. Jarvis had much pleasure in seconding the motion proposed by Mr. DeWolfe. He quite coincided in what the latter had said in regard to the secretary and he was glad to find that Mr. DeWolfe had lost none of his old-time eloquence.

The president, in putting the motion, which was carried unanimously, remarked on the energetic and faithful manner in which the secretary had discharged his duties.

Mr. Creed expressed his appreciation of the kindly feelings of the board and protested he had done nothing more than his duty. He had been secretary of the Halifax board for 43 years and was now superannuated, but not laid on the shelf. He again thanked them for kindness shown and expressed the hope of living to meet them another year.

Communications.

A letter was read from the secretary of the Moncton Y.M.C.A. in whose hall the board met, extending to the members the privileges of the association during their stay in the city. The secretary was instructed to convey the appreciation of the board to the Y.M.C.A. for their courtesy.

Letters of regret at not being able to be present were also read from H. W. Kitts on, president of the Hamilton Board of Trade; Geo. A. Drummond, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association; the president of Ottawa Board of Trade; W. L. Edmonds, Managing Editor the MacLean Trade Newspapers; P. Gifkins, general manager Dominion Atlantic Railway; C. W. Y. Coding, president Portland Board of Trade; and the president of the Montreal Board of Trade.

The president's address was the next order of business, but in the absence of the gentlemen on the committee on orders it was decided to await their return before receiving the address. Discussion naturally turned on the inconvenience of having this committee meet at so late a time and in their absence from the deliberations of the board. Various plans were proposed to obviate the difficulty and on motion of G. D. Smith and A. M. Bell a committee of two was appointed to draft an amendment to the constitution providing that the council of the board should meet an hour or so before the opening of the session and decide on the order of business. This was considered to be in accord with a notice of motion made at Sidney by Geo. F. Falkiner. The president appointed the mover and seconder to constitute the committee.

The Bore, Moncton, N. B.

The committee on orders having now returned, President Wood proceeded with his address.

The President's Address.

Gentlemen of the Maritime Board of Trade:

I was not present at the meeting in Charlottetown last year, and embrace this, the first opportunity I have had of thanking you for the honor conferred upon me in electing me to the presidency of this association.

I feel that I should, at the opening of our proceedings, express our appreciation of the courtesy and kindness of the Moncton Board of Trade, and on behalf of the association thank them for the invitation extended us to hold our annual meeting in this city. It is especially gratifying to myself that I was chosen to preside over this meeting. I have watched the growth and progress of Moncton, from a country village to a city, with a great deal of interest and satisfaction. I have been to some extent identified with its interests; some of my most intimate business associates and friends have been among the active and progressive business men of this city, and it affords me pleasure to testify to their energy, enterprise and business capacity, evidences of which are to be seen everywhere around us.

Moncton ranks today among the most progressive cities in the Maritime Provinces. It owes much to its geographical position. Its situation on the bend of the Petitcodiac River fixes it as a railway centre and an excellent point for the distribution of merchandise. These advantages have attracted to it a large share of the trade of an extensive district. It is surrounded on almost every side by extensive areas of fertile farming country, and is the natural market for the products of the farmers. It has advantages for manufacturing in some respects exceptional. Its proximity to the coal mines, and facilities for transportation by water as well as by rail, ensure cheap fuel. A large portion of the people have a fondness and a special aptitude for industrial pursuits, and a plentiful supply of skilled mechanics and cheap labor is never lacking. Its manufacturing interests are among the most healthy and prosperous in the Dominion.

I am glad there are so large a number of delegates present from so many different parts of these provinces, and that they will have the opportunity of seeing for themselves the advantage it offers for business, by visiting its different industries and meeting the business men of the city, and I am confident they will be favorably impressed.

I am glad to note that the programme prepared by the Moncton Board of Trade includes a visit to the oil wells of the New Brunswick Petroleum Co. This is a new enterprise in which several of the enterprising men of this town and neighborhood have embarked, and in which the representative of this county in the Dominion Parliament has taken a special interest. It is very gratifying to be able to state that their operations so far have been attended with success, and that there is prospect of this becoming a large and lucrative industry.

TRADE OF THE DOMINION.

Before entering upon the discussion of the various questions submitted for the consideration of this meeting, it will not be deemed inappropriate for me to offer some general observations upon the trade of the Dominion.

The official returns show that the total imports for the Dominion of Canada continue to increase, and will for the year ending June 30, 1904, amount to upwards of $250,000,000, the highest figure reached in the history of the country. The imports will be $8,500,000 in excess of the preceding year, and more than double the imports of ten years ago. The exports for the year ending June 30, 1904, do not make so favorable a showing. For the first time in many years, (except 1899), they show a slight decrease. The domestic exports for the past year will be $16,000,000 less than for 1903. They will be about the same as for 1902, and larger than for any of the years preceding. The decrease is largest in the exports of animals and agricultural products, in this item alone amounting to nearly $12,000,000. There is also a decrease in the lumber exports of about $2,000,000, and a small decrease of about $1,000,000 in the products of the fisheries.

Taking the trade of the Maritime Provinces apart from the rest of the Dominion, the imports for the year ending June 30, 1904, amounted to $22,785,000, an increase over 1903 of $780,000. This increase is proportionate with the general increase throughout the Dominion, the increase in both cases being about 3½ per cent. Our domestic exports for the last year amount to $35,400,000. This is a decrease of about $1,000,000 compared with the exports of the preceding year. The decrease is relatively not so large as for the rest of the Dominion. For the whole Dominion the decrease in our export trade was 7½ per cent., while the decrease for the Maritime Provinces was only 2¾ per cent.

It will be seen from these figures that the Maritime Provinces have shared in the remarkable increase of trade which has developed throughout the Dominion within the last few years. Our imports, which for several years fluctuated between $13,000,000 and $15,000,000, have within the last five years rapidly risen until they reach this year the total all ready mentioned of $22,785,000, the largest in our history and an increase over the imports of five years ago of about 50 per cent. Our domestic exports, which were a little over $18,000,000 in 1894, have gradually increased to upwards of $35,000,000 in 1904, an increase in the ten years of nearly 100 per cent., viz.: 94 per cent.

It is not prudent for me to attempt a forecast for the coming year. I note, however, that the shipments of wheat from Montreal, since navigation opened this season, are less than half the shipments for the same period last year. The decline in lumber, the low prices now prevailing and the difficulty of finding buyers even at the low prices, will no doubt curtail lumber shipments during the present season. It does not seem probable under present circumstances that our general trade will show better results than it has during the year just closed.

In some respects the trade of the last year has been highly satisfactory, especially so far as Maritime Province interests are concerned. The Winter export trade shows a decided increase. There were 92 steamers loaded at St. John last Winter, and the cargoes they carried away amounted to $15,745,501, the largest figure reached since this business began. It was an increase over the previous year's business of $1,907,590, and almost double that of two years ago.

There has also been a very satisfactory growth in our trade with the British West India Islands and British Guiana. The volume of export trade has been maintained. For the year ending June 30, 1904, it is about equal to that of the year ending June 30, 1903, both years showing an export trade of little upward of $2,630,000. In the import trade there has been a very gratifying increase. The total imports for the year ending June 30, 1903, were $2,415,608, and for the year ending June 30, 1904, $4,491,566, an increase of upwards of $2,000,000. This increase is largely accounted for by the increased importations of sugar from the British West India Islands and British Guiana, a large quantity of sugar having been purchased in these markets which we had hitherto imported from Germany. The official returns show that for the year ending June 30, 1903, we imported from Germany 189,000,000 lbs. of sugar. For the eleven months ending May 31 last, our imports from Germany only amounted to 30,000,000 lbs. From the West Indies our imports for the year ending June 30, 1903, amounted to 94,000,000 lbs., and for eleven months ending May 31, 1904, they amounted to 242,000,000 lbs. This decrease last year in the imports of sugar from Germany of upwards of 150,000,000 lbs. is made up by the increase in the imports from the West Indies and British Guiana, which fully equal that quantity.

It will be remembered that the provisions of our preferential tariff of 33 1-3 per cent. extend to imports from the British West Indies, and also that since April 16, 1903, imports from Germany have been subject to a surtax or duty of 33 1-3 per cent. in addition to the duty imposed upon imports from other countries. The effect of this tariff legislation has enabled us to purchase this year upwards of 150,000,000 lbs. of sugar in the British West Indies, which we formerly bought in Germany, and furnishes a practical illustration of the influence which preferential duties can exert in directing the course of trade.

PREFERENTIAL TRADE WITHIN THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

The question of preferential trade within the British Empire is of great interest and importance at the present time, and it is well to note the trend of public opinion in regard to it. It has received more attention from our press and our public men than any other question during the past year. In Canada there is practically a consensus of opinion on this question. The public press and the leaders of both political parties admit its advantages. Resolutions favoring it have been passed by the principal boards of trade throughout the Dominion. It was the subject which occupied the most time and was most warmly debated at the Congress of Chambers of Commerce which met in Montreal in August last. At that meeting where upwards of 350 delegates were present from every portion of the British Empire representing all its important interests, after a discussion of the subject, a resolution was unanimously adopted: "That in the opinion of this congress the bonds of the British Empire would be materially strengthened and a union of the various parts of His Majesty's Dominion greatly consolidated, by the adoption of a commercial policy based upon the principal of mutual benefit, whereby each component part of the Empire would receive a substantial advantage in trade as a result of its national relationship, due consideration being given to the fiscal and industrial needs of the component parts of the Empire."

In New Zealand legislation has already been enacted giving Great Britain considerable preference and in the Australian Commonwealth. The leaders of both political parties have expressed their readiness to adopt this policy in common with other sections of the British Empire.

The campaign inaugurated by the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain in September, 1903, in Great Britain, in favor of preferential trade within the British Empire, has been prosecuted since with great vigor and with a fair measure of success. Public meetings have been held which have been largely attended by all classes, indicating the intense interest which the general public feel in the question. In the British Parliament the resignation of Mr. Chamberlain and other members of the Government rendered a reconstruction of the cabinet necessary, but the reconstructed Government declare themselves that they are in sympathy with this general policy, although they are not committed to its details, and do not consider the time has yet arrived for its adoption. Several important resolutions have been moved in the British House of Commons during the present session which have presented the question in different phases, and which have fairly tested the opinion of the House. A resolution which raised the issue directly between the advocates of free trade and free food, and the advocates of preferential duties protective in their character, was introduced by Mr. Morley, and was the most important resolution bearing upon this question brought before Parliament. It was an amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne, and read as follows: "That the removal of protective duties has for more than half a century actively conduced to the vast extension of the trade and commerce of the realm, and to the welfare of its population; and the House believes that while the needs of social improvement are still manifold and urgent any return to protective duties, more particularly when imposed on the food of the people, would be deeply injurious to our national strength, contentment and wellbeing."

No person who believed in adhering to the present free trade policy of Great Britain, or who was opposed to placing any duty upon food, could consistently vote against that motion. Yet when the vote was taken the resolution was rejected by a majority of 51, 327 voting against and 276 in favor of the motion. It is worthy of note in this connection that 69 Irish members voted with the minority and against the Government, and Mr. Redmond, the leader of the Irish party affirmed that they did so in pursuance of their general policy of endeavoring to break down the Government in the interest of Home Rule, and that they were not voting upon the merits of the fiscal policy involved.

On the first of August last a resolution was moved by Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman, leader of the Opposition, condemning certain members of the Government for joining an association which was in sympathy with and organized for the purpose of advancing tariff reform. This motion was rejected by a vote of 288 to 210, giving the Government a majority of 78.

The action of the House on these resolutions furnishes a fair test of the attitude of the British House of Commons upon this question, and it is not unfair to assume that the British House of Commons fairly reflects the public opinion of the people of Great Britain whom they represent.

In the discussion upon the resolution moved by Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman, Mr. Balfour expressed his adherence to the views he had formerly expressed. He expressed his sympathy with the general policy, even though it involved duties on food, but he thought the country was not yet ready for its adoption. The Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, on the other hand, in the course of the debate, expressed his belief that the time had come for the submission of the question to the people at the polls, that he would welcome an immediate test of public opinion, and felt confident the verdict would be favorable to his policy.

I feel that the action of Canada and New Zealand in granting Great Britain a preference in their markets, the declaration of the political leaders in Australia, the tone of the press throughout the Empire, and the discussions and votes in the British Parliament show that the sentiment in favor of this policy is gaining strength and justifies the conclusion that the time is not far distant when closer trade relations will be established between Great Britain and the other portions of the Empire, and we do not doubt that as the result the trade of Canada with Great Britain will be largely developed and increased to our mutual advantage.

TRANSPORTATION.

Another subject which is of the greatest importance to Canada is transportation. Since our last meeting, legislation has been passed to secure the construction of a second transcontinental railway. The object of the Government in passing this legislation is to promote interprovincial trade and give the west, and central portions of the Dominion more rapid and cheaper communication with Atlantic and Pacific seaports. The City of Moncton, in which we are now meeting, has been selected as the eastern terminus of this railway. The hope is entertained by many in the Maritime Provinces that when this railway is constructed, it will be the means of bringing a larger share of the western trade to our seaports. Whatever benefit may ultimately come to us in this way, it is apparent that many years must elapse before the railway can be finished and open for traffic and the benefits hoped for realized. In the immediate future we must base our hopes for the growth and development of this trade upon such facilities as the present systems of transportation may afford us.

The experience of the last few years has proved the value of our canals and inland waterways as means of economic transportation. There have been great improvements in the vessels used upon the Great Lakes in recent years, and great reductions have been made in the rates charged for heavy freight. During the last season, grain was carried from Lake Superior ports to Quebec for 3c per bushel, and the latest quotation I have seen for the present season is lower still, 2¾c per bushel from Chicago to Montreal. It is impossible to believe that any railway, even under the most favorable conditions, can compete against these rates for this traffic. The best authorities now place the cost of carrying heavy freight by rail at from six to ten times the cost of carrying it by water. This large difference in the freight rates in favor of the water routes has in the past, and is at the present time, giving them the principal share of the heavy freight traffic between the east and west, and while the cost of transportation remains so largely in their favor they must continue to practically monopolize the business. It is true that the water routes are only open during half the year, but experience proves that shippers prefer to hold the principal portion of their goods until navigation opens in the Spring rather than pay the high freight rates charged during the Winter season.

EXPORT TRADE OF CANADA.

These facts have an important bearing upon the export trade of the St. Lawrence and upon the Winter export trade of the Maritime Provinces as well. Wheat, which is the principal export of the west, will find its way to the seaboard during the Summer months, and must either go forward by the St. Lawrence route to its destination in Europe or be stored at convenient points for shipment as the market prices warrant during the Winter season. Grain from our Northwest Territories and from the States around and west of Lake Michigan, can to-day be carried from Chicago or Fort William by water to Montreal and Quebec, at a less cost that it can be carried to any other ocean port, and it can under present conditions be stored at Montreal, shipped thence to St. John or Halifax during the Winter season, and delivered free on board there at less cost than in any other way, and at approximately the same cost as it can be delivered free on board by any route at New York, Portland, or any other Atlantic seaport. With greater storage accommodation at Montreal and other convenient points, it is to be hoped that our Winter export trade from the Maritime Provinces will continue in the immediate future to show as gratifying an increase as it has in the last few years.

The construction of the Georgian Bay Canal would give this route a still greater advantage. It is estimated that by this direct all-water route, freights from Lake Superior ports to Montreal or Quebec could be reduced to 1½c per bushel, about the same rate now paid to Buffalo. The State of New York has voted $100,000,000 for the enlargement of the Erie Canal. If that scheme is carried through, the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal will be a necessity in order to enable us to retain the western trade by the St. Lawrence route. I was glad to note that in response to a deputation which waited upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier a few weeks ago, he expressed the opinion that although the time was not opportune for entering upon the work at present, the Georgian Bay Canal must eventually be built.

FAST ATLANTIC STEAMSHIP SERVICE.

Closely connected with the question of transportation is the question of a fast Atlantic steamship service. This has been often discussed, and its main features are well known. It is on the list of subjects for discussion at this meeting, and it is not necessary for me to discuss it now. I may, however, remark that under the present contract for this service some improvement may be looked for, but it still is far short of what we have hoped for, and what must be required before we can compete with rival routes and attract to our Canadian route any considerable portion of the travel which now goes to New York. The present contract is with the Allans. It provides for two new steamers on the turbine principle. They are about 10,000 tons register tonnage, have a speed of 17 knots, are expected to make the trip in Summer from Moville to Rimouski in six days, and in Winter to Halifax in six and a half to seven days. These steamers, with the Tunisian and the Bavarian, are to perform the service. The latter are about 10,000 register, have a speed of 14 to 15 knots, and make the trip in Summer from Moville to Rimouski in six and a half to seven days, and in Winter in seven to eight days. The subsidies paid under the present contract are £2,000 sterling per round trip for the new steamers, and £1,000 sterling per round trip for the Bavarian and Tunisian. This is an increase of about $85,000 on the subsidy formerly paid, which last year amounted to $170,000. The prospect for a 20 knot service in the near future is not very bright. Sir Richard Cartwright stated in Parliament in July last that the efforts of the Government to obtain a 20 knot service had not been successful. Two tenders only were received. One asking for a subsidy of $1,000,000, the other for $1,250,000, and conditions were attached with which it was not in the power of the Government to comply.

UNION OF MARITIME PROVINCES.

There are a number of other questions to which reference might be made if time permitted. Some of these will come up for discussion later on. The question of the union of the Maritime Provinces was brought up at our sitting last year towards the close of the session.

Its discussion was deferred until this meeting. It is not a new question. It will be generally admitted that a legislative union of the Maritime Provinces is desirable both in the interest of economical Government and in order to enable those provinces to retain in the future their legitimate influence in the councils of the country. It is in the adjustment of details that differences of opinion naturally arise.

THE ADMISSION OF NEWFOUNDLAND INTO THE CANADIAN CONFEDERRATION, is an equally important question. The desirability of consolidating under one government British interests in the northern portion of the American continent will not be questioned. During the past year the French shore question has been settled. In return for some concessions by Great Britain in connection with disputed territory in Africa, the French have relinquished their treaty rights on the Newfoundland coast. This terminates a condition of things which was a hardship and constant source of irritation to the people and detrimental to the progress of the colony, and one of the barriers to its union with our Dominion. Experience shows, however, that the ultimate accomplishment of such desirable objects as the legislative union of the Maritime Provinces and the union of Newfoundland with our Dominion is attended with difficulties which will require patience and statesmanship to overcome. If any action of this board can hasten their consummation, it will do Canada a useful service.

RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR.

I will bring my remarks to a close by a very brief reference to the most notable event of the year, the war between Russia and Japan. This has proved to be one of the greatest conflicts of modern times. It has already been the cause of an enormous sacrifice of life and destruction of property. It has not yet affected Canadian interests to any appreciable extent, nor has it had any very marked effect upon the commerce of Great Britain or other nations of the world. Its result must, however, have an important influence upon the future development of trade and commerce in the distant east, and its progress is being closely watched by the statesmen and leading men in commercial life in Europe and America. Fortunately, nothing has up to the present time occurred to involve any other nation in the strife, and it is to be hoped that it may be terminated, and that peace may be established on a satisfactory and permanent basis at an early date.

JOSIAH WOOD, President.

W. M. Jarvis was sure there was but one feeling in the meeting, namely that they were deeply indebted to the president for his address and for the able way in which he had dealt with the subjects to be brought before the board. He thought the address should be referred to a committee to deal with and he therefore moved "that the thanks of the board be given the president for his valuable address, and that it be referred to a committee to report as the first matter for consideration at the evening session.

The motion was seconded by J. E. DeWolfe and the committee was made to consist of the mover, seconder and M. G. DeWolfe, of Kentville.

For the benefit of the reporters M. G. DeWolfe requested that each speaker on rising should give his name and board. Mr. DeWolfe also drew the attention of the board to the fact that The Canadian Grocer had again sent one of their editors to report in full the proceedings of the board. This, he said, showed in what respect the board was held and the interest taken by The Canadian Grocer in the affairs of the Maritime Provinces.

The report of the committee on orders was now received, the order of subjects

Chas. M. Creed, Halifax, N.S., Permanent Secretary Maritime Board of Trade, 1904-05.

The Dumping Clause.

A. M. Bell, on behalf of the Halifax board began the discussion on the dumping clause of the new tariff by moving the following resolution, which was seconded by J. E. DeWolfe.

"That in the opinion of this meeting the recent tariff legislation known as the 'dumping clause' is in its present form detrimental to the interests of trade and should not be put in operation till fuller information is secured and details for carrying it into effect perfected."

Speaking to his motion Mr. Bell briefly outlined the provisions of the "dumping" clause, instancing cases to show its working. He complained that the details had not been worked out before the clause was put in operation, as a result of which business men were not in a position to know what to expect, each custom officer placing a different interpretation on the clause. Things were thus in a chaotic state and the matter of trade discounts was instanced as a case in point. It was essential that the word dumping be defined, and where men were engaged in legitimate trade they should be protected from annoyance, imposition and uncertainty. He had addressed Mr. Fielding on the matter and the reply was that we must rely on the intelligent administration of the law by the officals. This, said Mr. Bell, was the last thing in the world to expect from the gentlemen of the customs, who, appointed for political reasons, were not familiar with the ways of trade.

Senator McSweeney thought the little difficulties would soon work themselves out.

J. E. DeWolfe, in seconding Mr. Bell's motion, urged that there were radical differences of interpretation among customs officials. Distinct instructions should be given so that such diversity would be impossible.

W. S. Loggie thought there was no more friction than is usual in such cases. He did not think there was any change in the way of treating trade discounts.

C. H. Armstrong, Yarmouth, N.S., Corresponding Secretary Maritime Board of Trade, 1904 05.

If they were genuine and not special they would be allowed.

J. A. Laws favored the dumping clause and showed in the case of carriages how it operated to protect Canadian manufacturers from unfair competition.

John D. MacDonald, of Pictou, remarked that the manufacturer viewed the clause one way and the importer another. It was designed to protect the manufacturer and seemed to be doing it. To say it should not be put in force because of a flaw here and there was not the thing. They should impress upon the Government rather the importance of making their instructions more clear and definite.

J. E. DeWolfe explained that he was strongly in favor of the clause but that the system of enforcing it was erroneous.

Capt. Jos. Read was of the opinion that the way to perfect the clause was to put it in operation. Set a piece of machinery in motion and you would soon find the hot places.

Jas. E. Birch declared he was in favor of the clause, if intelligently enforced; but this was not the case now.

C. Jameson disagreed with the last speaker. New laws always brought differences of opinion. Lawyers differed. These matters could only be settled by rulings made by the department as cases came up.

J. B. Oakes recognized that the importer labored under a hardship but thought the motion should take the form of a request for adequate information and instruction as soon as possible on the dumping clause.

T. S. Campbell moved in amendment, seconded by John D. MacDonald:

"That in the opinion of this meeting the recent tariff legislation known as the dumping clause, as at present administered, is in some respects detrimental to the interests of trade and the customs department is hereby requested to immediately make such necessary changes in the administration of the law as will remove all unnecessary restrictions to trade."

Mr. Bell complained that the amendment did not cover the point at issue. The department were making what haste they could now, but in the meantime the importer might be mulcted owing to a difference of opinion among customs officers.

The discussion was continued by J. Hunter White, E. N. Carthy, J. E. Lefurgey, J. T. Hawke, C. D. Stewart, C. H. Armstrong, T. R. Anderson, Capt. Jos. Read and Wm. Yould.

On being put to a vote the amendment carried and was made unanimous on motion of the mover and seconder of the original motion, Mr. Bell remarking that he favored the amendment except that it was not strong enough. They had put too much water in the whisky.

The board now rose for noon.

The Afternoon Session.

Between half past two and three o'clock the board re-assembled, and additional members having arrived the business of the day was taken up with renewed zest. The first subject on the list ready for discussion was

St. John, Digby, Daily Line.

The matter was brought before the board by C. Jameson, of Digby, who on introducing the subject, referred to the number of times it had previously been presented to the board. He urged the members to remember their motto "Unite and Work." They now had a service of 224 trips during the year and for a pro rata increase could have it increased to 313 trips, giving a daily service with the exception of Sundays. The increase in traffic made the service very necessary. He therefore moved that: "Whereas, the increased requirements of commerce in the southwestern section of Nova Scotia coupled with those of the Annapolis Valley demand greater transportation facilities and in particular a daily mail passenger and freight service between St. John and Digby, N.S., which it is understood the D. A. R. Co. will operate for a pro rata increase in the subsidy now paid.

"Resolved: that the Maritime Board of Trade urge the Federal Government to provide daily steamboat communication between St. John and Digby by granting such pro rata increase in such subsidy; further resolved, that as the four previous requests of this board for an improved bay service have been overlooked by the Government, the present be submitted with the respectful request that it be dealt with immediately."

J. E. DeWolfe declared that to the best of his recollection this project had never been endorsed on account of the excessive subsidy demanded by the railway.

C. H. Armstrong, of Digby, in seconding the resolution, stated that the business men of Yarmouth were entirely in accord with the resolution. Accommodation was required for the increased traffic. The amount of the subsidy was a matter of detail.

M. G. DeWolfe outlined the history of the movement for a daily line. It had been started in Middleton, and Digby and Yarmouth were to blame in not having this improved service before. Improved facilities were required by the increase of freight, passengers and mail.

W. M. Jarvis for St. John was most anxious to develop their relations with all parts of the provinces. There was no opposition to the project from Halifax. St. John and Halifax always treated each other fairly. There were difficulties in the way. It had not been found easy to deal with the D.A.R. Co. If you gave them an inch they wanted a mile. But the present state of affairs was awkward in Winter. They should do all they could but not press the matter so that the Government would be at the mercy of the D.A.R. Co.

J. E. DeWolfe concurred in that there was no opposition from Halifax. The D.A.R. had been demanding an excessive amount. He thought pro rata reasonable and would support the resolution.

W. S. Fisher of St. John, though pro rata hardly sufficient.

The resolution was adopted.

Forest Fires.

"Whereas, at the last session of the Nova Scotia Legislature, in the Act for the protection of woods against fires, provision was made whereby the Governor-in-Council might appoint chief forest rangers whose duty it was to enforce the provisions of said Legislature, and

M. G. DeWolfe, Kentville, N.S., Auditor Maritime Board of Trade. 1904-05.

"Whereas, the Act has been made ineffective in many counties owing to the fact that the municipality having to make provisions for the salary of said official has declined to make any recommendation to the Government for the appointment of such an official or has openly opposed such an appointment, and

"Whereas, in the opinion of this board the subject is of sufficient importance to justify the Government in making said appointment in every municipality, and whereas, in the opinion of this board it would be advisable to replant the burnt districts for the beneficial effect such replanting would have in increasing the welfare of the people.

"Therefore, resolved: That the Government of Nova Scotia be asked to forthwith make said appointments in the municipalities where none have already been appointed, and

"Further resolved, that the Government of Nova Scotia be asked to take into consideration the advisability of replanting such portions of the burned districts as may be found practicable."

The above resolution was introduced by A. E. Atlee, of Annapolis. His section, he said, was much interested in the manufacture of lumber and had suffered much from fires. The question affected not only the lumber districts but all parts, even the fruit and fish men depending for their packages on the lumber industry. The increase in fires would be a disaster to all. They had a good law but no machinery to enforce it. He asked the support of the board in favor of this resolution.

J. B. Oakes, of Wolfville, seconding the motion, emphasized the need not only of protection against fires but of re-foresting. No subject brought before the board was of greater importance, and he instanced the evil effects that had come to some parts of Europe through poor treatment of their forests similar to what was going on here. New Brunswick was even more vitally interested than Nova Scotia. Already he had seen great tracts reduced to barrenness on account of forest fires. The climatic effect of forests was most important. Streams, temperature, floods, droughts and late Springs were all related to the depletion of the forests.

The most effective way of preserving the forests was the diffusion of knowledge. Re-planting would pay and pay handsomely, as it was doing in Germany.

W. M. Jarvis, of St. John, seconded by W. S. Loggie, of Chatham, moved a rider that "The Government of New Brunswick be also requested to take into immediate consideration the extension of the Nova Scotia forestry system as well as the provision recently enacted for the County of Westmoreland, over the whole of the Province of New Brunswick.

C. D. Smith, of Chatham, informed the Board that New Brunswick already had a stringent law against fires, and had special guardians of the forests in their fishery guardians, who filled this double office.

Prof. Andrews, of Sackville, expressed his pleasure at finding this subject brought before so many business men. In Ontario they had a law so effective that even the Indians would put out their fires before breaking camp, and the result had been eminently satisfactory. He explained the Westmoreland fire law and said that already a new realization of responsibility was prevalent. In his university they had a course of lectures so that their students might go out imbued with an appreciation of the value of the forests. The city of Paden in Germany paid part of their taxes with the profit from their timber lot.

B. H. Dodge, of Kentville, N.S., objected that in his county the owners of the forests had got them very cheap, and it was not right that the people should pay to protect these private rights. The owners should at least pay the greater part of the expense.

The resolution with rider was adopted.

Minas Basin Steamboat Service.

J. B. Oakes, of Wolfville, moved, seconded by J. E. DeWolfe, of Halifax, that,

"Whereas subsidies have been provided for carrying into effect a more effective steamer service between Parrsboro, Kingsport and Wolfville, and whereas Wolfville has not yet been included in this service in consequence of the damage last Spring to the new wharf near the mouth of Mud Creek,"

"Therefor resolved that this Board express its appreciation of the building of the wharf and the granting of subsidies to render the service possible, as also of the recent vote of $6,000 for the reconstruction of said wharf.

"Further resolved that this Board urge upon the Department of Public Works the necessity of an early reconstruction of this pier, and recommend, if found practicable that Mud Creek be deepened by a Government dredge, in order to render transportation to and through the port of Wolfville less difficult, thereby increasing the volume of trade between the several cities and towns interested in this service."

Mr. Oakes urged that this was not a mere local matter but would redound to the good of trade in all the central part of the provinces.

Mr. DeWolfe believed that as the pier was there it should be made as serviceable as possible without delay.

The board concurred.

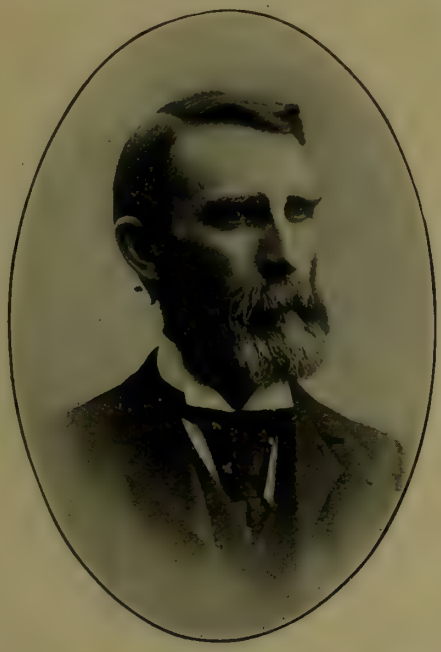
Coasting Laws.

Mr. Louis, of Louisville, complained of the ill condition of our shipping due to the coasting laws under which we live and asked for a committee to draft a resolution on the matter.

The request was granted and a committee appointed as follows: Capt. Louis, Capt. Allen, Capt. Read.

The Tormentine Route.

A lively discussion developed from the motion brought in by Capt. Anderson, of Sackville, declaring that in the opinion of the convention the most feasible route for Winter communication between



Hon. Senator Wood, Sackville, N.B., Retiring President Maritime Board of Trade.

Prince Edward Island and the mainland would be between a point on the southern coast of said island at or near Carleton Head and Cape Tormentine at the extreme easterly point of New Brunswick, and asking that the Dominion Government be memorialized to provide a pier and safe terminal facilities at said Carleton Head on Prince Edward Island, and as soon as possible have a steamer put on the said proposed Cape Tormentine and Carleton Head route.

Capt. Jos. Read seconded the resolution and explained how the action of the tides kept the ice open at this point part of nearly every day throughout the Winter. He made a strong plea for this resolution, showing the disadvantage the people labored under without this service.

Fred D. Bovyer, of Georgetown, spoke strongly against the resolution.

John E. Birch, Alberton, asked for a fair trial of the Tormentine route. Till late Fall and up till February there would be very little difficulty.

Geo. E. Hughes, Charlottetown, did not think the board were in a position to dictate to the Dominion Government how they were to carry out their contract with the island. He contended the scheme proposed had been tried and failed. It was not suitable for freight. He disputed Capt. Read's assertion that the people of the island thought the Tormentine route the best.

N. Rattenbury had no prejudice against the Tormentine route, but the freight rates were against the route.

Wm. Yould, Kentville, asked if the delegates from the island were not agreed on the route how could the board be expected to instruct the Government?

The Hon. Wm. Ross, Halifax, believed the matter could safely be left to the representatives of the island in the Dominion parliament. No part of Canada was better looked after than Prince Edward Island, and last year the mail and freight service had been a wonderful success.

The Hon. Senator McSweeney urged the necessity of uniting before results could be expected.

M. G. DeWolfe advised that the resolution be withdrawn.

A. B. Copp claimed great advantages for the Tormentine route.

Mr. Hughes protested that there was no jealousy of Summerside on the part of Charlottetown, but the facilities and rates by this route were not inviting.

Capt. Read retorted that there was no more jealousy between Charlottetown than there was between St. John and Halifax. (Laughter.)

Geo. A. Fawcett gave his experience in shipment of cattle to and from the island. From this he favored the Tormentine route.

John D. MacDonald, of Pictou, moved in amendment that from the information before them at present the board should not make any further recommendations to the Government.

The amendment was carried.

The Preferential Tariff.

St. John's preferential tariff resolution was moved by W. S. Fisher, who was very brief, as he wished the board to hear H. J. Logan, M.P., of Amherst, who had given the matter his especial attention.

The resolution, seconded by G. S. Campbell, of Halifax, read as follows:

"Whereas, under our present tariff the preference of 33 1-3 per cent. on British goods applies to merchandise imported via foreign ports as well as to goods coming direct through Canadian ports, and in consequence of this a very large proportion of goods destined for Canada under this law is received through foreign ports to the detriment and loss of Canadian commerce.

"Resolved, that the Government of Canada be asked to apply the rebate only to goods coming direct to Canadian ports so that our ports and transportation companies may be built up by the business of our country."

Mr. Logan believed the resolution should commend itself to the men of the Maritime Provinces, confining as it did the effect of the preferential tariff to goods coming through Canadian ports. Last year we imported $15,000,000 in British goods through Boston that should have come through St. John or Halifax. Shipping companies complain of the difficulty in getting return cargoes. Such a provision would meet the situation. The United States could not object as we would be but following their example in their coasting laws, which were shutting out Costa Rica and the Philippines from the commerce of the world. We should be Canadians first, last and all the time and be loyal to the interests of our country.

J. E. DeWolfe expressed the feeling that the board lay under an obligation to Mr. Logan for his fine address. He hoped the resolution would have the unanimous support of the board.

The Hon. Senator McSweeney contended that imports came through the United States because of cheaper freights. The proposal would hamper trade.

Capt. Reid, speaking as an old sailor, former ship-broker and now a shipper, believed the freight question would be solved by this proposal. Freights were high because loads could be got only one way. He believed we could divert this trade to our ports just as New York had diverted trade from Baltimore.

The resolution carried.

The Evening Session.

On resuming in the evening D. G. Smith, on behalf of the committee appointed at the morning session to draft an amendment to the constitution covering the fixing of the order of business, moved the following resolution:

"That by-law three be amended as follows: Subjects for consideration at the annual meetings and resolutions dealing therewith shall be forwarded to the secretary at least twenty days prior to the date of the annual meeting and the secretary shall have them printed and distributed to the local boards at least ten days before the date of such meeting; and the council of the board shall arrange the order in which the subjects may be discussed, so that they may be dealt with at the opening of the annual meeting.

The amendment was lost.

W. M. Jarvis, Halifax, as convenor, reported that the committee appointed for the consideration of the president's address had much pleasure in recommending that the warm thanks of the board be given the president for his valuable address and the important information contained therein, and further,

Horace Haszard, M.P., ex-President Maritime Board of Trade.

That the president be requested to furnish the board with a copy of his address and that the same be published under direction of the council with the annual report of the board.

Seconded by J. E. DeWolfe the report was adopted.

The president thanked the board for this compliment and said he was happy to have done anything that had contributed to the object for which they had met.

A. M. Bell moved and G. S. Campbell seconded that hereafter time devoted to any subject except with the permission of the board be one-half hour and speeches be limited to five minutes.

It was moved in amendment that the rules allowing 10 minute speeches be adhered to.

The amendment carried.

I. C. R. Express Service.

The discussion over the express service on the I.C.R. was decidedly interesting. It was participated in generally, and at times narrowly escaped being heated. The question was brought up by H. A. Rice of Canso, moving as follows:

"Whereas, under the Railway Act all express companies may have same privileges over all railways in Canada except over the Intercolonial railway, and

"Whereas, under the contract between the Government and the Canadian Express Co. paragraph 15 stipulates that this agreement is subject to the condition that equal facilities and equal terms shall and may be granted to any or all express companies which may contract with His Majesty for the conduct of an express business over said railway, or any part thereof, and

"Whereas, over the I.C.R. railway between Montreal and Moncton, and from Truro eastward in Cape Breton and in P.E.I., there is only one express company permitted to do business, and

"Whereas, the shippers of fish and other merchandise from Eastern Nova Scotia and P.E.I., and shippers of fruit from Western Canada to points on I.C.R. east of Truro are handicapped by being shut out from a competing express service and compelled to pay extra rates of carriage and

"Whereas, numerous resolutions have from time to time been addressed to the Government asking that Dominion Express Company be granted same privileges over Government railways as are granted to Canadian Express Company,

"Therefore, resolved that this Maritime Board of Trade endorses said resolutions and urges upon the Government the early granting of said express privileges to other companies than that one now having the monopoly of the express business.

"Further resolved, that copies of this resolution be forwarded to Minister of Railways and Canals, Minister of Finance and Maritime members at Ottawa."

The resolution was seconded by J. E.

DeWolfe, of Halifax. Thirty similar resolutions had been forwarded to the Government. The agreement with the company provided for granting equal privileges to others and he had correspondence from fruit and fish men all over the province supporting the resolution.

E. D. Smith, M.P., Winona, Ont., a fruit grower of that province, said that last Winter a resolution was passed asking the Government to put the system upon the road as is now on a portion of it. These resolutions were taken before the Minister of Railways. They were cordially received and the Minister promised to take the matter into consideration. He suggested that objections might be raised and these objections have been raised by the company having the monopoly over the Maritime Provinces. The first argument is that the I.C.R. will lose some portion of its revenue through employing extra cars. But the Dominion Express Company has guaranteed the Government that there shall be no loss of revenue. The other argument is that it will derange the system, through the increased traffic. This is exactly what the I.C.R. wants and its able management will be able to distribute it without any loss of revenue. This is a Government road and ought to be available to all who wish to take advantage of it. The fruit growers, Mr. Smith said, felt very earnest about this.

John T. Hawke said that we were told that this question means merely competition for the Maritime Provinces. It was a well known fact that there was a cast iron agreement between these two express companies in regard to rates, and that allowing them to compete on the I.C.R. would not cause the lowering of the rates one dollar.

If, he said these gentlemen really wish competition, they would have no objection to the following rider which he moved:

"That this only be granted on condition that the C.P.R. give other express companies equal running right over their line with the Dominion Express Co., in the Maritime Provinces and Quebec."

Senator McSweeny seconded the amendment.

J. E. DeWolfe spoke at some length on this question and could not see why the two express companies could not be granted equal rights on the I.C.R. He produced letters from many fruit importers of the East, and fish shippers, agreeing with the motion and giving their assent and suport to the proposal. Mr. DeWolfe said that it was not the Dominion Express Co. who were asking for these privileges, but the fish shippers of Nova Scotia, and the fruit growers of Ontario.

A. Shaffer, of Sydney, said he could not see why any business man should oppose this proposal. It was a privilege which every man should vote for, as it would bring revenue into the lower provinces.

Mr. DeWolfe, Kentville, wished to know what was behind this. to keep any man from voting for this resolution.

A. W. Cruise thought there was something behind this, but it was on the other side of the fence. He said that there was no complaint of the express service at Sydney. This board was no doubt canvassed by the C.P.R.

W. A. Black, ex-President Maritime Board of Trade.

Mr. Jarvis, St. John, had a resolution adopted by the St. John Board of Trade, urging the Government to grant to all express companies equal rights and privileges on all Government railways. Competition, he said, wakens everybody up and was a good thing for the public.

J. E. DeWolfe took exception to Mr. Cruise's remarks and said the Halifax board was not canvassed by any express company.

J. T. Hawke said that articles had been published in the Halifax newspapers, purporting to be public opinion in favor of this question. These, it is understood, were really accepted and published as advertisements, and not as an unsolicited expression of opinion. Continuing, the speaker said that his amendment did not oppose the spirit of the resolution, but aimed to give the so-called benefit of competition to the oppressed people of the St. John Valley.

W. S. Loggie, Chatham, could not see what benefit could be obtained by two express companies.

Capt. Read, Summerside, said there were only two express agents on the whole island and they were shamefully careless. He thought the P.E. Island Railway should be put on the same basis as the I.C.R.

H. H. Acorn, Souris, P.E.I., said that more express privileges were needed on the P. E. Island Railway, as well as an increase in the number of express offices.

The amendment was lost and the original motion carried.

F. W. Sumner, president of the Moncton Board of Trade, announced that it was the intention of the local board to entertain the delegates to a trip to the Memramcook and St. Joseph oil fields, leaving the station at 8.30. All were cordially invited.

The invitation was accepted.

To Secure Emigrants.

The Kentville Board of Trade raised the question of "What is the most advantageous way to advertise the resources of the Maritime Provinces; whereby a desirable class of British emigrants may be secured and retained as permanent citizens."

The question was put forward by Capt. Allen and seconded by M. G. DeWolfe.

The latter said that in the Annapolis and Cornwallis Valleys they were much handicapped through lack of help. They needed a good class of emigrants. The trend was westward; streams passed through Halifax and never stopped in the lower provinces. In his district they had got out some illustrated pamphlets portraying the advantages of the Valley but if they were to keep up their industries in the Maritime Provinces they must unite in this work. He hoped some practical suggestions would be brought out.

W. S. Fisher, of St. John, agreed that there was a need for more people. The conundrum was how to get them. He believed something might be done by preparing literature for circulation in Britain through the immigration officers.

G. S. Campbell concurred in what Mr. Fisher had said. A book should be prepared telling the advantages of the Maritime Provinces. These should be distributed to prospective immigrants.

C. Jameson moved the matter be referred to a committee of five to devise a scheme and report before the board adjourned.

D. G. Smith seconded the amendment.

J. E. Birch said the root of the difficulty lay in the fact that the young men went to the United States.

Capt. Read inquired what was the use of bringing people from outside when they could produce better at home. He said the C.P.R. were taking young men to the Northwest for $10 and charging them $20 to come back. He thought that should be prohibited.

The amendment was carried and the president named the mover, seconder, Capt. Allen, Mr. Dodge and Mr. Fisher as the committee to report on the matter.

Steamer to Magdallens.

J. E. Birch, Alberton, introduced the subject of a subsidy for a steamer to ply between ports on the north side of Prince Edward Island, the Magdallen Islands and North Sydney. The distance of the whole route is about 625 miles. Mr. Birch moved that a subsidy of $200 per trip be given for this steamer to ply a weekly service between Prince Edward Island, Miramichi, Sydney and the Magdallen Islands.

The motion was seconded by H. H. Turner, West Prince, and carried.

Lobster Fishing.

"Whereas lobster hatcheries have proven to be of great value in conserving our fisheries; Resolved, that in the opinion of this board it is advisable in order to preserve the lobster fisheries, that hatcheries be established along the coasts of the Maritime Provinces at such places as will enable the spawn of lobsters caught for canning purposes all to be collected and hatched."

The above resolution was introduced by F. G. Bovyer and C. Jameson, both speaking strongly on the matter and pointing out how the lobster fisheries have been depleted.

A. W. Bell inquired whether it were not illegal to can seed lobsters.

Mr. Bovyer said it was, but it was done nevertheless.

W. S. Loggie, Chatham, moved as a rider that the Government be asked to prohibit the fishing of lobsters by "curleys" as these "curleys" are fished close to the shore and only small lobsters are taken.

Hon. Wm. Ross thought we should make every effort to improve our lobster fisheries.

The motion was carried.

On motion of A. M. Bell it was decided to appoint a committee to report on the names of officers for the coming year.

The committee as constituted by the president's nomination were the mover, the seconder and Messrs. DeWolfe, Jameson and Loggie.

To Meet at Yarmouth.

A letter was read by the secretary

W. S. Loggie, M.P.P., ex-President Maritime Board of Trade.

from the Yarmouth Board of Trade inviting the board to make Yarmouth its next place of meeting.

On motion of W. S. Loggie, seconded by J. E. DeWolfe the invitation of the Yarmouth Board of Trade to meet in their town next year was accepted.

A Field Day.

The board took Thursday off and as the guests of the local Board of Trade enjoyed a delightful trip to the Dover and St. Joseph oil fields now being developed.

It threatened rain in the morning, but despite this most of the delegates, together with a large number of Moncton business men, in all a party of about 200, boarded the special train at 8.30 in the morning and were soon landed at the quaint little village of Memramcook in the centre of the beautiful Memramcook Valley.

The party were met at the station by the farmers of the vicinity and driven through the valley around to the Dover wells, where the pumping station and boring rigs as well as the wells themselves were inspected, the party coming away impressed with the bright prospects of this field.

From here the party were driven around to St. Joseph College, where they were given a most hearty welcome by the Rev. Father Cormier and the young ladies of the village who had volunteered to assist in extending the hospitality of the college to the visitors. Dinner, which was served immediately, reflected the highest credit on the menage of the college and gave the greatest satisfaction to the hungry visitors. The afternoon was spent inspecting the college buildings and grounds and the oil wells situated thereon. A special attraction was the shooting of one of these wells with nitro-glycerine, a sight seldom witnessed by any present. A further demonstration of the power of this explosive was given by setting off a can that had been nearly emptied. The detonation was tremendous and signally impressive.

The train met the party at college bridge, but before returning a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Rev. Father Cormier who had proved himself the "Prince of Hospitality" and to the young ladies who had volunteered their assistance for the occasion.

Next Year's Officers.

On resuming in the evening after returning from the oil fields the board immediately received the report of the nominating committee appointed the previous evening. The report was presented by C. Jameson and recommended the following gentlemen for the respective offices:

President—E. A. Spinney, Yarmouth.

1st Vice-President—Capt. Jos Read, Summerside.

2nd Vice-President—W. S. Fisher, St. John.

Permanent Secretary-Treasurer—C. M. Creed, Halifax.

Corresponding Secretary—C. H. Armstrong, Yarmouth.

Auditor—M. G. DeWolfe, Kentville.

On motion of Messrs. Bell and Smith nominations were closed and the secretary instructed to cast a formal ballot for each gentleman on the list proposed by the nominating committee confirming their election.

J. E. DeWolfe, as chairman of the committee on orders, asked that a question proposed by the Charlottetown Board of Trade as to the best means of developing the fisheries of the Maritime Provinces and inadvertently omitted, be added to the list. The request was granted.

Immigration.

Capt. Allen, chairman of the committee appointed to consider the question of securing immigration to the Maritime Provinces, moved:

"That in the opinion of this board the Governments of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island should co-operate in the publication and distribution in Great Britain and Ireland, among a desirable class of prospective emigrants, of literature, showing the advantages offering to settlers in the Maritime Provinces of Canada; and that committees consisting of three members of this board from each of such provinces be now appointed to bring the subject before the respective Governments."

Speaking to the resolution Capt. Allen emphasized the need of immigrants, especially in Nova Scotia, which had been behind New Brunswick in this matter.

The resolution was seconded by C. Jameson, who added the suggestion that the local boards supply the committee with pictures illustrating the attractions of their several districts.

The resolution was carried unanimously and the appointment of the committees left to the president, who named the committees as follows:

New Brunswick—W. M. Jarvis, St. John; Hon. Senator McSweeney, Moncton; D. G. Smith, Chatham.

Nova Scotia—G. S. Campbell, Halifax; C. Jameson, Digby; Dr. W. B. Moore, Kentville.

Prince Edward Island—N. Rattenbury, Charlottetown; J. E. Lefurgey, Summerside; H. H. Acorn, Souris.

Capt. Wm. Louis, of Louisburg, felt that the shipping interests of the provinces needed protection and moved:

"That whereas the shipping interests of the Maritime Provinces are every year decreasing, and whereas the chief cause of such decrease is a treaty or treaties existing between the Imperial Government of Great Britain and several European nations, said treaty or treaties allowing the shipping of such European nations to become common carriers in the Canadian coasting trade, much to the injury of our merchant marine, be it therefore resolved that this Maritime Board of Trade respectfully ask the Canadian Government at Ottawa to use its good influence with the Imperial Government of Great Britain to have such treaty or treaties as far as concerns the Canadian coasting trade amended."

Proceeding, the mover argued that all knew our coasting trade was falling off. The reason was that foreigners were taking our coasting trade away from our Canadian sailors and ships. Their ships were built abroad, their sailors hired abroad, and their supplies purchased share in our coasting trade to the injury abroad, and yet they were allowed to of Canadian shipping.

Capt. Allen, in seconding the resolution, said the foreigners who were taking away our carrying trade would live on half what our own sailors required. If we were to preserve our mercantile marine we must take some such action as proposed by the resolution.

D. G. Smith, Chatham, N.B., Secretary Maritime Board of Trade, 1900-1.

Capt. Read explained the working of coasting laws. Canadian ships could not coast in United States, or United States ships in Canada, but owing to treaties between Great Britain and Norway and Sweden, ships of these countries could coast on Canada while Canadian ships did not have reciprocal rights in these countries. They wanted the Government to ask Britain to denounce the treaties with these countries so far as they concerned Canada, and thus put us on a fair basis to build up our shipping interests.

J. E. DeWolfe suggested a change in the wording of the resolution which was concurred in as appearing above.

Senator Ross was of the opinion that no harm would result from passing the resolution. Great Britain, however, was very conservative in regard to her treaties, and he did not think she would be likely to alter them. But supposing the resolution was given effect where, he asked, were the ships to carry on existing trade?

Mr. Campbell rose to remark that there existed very grave dissatisfaction in Great Britain itself among ship owners over the coasting laws along the lines just indicated. He thought the passing of the resolution would have an effect.

The resolution carried.

The Lobster Fisheries.

Wm. T. Tidmarsh, of Charlottetown, on behalf of the South King's board, introduced the following resolution:

"Whereas the rapid decline of the lobster fishery, as shown by the reports of the fishing affairs in the Maritime Provinces, is viewed with alarm by this board and as the decline appears to be greatest in those sections where illegal fishing is carried on,

"Resolved, that it is desirable that the Government take active measures to enforce the regulations for the protection of the lobster fishery by instructing the officials of the Marine and Fisheries Department to suppress illegal fishing after the season in their respective districts.

"Further resolved that fishing stations for educating our fishermen be established by the Government at suitable places along the Atlantic coast and the Gulf of St. Lawrence; and further, that it is desirable that the Government take into consideration the re-organization of the fishing service with the view of bringing it up to a higher state of efficiency.

"That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and to the Maritime members of parliament.

In support of his resolution Mr. Tidmarsh read a very able and exhaustive paper on the fisheries of the Maritime Provinces in general.

Capt. Jos. Read seconded the resolution "without remarks."

H. A. Rice, of Canso, explained what was being done at Canso by the Scotch fishermen brought over by the Government to experiment with the herring fisheries. Their meshes were too small, but despite this they had shown reason to expect our herring would yet command the same price as Scotch herring.

The resolution carried.

Sydney's Harbor.

Sydney's claim for the use of a steamer part of the Winter to keep her port open was presented by S. Shaver of that town, and seconded by Mr. Fraser, of Summerside.

On advice of Messrs. Rattenbury, Ross, Read and Allen the mover and seconder changed their resolution to a request for a steamer for themselves and secured the endorsation of the board for the following resolution:

"Whereas, Sydney being a steel and coal centre of great importance to the commercial interests of the Dominion of Canada by and through her splendid geographical position on one of the most useful and beautiful natural harbors in the world, enjoying as she does the distinction of being the second largest shipper in the Dominion, and aspiring to the claim in the near future of being the largest shipping port in Canada,

"Resolved, that this Board of Trade representing the bone and sinew of the commercial and other interests of the Maritime Provinces, do petition and request the Government of Canada to supply an ice breaking boat to be located permanently at Sydney, thereby making Sydney harbor an open port to the world in Winter as well as Summer, facilitating as it will the easy and safe shipment of steel and coal from our port at all seasons."

The Dog Fish Question.

C. Jameson, on behalf of the Digby board, animadverted on the ravages of the dog fish which now made fishing in some months unprofitable. He had learned from the papers that the Government proposed to establish three plants for the destruction of dog fish. He moved that:

"Whereas the Federal Government contemplate the establishment at certain points in the Maritime Provinces of fish reduction plants for the extermination of the dog fish, and the utilization of the products of such plants for fertilizing purposes,

"And whereas it is feared that the proposed plants may not be of sufficient capacity nor so situated as to render them capable of treating all the material available,

"Therefore, resolved, that the Government be respectfully requested further to grant a bounty of reasonable amount to any person or company proposing to establish similar works as a private enterprise at such places in the Maritime Provinces as may be approved by the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

The motion was seconded by W. M. Jarvis without remarks.

Senator Ross thought they should see whether dog fish could not be sold to the West Indies. A couple of thousand cases should be put up and the experiment tried. He would not recommend that they be put up as dog fish. That would cause a prejudice against them. They should be given some other name.

J. E. DeWolfe reported that dog fish had been put up in cans and were very edible when not known as dog fish.

Chas. D. Stewart, former Corresponding Secretary Maritime Board of Trade.

Capt. Read approved of Senator Ross' suggestion. In the East Indies and China a fish very similar to the dog fish was daily sold in the markets. They might sell dog fish there.

The resolution was adopted.

Amherst Wanted Board.

J. A. Laws, of Amherst, wished to re-open the question of the next meeting place. Amherst was very anxious to have the board next year and were surprised the matter had been decided so early in the meeting. The board appreciated very much the invitation from Amherst but were unable to re-open the question. The invitation, however, was ordered placed on the minutes to give Amherst a claim the next time the board meets in Nova Scotia.

Steel Ship Building.

This very important subject was brought before the board by J. E. DeWolfe, of Halifax, who moved as follows:

"Whereas the substitution of steel for wood in the construction of ships has reduced Canada from her position as one of the four ship-building and ship-owning countries of the world to a place amongst the most unimportant;

"And whereas her coast line on two oceans of over two thousand (2,000) miles, with enormous lake and river navigation leading to the interior of the continent, has produced not only a great coastwise and foreign trade, but a large population skilled in maritime affairs;

"And whereas Canada possesses all the natural facilities and materials for the production of steel vessels, but is prevented from utilizing them by reason of the skill and capital employed in British yards, which have established England's supremacy in this industry, the products of which are admitted free to our coastwise as well as foreign trade;

"And whereas the above conditions prove that Canada can never regain her position as a maritime country unless the Government offers inducements by bonus or otherwise to shipbuilding companies to establish that industry;

"Whereas several municipalities and Boards of Trade in the Maritime Provinces have memorialized the Dominion Government to grant aid to the industry by means of bonus or otherwise, and;

"Whereas a similar memorial from parties interested in this industry in Western Canada has also been presented to the Government;

"Resolved, that the Maritime Board of Trade hereby endorses and approves the principle of a bonus to steel shipbuilding, as offering a new and profitable field for the utilization of our steel products, the employment of skilled labor, and more than all, in the creation of a new mercantile marine, which was formerly a great source of wealth to our country."

In seconding the resolution B. F. Pearson, of Halifax, pointed out the necessity of cheap transportation for our rapidly increasing exports. But as a matter of fact he showed Canadian shipping had decreased in numbers and tonnage. The only remedy was a bonus, which was by no means a new expedient.

N. Rattenbury in view of the immense exports we were soon to have, thought it of the utmost importance that the question of shipbuilding be solved and a bounty be granted.

Senator Ross said the question was a large one, and he thought some encouragement should be given help to the provinces to regain the place in the shipbuilding trade they had once held.

The resolution was passed unanimously.

Weights of Packages.

The last item to be discussed at the evening session was the one from St. John in regard to the weights of packages.

J. Hunter White moved, seconded by W. M. Jarvis:

"That whereas the interests of consumers are materially affected by a growing custom of short weight in putting up of various kinds of goods sold either canned or in packages, and whereas the reputation of wholesale dealers in such goods is also prejudiced thereby,

Therefore resolved, that this Maritime Board of Trade submit to the Government the importance of providing by law that in the case of such goods each can or package shall be marked with the net weight of the article contained therein and that suitable penalties be imposed for infraction of the law where it shall appear that there was short weight at the time of putting up such goods."

Messrs. Jarvis, Bell, Smith, Anderson, Read, Moore and Birch expressed their approval of the resolution, and it passed as read.

The Final Session.

The board resumed business Friday morning at 9.30, imbued with a determination to dispose of matters with dispatch, and a large amount of work was concluded before rising at one o'clock.

Labor Legislation.

The first matter considered was Moncton's resolution on the labor question, J. T. Hawke and Capt. Jos. Read standing sponsors for it. The resolution read:

"Whereas municipal corporations in the Province of New Brunswick have been applying for and obtaining authority to impose a license fee upon mechanics and laborers working within and residing outside the municipality.

"Therefore, resolved that in the opinion of this board of trade, such legislation is not in the best interest of the province, and that such power should not be granted to municipal corporations."

The mover of the resolution protested against the aggression of the labor unions, especially as in Moncton it was almost impossible to secure labor. The resolution met with the favor of the board.

Fast Atlantic Service.

The father of the movement for the fast Atlantic service, A. M. Payne, of Halifax, again brought the subject briefly to the attention of the board, and proposed this resolution:

"Whereas the construction of a second Canadian Transcontinental Railway, and the growing expansion of Canadian exports and imports indicate the imperative necessity of utilizing Canadian shipping ports to the fullest possible extent, in order to keep pace with constantly increasing internal development;

"And, whereas, the maintenance of a separate Summer and Winter Atlantic mail service between Britain and Canada has proved inadequate to the requirements of Canadian commerce;

"And, whereas, it has been admitted in the Dominion Parliament that nine-tenths of the Canadian mails to and from Great Britain are dispatched and received via New York;

"And, whereas, the Home Government has recently granted the largest ocean mail subsidies on record to assist in the construction of the two fastest steamers in the world for service at foreign ports;

"And, whereas, the establishment of a Canadian fast Atlantic service affords a material all round decrease in mileage and consequently a more rapid conveyance of the Imperial mails to and from the Orient;

"And, whereas, the Atlantic ports of Canada are several hundred miles closer to the Motherland than other ports, and better adapted for rapid ocean mail transit on modern lines;

"Therefore, resolved: That the Maritime Board of Trade strenuously protests against the present divided system of Atlantic mail transit, which, at a cost of over a thousand dollars per day, only provides an ocean mail service very slightly, if at all, in advance of the average time of delivery for the Atlantic mails at the inception of ocean steamer navigation, three-quarters of a century ago:

"And further resolved: That in view of the fact that over twenty steamers with a speed of from twenty to twenty-three knots are now plying on the North Atlantic, the time has arrived for the people of this Dominion of Canada, with the aid of its Government, to inaugurate the long-promised fast Atlantic service on the basis recently suggested by an acknowledged authority on the subject as 'The fastest ocean steamers on the shortest ocean passage.'"

Capt. Read, in seconding the resolution, urged that the board keep agitating for as fast lines for Canada as are to be had at New York. Halifax harbor, he said, was excelled by no harbor in the world.

Capt. Allen supported the resolution, and referred to the immense quantities of produce Canada would soon have to export. Trade would become congested, and he thought the Government should subsidize a fast Atlantic service which, contrary to prevalent opinion, would carry large quantities of freight.

Alex. Stephen of Halifax believed the time had arrived for a fast Atlantic service. A seventeen knot service was not good enough. He did not think it creditable that Canadians should cross the Atlantic via New York. He gave the board a motto he had seen on the tent of a party of campers, "Whilst we live, let there be no doubt about it." They should adopt this motto in their efforts to get a fast service.

Hon. Wm. Ross thought it unfortunate to have to pay heavy subsidies to a line which, after all, would give only a 17 knot service. "Let us have the fastest and best possible," continued Mr. Ross, warming up. The people in Ontario were narrow minded on this matter. They should eat more fish, and forget their prejudices.

The resolution was carried enthusiastically.

Improvement of Intercolonial.

R. L. Starr, of Wolfville, introducing this subject, stated that the Intercolonial had been built when speed was not so important as at present. He mentioned many places where the road could be improved. This was necessary, especially if we were to have a fast Atlantic service, and were to compete with American lines. It would take some years and should be begun at once. He therefore moved that:

"Whereas, it is considered advisable by this board that the Intercolonial Railway shall be so improved by double tracking where needed, by improving terminal facilities at Halifax, and by shortening and improving the grades where possible so as to provide for fast and increased traffic which will result from the establishment of a fast line of steamers from Halifax to Great Britain;

"Therefore, resolved: That the Dominion Government be respectfully requested to take this matter into careful consideration and inquiry; to appoint a competent person or commission to survey and report upon the possible improvements, the estimated cost of such changes, as far as possible the benefits likely to accrue from such changes, and the extra speed to be attained by fast trains over the improved line."

J. B. Oakes remarked that the improvement of the Intercolonial was vitally related to the other reforms desired by the board.

Hon. Wm. Ross had a good word to say for the present Minister of Railways. The road could, he said, be shortened 12 miles between Moncton and Amherst.

J. T. Hawke thought the board need have no hesitation in adopting the resolution, but he said the Government had already anticipated much asked for in the resolution.

The resolution was carried without opposition.

P. E. I. Freight Rates.

Prince Edward Island had another grievance in the excessive freight rates to and from inland points on the mainland. In this connection G. H. Hughes, of Charlottetown, moved, seconded by Capt. Read, that:

"Whereas, shipments from points on the P. E. I. Railway to points on the I. C. R., and shipments from stations on the I. C. R. to stations on the P. E. I. are subject practically to three short haul rail rates, Winter and Summer, the ferry service on the Straits charging a short haul rate; and

"Whereas, shippers on the I. C. R. from points on the mainland to stations in Cape Breton, notwithstanding the ferry service at the Straits or Gut of Cause, are only charged a continuous railway haul, the resulting overcharge on shipments to and from the Island on fifteen ton carloads of 8th class produce on an 80-mile haul is equal to the difference between $45 and $28, as compared with an equal haul on the Intercolonial. Rates on first-class goods show a much greater injustice against Island shippers to the mainland than mainland shippers to the Island;

"Therefore, resolved: That in the opinion of this board the rates of freight from all points on these Government roads to and from the Island should be adjusted on the basis of a continuous rail haul;

"Resolved, that the same principle apply to shipments originating at Island points and transferred to the Intercolonial;

"Resolved, that copies of this resolution be sent to the Minister of Railways and our Maritime representative at Ottawa."

A. M. Bell of Halifax supported the resolution, but advised the Islanders to agitate for a broad guage railroad and transfer ferry.

W. F. Tedmarsh of Charlottetown concurred with Mr. Bell.

Mr. Bovyer mentioned instances of exorbitant rates.

The resolution was adopted.

Committee on Ship Building.

At this juncture the president announced that instead of appointing the committee to implement the ship building resolution directly, he would ask the boards of Halifax, Sydney, Dartmouth and St. John to appoint committees to take the matter in hand, the Halifax board to be convenor.

The Wood Industry.

F. G. Bovyer, South Kings, P. E. I., seconded by Capt. Read, moved that:

"Whereas, the Maritime Provinces are eminently adapted to the wool raising industry, and woolen cloths at times manufactured contained inferior substances;

"Therefore, resolved: That it is desirable that the Government be requested to place such restrictions on manufacturers that will compel all woolen fabrics to be plainly markes as to proportion of pure wool or adulterations therein contained, in a manner similar to the legal restrictions placed by Government on manufactured imitations of dairy products, such as oleomargarine filled cheese, etc."

The resolution was adopted with little discussion.

Undesirable Advertisements.

C. Jameson of Digby found a grievance in undesirable advertisements that sometimes crept into newspapers, tending to deceive the public, such as wildcat stock promotions, and proposed a resolution as follows:

"Resolved, that this board, having in mind the patriotism and sense of fairplay of our Canadian newspapers as a whole, cannot but regret the occasional publication therein of prospectuses and advertisements inviting and encouraging investment in ventures the commercial standing of which is entirely doubtful as unknown, and the object of which is to enrich the promoters at the expense of the public, thereby prejudicing the flotation of legitimate enterprises calculated to aid in the development and stimulate the production of the country;

"Further resolved, that this board entertains the hope that by the increased care and discretion of publishers the prospectuses and advertisements of unscrupulous promoters may in future be denied space in the Canadian press."

M. G. DeWolfe seconded the resolution, although rather at a loss to know how it could be made effective.

J. T. Hawke, as a newspaper man, supported the resolution. It would have a moral effect, and one that was much needed in these days when so many doubtful advertisements were being hawked about.

D. G. Smith did not think anything practical could come out of the resolution. If he did he would vote for it.

The motion was adopted.

To Preserve Historic Spots.

A resolution of unique but most commendable nature was brought forward on behalf of the Wolfville board by J. B. Oakes, who moved that:

"Whereas places of historic interest in the Maritime Provinces constitute one of the leading attractions, inducing tourist travel and the circulation of considerable money, and whereas most of these places are now owned by private persons and are unsightly and unmarked by any monuments and in consequence of which they are disappointing to strangers visiting among us, and whereas our historical societies could probably secure the erection of suitable monuments thereon by private subscription and thus foster in a higher patriotism and more firmly cementing the ties bind ing our English and French people totogether, therefore resolved that the Dominion and Provincial Governments be respectively memorialized and requested to take such steps as may result in the public ownership of the more important of these places commemorative of and binding us to our past."

Mr. Oakes supported his resolution with an address of a high order, alluding to the educative value of such spots in fostering patriotism in the young. Canada was slow in preserving her historic spots though no country possessed the scenes of deeds of greater value.

R. W. Starr, seconding the resolution, recounted what the Wolfville board had done. These historic spots now on private ground should be taken up by the Government.

A. E. Atlee supplmented these remarks with a summary of the work done at Annapolis. It would be a shame to allow these old historic places to remain in private hands and possibly destroyed.

Hon. Wm. Ross agreed it was very desirable that our children should be made familiar with our glorious history. He supported the resolution, which was carried enthusiastically.

Bank Cheques.

O. B. Smith drew the attention to the prevalence of paying accounts by cheques and the loss resulting from the excessive exchange on cashing such cheques, and moved:

"Whereas chartered banks have established agencies at different points in the Maritime Provinces, and cheques drawn on these agencies have come into general use as a circulating medium,

"And whereas such cheques do not represent their face value outside the town or city in which they are drawn, and through custom the receiver is obliged to lose the exchange, an item which in the aggregate represents many thousands of dollars annually to the jobbing and distributing trade in the Maritime Provinces,

"And whereas the present charges made by the banks for cashing such cheques are considered excessive particularly for small amounts up to thirty dollars,

"Therefore resolved, that this board confer with the Clearing House Association at Halifax and St. John with a view to adjusting present exchange rates on a basis at least equal to that charged by express companies for transmitting similar amounts."

The motion was seconded by A. M. Bell and passed without opposition.

Cables and Telegraphs.

J. E. DeWolfe complained of injustice in the rates charged for sending messages by wire to and from the island and supported by Capt. Jos. Read, moved as follows:

"Resolved, that this board puts itself on record as in favor of the Government ownership and operation of telegraphs as in the United Kingdom, and that pending the general acquirement of the various systems the Government be memorialized to expropriate and operate the lines and cable of the Anglo-American Telegraph Co. from Sackville, New Brunswick to Prince Edward Island, including the land lines in the latter province.

The resolution was adopted.

Moved by J. B. Oakes, seconded by M. G. DeWolfe that the boards of Annapolis, Wolfville, Sackville and Moncton each appoint a member on a committee to communicate with the Government on the matter of preserving historic grounds. Carried.

Financial Report.

As the ordinary business of the board was now concluded (item 22 and one or two others having been withdrawn owing to lack of time) the secretary presented his financial report.

Votes of Thanks.

Before dispersing M. G. DeWolfe rose to his feet to move the hearty thanks of the board to the Mayor and city of Moncton for the magnificent way in which the board had been entertained. They had been given the freedom of the place, not only in the city but all the way out to Memramcook. They had had an enjoyable and profitable time and would look forward to three years from now when he expected they would come again to Moncton to be present at the turning of the sod with a view to making Moncton the terminus of the new transcontineutal railway.

He also wanted to move the thanks of the board to the Y.M.C.A. for their great kindness in furnishing these rooms and extending to the members the privileges of the house.

One thing more must not be forgotten and that was to thank the MacLean Publishing Company for once again taking the pains and expense of sending one of their editors here to report in full the proceedings of the board; also the local press for their kindness.

The thanks of the board were also due the president for the kind and able manner in which he had fulfilled his arduous duties. It was a difficult position to fill, especially with such a strong delegation from the sister island.

He would further add the gentlemen of Memramcook who had driven them about on Thursday and Father Cromier for the splendid hospitality at St. Joseph College.

The motion was carried with enthusiasm by a standing vote and the secretary was instructed to communicate the sentiments of the board to the gentlemen concerned.

The president responded graciously for his own behalf and J. T. Hawke on behalf of the Moncton Board of Trade.

Capt. Read thanked the board for electing him to the honorable position of first vice-president; and moved at the same time, seconded by J. E. DeWolfe, a hearty vote of thanks to the Hon. Wm. Ross for coming at his age to the meeting and assisting the board with his valuable counsel and advice.

The motion was received with applause and the Hon. Mr. Ross replied feelingly.

With this the board adjourned to meet next year in Yarmouth, N.S.

Notes.

Moncton is a Scott Act town!

The Kentville board, as usual, sent a strong delegation of good live men.

F. W. Sumner, president of the local board, directed the trip to the oil fields.

Mayor Ryan, who welcomed the board to Moncton, is the proprietor of a well-kept grocery.

Most of the delegates found time during their stay to witness the arrival of Moncton's famous Bore.

Senator Wood made an admirable presiding officer and never the least friction was noted in the proceedings.

The citizens both in Moncton and the Memramcook Valley expect great things from the development of the oil fields.

Secretary Creed, despite his three score and ten and four years, retains all his old-time vigor and good fellowship.

Seventy-three delegates registered, representing twenty-two boards, making one of the most representative Maritime Boards for some years..

Capt. Jos. Read, of Summerside, besides being an old sailor, an ex-ship-broker and present shipper, is a raconteur of no ordinary ability, and can spin yarns of the sea by the hour to the charm and interest of his hearers.

It is interesting to note that the public men of the province were well represented. Among these present were Senators Josiah Wood, Sackville, N.B.; and Peter McSweeney, Moncton, N.B.; M.P.'s Hon. W. Ross, Halifax, N.S., and H. J. Logan, Amherst, N.B.; M.P.P.'s, B. H. Dodge, Kentville, N.S., and Capt. Jos. Read, Summerside, P.E.I.; M.L.C.'s, Geo. E. MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Aug. 25, 1904.

Groceries.

THE grocery trade report improved conditions generally, and say they have already begun to experience the increase in the volume of trade usual at this time of year. Prospects point to a successful Fall trade in all lines of groceries. Travellers have been on the road for a week and a half since their holidays, and report that everything is going nicely. The most interesting item in the market is sugar, which continues strong and very high, with prospects favorable to sellers. The consumption of sugar compares favorably with that of other seasons.

The prospects are for a full crop of tomatoes and only a poor to fair yield of corn. Another important item is the shortage in the Fraser River salmon pack, where the pack of sockeyes is not more than half that of last year. As a result higher prices will be maintained, an advance of 15c per case on opening prices having already taken place, and cohoes and pinks will likely be brought up to a higher range of values. At the present time there are reported to be no sellers on the coast; in one or two cases however, individual cars are being offered at a price ranging from 25 to 50c higher than previously established prices. Syrups and molasses continue without special feature. In teas the chief item of interest is the inviting price of Japans, which has resulted in increased sales. Coffees continue high, although actual quotations have dropped 15 points since last week. Quotations in foreign dried fruits are generally higher than last year's, and, although a few confidential orders have been placed, trade is only beginning to become general. There has been an advance in rolled and flaked wheat of 25c per barrel.

CANNED GOODS.

Canned goods continue active at quotations given below. Most of the business is concerned with filling orders which were booked previous to naming the new pack. New corn and tomatoes are not being packed as yet, but prospects point to a full pack of tomatoes, while corn will be only fair. New pack asparagus tips 2's, are already out of first hands and are quoted at an advance of 15c on opening prices.

The principal item of interest in canned goods this week is the shortage of the Fraser River salmon pack, where the run of sockeyes is not more than half that of last year, which was one of the poorest in the history of the salmon fishing industry. As a result of these unfavorable conditions the higher prices established before the season commenced will not only be maintained, but have been advanced 15c per case, and the high price of sockeyes must in the long run bring cohoes and pinks up to a higher range of values.

The newest feature of the British Columbia fish trade has been the introduction by a local firm of a carload of B.C. herrings, which arrived last week, and are reported to be giving satisfaction. The fish were sold at a very low price to open the market here, and can be bought by the retail trade at about three tins for 25c.

It is thought the requirements of the wholesale trade in sockeye salmon have been pretty well met, and that they will not experience difficulty in obtaining supplies at contract prices. There are, however, a few buyers in Canada who have not placed their orders, and now there are no sellers on the coast. In one or two isolated cases during the past week sellers have offered individual cars for which they are asking an advance of 25 and sometimes 50c over previously established prices. SUGAR

There is little of particular interest to report for the week under review. The market has been quiet in the main with few transactions in raws transpiring and these confined mostly to muscovado sugars. The quantity of centrifugals on order has been restricted. Just prior to going to press last week there was a sale of 800 tons Demarara centrifugals to New York refiners at full duty paid parity of 4 1-4c for basis 96. Further small parcels offering on this basis would probably find buyers, but refiners are at present indifferent to large cargoes and at the moment importers show no disposition to force sales. The small balance of sugar in Cuba remaining unsold is held for full current price of 2 7-8c, c. and f. for basis 95 or 4 1-4c duty paid for basis 96.

Beet sugars have shown only a slight fluctuation for the week, first reacting 3 4d per cwt. to 10s 5 1-4d, then advancing to 10s 6 3-4d, and later reacting to 10s 6d, at which the market remains firm. Weather reports, with only slight exceptions, are still unfavorable to the growing crops, there having been some rains which have caused speculators to realize. It is felt, however, that little improvement can come to the crop at this late date.

It is reported from Europe that since the American Sugar Trust began to buy beets this season it has purchased fully 100,000 tons. of which more than one-third will go to New Orleans, and the balance to New York, Boston and Philadelphia. It is predicted by ordinarily conservative people that the deficiency in Austria-Hungary will be fully 20 per cent., and Hungarian factories are eagerly buying back in London at 2s per cwt. advance sugar sold by them last May. This is a pretty good indication of how seriously the situation is viewed by those nearest primary markets.

Meltings at U. S. Atlantic ports for the week ending August 17 again increased 2,000 tons and are estimated at 44,000 tons for the week, against 34,222 tons for the corresponding week last year, thus reducing stocks by nearly 10,000 tons, and leaving total stocks of 136,972 tons, against 278,149 tons last year. There were no receipts at Cuban shipping ports for the week, exports amounting to 12,800 tons, leaving stocks on hand at 69,000 tons, as against 22,690 tons last year. Combined deficiency in stocks in U. S. and Cuba is equivalent to 301,867 tons.

Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 1,683,972 tons, compared with 2,188,298 tons for the same period last year, the decrease being 504,326 tons. Our readers will have observed the gradual enlargement of this deficiency.

Holders of Javas have s ld freely so far and at present have mostly withdrawn offerings from the market; it is estimated in a report from London that there remain now only about 40,000 tons in planters' hands unsold.

New business in refined sugar both in Canada and the United States has been light. During the interim period between the small and large fruit crops as compared with previous years, however, the demand has been surprisingly good and U. S. refiners are reported to have difficulty in keeping up with their orders, there being considerable delay in shipping in some cases. One Canadian refiner is at present largely oversold and has withdrawn from the market. Our quotations are as follows:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The syrup and molasses market continues unchanged from last week. Sales of Barbadoes and New Orleans are reported in small quantities, and the same thing applies to the wholesale grocery trade, who are buying sparingly. One or two New Orleans exporters have withdrawn from this market as a result of unfavorable canditions. Prices rule very high. More molasses and syrups will be consumed later in the season. A feature of the trade is the tendency towards the greater comparative use of syrups. We quote the following prices:

TEAS.

Locally trade in teas continues steady at quotation prices. The feature of the market is the tempting price for Japans. Third pickings of Japan teas are now offering on the market and show very good value. Teas quite good enough for the popular 25c trade can now be had to cost 15-16c. It is thought that the requirements of the Canadian trade in Ceylon greens have been met. Ceylon blacks are if anything a tone stronger. The English tea market exhibits a stronger tendency all round. COFFEES.

The Rio coffee market continues to soar, although at the time of going to press speculative prices are 15 points lower than they were at the same time last week. The local demand keeps up, but wholesalers are buying very little coffee, in proof of which comes the report that very little coffee is actually coming forward to this market at the present time.

Private cable advices received from Brazil relative to the climatic conditions and prospects for the 1905-6 crop have been conflicting. Some reports have been to the effect that no damage was done by the recent reporteh frosts, while others stated that the damage was serious, with some reporting that there will be no August flowering. Several estimates of the yield of the present Saotos crop have been received, and the extreme figures mentioned ranged from 6,250,000 to 7,500,000 bags. The current ideas of the yield of the Rio crop range from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 bags, thus showing that the present belief of the coffee trade is in a yield from the present Rio and Santos crops of from 8,250,000 to 10,500,000 bags. The mild crops are generally believed to be much smaller than last year, so that taking the outside figure of the current estimates of the Rio and Santos crop and figuring on a yield from the mild crop and Bahia and Victoria of 4,500,000 bags, or, as an extreme, 5,000,000 bags, the indicated total production, according to present outside estimates, is 15,500,000 bags; consumption, it is believed, will at least equal last year's, when it amounted to 16,100,000 bags, thus indicating at least a small reduction in the world's stocks of coffee during the present crop year; while those who are believers in the smaller crop estimates naturally look for a much larger decrease, some contending that for the crop year it will be close to 2,000,000 bags.

Foreign Dried Fruits

The dried fruit market is beginning to show signs of increased activity. Although a number of confidential orders have already been placed, trade in new crop dried fruits may be said to be just beginning; it will not be general until the conditions of the market abroad are definitely known.

Some new crop California prunes have been ordered at the present low quotations to arrive two months hence. The trade are holding off however, expecting to see prices go still lower, as the present state of the market in California is believed to be permanent, and there is a great deal of old stock left over from last year. The same remarks apply to California raisins. For local requirements old prunes—new process—are coming now.

Elemes figs, new season, are quoted 1c higher than at lowest level. They opened up lower this year, but are likely to go higher. First direct steamer commenced loading at Patras, Greece, Aug. 24.

Buyers have been led to believe that the current market in Greece has been low and irregular during the past week, but cables from reliable houses show that such has not been the case. Some offers have been made, and it is reported that orders were actually booked 1s. per 100 lower than last quotations.

The source, however, from which the low orders came makes buyers very unwilling to take advantage of them, and as houses considered reliable cannot and will not meet these prices, there has been a tendency to stay out of the market until things find their level. The actual cost of fruit on the present market and a comparison of these prices with the figures named by other houses who base their quotations on actualities, has unsettled buyers' views concerning the market. Under existing conditions, however, there is no prospect of prices current throughout the season last year being reached this year, as the crop is estimated roughly at half of the 1903 product on account of damage by heat and rain, and will not exceed annual requirements.

Malaga raisins at the opening of the market indicate a lower range of prices. In Valencia raisins prices have opened on a moderate basis. The crop is ascertained to be smaller than that of last year, but better in quality. The future of Valencias is rendered uncertain by the demoralized condition of California raisins, where the Raisin Association is reported to be carrying over 2,000 carloads from last season's crop. In Sultana raisins prices have opened several shillings above the opening price of 1903. Our quotations are as follows :

FOREIGN NUTS.

Walnuts, both "Bordeaux" and "Grenoble," show a slight change, and different quotations are expected shortly. At present there is a very excitable market for filberts. New crop filberts are beginning to move at prices 15 per cent. above last year's quotations. The demand continues to be good for peanuts and cocoanuts, although almonds have taken a sharp advance and the demand for them is increasing. Very little inquiry is made for other lines on the list, and with the exception of those already mentioned, trade is quiet. Prices remain unchanged. We quote the following prices :

EGGS.

There is no good word to say concerning eggs as yet in spite of large receipts, in fact, an advance of ½c is recorded, so that it stands now 17 to 18c. There is very little prospect of a decline. Large quantities will continue to be received for a month yet, but with the sustained high level of all Summer it will be a surprise to see any drop for the remainder of the year. In the meantime dealers have been buying as few as possible, and some have even refused to take the stocks of their regular customers. If an open Winter is the rule during the coming cold season dealers will drop a lot of money.

HONEY

Quite an amount of old honey carried over from last year is now being placed on the market.

While the crop this year is light owing to the severe Winter which resulted in the death of a large number of bees, prices will not be very high on account of the good supply of old honey. We quote the following prices :

Honey, extracted clover, per lb	0 07 0 07½
" sections, per doz	1 65 1 75

BEANS.

The bean trade in white varieties continues good at unchanged quotations.

Reports from correspondents of The Grocer on the condition of the growing bean crops in Ontario say that the acreage this season has been increased about one-fourth over that of last season on account of the Winter-killing of the wheat and clover crops. The actual yield of beans, however, will not be any greater than last season's, namely, 970,000 to 980,000 bushels, on account of the dry weather of two and three weeks ago keeping the pods from setting and filling. Even on the late beans the pods did not form right, as they were in blossom at the time of the dry weather. On the night of August 19 there was an extremely heavy rain in the vicinity of Highgate, one of the principal bean districts of Ontario, which on the early beans drove the ends of the pods into the ground, thus injuring the sample.

From the present outlook the average yield of beans per acre this season is placed at 12 bushels. The crop prospects from now out cannot be much improved, and unfavorable weather may do much injury. Hand-picked beans are easier, having dropped 50c. We quote the following prices :

Beans, mixed, per bush	1 25

" handpicked, per bush	1 50 1 60
" Lima, per lb	0 05½ 0 06½

Green Fruits.

Reports show that all Canadian fruit is from 10 to 12 days later this year than last. This is due to the severe weather this Spring, which was detrimental to the growth. The amount of California fruit shown this week is light owing to the low prices it brought last week. As a result Canadian fruit was shown to good advantage, which resulted in good sales and a sharp advance in the market.

The outlook is for a heavy crop of early apples this season, far in advance of those of former years, and all are of a good quality. The crop of Canadian peaches is going to be smaller this year than last. Good supplies are arriving daily from the Niagara district. "Early Rivers" (white), are selling at from 30 to 50c per basket, while "Triumphs" (yellow), are selling at from 45 to 75c per basket. Crawfords are expected in a week or ten days. Good prices are being realized on Canadian peaches as a result of the scarcity of imported stock. Tomatoes are firmer and are selling at from 25 to 30c per basket. There is a scarcity of Canadian plums, and prices are expected to be higher for the rest of the season. Good supply of bananas are arriving daily, although the stock shown this week is superior to that of last week. As a result of the over supply they have taken another slump, and large bunches are now selling at from $1 to $1.50 per bunch, while 8's are selling at 80c and $1 a bunch. California red Tokay grapes are expected to arrive shortly. The following report has been received by W. B. Stringer & Co. from J. C. Houghton & Co., Liverpool, on the sale of American apples in Liverpool : Williams, 10 to 13s. ; Rivers, 8s to 9s 6d; Few, 14s to 17s 6d. Demand fair and sales good. Vegetables.

Trade continues good on this market and prices are expected to continue practically unchanged until larger shipments are made, which will not occur until the latter end of the season. Potatoes are scarce, doubtless owing to the bad weather. Cabbage is slow and the outlook is for a scarcity in this vegetable. Green cucumbers and green peppers are easier this week. We have added to our list "Butter Squash," selling at from $1 to $1.25 per dozen, and parsnips, which are selling at 30c per dozen. We quote the following prices :

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

The condition of this market to-day is better than it has been for some weeks past. On Saturday the 20th inst. the price of Manitoba wheat reached the top notch, which was 4c per bushel higher than to-day's quotations. As a result of reports received stating the outlook for Fall wheat as good and referring to the fine growing weather, the market slumped 4c per bushel on Manitoba Northern Nos. 1, 2 and 3 respectively, and 3c per bushel on new white wheat. Red has become firmer, having advanced 6c per bushel since our quotations of last issue. Oats are firmer, having advanced 1-2c per bushel. Trade is brisk and the demand is good. Our quotations are as follows:

FLOUR.

This market is beginning to feel the effects of the advance in wheat. During the week under review Manitoba wheat patents have advanced 20c per barrel, strong bakers' 15c per barrel, straight roller has become firmer by advancing from $4.75 and $5 to $4.80 and $5. Ontario wheat patents remain unchanged The demand for flour continues good and trade moves briskly along. We quote the following:

BREAKFAST FOODS.

The demand for breakfast foods continues good. During the week under review rolled wheat has advanced 20c per barrel, this is due to the change in the wheat market which has been steadily advancing for three weeks. As a result of keen competition cornmeal has slumped 15c per barrel, otherwise prices remain the same. Our quotations are as follows:

During the week under review the quotations for alsike clover has remained unchanged. This season is from two to three weeks later than previous ones owing to the severe weather this Spring. Prices range from $4.65 to $5.75 and a little higher for strictly fancy trade. We quote the following prices :

Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool.

The tallow market this week is firmer, having advanced ¼c per pound. The supply of wool this week is not so large as that of last. Pulled wool has advanced 1c per pound. Hides and calfskins remain unchanged. We quote the following prices :

FIRE SALE.

An important sale will be held on September 7, at Suckling & Co.'s warerooms, Wellington street west, namely the Eby, Blain Co.'s damaged stock valued at $150,000. Fifty per cent. of the stock is as good as new except for damage done to wrappers and labels by water.

The Eby-Blain Co. are filling all orders with brand new stock and are pushing the work of refitting their warehouse with all possible speed.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. J. A. Courtmanche, Western representative of the Ocean Mills, is busily engaged in the district of Sault Ste. Marie. He reports most encouraging progress with Chinese starch. Grocers everywhere find it a ready seller, with excellent profits, despite the fact that no prize packages are enclosed with it.

REMOVAL.

W. H. Millman & Sons, grocery brokers, 37 Yonge street, Toronto, will, on September 1, move their office to 27 Front street east. The change will afford more commodious quarters, centrally situated.

MARKET FOR CANADIAN GRAIN.

Canadian Commercial Agent Sontum of Norway-Sweden, says that, as the result of the drought that has been common over Europe this season, there will be a heavy demand from all the Continental countries for grains and foodstuffs. Canadians ought to find a ready market and good price, therefore, for all they have to sell.

A prominent Norwegian business man reports that Canadian flour and wheat are already favorably looked upon by Norwegian buyers, and that Canadian mills, if properly represented during the coming season, ought to be able to take up a considerably larger part of Norwegian imports of grain.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Groceries.

Montreal, Aug. 25, 1904.

EVERYONE is busy. There is every prospect of a continuance of first-class trade from this time forward . The demand for all kinds of groceries is first rate, and collections from the country are reported equally good. The sugar market is very firm, centrifugals being quoted at 4½c in lots of 200 bags. Sales were made in New York at 4¼c, duty paid. The raw market is very strong with every prospect of continued stiffness for some time. Molasses is sagging somewhat ; cargo

J. M. DOUGLAS & CO.
MONTREAL
Estd. 1857. Manufacturers

lots are offering at 26c without many buyers. Tea is tame and featureless; prices have dropped considerably. In spices there is a tendency towards higher prices; slight advances have been established and there seems to be a shortage of finer grades. Black and white peppers are slightly higher in the foreign markets. For Zanzibar cloves the price is fluctuating, but the tendency is downward. Canary seed seems steady with a fair demand. Canned goods of nearly all kinds are scarce; corn and tomatoes being especially so. New salmon is particularly scarce. Foreign and dried fruits are becoming more active, and news from the countries of production is of the most encouraging character. In canned fruits a good spot business has been reported, which will help to clear off the old accumulations. A tendency for new season's goods is towards the advance. Immense shipments of pines have taken place, and it looks as if the market would be well stocked at the end of the season with fairly high-priced goods. Immense sales are taking place of green fruits at good prices, one large firm in Montreal having received seven carloads of California stock. This includes the first lot of Tokay grapes of the season. These grapes sold readily at $3.50 a box. Plenty of Canadian peaches, plums, pears, and watermelons are on the market, and are of excellent quality. A fancy grade of Japanese plums has been sold as high as $2.75. Delaware grapes are on the market at $3 a crate, and the Malagas are selling at $5.50 a keg. Fish of all kinds are scarce, it being now between seasons. Haddock is exceedingly high, and steak cod is very scarce, the reason assigned for it being the voracious dogfish of the fishing beds on the Maritime coast.

SUGAR.

Sugar is very strong and advancing. It is said that this is owing partly to the continuance of drought abroad. Brokers have shown no unnatural tendency to secure profits, and in the big markets sugar has fluctuated considerably. In some cases it has receded from the highest points touched. There is at present very little prospect of a setback in the value of actual sugar. American refiners have contributed some support to the European market by remaining firm. What has attracted considerable attention abroad is the relative cheapness of grocery crystalized. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The market is loaded up with molasses and quietness naturally rules. Offerings of fresh cargoes from Barbadoes have been frequent at 26c. A decided weakness characterizes the market. We quote:

COFFEE.

Coffee is firm and interesting, with unchanged prices. Sales are taking place abroad of the first of the new season's coffee, and as the quality is fairly good, although the bean is reported small, prices are expected to continue stiff. Statistics show that there has been an increase recently in the visible supply of the world of 15,540 tons. Such news is considered satisfactory, and it is supplemented by the reports of the quick marketing of the Santos crop, so that the whole market has been influenced favorably. At about the same period last year there was an increase for the corresponding month of 31,370 tons. Prospects are good for coffee. We quote:

TEA.

A general dulness characterizes the tea market, especially in Japan. Low grade Japans are away down. In India teas satisfactory crop reports have been received, conditions being generally favorable to a good growth. The output to date has been quite equal to, and, in some cases, in excess, of that of last season. In Ceylon teas the market remains firm, with a fair demand all around. Little business is doing in China teas, and there is no alteration to quote in the green market, which remains comparatively quiet. We quote:

CANNED GOODS.

Considerable uncertainty as to the new pack salmon seems to exist, and large transactions are uncommon, in fact, almost impossible. Valuations are not considered attractive for the trade to hold large stocks until the result of the pack is known. Tomatoes and corn are very scarce and in good demand. Tomatoes are now considered safe, as new stock will be in before many weeks. Salmon is particularly scarce; very little of it to be had at any price. Peas, beans, and early fruits are the only new pack goods available. Meats are selling a little slower. French sardines are reported very light in catch, in fact last week the catches were almost entirely absorbed by the fresh fish buyers, very few fish finding their way to the factories. A slight improvement in the fishing has been reported. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Messrs. Watt, Scott & Goodacre report as follows:

Our cables for the week place Mediterranean dried fruits and nuts, as to the present prospects, in three classes:—

I. Crops that promise a full average in quantity and quality are: Comadre figs, Smyrna figs, French prunes, Valencia raisins and Valencia almonds.

II. Crops of barely an average: Malaga raisins, Jordan almonds and Bordeaux walnuts.

III. Crops of comparative failure: Sultanas, currants, filberts, Tarragona almonds and Grenoble walnuts.

Vegetables.

The heavy rains of the past few days have changed the price of various vegetables. For instance mushrooms have dropped from 75c to 35c a pound. Celery is selling at 20c less than it was last week. Fish.

A general scarcity marks the fish market, and prices are high accordingly. Haddock is considered quite a luxury, and steak cod seems to be getting higher every day, having gone up one cent in price. Halibut remains firm at 12c, although certain grades are selling at 10c. Serious reports are brought in daily from the Maritime fishing grounds, regarding dog fish. Not only are these sea wolves destroying the fish, but they are stealing bait continually, thus acting as a dangerous menace to Canadian fisheries. We quote:

FLOUR.

Flour is very strong, owing to the continued strength in cereals generally. On August 20 the Ogilvie Milling Co. advanced flour to $5.50 for their best grade, Royal Household, and for Glenora Patents to $5.20. This being an advance of 10c in addition to the 20c advance of last week. It is anticipated that flour will continue still stronger and higher prices may be expected. We quote:

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special Correspondent of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Vancouver, August 18, 1904.

THE salmon season is now over, half than was ever known. Last with one of the poorest runs by year was supposed to have been the biggest failure, but this year the pack is less than half of what it was then. Merchants are considerably affected by a poor pack. When there is plenty of fish the employes of the canneries, numbering some thousands, spend between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 among the houses of this city and New Westminster, and in a season like the present it is just like so much money lost.

With the visit to Vancouver this week of Hon. Raymond Prefontaine, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, it is probable that we shall see the beginning of the end. He has promised in very definite terms that he will do his utmost to conserve and enlarge the fishing industry, and says it was for that express purpose he came west. Already instructions have been given for the erection of one Government hatchery, with a capacity for handling from 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 ova per season, at Harrison Lake. Another hatchery, equally large, is in prospect, but the site has not yet been decided upon. A close season will also be observed between August 25 and September 15, to enable salmon to reach the spawning beds. With this assistance, and proper care in the future, the fishing industry in the province will in a few years be perennially good.

Other fishery resources of the province, in addition to the halibut and salmon, will very likely be developed as a result of the visit of the Minister, who is making a very thorough personal inspection of the coast waters of the province.

Local market conditions are good. Up to last Monday there was an active trade with the Yukon, the endeavor being to get goods away so as to take advantage of the special commodity rates of the White Pass and Yukon Railway, which expired at midnight on that day. There have been one or two changes in quotations, though generally they are unchanged. Flour has gone up another 10c per barrel, making 30c in all, and is very firm at that. Sugar, however, notwithstanding the rise by eastern refineries, is still the same. Pepper is a little lower. Prices in the tea market are maintained. Rio coffees continue very cheap, but fine mild coffees are firm, the market being very strong.

Light stocks are prevalent in fruit, this being the time between the California season and that of Washington, and local centres. This condition, however, has brought no raise in prices. Peaches are scarce, with a good demand for the preserving article, which is not yet in the market. The supply of local apples is of good quality, and goes from 75c to $1.25 per box. Shipments of tomatoes from Kamloops have declined the price of the hot house variety which have held the first place. Last week they were $1.75, and now are $1 to $1.25.

A feature of the vegetable market is the large shipments of potatoes to Dawson. They are selling at $24 per ton.

Very favorable reports have been received relative to the appreciation of the British Columbia fruit exhibit at the Dominion Fair at Winnipeg this Summer. The display did a great deal to show what can be produced in this province, and was also shown at the Brandon Exhibition, before being shipped to England to be placed in the office of the agent-general in London. R. M. Palmer, freight rates commissioner of the Government, had charge of the exhibit, and supplied information in relation thereto.

Smoked meats have advanced several cents in the Dawson market, the cause being the Chicago strike.

New hay is being shipped in freely and the quotation is down a dollar a ton, being now $15. Bran and shorts are also $1 lower, namely, $24 and $26.

The Valkyrie Packing Co. has been organized as a limited company, with a capital of $25,000, to acquire the business of the Valkyrie Packing Co. at Gabriola Pass, B. C., as a going concern, and to carry on the business of fish and fruit packers and canners in all its branches.

Very large shipments of flour are being made from Puget Sound ports to the Orient, the Tremont taking last week 14,250,000 lbs. About two-thirds of it goes to Japan.

No sailing vessels will be chartered to take the salmon pack to England hereafter. It will be shipped on the big round the world steamers of the China Mutual and Ocean Steamship Lines, which now call monthly at British Columbia ports. This route will save time and will be cheaper.

Commercial men report that the prospect for an immediate improvement in trade conditions with Japan is poor. They have had good crops, and the fishing season has been excellent.

Live stock shipments to the north are still brisk. One of the largest cargoes ever taken out of Vancouver was last week on the hulk Henriette, when she had 208 steers, 35 hogs, and 608 sheep, the entire lot being consigned to the Dawson market.

A chicken-fattening station, to be established by the Dominion Government, will be of assistance here, where large quantities of poultry are raised.

A new creamery at Port Hammond, on the Fraser River, is of great benefit to the farmers in that locality.

The British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association held its annual meeting in Nelson this week, and was well attended and very profitable.

Shipments of maize to British Columbia from Australia are increasing, 3,000 sacks having been brought in on the last steamer.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,

St. John, N. B., August, 1904.

THE Maritime Board of Trade, which met last week at Moncton, greatly appreciated the effort of The Canadian Grocer to get a full and correct report of their meeting, sending, as they did, one of their head men to Moncton for this purpose. Mr. Gillies made many friends, and from a personal standpoint his presence was greatly appreciated. This enterprise is not, however, a new thing, as for several years The Grocer has been represented at these annual meetings, Mr. Edmonds being sometimes present, regarding whom Mr. Gillies had to answer many inquiries from personal friends of Mr. W. L. Edmonds, managing editor of the MacLean Publishing Co., who has formerly been present. A full report of the meeting is to be found in another part of this issue.

In business the present is rather a quiet season. Fall business, however, must soon begin. Markets in general are firm. This is particularly true of flour, which already shows considerable advance. Fish, an important factor in the business of the Maritime Provinces, continues scarce and high. Cream of tartar is firm and already shows some advance from lowest point. The success of our exhibition next month is assured. There is even now little or no space left for exhibits.

Oil.

Fall orders for burning oil have all been booked. Trade has been large, present prices being considered low. Lubricating oils show a fair business, prices are unchanged. Linseed oil is firm. In fish oil the market seems unsettled, with the appearance of a determined effort to bear the market.

Salt.

In Liverpool coarse salt, while there is a large stock values are firmly held, prices being very firm on the other side. Liverpool factory filled but a limited sale. In Canadian fine a continued good business has been done.

Canned Goods.

Outside packers continue to offer vegetables and fruits below association prices. There is a good volume of business being done. While vegetables are firm, with the arrival of new goods prices tend to become lower. Strawberries will be short. Salmon is very firm and higher priced; goods are likely to be short delivery. Meats are unchanged. In lobsters there is a short pack. Owing to a better run of sardine herring, the outlook for this industry is brighter. In all domestic fish full values are likely to rule.

Green Fruits.

Dealers are inclined to complain. Apples which are now being freely received are not in as brisk demand as usual at this season. Good New Brunswick apples are now seen on the market, and the crop is reported a good one. American apples continue high. In oranges and lemons, while high prices rule, there is a good steady sale. Melons are dull. Georgia peaches have a steady sale. In California pears there is a large demand and prices rule rather higher. Nice plums are being offered. Peaches are but fairly popular. Tomatoes are lower.

Dried Fruits.

The low prices of California loose and seeded raisins tend to confine business to these lines; the more so as the consumer seems to demand fewer Valencia layers and Malaga layer fruit each year. The low price of prunes has tended to a large sale. In Valencia raisins it is expected first shipments are just being made. Prices are likely to rule below last season's. Currants are firm and low prices are not expected. Dates continue low. Figs are firm at full figures. Peels are lower this year, there being increased competition and a wide range in the prices of English shippers. Evaporated apples show a light sale, and the market is firm. New Valencia onions are offering low.

Sugar.

The market is very firm at the higher figures quoted. Dealers carry large stocks, looking for higher prices.

Molasses.

The demand is rather quiet at present. There is a large stock of Porto Rico molasses held. In Barbadoes molasses the stock is light.

Fish.

In fresh fish the market is very poorly supplied. In dry fish high prices rule. Even if lower prices should be quoted it is expected values will be much higher than usual. Pickled and smoked herring, for which there is a large Fall demand, particularly for pickeled herring, are very high. There is practically no pickled shad.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

In flour there is continued advance and market is very firm. Sales are good. Feed is not freely offered. Oats can only be bought with difficulty, the stock is small. Oatmeal is firm at full prices. Beans are reported higher; the local market, however, has been very dull. There are light stocks of barley and split peas. The crop of hay will be light.

McWilliam & Everist, Toronto, are expecting the arrival of one car of late Valencia oranges, one car of fancy Missouri watermelons, one car of fancy late California Valencias, and also some smooth Cayenne pineapples.

Fresh and Cured Fish

Dog Fish or Miniature Shark.

THERE are two species of dog fish, namely horned and smooth. Horned dog fish live on other fish; smooth on crabs and lobsters. They usually frequent the coast of Nova Scotia from July to November. A species of dog fish is also found in fresh water, but this varies from sea dog fish. Dog fish proper are rarely more than four or five feet long, and more frequently are from two to three feet long. There are no less than nine or ten kinds of dog fish on the North Atlantic coast of this continent, the most common of which are called spring dog fish.

The great source of danger from these fish is that they exhaust the food supply in limited areas thus driving away the fish, owing to which cod and other fish are compelled to move from place to place in search of food, causing the fishermen a great deal of trouble. Some species produce living young, and it is said that where one per cent. of codfish survive 100 per cent. of dog fish survive. They damage the fishermen's nets and gear, often taking the hook and bait. They are rarely secured by the hook piercing their jaw as they suck it down gulping it into their throats.

Owing to a very heavy demand of codfish from abroad, and receipts being of a limited character, prices are very firm and as soon as the heavy demand for this food diet starts higher prices are looked for.

Pickled cured codfish are becoming more and more every day a staple article of diet and Canadian people in inland cities are gradually coming to know the value of this fish.

In the value of sea fish taken from Canadian waters codfish rank second, (value $4,000,000) the greater portion of which is taken out of the coast of Nova Scotia.

New Fishery Cruiser for Canada.

It will be remembered that about a month ago, a special crew was dispatched from Canada to the Old Country to bring over the new fishery protection cruiser named "Canada." She was launched last June, and left the Vickers-Maxims yard on August 18, for the Dominion. Her trial trips were completed to the entire satisfaction of the authorities. In order to insure the best results, the builders aimed at obtaining a speed of 17 1-4 knots, so that under the very worst conditions she will always be able to maintain the contract speed of 16 knots. Thus offenders against the fishery laws in the Maritime Provinces, or the St. Lawrence will not have much chance of escaping this swift-going boat. She is described as a smart-looking craft, the ram bow, rakish masts and funnel giving the suggestions of strength and speed. She will arrive in Halifax about August 27.

The Canso Experiment.

The steam drifter "Thirty Three" is not having much success in securing herring. In the last few weeks a few barrels only have been secured. Still Mr. Cowie is confident that he will secure enough herring to demonstrate the advantage of the Scotch method of curing. He hopes that the herring will be more plentiful later on. The intention is to put up, if possible, one thousand barrels and a like number of half barrels. The Nova Scotia fishermen also report no great quantity of herring, but still fair quantities have been taken from time to time in the traps along the coast.

Canadian Herring for Russia.

John Cowie, Scotch expert in charge of the Canadian Government herring curing experimental station at Canso, has just received returns of a trial shipment to St. Petersburg, which ensure the success of the employment of Scotch methods in curing Nova Scotia herring. A shipment of fifty packages of herring, caught near Canso, were sent to the Russian capital, and proved high-class fish, and realized prices as high as the best Scotch herring.

A previous shipment to New York brought eleven to thirteen dollars per barrel, twice as much as ordinary Nova Scotia herring command in the same market. The herring cured at Canso are equal to the best Scotch fish, but the Scotch fishermen have not been very successful in catching fish. This is partly due to the small size of the nets used in the steam shifter "33," brought from England, and partly to the absence of any record of the movements of the herring at the Atlantic coast. In order to give the experiment a fair trial the operations at Canso will be continued for three years, and it is probable the Canadian Government will purchase the "33" and equip her with nets better suited to our coast fishing. The steamer will cost about $15,000. It is believed that an enormous trade in Scotch-cured herring can be built up in Russia.

Japanese Oysters.

It may be news to readers of The Grocer to know that Japan leads the world in oyster culture. The industry is centered in the Inland Sea, which is considered by many the most important natural preserve of fish and shellfish in the world. There are three kinds of Japanese oysters. There is a small dwarfed salt water variety which is abundant along the southern and eastern coast of Japan. It is the most abundant of all the species. In actual size this oyster is rarely larger than one's finger nail, but its flavor makes amends for its tiny proportions.

The second variety is the important one, from a commercial point of view. Although not large, it averages the size of a Blue Point, and is the kind with which experiments are being made in Puget Sound. The oyster itself is cream colored, and is found in abundance throughout the Inland Sea. It thrives best in bays well tempered by fresh water. The third type of Japanese oyster is of a large size, specimens weighing as much as five pounds being not infrequent. Little value is placed on this oyster and no attempt is made to cultivate if for the market.

Because of the failure to plant Long Island oysters successfully in Puget Sound, they are now trying the Japanese oyster with prospects of success.

Fish Notes.

A new fisheries cruiser is being mooted for the coast service of British Columbia.

By October or early in November Nova Scotia will have a first-class cold-storage building at Canso for the preservation of fish bait, which will be one of the largest cold-storage plants in Canada. It is expected the building and plant will cost when completed between $40,000 and $50,000.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, August 19, 1904.

THE most glowing reports are now circulating pertaining to the splendid and prospective condition of the grain. In some parts of the country it is so far advanced that cutting has already commenced, and it is now only a matter of a few weeks before threshing will be general throughout the Northwest.

All markets are steady, with the exception of flour, which has again advanced 10c.

Sugar—The market is now steady with prices firm, quoting: Montreal granulated at $5.25 per barrel, and $5.15 per sack; yellows, $4.65. Wallaceburg the market quotes at $5.15 in barrels and $5.05 in sacks.

Flour—For the past few weeks flour has been on the advance, and this week again the market calls flour to the upward turn of 10c all around, quoting No. 1 patent at $2.65, No. 2 at $2.45, No. 3 at $1.90.

Canned Fruits—The market at present is rather unsteady owing to the fact that all lines of new stock are not available as yet. Canned strawberries the market quotes at $3.25 per case, and the new stock of raspberries, which will be on the market in the course of a few days, will be quoted at $3 per case.

Canned Vegetables—The market is firm in all lines, and prices are generally well maintained. New stock canned beans are now on the market and are quoted at $1.80 to $1.90 per case. Canned peas are also available, which the market is quoting at $1.90 per case.

Rolled Oats—The market is firm and prices steady, quoting 80-lb. sacks at $2.25; 40-lb. sacks at $2.30; 30-lb. sacks at $2.35; 8-lb. sacks at $2.65, and 6-lb. sacks at $2.85.

Cornmeal—The market has now advanced slightly all around, quoting cornmeal at $1.80 per sack and 90c per ½ sack.

Coffee—The market now quotes No. 5 green Rio, good quality, at 10¼c to 10½c per lb.

Evaporated and Dried Fruits — The market is firm, but all kinds of evaporated fruits are scarce. New stock of evaporated apples will be on the market about November 1. Evaporated apricots, 1904 stock, choice quality, are quoted at 13½c per lb. Currants are slowly advancing owing to the smallness of the crop in Greece effected by an unusual amount of wet weather.

Green Fruits—The market is fairly firm. Oranges are quoted at $5 per case. California lemons, $5 per case; bananas, $2.75 to $3 a bunch; peaches, $1.35 per crate, but they are at present rather scarce. Pears, $2.50 per crate; California plums, $2 per crate; Washington plums, $1.50 per crate; watermelons, $4 per doz.; Washington apples, $2 per box; American apples, $5 per barrel; Ontario apples, which will be on the market in a few days, will be quoted at $3.50 per barrel.

Canned Fish—The market at present is firm, but as the run will be very light this year we may expect an advance in salmon. The market is now quoting sockeye salmon, one to five cases, at $6.75 to $7 per case; cohoes at $5.10 to $5.25 per case, and humpbacks at $3.65 to $3.75 per case.

FRAUDULENT OLIVE OIL.

A FRENCH grocers' syndicate or association seems to have done a useful work in exposing a number of so-called olive plantation owners in the Bouches-du-Rhone department of France, who for some time past have been pushing the "direct supply" business in "pure olive oil." As consumers were being extensively circularised and urged to "save money by purchasing direct of the producer, thus abolishing intermediary profits," the grocers' syndicate procured (through a member) samples of the "pure" olive oil from three producers, and, as the result of analyses an action was brought. It transpired that of the three samples analysed one contained 30 per cent. of arachis oil, the second contained 50 per cent. of cotton oil, and the third 40 per cent. of arachis oil. Seed oil, which is, of course, only worth about half as much as oilve oil, figured prominently in the composition of this oil. It also came to light during the hearing—and the fact will hardly advance the "producer-to-consumer" cause—that a number of producers in the Salon District sell nothing else but seed oil (made at Marseilles or Salon), purporting to have issued from their own olive oil plantations. Others of these fraudulent individuals have even characterized themselves as "olive oil manufacturers of Nice," whilst in reality the extent to which they are established in that city consists, so it was stated at the hearing, in having a letter-box there for the reception of their correspondence. It is satisfactory to note that each of the defendants was mulcted in fines and costs, and, at the request of counsel watching the case on behalf of the grocers' syndicate, the judgment was inserted in five newspapers. —London Grocer of August 6.

FIRST SEASON'S WHEAT SHIPPED.

Great interest is being taken all over the British Empire in the new wheat crop of the Canadian Northwest. Only this week The Grocer was cabled from Liverpool regarding the Manitoba crop. This came from a daily paper, shewing the urgent anxiety with which Britishers and Europeans generally are watching Canada. What has gone across the wires there will go elsewhere to the four corners of the globe, telling that the crops are fifteen millions of bushels larger than last year. It could say, also, that the first cargo of this season's wheat crop was shipped from Napinka, Manitoba, to Winnipeg, on August 19. It was consigned to the Ogilvie Milling Co., and was shipped one day ahead of last year's first crop. The new wheat when graded by the inspectors, gave a mark of "No. 1 Northern," which promises well for the season's rating.

A LARGE SHIPMENT OF FLOUR.

Probably the largest shipment of flour ever made in the history of Canada is being made from Montreal by the Ogilvie Milling Co. They are shipping 65,000 barrels of Royal Household flour to St. John's, Nfld., via the Black Diamond steamers. The flour is all to be delivered within two months. J. E. Cookson, agent of the steamship line, stated that if it had to be all shipped at once it would take more than their entire fleet to carry the flour. At least seven or eight ordinary steamers would be required, provided each was loaded with its usual cargo, namely, about two-thirds, flour, and the rest other things. All this flour will go from one mill, the Ogilvie mill in Montreal. It is very gratifying to note that the Canadians have superseded the Americans in the Newfoundland trade. In fact it is Canadian mills which supply about all the flour consumed on that island at the present time.

PASSING OF BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY.

The Wiarton beet sugar factory has passed into the hands of the shareholders of the industry, thus realizing the sum of $150,000. It is thought that the factory cannot be moved from Wiarton until the claims of the town against this concern are settled in some way. There is talk of an American company being formed to continue the industry.

CANADA-AUSTRALIAN TRADE.

Advices from the Canadian commercia agent at Melbourne indicate that Australian wine growers are about to attempt to secure a share of the wine trade of the Dominion for the produce of the vineyards of the commonwealth. A sample shipment of wines will arrive in Vancouver on the next steamer from Australia.

Australian enterprise is also being moved in the direction of exporting salt to Canada, and a shipment will arrive here shortly.

PERSONAL MENTION.

A party made up from Winnipeg members of the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, city bakers and grain men from St. Louis, Chicago and Minneapolis, left Winnipeg on Saturday, August 20, for a trip of inspection through the wheat fields of Manitoba.

BRANDS MUST BE ADVERTISED.

Some important news has reached the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, from A. MacLean, Canadian Commercial Agent in Japan. He states that an importer who was handling Canadian flour in Japan, said that he had tried to introduce Canadian milk, but the duty of 90 sen (45 cents) on 24 lbs. was one of the drawbacks to his being able to put the milk on the market. Mr. MacLean thinks that to introduce Canadian milk the brand, or brands, will have to be thoroughly advertised, and if need be, sold at a loss for some time, until the brand and quality become known. If the manufacturers are willing to spend some money in advertising their milk to introduce it their goods will find sale. In any case a new brand on the market must have, and maintain good quality, and must be prepared so as to stand the climate. No complaint is more often heard from importers, than that of failure to keep up the quality after the sample, or first shipments have been made the basis of a business connection.

COLD STORAGE.

APPRECIATIVE remarks are often heard as to the advantages of cold storage, and there is no doubt that, generally speaking, it is a tremendous boon, for it steadies prices and often relieves the intensity of a glut. Much money has been made by speculators by the cold storing of butter, and much has also been lost. But how fares the ordinary retail grocer in regard to cold-stored goods ? says London, Eng., Grocer. We are probably correct in saying that there are very few grocers who have not at some time or other suffered through unwittingly buying cold-stored butter. To the credit of the wholesalers generally, they are now as a rule most willing to tell buyers whether the goods they are offering have been in a store or not; but there are some who act differently. They argue that the grocer uses his judgment in buying the butter, and ought to stand the consequences, although he has bought the butter believing it to be strictly fresh. Such butter, of course, goes rapidly "off" when exposed for sale, and the worry and annoyance the grocer suffers from complaining retail customers prevent his forgetting in a hurry the firm who thus served him. Butter sometimes arrives like kegs and boxes of oil; this is mostly caused by the heat of Summer, but is also partly due to faulty manufacture. It is sent into cold-store to give some sort of stiffness to it until it can be sold to the shopkeeper. When in the grocer's shop it speedily relapses into its oily condition, and quickly deteriorates; it is then the grocer discovers that he has paid a bit too much for it. When prices begin to advance the cold stores are drawn upon for supplies, and the retailer needs to be very cautious. That particular time has just about arrived.

How to Increase and Maintain Canadian Trade

Ship the Goods Ordered.

IT won't do because it may be more convenient to substitute "something just as good" for the articles ordered. No changes should be made even for the better without the consent of the buyer. The change may not be an improvement in Australia.

Invoice as Advised.

Importers frequently require invoices to be made to suit their business methods. Hence the importance of getting instructions on this point with the order. Two points must always be observed: The invoice must specifically show the exact contents of each case, where there is more than one, and must conform to the custom regulations. In Australia the manufacture price must be set down and the charge for packing, inland freight or other extras show as separate items. If the goods are destined for New Zealand and come within the provisions of the preferential tariff the invoice must comply with its provisions as given in my report for January and February. (See Weekly Nos. 3 and 9.)

Ship as Ordered.

Observe the time specified. The Australian buyer orders to meet his requirements, and if the agent is an intelligent one, sufficient time is given to execute it. If the goods come six or nine months later, the buyer's trade is injured by his inability to supply his customers. Goods are frequently ordered in a regular trade to come in monthly shipments in the order set forth. The exporter delays No. 1 and No. 2, and then sends the three lots in one ship. The result here is that the buyer's trade is hampered by the delay; his finances are disarranged by having to provide for the payment at one time of three times the amount anticipated; his warehouse capacity is insufficient to store and his staff to handle the accumulation.

Ship by Route Ordered.

Only specially strong reasons should cause any change in the route set down in the order. The freight question should receive special study, and the buyer will be grateful for advantage gained for him in this way, but, if possible, he should be consulted before making the change. Some Canadian exporters have caused annoyance, and in one or two instances loss of trade, by following some advice received in Canada and changing the method of shipment without consulting their customers.

In every case, and particularly in Atlantic port shipments, the consignee should be promptly advised of the ship on which the goods have been placed and the date of its departure.

Packing.

The package sufficient for carriage a hundred miles by rail is not good enough for sixteen thousand miles by sea and land. Much more attention must be given to this branch of the export business than the average Canadian firm has given to it. The following must be kept in view:

The package must carry the goods securely.

The packing must conform to customs regulations.

The contents must be exactly as specified in the invoice.

Economy must be observed in the cost of package and in securing lowest freight.

Freight by rail is per pound, by ship, per cubic foot, measured over all. Hence the case should be as light as is consistent with security, and, if possible, all strengthening of the corners should be inside, and not outside of it.

Drafts.

Where goods are payable by drafts on the Australian consignee, he should be invariably notified of the Australian bank which is to present it. Particularly is this necessary where the bills of lading accompany the draft. The drafts should be made as stipulated. Thirty days from date is nearly equivalent to thirty days sight in Canada, but it is thirty days or more sooner in a draft on Australia, and buyers do not care to be asked to pay for goods a month sooner than they agreed to do. When it is arranged that the draft is to be paid thirty or sixty days from sight, and the bills of lading are attached to the draft, it must be remembered that the bank will hold the documents until the draft is paid, unless specially instructed to give them up upon acceptance of the draft.

In case the documents are held, the arrangement that the buyer should have thirty or sixty days after receiving the goods before he has to pay for them is defeated. It must be a part of the bargain whether the buyer or seller pays the exchange. In the former case the draft should be made with exchange added.

First Orders.

For reasons already stated, first orders will probably be small, but they are none the less important on that account, for by the method of their execution both the goods and the exporting firm will be judged, and if it is badly done, it will be difficult to get an opportunity for a second experiment.

These may seem to be very elementary conditions, but the non-observance of them is amongst the chief hindrances to the extension of Canadian trade in Australasia. There may be more than two Canadian firms doing business here who have reasonably observed these requirements, but I am unable to recall them.

Some Incidents.

Considerable time ago I endeavored to induce a business man, who mainly obtained his machines from Germany, to try Canadian goods. He replied: "I should like to do so, could I get the business done satisfactorily, but somehow in every experiment I have made something has gone wrong. The Germans do what I ask them and make no mistakes." Some months ago he ordered a sample machine from Canada, intending, if it were satisfactory, to order a supply for the next season's trade. After some delay, he received information that the machine had gone forward, but when it was shipped, or how it was shipped, and where it is now, he has no information, and the season is now nearly over.

Should be Well Done.

I have paid attention to what may appear to be these smaller matters, rather than to the greater questions, because it is of the first importance that the trade Canada is undertaking to do should be done well. The larger questions will require time and perhaps improved conditions to bring them about, but the lesser ones can be adopted at once by every one who wishes to do a trade with Australia. The fact that by right methods a single Canadian firm has been able to secure one-half of all the import trade in agricultural machinery should indicate what others may do by using similar means.

GREEN FRUITS

Canadian Fruit Crops.

FALL apples in Ontario will be plentiful, although the outlook for Winter apples is not so good. Peaches are coming in fairly well, but the crop is under the average, and about the time there is usually a slump in prices this season's crop will have been exhausted. Pears are a fair to full crop, while grapes will be a poor yield owing to the prevalence of Peninsula black rot. Black currants are proving plentiful although reds have been rather scarce.

Detailed reports from different parts of the Province of Quebec show that the apple crop will likely be an average one. There will be a medium to full crop of Fall apples, while the Winter varieties may be described as light to medium. Very few insects have invaded the orchards, and fungus diseases have been comparatively rare. Some signs of moths may result in harm. Plums and kindred fruits are not nearly so strong as at first anticipated; the grape crop will be comparatively good. Cherries and currants have yielded abundantly and other froits are very hopeful indeed all over the Province.

A generalized summary of reports received from correspondents in the Maritime Provinces would seem to indicate prospects fairly good in New Brunswick and just fair in Nova Scotia, while Prince Edward Island is likely to experience another of those "off years."

One Nova Scotia correspondent says: "The prospect for 1904 apple crop in Nova Scotia is not nearly so good as last season. The quantity will fall far short of last year, and, as black spot has not only made its appearance, but from present indications will render a good deal of early fruit impracticable to ship across the water, orchardists will not realize an average year no matter what the conditions are elsewhere; late fruit is also spotted to a considerable extent and few orchards will be able to ship clean Fall or Winter fruit. Sprayed orchards seem to give the best showing, but even they in most cases are not clear of the spot. Orchards have never been cared for so well, both as to fertilization and cultivation, as this season, so that the cold wet weather of early June must be blamed for the outlook now. Pears are a short crop, so also are plums. The crop may be estimated as follows: Apples—600,000 barrels; quantities of each variety, Baldwin, 140,000; King, 99,000; Ribston, 70,000; Nonpareil, 80,000; Golden Russett, 70,000; balance, of all other varieties. Black spot and blight are developing on Gravensteins and some others, which may materially reduce this estimate. Plums, about 50 per cent. of crop; pears, 40 per cent.; peaches, 30 per cent.; strawberries, 50 per cent.; small fruits, 75 per cent. to 100 per cent."

A New Brunswick correspondent says: "Blackberries, raspberries and all wild fruits are abundant; currants and gooseberries are an average crop; plums and cherries are an average crop. Apples—Duchess, Peach, Fameuse, Yellow Transparent and New Brunswickers are an abundant crop. Red Astrachan, Ben Davis, and nearly all the grafted trees have very few apples on them; seedlings that bore last year have no apples this year, others a few."

A correspondent from Prince Edward writes concerning the fruit crop of his province that "owing to the very dry season it can only be medium. Early apples have set well and to all appearances will be up to the standard, a full crop. Later Winter are not so good, being only about 25 per cent. of a crop. The apple trees appear to be suffering from the very dry weather. Pears, though having a fine bloom, have set very little fruit, only a sample here and there representing this delicious fruit. Plums and gages make a splendid show at present. The trees, through the foliage being poor at first of season, after the hard Winter may possibly give about 75 per cent. of a crop. Red currants, white currants and gooseberries will be about half a crop. Black currants a small yield, some of the fruit set falling off the bushes before maturing. The very cold weather of the past Winter has had a very injurious effect on the orchard, followed by a dry Summer, some young trees almost drying out."

Vegetables Under Glass.

A prominent farmer from Leamington, Ont., says the growing of early vegetables is becoming an increasingly important and profitable industry in Essex County. The successful growing of vegetables under glass in February and March is an accomplished fact, which, if increased, will undoubtedly result in the inauguration of successful competition with the early vegetables imported from the United States.

A representative of The Grocer interviewed a successful farmer and market gardener in Western Ontario on the subject, and learned that he had already made preparations to try early vegetable growing as an experiment. He saw no reason why the vegetable trade of his vicinity should not be in the hands of local growers entirely. It was an anomaly, to say the least, to see imported tomatoes selling at a fancy price throughout the country when Canadian farmers and market gardeners might be supplying enough to fulfill all requirements.

Apple Shipments.

The following figures represent in barrels apple shipments from principal North American ports for the week ending August 20, 1904 :

	Liverpool.	Glasgow.	London.	Total.

British Apple Crop.

Woodall and Co., of Liverpool, give the following comparative figures of the apple crop in the United Kingdom, from which it is likely to exceed any since 1900. The quality also promises to be good :

	Over Average.	Average.	Under Average.
This year	128	109	15
Last year	2	17	248
Year 1902	12	98	184
Year 1901	15	90	163
Year 1900	148	138	16

The total imports from the United States and Canada into the United Kingdom during the past season were 3,053,000 barrels, as against 2,330,000 barrels in the preceding year, constituting a record ; the previous largest import (in 1896-7) being 2,937,000 barrels.

SPECIAL NOTICE to the TRADE.

IN a previous issue of the Grocer we called the attention of the Trade to our very tender Sugar Pea. We now beg to call their attention to another line of peas which we believe to be first-class value. We refer to our brand "Midget" Peas. This is a pea just one grade larger than Petit Pois, and is selected from what is the most tender peas in the entire pack. It can be retailed at ten cents at any point in Ontario where the freight rates are only ordinary. As a straight ten cent line we believe it the best value to the consumer of any pea we pack. We finished packing peas on the 30th July, and all through the pack the weather was perfect for packing peas, cool and moist, so that the raw material was kept in fine condition. Taking the pack as a whole, we have every reason to believe it is the finest in quality that we have ever packed.

Conditions of Grain Crops.

THE following are the latest estimates of the Ontario grain crops for the current year. issued by the Department of Agriculture:

Fall Wheat—This year shows a further reduction of sixty thousand acres. The estimated yield this year is 16.2 bushels per acre as against 25.9 in 1903, and is 4.3 bushels below the average of the past twenty-two years. The total yield is 9,827,760 bushels as against 17,242,763 in 1903. The area of fall wheat plowed up totalled 189,274 acres, or nearly 24 per cent. of the area sown.

Spring Wheat—There is a decrease this year of twenty-three thousand acres. The estimated yield is 18.5 bushels per acre as against 18.7 in 1903, and is 2.7 above the average. The total yield is 4,165,735 bushels as against 4,650,707 in 1903.

Barley—This crop snows an increase of sixty-three thousand acres, the estimated yield being 32.5 bushels per acre as against 21.9 in 1903, and is 1.8 push-the average. The total yield is 25,136,635 bushels, and 24,378,817 in 1903.

Oats—An increase of sixteen thousand acres is shown for oats. The estimated yield this year is 39.3 bushels per acre as against 41.6 in 1903, and is 3.7 above the average. The total yield is 104,459,461 bushels, as against 109,874,053 in 1903.

Rye—Rye shows a reduction of forty-nine thousand acres. The estimated yield this year is 16.1 bushels per acre as against 16.6 in 1903, and is slightly below the average. The total yield in 1904 is 2,099,946 bushels as against 2,970,760 in 1903.

Peas—This crop shows a reduction of sixty-seven thousand acres. The estimated yield is 31.2 bushels per acre a sagainst 21.9 in 1903, and is 1.8 bushels above the average. The total yield is 7,177,786 bushels as against 8,924,650 in 1903.

Corn (for husking)—329,882 acres; corn for silo, 193,115 acres; buckwheat, 100,608 acres.

Latest C.P.R. crop reports continue to hold to the hopeful tone which has characterized them so far throughout the season. Regarding the alleged damage from rust and smut, which has been such a factor in the grain reports from the Dakotas, there are actually very few points where rust has been found at all and in these the trouble is comparatively insignificant.

A prominent American grain man, however, who has been making a trip through the Province for the purpose of investigating crop conditions there, reports the presence of rust and says the next week or ten days will tell what the actual damage will be. Certain authorities in turn claim that the latter report is nothing but a ruse to help the bull movement, and that the damage from rust has been grossly exaggerated. Some of these stories are attributed to United States land and railway companies, which desire to turn the ever-increasing flow of immigration back from the Canadian West.

Latest reports from the West say that rust is prevalent in certain districts, but in most cases the grain is too far advanced to be damaged to any extent.

The likelihood is that is conditions continue favorable Manitoba and the Territories will have a bumper yield of wheat. Even the most conservative estimates which place the total yield at about the same as last year have taken into consideration the fact that the late wheat will be affected by frost. Cutting will be general in all parts of the Territories and Manitoba by the end of the present week. The percentage yield, as estimated at the present time, runs from 20 to 25 bushels to the acre with a good sample of grain.

There is practically no change in the situation across the line since last report. On account of the recent severe drought in the United States, the American Government has forbidden the exportation of barley, maize and all other kinds of fresh and dried fodder until further notice.

A speculative frenzy has attacked the produce exchanges of the United States on the assumption that the United States Spring wheat crop is half ruined by black rust. It is asserted in well informed quarters that the damage has been enormously and wilfully exaggerated by professionals. These speculators have been helped by the bad outturn of crops in many European countries so far. The Baltic has done little to encourage the rise in American prices, believing that like last year Europe may be able to dispense with American wheat, for the prospects in Canada are excellent. Russia is harvesting a fair crop, Australia, India and Argentina are shipping liberally, and the prospects for the next crop in these countries are promising.

Flour Trade in Japan.

(By A. MacLean. Canadian Commercial Agent at Yokohama, Japan.

THE quality of flour used mostly in Japan is the grade known in the trade as "straight." Fancy grades are not used to any extent. The supply at present comes principally from the American Pacific coast States. Such brands as are used here a great deal are the Red Cherry, Yellow Cherry, Marble, Lion, Best Everett, White Navy, Queen, Centennial Best, Gold Drop, Portland, Sterling, California (Brown Bear XXX), Baker's Best, Dragon, Crown, Blue Seal. Generally each importer has his own special brand, and his brand is sold to him exclusively, although the same flour may be put up under other brands for other dealers. There is thus no competition in any one brand, but each brand competes against all others. The idea is to prevent undue competition, or the cutting of prices.

Uses of Flour in Japan.

Flour with a large percentage of starch has the greater demand. This quality is used in the manufacture of macaroni, vermicelli, and certain kinds of Japanese cakes which are cooked by the steaming process. The Japanese are not as yet great bread consumers, their use of bread corresponds to our use of rice, mostly as a side dish, or extra, or resembles some other ready-for-serving cereals, and is made mainly from wheat. It differs, however, from all other cereals in certain important details, which give it distinction and superiority. The flavor is very marked, and the large tasty flakes provoke a greater appetite. It is this fact of large consumption that has a significance to the grocer—the more consumed the more frequent the sales, and, of course, the profit is multiplied.

between meals. Their staple food is rice; and the consumption of cakes, macaroni and vermicelli is comparatively large.

Since machines (native makes) have been introduced for the manufacture of macaroni and vermicille, the use of flour for such food has increased considerably, and where formerly only native flour has been used in the manufacture, the demand has exceeded the supply and they have been compelled to use foreign flour, and as year by year the demand for this food increases the amount of flour consumed must increase and if flour is not imported then wheat must be; the Japanese are preparing to grind considerable flour.

Prices.

Within the last six weeks prices have dropped about 20 sen (10 cents) per quarter sack on account of the good crop of wheat and barley harvested here this season. The acreage of wheat planted decreased considerably this year, because barley was selling at about 10 per cent. higher prices than wheat, last year; nevertheless the crop was about equal to that of a normal year regardless of the smaller acreage.

American flour is selling at prices ranging from Yen 1.65 (86 cents) to Yen 2.65 ($1.33) per quarter sack of 49 pounds at present, and as large stocks are on hand, and as the Government is not buying, the present outlook is not satisfactory, it being difficult to move stocks at present.

There will be an increase of duty, beginning October 1 of .247 sen (.124 cents) per 133 pounds, the present rate of duty is .456 sen (.228 cents) per 133 pounds, and when the new duty comes into force the duty will be .703 sen (.352 cents) per 133 pounds, an increase of 54 1-2 per cent. of duty, whereas the duty on wheat does not change.

All flour shipped here must be put up into 40 pound sacks, which is the equivalent of a quarter barrel.

Methods of Introducing Flour.

Several dealers here suggest the shipment to this market of 50 to 100 sacks of 24 1-2 pounds each as a trial sample, to be distributed to reliable bakers through reliable dealers in order to a fair trial, the effect of which would be the creation of a demand which might be confidently expected to increase if nursed and kept regularly supplied. Some American firms have sent out small consignments to introduce their flour, usually about 50 bags or so of 49 pounds each.

A great deal of speculation has been done on the strength of the war, and use of flour in the army and navy, but the Government is not buying any flour at present.

Several bakers and dealers here suggest the establishment of a supply house for Canadian goods generally, such as flour, fruits, butter, etc., so that demand could be promptly supplied direct from stock. The expenses for premises and attendance, small at first, to be increased only as required. Some of the bakers say that they are unable to get from Canadian flour more bread to the pound, and others that they are able to get a trifle more—some say as much as 15 per cent more—than from American flour. Statements of this kind usually depend upon the disposition of the deponent, rather than upon his experience.

Difference Against Canadian Flour.

A leading baker says that at present the difference against Canadian flour averages Yen 1.00 (50 cents) per four bags (bbl.), so that he is unable to use it, except for fancy baking; but, with prices and quality on a par with American, he could use it largely where he at present uses only the American article. I have a sample labelled "Hard Wheat Flour," ($3.80 c.i.f.), received on the way out here, and described as "Special for export to Japan." Perhaps this points the way in which this market might be successfully approached. It looks like a movement by the miller to make an article that will suit the market, instead of expecting the market to adapt itself to the miller. Doubtless, flour from Manitoba No. 1 hard cannot come down to the level of Oregon, California, and Kansas City flour; but if ordinary business methods be applied to the situation, "No. 1 hard" could be introduced. Many of the well-to-do Japanese, and Europeans and other foreign residents would pay the price for it, if it would be supplied to them, and in course of time it would take its place in the market.

Japanese Government Purchases.

The Government of Japan is buying wheat and barley for food and feeding purposes, but there is an impression that after October 1 the duty on flour will be increased, the effect of which may be that more wheat will be used than formerly, and less flour—that is, for army consumption. Australian wheat and flour have been coming into the market somewhat lately; and, as the price of Australian flour and wheat is just between Canadian and American prices, a market to some extent has been opened for the sale of both wheat and flour from that country. The Japanese at present use some Canadian flour to mix with Japanese flour in making certain kinds of biscuits and cakes. An old commercial house in Yokohama has had a biscuit-baking branch in operation for years, and shortly expect to use the best flour available, and will give Canadian high grades a fair trial.

Packing.

Flour must be packed into white cotton bags containing 49 pounds each. These closely-woven, starched bags allow practically no waste and no infiltration of dust in the course of transportation. Grain bags will not do. Some Canadian flour comes shipped in 98-pound bags—grain bags, apparently—and during shipment a great deal leaks out, and much dust works its way into the flour, and the trade is complaining on that account.

Japanese Mills.

The brands of flour manufactured by Japanese mills are as follows:

No. 1 Matsu (Pine tree), Yen 2.15 per 49-pound sack ($1.08).

No. 2 Take (Bamboo), Yen 2.10 per 49-pound sack ($1.05).

No. 2 Sakura (Cherry), Yen 2.00 per 49-pound sack ($1.00).

Sacks are largely obtained as follows: They have a system of buying up old American white cotton flour sacks, which are washed, patched, turned inside out, resown and rebranded. This costs 3-10th of a cent per sack, against new sacks at 7.10th, and they have a clear gain of .04 on the bag.

They at present are paying for wheat as follows:

Japan A. 1—Yen 3.30 ($1.65) per picul (133 pounds).

Australian—Yen 4.20 ($2.10) per picul (133 pounds), C.I.F.

Yokohama freight from Australia was contracted for last week at 15 sen (7 1-2 cents) per sack of 133 pounds.

Care must be taken as to the quality of flour placed here. Last September a milling company of San Francisco shipped out a lot of flour branded "Old Glory" and "White as Snow," cost, Yen 7.00 ($3.50), C.I.F. The quality was poor, and it is still unsold at Yen 5.00 ($2.50) per four bags of 49 pounds each. An article that gets a bad name amongst the Japanese may as well taken out of the market. This is but one example of several that are pointed out by Japanese as well as foreign merchants. There are at present over 10,000 bags in Tokio that cannot be sold for this reason. But this market could be made to absorb much more flour if the miller would take care to study its requirements.

After all, the thing I like best about "FORCE" is the enjoyment I get from eating it.

It makes little difference how "good" a food is if you don't like it.

I've met mighty few people who don't like "FORCE."

Sunny Jim

You can relish "FORCE" for a longer time, without change, than any other food I know of.
But it isn't such a bad notion, now and then, to switch off onto something else for a day or so—
Even though you can't change to anything quite so good.

Does it End the Tobacco Trust?

IT is said that the American Tobacco Co., bowing to the will of the Dominion Government, is preparing to cancel the contracts it has hitherto obtained from customers binding them to handle none but the Trust's brands of cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos. The Minister of Inland Revenue will have an official inquiry made at once to ascertain whether the contracts are still in force. In the event of such contracts not being cancelled Mr. Brodeur is empowered to cancel the company's licenses.

The United States Tobacco Journal comments adversely as follows on the legislation of the Dominion Government for the annihilation of the American Tobacco Co.'s exclusive contract system:

As for the measure itself, it may serve its purpose, that is to say, break up the exclusive contract system instituted in our neighboring Dominion by the American Tobacco Co., and for that reason it will no doubt be hailed with satisfaction, too, on this side of the border by all the elements opposed to such a system and its originators. But the measure is nevertheless of such a drastic kind as no American Congress would stand for. Considering it impartially, from a purely constitutional point of view, it clothes a single executive officer with such arbitrary power as to endanger the trading liberties of the individual. If the contract system was contrary to law there are judges and courts in Canada to whom the question of its violation could have been safely submitted as it is being done now in our own Massachusetts. If there is such a law in Canada under which the question of this system could have been judicially ventilated, and the Ministers of the Crown did not avail themselves of the judicial proceeding in order to test the lawfulness or lawlessness of the contract system, then the action of the Ministers must be interpreted as a lack of confidence in the integrity of the Dominion courts. But if there is no law covering this subject the remedy should have been supplied by a general statute and the offenders under it made amenable to the courts.

The Trusts may deserve all their adversaries claim, but even the meanest criminal is entitled to the protection of the law, which means that the prosecuting attorney alone should not have arbitrary power over property, life or liberty. The Canadian law makes the Minister of Inland Revenue, the prosecutor, judge, jury and sheriff, all in one person, concerning the relations of any manufacturer to his customers. And while the law may have been ostensibly framed to hit the Trust, as agreements between individual manufacturers and jobbers to handle exclusively their output are common daily occurrences, what is to prevent the Minister from wreaking his political vengeance on a refractory manufacturer by revoking his license? The arbitrary power lodged by this measure in the hands of a single Minister must inevitably lead to a corruption of the suffrage.

Tobacco Industry in Japan.

The last census of the tobacco industry, taken in 1902, discloses 525 factories in Japan, of which 261 are of sufficient importance to employ steam power for their operation. The total number of employes was 16,759, of whom 11,629 were females and 5,130 males.

The returns showing the rates of wages include only one classification in the tobacco industry, namely, tobacco cutters. In 1896, operatives of this class received 14.2 cents per day, a figure that has steadily increased until at the present time the rate is 52.1 cents per day.

The acreage and product of the domestic tobacco growing industry for the eight years, 1894 to 1902, are given as follows:

	Acres	Product Pounds.
1894	86,712	79,002,000
1895	80,080	73 476,000
1896	79,471	71,518,000
1897	77,118	73,455,000
1898	72,152	77,025,000
1899	102,035	87,817,000
1900	91,095	89,808,000
1901	58,667	69,075,000

Tobacco in Austria.

In 1902 the tobacco monopoly yielded the Austrian Government the enormous net profit of $27,000,000. Of the 40,445 persons employed 35,284 were females; the number of factories was 30. The average wages of the male employes were only $2.80 a week, of the females $2.08. Since 1875 the number of cigarette smokers has increased enormously, while of snuff-takers there are only one-third as many now.

Toronto Cigar Makers Meet.

Representatives of the Western Federation of Miners, addressed the cigar-makers' union at their meeting last week in Richmond Hall, Toronto, asking assistance on behalf of the men striking at the mines at Cripple Creek, Colorado. Fifty dollars was donated by the union. R Haberstock, D. Henderson and W. V. Todd were elected representatives of the Union at the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, which will be held in Montreal on Sept. 19.

Tobacco Notes.

Tobacco-growing experiments are being made on twenty acres in county Meath.

Mr. L. Dery, of El Sargent Cigar Store, and Mr Pampaloir, traveller for Jas. Cote, wholesale tobacconist, both of Quebec, have gone on a trip to the principal cities of the United States, including St. Louis.

The cigar makers will not hold an international convention this year as proposed, but it is expected that a proposition to hold one next year will be submitted to the general membership for a referendum note in the near future.

The tobacco customs duties collected in Canada during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904, were $604,555.82, an increase of $138,294.35: the result of the higher tariff imposed in 1897. The inland revenue returns for the same period amounted to $5,178,736.40, an increase of $1,587,234-04.

New Tobacco Concern for Mexico.

ARRANGEMENTS are completed for the establishment of a branch of the American Tobacco Company at Monterey, Mexico, under the style of the Black Horse Tobacco Company. A State concession providing for an exemption for ten year from State taxes has been secured and a factory for handling the tobacco will be erected. From this point throughout Mexico will be distributed all tobacco that is now imported from the United States.

Conditions in the Turkish tobacco market should be favorable to the manufacturers this year. The crop is exceptionally large, being fully double that of last year, which was about the avarage. That of the Smyrna district amounts to about 7,-000,000 kilos. For some reason the buying last year was exceptionally heavy and this encouraged the planters to extend their acreage. Hence the heavy crop. The quality is hardly up to the average.

Consul W. W. Canada, at Veracuz, Mexico, has forwarded the following new internal revenue regulations relative to tobacco which became operative in that country on July 1st of this year. All foreign or native manufactured tobacco, such as selected leaf, granulated, long cut, or chewing, must be put up in sealed packages and a special internal revenue stamp must be affixed to each package, the value of the stamp being governed by the weight of the package, in accordance with the following scale: 100 grams (1 gram equals 15.34 grains) or less, net weight, 2 cents; more than 100 and up to 250 grams, 5 cents; more than 250 and up to 500 grams, 9 cents; more than 500 grams and up to 1 kilogram (2.20 pounds), 18 cents. Snuff of native manufacture is taxed double the amount, and if it is not put up in sealed packages its sale will be prohibited.

Should be in the mouth of every smoker. What?

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

FREIGHTS are still dull. No changes have taken place during the past week, and the general tone of the market is easy. Very little grain is offering for shipment at present, and in this particular it is expected that little improvement will take place before three or four weeks, when the new crop is forwarded for shipment. The dairy produce exports are, as far as butter is concerned, improving from day to day. Live stock, however, is dominating the market. The recent decline in prices for ranchers in the cold storage to Liverpool, is 40s., London 45s., Glasgow 45/6. The usual large number of deals that are shipped from Montreal, has fallen off amazingly, and the rate per standard to Liverpool runs at about 30s., London 32/6, to 37/6.

SOME NEW REGULATIONS.

Both the G. T. R. and C. P. R. have issued circulars in regard to warehouse storage. They state that in order to facilitate the prompt handling of freight in and through railway warehouses, and to prevent the monopoly of warehouse space, effective September 16, 1904, the following regulations respecting warehouse storage will be enforced. Inwards and outwards warehouse, or shed freight, will be stored free for the first 72 hours, after 72 hours, the following storage charges per week or portion thereof, will be made, (exception; freight in bond will be allowed six working days free). Freight stored will be entirely at the risk and expense of the owner, minimum storage charge for any one consignment, to be 5c.

A number of molasses schooners, which arrived here with Barbadoes stock, have been chartered for September shipment with deals, and flour for the United Kingdom. New steamer charters are quite exceptional.

When an Apple Drops

from a tree it always falls faster the last second than it does the first—and the farther it falls the more speed it acquires and the harder it hits the ground.

And the longer your ad runs in THE CANADIAN GROCER the more force it acquires and the harder it hits.

In these days of keen competition it is usually necessary to hit hard to make an impression.

Which means that you must often keep your ad running a long time before it "hits" some readers.

Every ad that appears in these columns has the force of all previous ads behind it—and with each consecutive insertion YOUR ad hits harder.

The first time your ad appears it does not do as much good as the second time—and the second time it is not so effective as the third time.

"Appearances" count for a great deal in advertising.

CREATING NEW FRUITS

By H. Gilbson Gardiner in The Cosmopolitan.

THE creation of a new fruit is announced by scientists in the employ of the Government, the creation it will be noted, not the discovery, and a new fruit, not a new variety.

Under the auspices of the United States Department of Agriculture has been evolved the "tangelo." You may never have heard the name, but if you live long enough it is likely to become more familiar. Your children—if you have any—will, no doubt, be surprised when you tell them you can remember a time when there were no tangelos. And when you add that, in your time oranges did not grow so far north, and that there were no "swingles" in Georgia or "webbers" in Southern Texas, they will think you are growing old and garrulous. People are still living who called tomatoes "love-apples," and did not consider them fit to eat. But, indeed, tomatoes in those days were little and seedy and hardly fit for food. The tomato, as now known, has been created within the last fifty years.

The word "create" is used here in the sense that man has learned new applications of natural laws, by which he is enabled to bring into existence new forms of plant-life, molding and adapting them to his purpose. In that sense, he has learned to create. The American Beauty rose is a creation of man. Nature gave, to start with, the so-called "wild" rose; the rest is the result of science. The carnation is likewise a product of science; and also, to a considerable degree, the strawberry of commerce, and all the apples grown in the Northwest.

A New Science.

Cultivation—i.e., tilling, sowing, reaping, nurture and care—has been known and practised for hundreds of years. It has accomplished much as compared with the conditions of primal nature. But we are now speaking of a new discovery—a discovery not two hundred years old—and of a science which has been practised a much shorter time than that, and which in the brief space of a man's lifetime has accomplished more in the realm of plant productiveness than hundreds of years of world-wide patient toil. We speak of a science whose literature consists of a few thin pamphlets, and whose practitioners may be counted on the fingers of one hand—a science which promises to add inestimable wealth to the world's store, namely, the science of plant-breeding.

The most important thing in the science of plant-breeding, as at present understood, seems to be the hybrid. It is the hybrid which amends that great law of nature that "like produces like" In the case of hybrids the offspring is often very unlike. And it is to this new character of the offspring that the science is indebted for its ability to evolve new and strange types in the vegetable world.

Its Wonderful Possibilities.

But the hybrid is merely an incident. The man thing is the fact, the discovery, that here is a science, virgin to the experimenter, and fascinating in the wonders of its possibilities as seen from the very threshold. In return for the few brief years of its wooing, it has given man assurance that he can, by its practise, put scent into the violet which has lost its perfume, that he can actually paint the lily with new hues, or coax the rose to the ideal of his dreams; that he can make chestnuts grow on bushes, or bid the towering walnut-tree to double its stature; he can amend the laws of climate and invite the vegetation of the tropics to take up a residence farther north; he can add sugar to the beet or the starch ingredient to the potato, or substract them at will; he can lengthen the fibre of the cotton or the hemp, or strengthen or refine it, or cause it to mature before its wonted season; he can take the seeds out of the orange, or put pulp into the tomato, or make wheat to grow in dry ground or grass in a place which is without rain; he can make the wheat-stalk carry more grains of its precious yield, or the corn more ears, or the oats more kernels; he can make many blades of grass, many bushels of rice and tons of fruit to grow where little or none grew before. And all this without any additional expenditure of tillage, fertilization or care.

And besides all this, he can create new foods for the use of man, new sensations to the human palate—types so different as to require new names and a fresh introduction to the world.

The Process Employed.

But how are plants bred? How does the scientist go about it to get the hybrid—as, for instance, an orange which will grow farther north and be resistant to severe frosts?

By marriage—plant marriage. For the purpose instanced—the rescue of the effete Florida orange from its enemy frost—reason suggests an alliance with some hardy relative of the north.

And here is just such a one—the wayward, scraggly, tough hedge-orange of Japan. So different is it from the ordinary orange of America that an untrained eye would not recognize it as a relative of the family. Each small, hard, sour ball, little bigger than a hickory nut, is crammed to the rind with seeds. Here is a branch of the family which has roughed it for many centuries, an offcast and forgotten of its pampered relatives, but now a sturdy and independent race, schooled to the winds and snows of Winter.

The flower of the sweet orange is separated from all of its kind. The plant-surgeon comes with sharp instruments and plucks away the stamens, even before they have reached maturity. A cage is made of fine gauze which is bound about the stem on which the flower grows. It is thus cut off from the insects and the bees which carry the pollen from other flowers. The pollen of the Japan orange is sprinkled with a camel's hair brush upon the stigma inside the gauze cage.

In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred (it is admitted with patient regret by the plant scientist) fertilization does not take place, and the isolated flower dies.

The Ninety-Ninth Case.

But the one case does happen; the patient watcher is rewarded. Instead of withered remains in the gauze cage, the scientist finds, in his rounds of inspection, one flower that has set fruit. The races have crossed. Here are the beginnings of a miracle. In this fruit there will be seed and in this seed will the earth be blessed.

He has only to wait—there is much waiting in this science, and much need for patience—to wait until Fall for the fruit and seed to mature; then until Spring for a chance to plant these treasured seeds; and then seven years perhaps for these seedlings to come to bearing age; and then—what has he?

Mr. Herbert J. Webber and Mr. Walter T. Swingle, of the Government bureau of plant-breeding, can tell; for this experiment was theirs. In the Spring of 1897, Mr. Webber made the cross between the Japanese trifoliate and the common sweet orange of Florida. Last Winter he had an opportunity to see what the fruit, in the first generation of this hybrid, would be. Briefly, it is a new fruit resembling the orange, but partaking of the hardy attributes of the Japanese parent, and thus able to grow many degrees farther north. It will easily survive any Winter experienced in the Carolinas, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas and Northern California, and it may be found by experiment that it will thrive in States even farther north. The fruit is not, properly speaking, an orange. It is about the size of a small tangerine, is almost seedless, has a fine tender pulp, is juicy and of an aromatic flavor. By its discovery, cultivation of the edible citrus fruits may be extended into seven or eight States which have no such crop at present, adding to the total wealth of the country many millions of dollars.

This new fruit has, up to the present time, had no official name, being designated merely by the number "716" which was on the marking-tag by which the flower was identified when crossed with the foreign pollen and confined to her gauze cage; but in Georgia, where a few have been grown under Government supervision, they are already known as "webbers" after the originator. Mr. Walter Webber modestly purposes to name one of the two seedlings after the first secretary of agriculture, and another after his associate, Mr. Swingle; but it is likely that the public and other scientists will insist upon the customary practise according to which a thing discovered is known by the name of the discoverer.

Character of a Hybrid.

But it would be a mistake to suppose that these new fruits are valued chiefly for what they offer in their present form. They are hybrids. Hybrids do not, as has been said, as a rule, beget like. On the contrary, their progeny are apt to be very unlike. The plant-breeder has an expression for what happens; he says the type "breaks up." There is great confusion for the time, some of the progeny trying, apparently, to resemble one parent strain, and others the other, while still others manifest new characteristics unknown to either parent. A striking instance of this was observed in the crossing of two strains of beardless wheat, resulting in varieties with well-developed beards. It is natural, therefore, to turn with high expectations to the results which may fairly be anticipated from the seedlings to be grown from this new fruit, and it is something of a trial to patience to realize that the happy surprises must be delayed three or four years until the seedlings come to bearing age. But, after all, a matter of a few years is of small moment when weighed against the fact that the results are almost certain to furnish the permanent solution of the problem of a hardy orange; and it is not impossible that among the offspring will be something so superior to any orange now known as to revolutionize the entire citrus industry.

The Tangelo.

But there is another fruit of which the scientists are as proud as they are of the promising hybrid of which we have been speaking, namely, the "tangelo." This, too, is a hybrid, resulting from a cross between the tangerine orange and the pomelo, or, as it is commonly called, the grape-fruit. The cross was made in 1897, but it was not until this year that the seedlings came to bearing age, and it was discovered that the combination had resulted in a new and delicious fruit, combining the most desirable characteristics of both parents, inheriting size, juiciness and refreshing flavor from the pomelo, while from the tangerine it acquires a thin rind which is easily removed, a tender pulp and an almost seedless interior. When extensively propagated, as it will be in a few years, the tangelo will undoubtedly be one of the most popular citrus fruits in the market. Fortunately, in the growing of citrus fruits it is not necessary to reproduce any seed; but any desirable variety like the "webber" or the tangelo may be propagated and perpetuated indefinitely by grafting and budding, as is done with apples.

Fresh and Cured Fish

The Fisheries of Canada.

THEIR fisheries are a notable source of wealth in all the Provinces of the Dominion of Canada, Nova Scotia standing first on the list, with about one-third of the total of the whole country, while British Columbia is an excellent second. Salmon fishing comprises the greatest single contribution to the Canadian fisheries, being about one-fifth of the total. In order after salmon the aggregate runs as follows: Cod, 4,028,000; lobsters, 3,133,000; herring, 7,723,000; mackerel, 839,000; white fish, 810,000; trout, 637,000; haddock, 599,000; halibut, 575,000. Smelts, pickerel, sardines, hake, pollock, clams, pike, alewives, sturgeon, oysters and eels, are under the half million dollar mark, though their value is not to be forgotten in the aggregate. Oysters contribute to the amount $155,108.

The exports of fisheries for 1903 were set down as $11,826,646, being about one-half of the total foreign trade of Canada and no doubt this could be very much exceeded, provided better shipping facilities were supplied, and the knowledge of curing perfected. In the matter of transportation accommodation, an instance might be made of the halibut fisheries, which in the west are controlled largely by American concerns. During the season, halibut is transported in immense quantities from the west coast, to the American Atlantic coast, in bond, part of which is sold again to Canadian buyers at excellent profit.

The matter of curing has been thoroughly emphasised by the recent introduction of a Scottish method of catching and curing herrings. Caught and cured after the Scotch method, herring sell for from fifty to a hundred per cent. better than those taken in Canadian waters and cured in the ordinary way. At certain periods, Canadian fish in the raw state are acknowledged to be superior in quality to the Scotch herring. Hence, it is only natural to conclude that the fault lies in the curing.

Dogfish are Palatable.

A lobster packer at Sydney, N.S., makes the interesting announcement that he has at last succeeded in canning a brand of fish which is excellent for eating purposes, and that next year he will go into the canning of dogfish on a large scale. With the Government reducing factories in operation, the business of capturing these pests should prove a very profitable one for fishermen. The flesh trimmed by the above packer, is of a beautiful white and is entirely free from rank flavor.

Herrings in the Kiel Canal.

Quite an important herring fishery has become established in the canal which runs from the Baltic to the Elbe—the canal by which King Edward recently made his journey to Germany, says the English Fish Trades Gazette. The herrings begin to enter at Holtenau, the Baltic mouth, at the end of March or the early part of April, and they pass far down it towards the other end, seeking certain parts in particular for spawning—the presence of a rich algae on the bottom being supposed to be one of the attractions to the fish. Last Spring they came in very great numbers, and at the end of April they were found as far as 60 kilometers from the mouth. So abundant were they at some places that they were scooped out of the water with baskets, and even with hats—rather an uncommon way of pursuing the herring fishing! In the little Schiernauer Lake nearly 1,000,000 herrings were taken, and in the Andorser Lake about 800,000 more, as well as large numbers at other parts. These were full herrings and were most of them smoked.

Uncle Sam Concerned.

It is claimed by the American Fisheries Department that they have now no intention of entering into a formal agreement through Great Britain with British Columbia respecting the establishment of fish hatcheries in the waters common to the State of Washington and to British Columbia.

But about four months ago they did address themselves to the British Government on this subject with the purpose of securing uniformity of regulations and the adoption of similar methods of breeding and fish protection on either side of the contiguous waters of Washington Territory and British Columbia. It is expected that without any formal international agreement, by common treatment of fish hatcheries' problems, satisfactory protection can be had for the salmon and the fisheries in that section to restore their former state of prosperity.

Columbia Pack Shy.

Reports from the Pacific coast are to the effect that the 1904 pack on the Columbia river will be 100,000 cases short of last year's, which was estimated at 329,000 cases. The Behring Sea pack will be 100,000 short while the Skaena River pack will fall short about 35 per cent., being to date 115,000 cases. The pack at Rivers Inlet will net 95,000 cases for the season, which is the best record since 1896.

The Alaska Packers' Association has announced prices on Puget Sound sockeyes and the Alaska with the exception of reds. The market opens with higher prices than ever before in its history.

Estimates of the total pack at the coast are 2,900,000 cases. This is a shortage of nearly 600,000 cases from last year's pack, which was 3,451,047 cases. In 1902 it was 4,259,185, and in 1901 it aggregated 5,040,961 cases.

Notes.

It is expected that the new Government cruiser Vigilant will be launched about September 5. As soon as she is ready the Vigilant will be put into commission in the fisheries protection service on Lakes Erie and Huron.

A recent advice from England states that if only the science of freezing salmon could be brought to perfection and supplies landed in England regularly and in fine condition, Canada would have no cause to complain of this trade. Prices that are not possible for canned fish would be fetched on large consignments, and canning would be superseded.

Statistics show the value of the five principal fish caught in Canada since 1869, viz., cod, salmon, lobsters, herring and mackerel, reaches the stupendous aggregate of nearly $378,000,000. A contemplation of this sum should imbue the average citizen with a true appreciation of Canada's great fishery wealth.

"Consider the Japanese and be Wise," says the Boston Globe; "with only Dried Fish and Cereals in the Commissary they are holding up on Land and Sea a Great Flesh-eating Nation."

There ought to be a lesson in this for every storekeeper—especially for every grocer, for the health of the customer is of importance to the dealer. It is well known now that people eat too much meat and that they should eat more fish, so it should be the business of the grocer to interest his customers in such articles as HALIFAX, ACADIA and BLUENOSE BRANDS of prepared codfish—fish that are good for the health and just salt enough to make one of the tastiest dishes for the fussiest people. Get your customers interested in these fish. It will improve their health, and the better their health the more groceries will you sell. We have just issued a booklet called "Down by the Sounding Sea," which contains some interesting pictures of the fishing fleet and the home of the fish which are made into the above-named brands; also receipes telling how to prepare the fish. You can help to interest your customers by distributing copies of this book.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

Something Wrong with Canadian Cheese.

A SERIOUS charge has been laid at the doors of Canadian cheese makers by Thomas Clement, of Andrew Clement & Sons, London, Manchester and Glasgow. In the course of an interview with THE GROCER Mr. Clement said that Canadian cheese is faulty, and that the average has been going back during the past four years. Fortunately Canadians have been favored with cool Summers for the past few seasons, else there would have been terrible exposures of negligent work on the part of Canadian cheese makers. The quality and finish of Canadian cheese, in his opinion, has also deteriorated during the past three or four years. Owing to poor salaries having been paid by the cheese makers in Canada, the result has been the production of poor cheese.

In the course of his conversation Mr. Clement declared himself strongly in favor of the registration and licensing of cheese factories and cheese makers under proper regulations. He added that New Zealand was seriously considering the adoption of that method. He added that New Zealand had also succeeded in increasing the consumption of the New Zealand product in the British market by adopting a grading system in her butter exports.

Mr. Clement's exact words regarding the export dairy business, should be printed all over Canada. He said :—"That the consumption of Canadian cheese in England is near its maximum now, and if Canadians want to increase it they will have to send over a product that the English house-wife will find more palatable than a lot of the Canadian cheese that is now being sold across the retail counters in Great Britain."

Butter Might be Improved.

A review of the English produce market for the past year says: "It is satisfactory to record the fact that last season the quality of the Canadian butter showed a considerable improvement over that of any previous year, although in the matter of saltless there were many complaints regarding mouldy condition on arrival. This mouldy butter is mostly from western Ontario, and no doubt the land transit to Montreal is largely responsible for this unsatisfactory feature.

"There is no reason why Canada should not be able to make as good butter as Denmark or other continental countries, but to do this she will have to revolutionize her methods. Canadian butter in the last few years has acquired a reputation in Great Britain not to the advantage of Canada. If the Canadian Government would permit preservatives in safe and moderate amounts the quality of the butter when it reached England would show considerable improvement over its present character.

Cheese Cuts.

Of the present dilemma of the cheese and butter market in Quebec the Huntingdon (Que)Gleaner says: There are more complaints than usual among factorymen of cuts in shipments of butter and cheese, both as to weights and quality. One factory that sent 112 boxes of cheese was docked 124 lbs., while there have been cuts of a cent and more per pound in butter. The dairy board is investigating the latter cases. As to cuts in weight our local manufacturers are helpless, for if they appeal, it is only from Caesar to Caesar, for the Montreal buyers have it so arranged that reweighing is by their own men and on their own scales. The belief, however, unwarranted it may be, is strong, that certain city buyers make an extra profit by means of cuts. An offical inspector grades wheat. Why should there not be an official inspector for butter and cheese, who would not only grade but weigh it?

Trade Conditions in Trinidad.

According to latest advices received by THE GROCER from Gordon, Grant & Co., Fort-of-Spain, Trinidad, there is now more inquiry for pork and lard, although thus far prices have not perceptibly improved. Pork shoulders, loins, ribs, etc., of sound quality, are all readily salable. Canadian split peas, both in bags and barrels, are in excessive supply and values are again lower. American corn is wanted, and both oats and oilmeal are selling readily. The prospects for the next sugar crop are satisfactory, the weather having been favorable. The growing cocoa looks well in most districts and promises a fair crop with actual prices generally tending towards higher figures. Exports for the fortnight to August 11, total 11,846 bags, while shipments for the season to the same date amount to 207,304 bags, as compared with 189,393 bags for the corresponding period last year.

Women in Slaughter Houses.

FEW people know to what extent woman is invading the great packing houses of America. The number in the Chicago stock yards has almost doubled in the past year. At the present time two thousand women are employed there. It is true that a little less than half that number are engaged in the revolting work described, the majority being employed in painting and labeling cans, wrapping and packing soap and butterine. To such work the butchers make no objection. But the number engaged in the less pleasing occupation is gradually being increased. Last summer the sausage makers at the stock yards went on strike. The strike was not sanctioned by the national officers of the organization, and when the men refused to return to work the packers proceeded to fill their places with women. The union could not object. The men had struck without authority. The women are at work to-day, filling, linking and trimming sausage. The men are seeking work. What wages the women are being paid is known only to themselves and their employers. They are Lithuanian peasant women. Few can speak the English language. To organize them would be practically impossible, even were it advisable, which the union officials do not believe. But at frequent intervals a few men are laid off and a few more women hired. Can the union stop the innovation?—World's Work.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—The market in smoked meats is very strong, the demand in all lines being of a first-class order. Lards have advanced three-quarters of a cent owing to the large demand and small stocks on hand. Shoulder hams are up a half cent. In fresh meats there is no change to record. Prices are firm and the market is a trifle more brisk. We quote:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$0 08½	$0 08½
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12½	0 13
Roll bacon, per lb	0 09	0 09½

Butter—Quite large supplies of butter are coming to hand, but the quality is poor. This there is a great deal of poor but very little really first-class butter to be had. Dairy prints have strengthened a little but outside of this little has happened. The export demand is weak as far as good prices are concerned. We quote this week:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 19	0 20
" solids, fresh	0 17½	0 18½
Dairy prints	0 14	0 16
" in tubs	0 12	0 14

Cheese—Prices have advanced a quarter cent in sympathy with higher board prices. These maintain marvellous strength, having reached their highest point this season, 8 13-16, and at these prices more than half of the offerings were unsold. The export demand is sure to fall off in the face of such a level. Board transactions for the week ending August 30 were as follows:

Board.	Boxes.		Price.

Provisions—The market continues very firm wit hgood demand for all lines. Live hogs command from $5.75 to $5.85. Hams and bacon are in good demand; the Old Country is calling for Canadian bacon and exports are looking up. We quote:

Cheese—Has been a puzzler all around this year. So far there is a shortage of over 400,000 boxes as compared with the same period last year with prices about 1 3-4 to 2c per lb. less and a very dull market on the moment. Various reasons are given, the principal and most acceptable one being the backwardness of Old Country firms in making bids. Their experience last year with the heavy losses sustained, inclines them to hold off from a similar experience, and they are buying only from hand to mouth. Moreover supplies here are plentiful and though the cry of shortage is raised it does not seem to stimulate trade. Though there has been some recovery here the market is unsettled. Prices at country boards rule firm; the make at present is excellent, pasturage being of the finest, and the quality of the cheese equal to the general run of September make. We quote:

Finest Western	0 08⅜	0 08⅝
" Eastern	0 08⅜	0 08½

Butter—The condition of the butter market is quiet with a tendency to easier prices except for finest to fancy grades of creamery. Stocks are large and the make plentiful. For dairy little demand exists except from confectonery and biscuit makers' quarters. We quote:

Provisions—In barreled pork and beef there has been little change to note and inquiries continue light. Pure lard after the very dull season is higher and firm, refined lard on the other hand has dropped in price. Hams and rolls are scarce and full prices are being asked. In fresh beef domestic is freely offered and prices rule low. Ontario beef is rather easier. Lamb has a large sale at fair prices. Mutton is dull. Veal continues scarce with enquiry light. Some pork is offering at fair prices.

Monopoly of Maple Sugar for Canada.

Maple syrup and maple sugar are getting scarcer every year in the United States, says an American contemporary. The Green Mountains of Vermont, which furnish the best grades of maple products over there are unable to supply half the demand at the present time and conditions are steadily becoming worse. Canada is coming in each year to furnish a larger proportion of the amount consumed. Canadian syrup is stronger than the Vermont product and goes farther; the reason being the added rigor of the climate, which seems to concentrate the sweetness of the sap. It will be a long time before Canada's sugar trees run out.

TEA AREA OF INDIA.

In their latest report on the tea situation in India, Gow, Wilson and Stanton of London, Eng., state that very little increase has taken place in the area under cultivation during the past five years, while the actual acreage in 1903 was less than in 1902. Almost the total acreage of India is now under mature plants, which means that the present area appears to have reached almost if not quite its full yielding capacity.

THE INCREASE IN CANADIAN TRADE

Complete trade returns for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904, just completed show that Canadian trade last year was $472,733,000, against 467,064,000 the previous year and $239,025,000 in 1899.

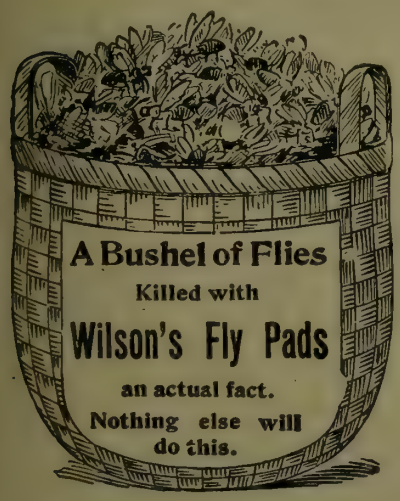
REMARKABLE RESULTS.

SOME retailers seem to think that "any old thing" in the way of fly poison is good enough for their customers, but the man who is careful of his reputation sells the best.

The manufacturer of Wilson's Fly Pads claims that no other article, be it sticky paper, poison paper, fly trap, or what not, brings results that can surpass the death dealing properties of Wilson's Pads.



The following unsolicited testimonial from one of the most highly respected retail druggists in Canada illustrates an astonishing incident in this connection: "St. Mary's, Ont., Aug. 3rd, 1892. Mr. Archdale Wilson, Hamilton. Dear Sir,—The following may be of use to you: A customer of mine who keeps a butcher shop in this town bought a 10c. package of your Fly Pads from me, and in ten days killed over a bushel measure of flies. Yours truly, T. G. Sanderson." When one realizes that a bushel of flies cannot be stuck on 300 sheets of sticky fly paper that retail for $15 they begin to appreciate the immense difference in value.

Mr. Hugo Rohde, Calgary, N. W. T., who represents Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Montreal, in the Northwest, is paying a short visit to his house this week.

Mr. Geo. Lightbound, Toronto, was a visitor to the Montreal trade this week. Mr. Lightbound is working his way west from New York and eastern points.

Mr. C. H. Cochrane, of S. H. Cochrane & Co., Ottawa, was a visitor to Montreal trade last week. Business is reported good, and a brisk trade is looked forward to this Fall.

Mr. J. J. Speirs, western Ontario representative of Chase & Sanborn, was a visitor to Montreal during the past week. Business is reported by him as satisfactory.

Mr. W. H. Halford, of S. H. Ewing & Son, Montreal, in company with Mr. F. W. Loudon, New York, representing Jardine, Matheson & Co., is making a tour of western Ontario centres this week.

Mr. Chas. Chaput, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., wholesale grocers, Montreal, has returned from a six weeks' outing at Old Orchard Beach much improved in health, and after spending a very restful vacation.

Mr. Wm. Forbes, of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal, has returned from a two weeks' holiday at Bay View, Me. He looks brown and healthy. Evidently he enjoyed the sea breezes and salt water bathing.

Mr. Wm. C. Mooney, Jr., of the Mooney Biscuit and Candy Co. branch at Winnipeg, has returned from the factory and head offices at Stratford, where he has been securing new lines for the Christmas trade.

Mr. A. J. Hughes, of the Ozo Co., Montreal, left on Monday last for the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland. Mr. Hughes has covered the eastern ground for Ozo Co. for several years, and secured a good share of the trade in his firm's line of manufacture.

Major Zeph. Hebert, of Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Montreal, has returned to business after enjoying a five weeks' outing with his family at Old Orchard Beach. A more enthusiastic admirer of the well-known seaside resort than Major Hebert will be hard to find. It is in his ideas an ideal Summer resort.

Mr. G. D. Atkinson, Valleyfield, P. Q., who is connected with the firm of McDonald & Robb, Valleyfield, millers and shippers of flour and feed, was a visitor to Montreal during the past week. Mr. Atkinson was met by The Grocer in company with Mr. D. McKenzie, of the Paisley (Ont.) Advocate.

Mr. Walter M. Lowney's representatives on the road report good opening business for Fall trade. The gentlemen are Mr. W. G. Kyle (formerly with Armour & Co., Chicago,) who takes territory from Montreal west; Mr. Harry Hart, of Toronto, who represents his firm east of Montreal to and including the Maritime Provinces, and Mr. Geo. Varty, who looks after the City of Montreal.

Mr. F. D. Gill of Burnhamthorpe, Ont., was a visitor to the Toronto offices of The Canadian Grocer this week. Mr. Gill has been a subscriber to The Grocer for over a year, and has already come to the conclusion that he could not do business without it. The news which it contains from week to week he finds the most reliable and up-to-date obtainable. The market notes serve as an infallible guide in buying, and the advertisements have saved him many a dollar, in so far as they have from time to time given him a clue to where and what and when to buy.

My correspondent in Japan says: "Aug. 11th, 1904.

They were not mistaken, as the market is now in much better shape.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION.

IT was surely an inspiration that suggested the first Canadian Industrial Exhibition. At any rate the manufacturers and those interested in the industrial development of Canada have persisted in the idea, and for the last fifty years have spared no pains to make the exhibitions held annually in the different centres of the Dominion of the greatest possible educational significance. Citizens of Canada may see within limited compass the results of the previous years in the varied lines of industrial activity carried on throughout the length and breadth of the country. They may judge for themselves whether there is not magic in the words "Made in Canada," although it is no secret that by far the greater part of the commodities used by them at the present time are manufactured within the boundaries of the Dominion.

Although it would be manifestly unfair to institute comparisons with the World's Fair now in progress at St. Louis, a remark frequently heard from those who have done the great exposition is worth a moment's reflection, namely, that as an entertainment there is nothing new at St. Louis. Canadian Industrial Exhibitions may not seek to excel as spectacular shows; they have a more important purpose to serve in which the nation is vitally interested. Only a fortnight ago the greatest exhibition western Canada has ever had was brought to a successful close at Winnipeg. This week marks the opening of the premier exhibition of eastern Canada at Toronto. Next week's issue of The Grocer will be devoted largely to an account of the Canadian National Exhibition, with illustrated write-ups of exhibits of particular interest to the grocery and allied trades.

FAULTY CANADIAN CHEESE.

THE somewhat alarming statement by a prominent British importer regarding Canadian cheese which is published elsewhere in this week's issue of The Grocer, should strike home to the cheese makers everywhere in Canada. The view expressed regarding the deterioration of Canadian cheese may be a great surprise to Canadians, but there is little doubt that it has excellent foundation in many cases. In the Province of Quebec, for instance, it is unquestionable that complaints against inefficient makers have recently come up at the Winter conventions. Even this season considerable quantities of carelessly made cheese have been sent in to Montreal from Quebec factories.

A point which will no doubt be emphasized at the next convention of dairymen, is that of licensing and registering cheese factories. Last Winter, it will be remembered, this subject came up at the annual convention of dairymen and received a great deal of support from a number of the most influential members. There will have to be, however, a general awakening among the cheese men before any real improvement can take place, in fact a sort of commercial revolution.

ARTISANS WANTED.

ONE of the most tangible evidences of Canada's present prosperous condition is the fact that on all sides the supply of skilled labor is inadequate for the demand. This is all the more striking in view of the fact that in the United States manufacturers have been discharging large numbers of their employes within the past few months. In many Canadian manufacturing establishments benches are standing empty for want of men, which shows clearly the activity in industrial conditions in the Dominion.

From time to time recently the Canadian Manufacturers' Association has announced that there was a scarcity of skilled labor in Canada. The real state of affairs was thus brought before the British press. Various labor councils had been denying that there was such a scarcity and contending that they could supply all, and more men than were necessary. The matter was put to an actual test, however, when the Montreal secretary of the Manufacturers' Association asked the local Trades and Labor Council to provide certain mechanics for manufacturing establishments in different sections of the country. They undertook to do this, saying they were confident that it was an easy task. It transpired that the undertaking was beyond their power to execute, and they were forced to admit that they could not secure the men required, although they were given a reasonable time to do so. Harnessmakers, shirtmakers, and tradesmen of other kinds are called for, and their places are still vacant.

Although the situation is not at all agreeable to the manufacturers, as they are doubtless hindered considerably from producing a maximum output, it is one of the most hopeful signs that could exist. "More men needed in well established industries" is synonymous with progress and advancement. It is not only an assurance that the country is in a flourishing condition, but it is a good omen for the near future.

CANADA AND CEYLON GREEN TEA

A RECENT number of the New York Tea and Coffee Journal contains the interesting announcement that the tea planters of Ceylon are becoming much exercised about the marketing of Ceylon green teas in America and are urging that some better means for securing a direct market in Canada and the United States should be provided than the existing bonus.

The following is an epitome of the Ceylon green tea situation in Canada at the present time. The total importation of Ceylon greens to Canada in 1902 amounted to somewhere in the neighborhood of three million pounds. In 1903 it jumped to fifteen or sixteen million pounds, and the significant thing is that the increase came without anything extraordinary being done to create a corresponding demand. Wholesalers became possessed with the idea that Ceylon greens were about to assume a leading position in the market and stocked heavily. Their travelers in turn had an interesting story to tell on the strength of probabilities and experienced no difficulty in placing a case or two with practically every retail grocer throughout the country. So far so good; but the demand had not been created among the consumers themselves, and the result was that return orders failed to justify the most sanguine hopes of the wholesale trade which was left with almost two years' supply of Ceylon greens on hand.

That the demand for Ceylon greens in Canada has been growing steadily for the last few years is easily seen from the fact that the big surplus from 1903 is now almost used up. It would have been a strange thing had a ready market for such an enormous quantity of Ceylon greens sprung up in a night when nothing had been done to create a demand for it beyond the action of the wholesaler in stocking the retail grocery trade.

Regarding the anxiety of Ceylon tea planters about the marketing of Ceylon greens in Canada, The Grocer would advise the exercise of a little patience. They ought not to be discouraged over the first adverse turn a trade has taken, especially when the abnormality of the situation is pointed out to them, as well as the comforting assurance that the market for Ceylon greens in Canada is growing steadily.

By way of remedy The Grocer would suggest that instead of the cess being distributed among the planters in the shape of bounty, some more of it be spent in this country in creating an increased demand for Ceylon greens. The producer then wouldn't require a bounty, as he would realize a higher price for his tea than the present price and bounty combined. The Ceylon and Indian tea trade would seldom hear of sales for foreign markets at ridiculously low prices, such as occurred the other day when an American tea merchant bought no less than 500,000 pounds of tea at a price that had better not be mentioned.

The Auer Light Co. carry a small advertisement in THE CANADIAN GROCER from which they have time and again got remarkably good results. A few months ago they received an inquiry from a firm in Patras, Greece, who had seen the advertisement in THE GROCER. A sample of their gasoline lamp was sent to this firm, resulting in a small order, and during the months that followed they have sent in repeats which have amounted to $2,500 worth of business. The firm in question is working up a splendid trade for this lamp in Greece, and the end is not yet.

Results like these give a small idea of the possibilities of an advertisement in a good trade paper like THE GROCER, with its large British and foreign as well as Canadian circulation. It is not always the first order, but the making of a customer often results in thousands of dollars worth of business.

It is true that systematic attempts have been made to develop this trade in Canada and the United States and the result is a complement to the energy and enterprise of the promoters. The exhibit of the Ceylon Government at the St. Louis Exposition is a further step in the right direction. Much, however, yet remains to be done; plenty of capital and the willingness to spend it are a necessity at the outset. There are better ways and means, however, than the weekly, fortnightly, or monthly auctions for Ceylon green teas, after the manner of the London auctions in the leading trade centres of Canada and the United States as suggested by one correspondent. The scheme was tried years ago in Montreal where it proved a decided failure.

Direct sampling and advertising are far more to the point and wherever they have been tried they have proved a most effective way of establishing a market for new products.

TARIFF REFORM IN THE UNITED STATES.

BUSINESS men in the United States are congratulating themselves over the fact that the commercial and financial interests of the republic in the Summer time of the presidential campaign of 1904 are much less disturbed than they have been during any preceding campaign within easy memory. The currency question has been practically eliminated from political discussion; the only political question which might cause commercial disturbance is the demand for changes in the tariff.

Even here American manufacturers who fear the result of tearing down a storey or two of the high protective wall need not be unduly alarmed since the probability of change is very remote. Before any reduction of duties can actually be made, Mr. Parker must be elected; an overwhelming Democratic majority in the House of Representatives must be elected (in a House, too, that will not meet till December, 1905); and lastly, the tariff reformers must secure a majority in the Senate. This last change alone (even if the Democrats should carry everything before them in November) will require from four to six years. The practical impossibility of any Democratic change in the tariff within an early period prevents the subject of tariff reform from causing any appreciable disturbance in United States business circles. The security of the high protectionists is assured for a considerable time to come, and those who choose to talk reciprocity with Canada and inculcate kindred "revolutionary" principles can do no more than plan for the future.

THE NEXT GOVERNOR-GENERAL

THE following letter has been received from a correspondent of the MacLean Trade Newspapers in London, England, who says that the British Government is experiencing considerable difficulty in finding a suitable man to be Governor-General of Canada.

"It was fully intended to appoint the Duke of Marlborough, who, since his marriage, has developed a strong ambition (no doubt inspired by his American wife, who, you know, was a Miss Vanderbilt of New York), to do something and be somebody in the public service. He has taken an active part in public affairs and is generally believed to have put himself in training for the Governor-Generalship of Canada. But when his name was sent out as a feeler, it stirred up so much opposition on account of the prejudices of many Canadians against his American wife, that the idea was dropped, and, no one being available for a time, the Earl of Minto was given another year. For some time an effort has been made to get various gentlemen to take the position, but none of those of high rank to whom it was offered, would agree to practically exile themselves for five years, particularly as some of them have rather crude ideas of Canada and its climate. I know it to be a fact that the appointment was practically offered to one well-known peer and he considered it seriously. He consulted with a gentleman who at one time commanded the Canadian militia and is now well-known in radical circles, but whose Canadian experience was not pleasant to him or satisfactory to the Canadians. This officer gave his inquirer such an unfavorable story of Canada, its climate and people, that even the impressure of his ambitious wife could not overcome his fears of five years in such a country.

It is known that several men of high degree have been urged to accept and given time to consider, but none of them have been willing to accept. Once more, the Duke of Marlborough's name has come forward; this time, on the ground that Canadians have had time to consider more seriously the pros and cons of living under the daughter of one of the richest American families, and are not only more reconciled but see some advantages, and the Duchess stated quite recently that there was a possibility of their coming to Canada."

Our columns are usually so crowded with every-day business news that there is no space for social or semi-political questions such as this, but this letter has a practical business side, and we are among those who from a practical standpoint favor the appointment of the Duke of Marlborough. From a political and business view, such an appointment would be an excellent one. It is true, there are many of us so strongly British that we do not care to have an American placed in the highest social position in our country; but, if that American can render service to Canada and cause more money to be spent in this country, there is no reason why we should not overcome our sentiments. The Governors-General in the past have lived on their income; some of them have saved money. The Marlboroughs no doubt would not only spend large sums in Canada, but their presence would draw thousands of rich Americans to the country who would spend their money freely. Her presence in a high position in Canada would be the best and most far-reaching advertisement this country could have among the people we must look to chiefly to fill up our vacant lands and develop our uncultivated industries.

From a political standpoint we are inclined to think it would be most advantageous. The actions of the Duchess, if she interfered at all in Canadian affairs, would be so jealously watched that she could do nothing detrimental to our interests, while the immense influence of her family in the United States would do much to promote a more friendly feeling on the part of the leading men in United States public life.

THE SUCCESS OF THE BEST

The growth and expansion of the business is a quietus to all doubts and arguments in this connection, and as "Chauncey M. Depew" once said that "It's foolish to oppose a success." Those who have not yet taken advantage of the benefits to be gained by using "SALADA" as a Leader, should do so at once, and note closely the improvement that will rapidly develop in the Tea sales of their business.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Groceries.

Toronto, Sept. 1, 1904.

THE wholesale trade report that trade is going along nicely, with Fall orders beginning to come in. It will be some time before the brunt of the Fall trade strikes the wholesalers; meanwhile they are chuckling over the fact that the volume for the past Summer is better than it has been for years. Usually July and August are quiet months in the grocery trade; this year, however, has been an exception to the rule. Uncertainty hangs over the markets just now owing to the unfavorable grain reports received from Western Canada. It is believed that these have been grossly exaggerated and that on the whole the western farmers will have as much money as ever to spend. The trade will know definitely in the course of ten days or a fortnight the extent of the harvest of Manitoba and the Territories.

One or two firms say trade may be a shade quieter during the two weeks of Exhibition. The item of chief interest in canned goods is sockeye salmon, which are very firm. Western packers have withdrawn from the market for the time being. New pack sockeye salmon will be on the market within ten days. Prospects for a good-sized tomato pack continue fair, although the corn situation is not so favorable and wholesalers who have already sold nearly up to the limit of contracts for future delivery, have now withdrawn on the ground that there may not be enough corn to go around. Herrings are scarce and the market bare. Sugar is quiet at the moment, but the statistical situation is as strong as ever and a further rise in refined would not come as a surprise. The tea market is steady with Indian and Ceylon blacks quiet, and an increased activity in Japans and Moyune Hysons. Coffee continues very firm, with very little buying on this market, and small stocks being held. Firmness characterizes the dried fruit market generally, and the volume of trade is beginning to increase. Syrups and molasses, spices, and rice and tapioca remain unchanged. The almond and filbert markets are reported to be firm and advancing.

CANNED GOODS.

A large share of trade in canned goods during the past week has been sorting up, although a good percentage of orders taken to arrive is reported throughout the trade. The general impression seems to be that there are plenty of old tomatoes and corn left to keep the trade supplied until new stock arrives on the market. Prospects for tomatoes continue good and unless the weather becomes abnormally wet or frosty, the pack will be a large one. In corn the prospects are not so good, and owing to doubt as to whether there will be enough canned corn to supply the usual demand, one Toronto firm who have already sold almost up to the limit of their contract with the canners for new pack corn for future delivery, have withdrawn from the market.

The salmon situation continues very firm and packers at the coast are not offering sockeyes at present. Stocks of old sockeyes are a minus quantity as far as local wholesalers are concerned; if there are any at all on the market they are in the hands of the retail grocery trade. Generally demand for salmon is being supplied with pink salmon and cohoes. Things will adjust themselves in the course of ten days or a fortnight, when new pack sockeye salmon will be here for local distribution, considerable quantities being now in transit.

The usual Summer trade in potted and canned meats does not show much sign of easing as yet. New herrings are late in arriving on the market, and locally the market is bare. Sardines are reported to be difficult to obtain. California olives are moving only fairly in limited quantities. Lobsters at abnormally high in price and moving slowly as a result, the maximum size of an order at the present time being 50 cases, which compares anything but favorably with the average size of shipments in former years. SUGAR.

There is no noticeable change in the sugar situation since last report. Only slight transactions in raws are recorded, buyers being willing to accept only nearby parcels at current quotations. Holders have been very firm in their ideas and are showing a disposition to expect further advances. Cubans for shipment might be bought at 2 15-16c c. and f. for basis 95 but only to a moderate extent, this being equivalent to an advance of 1-16; refiners recent heavy purchases which will be coming forward during the next week or so, make them indifferent to the pretentions of holders. There appears, however, to be good reason for expecting in further appreciation in Cuban sugars in view of the heavy reduction in stocks which has been going on for some time. It is estimated that there now remain only 20,000 tons of unsold sugars out of a total stock of 54,000 tons in the Island as against 217,988 tons for the corresponding period a year ago.

gust 24 were nearly 10,000 tons less than meltings, the figures being as follows: Receipts, 35,540 tons; meltings, 44,000 tons, and total stocks, 128,510 tons, as against 250,744 tons last year. Combined stocks of United States and Cuba show a decrease of 286,220 tons, as compared with last year. Total stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven date were 1,643,512 tons as against 2,159,841 tons at the same time last year, the decrease being 516,329 tons.

American refiners are reported to have purchased recently 16,000 tons Demarara centrifugals for September shipment at 2 9-16c c and f., which is equivalent to a full duty paid parity of 4.25c. Recent purchases also embrace 13,000 bags Cuban centrifugals afloat at equal to 4 1-4c duty paid.

Notwithstanding reports of rain in some districts in Europe, the market has appreciated a further 3-4d per cent. and is now firm at 10s 7 1-2d basis, f.o.b. Hamburg, which is equal to 4.26c for 96 test centrifugals duty paid, New York. Private cable advices estimate the deficiency in the beet crop at 500,000 tons, but this is not official. Apparently it is sufficient in itself to justify not only present prices, but an even higher level of values.

Recent mail advices from London, England, quoted by Willett & Gray say "there is no doubt that permanent harm has been done to the beet root crop in Bohemia, Hungary and Silicia and that a deficiency of from 15 to 20 per cent. in most districts must be reckoned upon." Czarnikow, Macdougall & Co., say the belief is general that prices in 1905 will be much higher than for many years past, the maximum being largely dependent upon the ultimate result of the present beet crop. Stocks in Europe on October 1 will be much smaller than they were at the same date last year, therefore United Kingdom refiners will not be able to draw as much sugar of 1903-04 crop as they did of the previous one, but must look to new crop for supplies. Thus the world's stocks will be kept from the start below those of last year.

There is nothing new to report in the refined situation. Consumption in U. S. appears to be large and contracts are being considerably reduced. There has not been much new business though, and the same remark applies to Canada. At the close the market is quiet and firm with no particular indications. Our quotations are as follows:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

There is little of special interest to record in syrups and molasses this week. A fair volume of trade is reported for this season of the year at quotation prices. The new tariff regulation, regarding the admission of foreign syrups and molasses through Canadian ports does not seem to have affected the local market. Our quotations are as follows:

TEAS.

There is nothing new to report in Ceylon or Indian blacks this week, only a small but steady business having been done. Foreign markets remain on a very level basis. Japan teas have met with more attention during the week; values shown are attractive and some fair-sized orders for importation have been given; the total value, however, is after all not very large, and a goodly proportion of the trade is still pinning its faith to Ceylon greens as showing the consumer better value.

Importations of China greens are less than half those of the same date last year; but as the demand is also small, the shortage is not felt except in the higher grades of which very few have been shipped and for which there is some demand.

A little more than usual has been doing in Moyune Hyson, the trade finding that there are still a scattered number of people who think that no other tea really takes their place. We quote:

COFFEES.

The Rio coffee market continues very firm, although there has been no appreciable advance in speculative quotations since last week. Local buyers are buying only from hand to mouth, and at the present time it is thought that Toronto wholesalers are holding very little coffee. In view of more favorable crop reports from primary markets and the increase in the visible supply of the world, one prominent broker says he does not blame the trade for holding off and thinks they are quite justified in their contention that this is an inauspicious time for buying. The brokers are unanimous in their complaint of the dullness of trade.

A point that bull interests are laying considerable stress upon just now is the comparatively small quantity of Brazil coffee purchased thus far this season by Europe. Receipts at Rio and Santos thus far this crop year amount to approximately 2,500,000 bags and figuring on a total crop of 9,000,000 bags there remains only 6,500,000 bags still to be marketed, of which it is argued that Europe will need a large percentage to meet her requirements; consequently anticipating a good demand during the next few months from Europe and figuring on a comparatively small Brazil crop as indicated by the recent estimates this buying it is expected to carry prices to a higher basis. Another feature that is believed will prove to be a benefit to the market is the present apathy on the part of the consuming trade in both this country and Europe, thus allowing their stocks to be reduced to a low point. Should, as the season advances, the present conditions of the bull interest of a comparatively small Brazil crop, and also a smaller yield of the mild crops, prove to be correct, trade interests, it is believed, will show a desire to acquire larger stocks and the demand that would develop would be such as to materially assist in advancing prices. SPICES.

The spice market is showing signs of increased activity and pickling spices in particular are moving freely. Pepper and cloves are reported to be firm and considerable speculation has been done in the former. Available supplies of cloves are small with prices showing hardening tendency. Nutmegs are firm. Casses is selling at full prices. Our quotations are as follows:

Foreign Dried Fruits

Considerable business has been done in currants for steamer due to leave Patras to-day. Prices have eased off about 6d during the week, the decline being attributed to a change in the rate of exchange and not in the cost of currants at Patras. Cable advices, however, say that the markets have the appearance of being stronger soon. A letter from primary markets dated AuguIt 16, says: "We are of the opinion that currants will be dearer in December than in September, by which time the shortage will have become apparent to the markets of consumption. Foreign markets will not as a rule believe in reports of a short crop.

In Valencia raisins very little has been done beyond a few small opening orders. Prices opened on about the same basis as governed the bulk of sales for the corresponding period last year, but as there was no money made on the fruit, buyers are less interested and inclined to go slowly, particularly in view of the lower price of California raisins, in which they look for increased trade.

Cables of 3 or 4 days ago re Sultana raisins say the crop is decidedly short and the market is advancing.

Reports from the interior on Elemes figs are distinctly unfavorable; heat is maturing the fruit before it has arrived at full development, with the result that the quality will not be as bold as anticipated. Estimates have been lowered to about 60,000 loads, as against 93,000 loads last season. Shippers are becoming very reserved in action, and in many cases offers have been cancelled or the limit raised by from 3 to 4s.

Evaporated apples are scarce and firm but the new crop will soon be on the market. We quote the following prices:

FOREIGN NUTS.

Cables from Messina say the crop of filberts is very small and that prices are not likely to decline. The present quotations on new crop filberts is 2c per lb. above last year's prices. Old filberts which were selling 1c cheaper, have moved up until the difference to-day is less than ½c.

Tarrogona almonds are following the course of filberts, advancing at the rate of about 1s per bag daily during the week. Buying has been active.

EGGS.

Eggs continue strong in price, and if anything are shading higher. Receipts have been only moderate for the past week. The local demand remains brisk. Quotations given this week are 17 to 18c, although at the lower price eggs are only average in quality.

HONEY

The honey market continues firm and steady. Supplies are good in quality but not too big to meet the demand. A fair supply of old honey is being placed on the market. Prices remain unchanged. Following are our quotations.

Green Fruits.

During the week under review only one car of California fruit put in an appearance on the local market, where at the present time Canadian fruit has the preference. Bananas are firmer; on account of the low prices ruling last week very few were on hand to meet the increased demand caused by speculators at the exhibition. All indications point to a heavy apple crop. Some dealers are inclined to believe that apples will be a drag on the market and will be sold just to cover expenses. W. B. Stringer & Co., agents for J. C. Houghton & Co., Liverpool, report S.S Saxonia selling at Liverpool 750 bbls., and give quotations on Gravensteins at 12s to 15s 6d.

The season for Indiana cantaloupes is practically over; trade is brisk with Canadian cantaloupes, which are selling at from 30 to 40c per basket. Canadian fruits are more prominent generally this year with the exception of Canadian peaches and plums. St. John's peaches, the first of the freestone variety, are beginning to arrive, and are selling at from $1 to $1.50 per basket; another brand known as the "common" is selling at from 50 to 75c per basket. Crawfords are not expected for ten or twelve days yet.

Canadian pears are arriving daily from all parts of the province. These pears appear to be of a fair quality. Canadian Bartletts are selling at from 40 to 60c per basket, and Clapp's Favorite at from 30 to 50c per basket. There are few changes to note since last quotations. A busy fruit market is expected during exhibition. Our quotations are as follows:

After many weeks of excitement this market has settled down. During the week under review red wheat has slumped 2c per bush. Oats have advanced ½c per bush., and are now selling at 38½ and 39c. On account of the majority of people being engaged with harvesting the grain crop, the supply of seed has fallen off. Prices given for Alsick clover have advanced from $4.65 and $5.75 to $4.65 and $6. This advance in price is due to short supply, and prices will in all probability drop as the demand sharpens. Following are our quotations:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Sept. 1, 1904.

Groceries.

BUSINESS locally, taken all round, is reported as satisfactory. Collections are fairly good. One wholesale grocer reported that he was much pleased with his returns. A comparison with the three preceding years shows his receipts from country points this August to have been far ahead of last year's, and he judges that business must look good outside. It is true that farmers have not had so much success with their cheese and butter as last year but in this district the hay and fruit crop have been good, which possibly equalizes matters. Teas are reported as being on the quiet side, in fact too quiet. Japans, low grades, have held some attention, Ceylon and India greens are dull and not much business going. China blacks do not obtain much if any attention. Sugar, on the contrary, is must naturally follow that very high prices will rule during the coming season. Some B. C. and U. S. packers have in consequence of the position of the canning industry this season, withdrawn quotations. Tomatoes are reported as likely to be short in Quebec, though weather has been favorable in Ontario and that province is looked to as having to keep up an average pack. Prices of new pack may be looked forward to shortly now. Corn is scarce and high and stocks so light that not a case will be on hand before new pack is delivered. Sardines are higher as the run is not what was expected. Canned fruits are dull and uninteresting on account of the fresh fruit offering. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

New crop valencias are quoted at 17s f.o.s., 20s selected, and 21s for 4 crown layers. New crop currants for first direct steamers are offered at 13s to 14s 6d. Nuts are showing activity at the recent advances with exception of shelled walnuts, which are fully 8 to 10c per lb lower than this time last year. California prunes are ridiculously cheap, so cheap in fact that it does not seem possible they can go lower.

ONE of the principal objects of the canners' amalgamation was to reduce the cost of production to the lowest possible point, and at the same time improve the quality to the highest standard.

Sugar, Labels, Cases, Solder and Labor are considerably higher this season than in 1903. Notwithstanding this, our opening prices, so far as made, are lower than last season.

New Peas, Beans, Strawberries, Raspberries and Cherries are now ready for shipment. We are confident that quality will please, and think the present a favorable time to place your orders, and await your favors.

Watt, Scott & Goodacre report as follows:

Currants—There is considerable disappointment amongst importers and shippers' agents over the weakness that has developed in the Patras market. Present quotations are apparently below parity of currant bank absorption price, which was counted on to hold the market to an approximately minimum figure, below which, however, present quotations are. In present obscurity it can only be supposed that the decline in price is the outcome of a material advance in exchange.

Valencia Raisins—The weakness of the California situation is having no visible effect on Denia. Offers for first direct steamer to Montreal are only a few shillings below the basis of early shipments via Liverpool.

California Raisins—Low prices being made on coast and proving unattractive, except for seeded fruit.

California Prunes—Best Santa Claras of new crop, have touched a low record mark, and still as in the case of raisins, buyers are little attracted.

Valencia Onions—The crop is again of very good quality, but in quantity it will only very slightly exceed that of last year, which was early exhausted.

Filberts, tarragonas and shelled walnuts have all scored material advances this week, in their respective primary markets.

Green Fruits.

Business is reported as satisfactory. California fruit is selling high on account of the small arrivals. Pears have advanced 50 to 75c per box, with a good demand for this fruit. Plums advanced from 20 to 35c per box and peaches 25c. Canadian peaches sold from 35 to 45c per basket. There are of course clingstone plums from 40 to 60c per basket; pears from 25 to 60c; western melons from $1 to $1.25 per crate; Virginia sweet potatoes $5 per barrel and $2.50 per basket. There is very little demand for Canadian apples on account of California and Canadian small fruits still coming in freely and obtaining sales. Prices range from $1.25 to $1.75 per barrel, and 17 1-2 to 25c per basket of fancy apples. Bananas are very cheap, heavy arrivals having brought the market down. No. 1 are bringing 90c to $1.25 and for 8 hands 75c to 80c is the ruling prices. We quote:

Fish.

Business in fresh fish is picking up, possibly owing to the return to city of the citizens from the country and seaside resorts. Dore and pickerel are still very scarce, but by September 15 the shipments from Lake Winnipeg will ease prices. In dry salt fish the usual demand for this time of the year prevails, but indications are that higher prices will rule in the near future; a good foreign market and scarcity of catch assisting to this end. The oyster season has opened and first shipments of "bulk" will arrive this week; as usual they will be readily used up for first goods. Opening prices are in the region of $1.40 to $1.50. Shell oysters will not likely reach here before September 24, as the season opens on September 2nd. Arrivals will be by express and price no doubt high. We quote:

Country Produce.

EGGS.

The market continues firm and good prices are ruling. Export business is dull, prices being too high to warant exporting. English advices to hand indicate values there as being higher, but before any profitable business can be done a considerable enhancement has yet to be made abroad. A few small shipments have been made to England during the week with little or no margin of profit. Prices at country points are gradually advancing. Quotations locally for straight goods are 16 1-2 to 17 1-2c, selected 20 to 21c, and No. 1 candled, 17 1-2 to 18c.

POTATOES.

The market has turned somewhat steadier in tone and a fair amount of business is doing. Sales of car lots for delivery this week as noted at 85 to 90c per bag of 90 lbs. Smaller quantities are selling at 95c to $1 per bag.

BEANS.

Beans are very firm and indications point to higher prices. The syndicate seem to have the crop in good shape for steady and higher prices. In car lots to-day for choice prime quotations are $1.30 to $1.35. In less than car lots $1.40 to $1.50; primes, $1.40.

HONEY.

There is good inquiry for buckwheat and fair business is reported. A fair supply of extracted and clover comb is reported with slow demand. We quote:

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

No advance is noted this week. The market is firm thought quiet. It is difficult to indicate prospects of a further advance owing to the conflicting rumors as to the Manitoba wheat crop; a more optimistic feeling pervades the trade since the rust scare has been generally discounted very materially. We quote:

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER,
St. John, N.B., Sept. 3, 1904.

WITH the first of September Fall business may be said to be well under way. The continued strength in the flour market has been a matter of much interest. The new regulations received from the Customs Department referring to molasses must affect this business considerably throughout Canada. It will practically put a stop to the shipping of West India molasses into Canada via American ports. It is a question if New Orleans molasses can be shipped into Canada except from Southern ports, if it is to get the best rate of duty. The regulation reads that goods must be shipped from the place of production or its shipping port. The Inland Revenue Department is also looking closely into the quality of all molasses offered for sale.

Sugar remains firm. Cheese has shown a firmer tendency and already higher prices are asked. Fish is still high. Lard has at last gone up and the outlook is firm. Cream of tartar continues steady. Soda, in which there has been an entire change in the method of business owing to American firms having been given the control of the market on this side of the water is much higher in price. Keg business has always been large here but the people doing the business at the present time will without doubt make every effort to make this a package soda market. Already there is a large demand for package goods. Rice is unchanged.

Oil.

There is already a noticeable increase in the consumptive demand for burning oil. Prices are unchanged. Lubricating oils are also unchanged, and only a fair busness is reported. In paint oil only a limited demand is reported, though the firmer feeling in linseed oil has tended to more free buying. Turpentine is unchanged. In cod oil rather lower prices rule.

Salt.

In Liverpool coarse salt there is a marked improvement in the demand. Stocks in store are moving freely. A cargo now due is nearly all sold and there is a further cargo afloat. Prices are firmer and ex-store prices have been advanced. The best season for Canadian salt is practically over.

Canned Goods.

Owing to a change in the method of doing this business there is much less excitement in canned goods than a few years ago. There is, however, more profit to the dealer, which is perhaps after all the important matter, although not the same chance to push business. Those buying outside of the association have been much better served than last year, there being no trouble in securing full supplies of all lines. Lobsters have been a light pack. Salmon is firm and meats continue unchanged. In gallon apples, the market is being supplied by local canners, the demand being but fair. Blueberries are lower than last year. Canners of sardines are feeling more encouraged. For sometime they got no fish but now they are having a good run.

Green Fruit.

Apples are plentiful and domestic fruit cheap. Quality as yet is only fair. For the higher priced American fruit buyers will not pay the figures asked. Oranges are high and a fair sale is reported. Lemons are unchanged with sales light. Pears are selling freely, for best stock prices rule rather firmer. California plums are plentiful and low. In peaches only a fair business has been done. Ontarios are now offered. In melons sales have been light. Bananas are plentiful.

Dried Fruit.

Currants have interested the wholesale trade during the past week. Prices declined about 2s after opening and dealers bought freely, chiefly package goods. The California market in both raisins and prunes is unchanged at the low figures. Sales of malaga layers are growing less each year. Very little will be done this season in valencias. Dates will be low. In figs buyers are not purchasing as freely as last year, quite a few having been carried over. Evaporated apples have shown light sales. Valencia and American onions are being received on the market.

Sugar.

The market is firm at the advance. Business has been large. Full stocks are carried.

Fish.

In fresh fish the market has been rather better supplied. While dry cod fish are more freely received prices are still high. Some pickled bay herring have been received; there is a good demand for them and full prices are asked. Shad are very scarce. In smoked herring the market is bare.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

Business in flour has been very active. Prices have continued to advance. In oatmeal while the high price is still held, buyers are hoping for lower figures with the coming season. New oats are quoted but so far the market has been quite bare.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

Vancouver, August 25, 1904

TRADE conditions during the past week have been good, and the prospects for Fall business are very satisfactory. An impetus was given the general trade this week by the holding of the annual convention of the Canadian Medical Association in this city. It brought over 500 strangers to Vancouver, who have filled up the hotels, and are spending the whole week seeing things and buying.

Business with the Yukon has practically closed for the season, though late shipments will be rushed in the same as ever. Local merchants obtained a large proportion of what was going, and while the total may not have been as large as in former years, yet the trade was considered very satisfactory.

In local prices there is not much to note. Coffees are very firm, with a prospect of an advance. The tea market has no new features, while spices are unchanged. Cured meats, however, show a firmer tendency, and hams and breakfast bacon have gone up a cent per pound. Eggs are higher, eastern fresh eggs having advanced from 1 to 1½c per dozen. Butter, lard and cheese are unchanged. Flour is very firm and another increase is looked for in addition to the 20c per barrel raise recently inaugurated.

The first Crawford peaches from the Ashland District, California, arrived this week, and are going at $1.10 to $1.25. A car of peaches from Washington also arrived yesterday and command 90c to $1. These are for preserving and are in considerable demand. In fruit generally stocks are good. Apples are more plentiful, and the price of native fruit has fallen. California Gravensteins are worth from $1.75 to $2 per box, the price being well maintained. Plums from the south are $2, while the local variety are 50c to 75c. The crop here is not good this year, and while some of the product is very good, some of it is very inferior. Watermelons from Lodi, California, go at 20c and 25c. Pears are a little cheaper, $2, and tomatoes are also coming down.

R. P. McLennan, of McLennan, McFeeley & Co., of this city, has returned from a trip to the firm's houses in Dawson, and brings latest news of business conditions in the north. He says that Dawson will become the distributing centre for the new Tanana mines on the Alaskan side of the boundary in the Yukon Territory. General conditions were good, he said, though 8,000 tons less of merchandise went into the country than last year. In a sense this would prove a benefit to the merchants. The dealers in the north have been overstocked, and a shortage of supplies will enable them to get rid of the goods they already have on hand. The big rush for the Tanana gold fields caused a heavy demand in that district. Every steamer leaving Dawson was crowded with passengers, and had on large cargoes of goods.

Hon. Raymond Prefontaine, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, left for the east on Tuesday morning, and the people of the west feel that much good will result from his personal inspection, especially in connection with the salmon fisheries. He arrived, fortunately, in a bad year, and was able to see just how bad things had become. With a pack of about 60,000 cases all taken, the season has been a disastrous one, but he has taken steps to have a closed season enforced from August 25 to Sept. 15, as well as for the immediate installation of a hatchery at Harrison Lake. These will be the first steps, and it is expected that in a few years by scientific propagation and careful conservation the salmon fishing will be good each year. Such results were accomplished on the Columbia river, where the fishing had gone down to nil, but where this year, which has been a very bad one on the Fraser River and Puget Sound, has been good there. The reports from the Skeena River up to August 8 were that 110,000 cases had been put up. The season in the north has been better than on the Fraser, though in Alaska it was none too good.

On Thursday afternoon just as we went to press an advance of 5c per 100 lbs. was made in the price of all grades of sugar, in sympathy with outside markets, a sale having been made in New York at 1-16 advance, while in London cane sugars advanced 2¼d.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, August 27, 1904.

THE effect of rust on the grain has been greatly exaggerated, for even through Holland district, where the crops have suffered most it will not average more than about 25 per cent. There has been a slight frost through Moosejan and Regina, the only places that suffered in all the west, and the Assiniboia crop is most magnificent. Nothing but an untimely frost can prevent a satisfactory year.

Business has been bright for the past week and all markets have been well maintained by a fairly good demand. The flour market has again advanced 10c all around.

Sugar—The market is firm with prices steady, quoting Montreal granulated at $5.25 per barrel and $5.15 per sack; yellows, $4.65; Wallaceburg, the market quotes at $5.15 in barrels and $5.05 in sacks.

Evaporated and Dried Fruits—The market continues firm, 1904 stock of evaporated apples, choice quality, are quoted at 13 1-2c per lb. New stock evaporated apples will not be available before November.

Canned Vegetables—The market is firm in all lines; new stock of canned beans are now on the market and are quoted at $1.80 to $1.90 per case; canned peas are also available, the market quoting them at $1.90 per case.

Coffee—The market is firm, quoting No. 5 green Rio, good quality, at 10 1-4 to 10 1-2c per lb.

Flour—The market has again advanced 10c and No. 1 is now quoted at $2.65, No. 2 at $2.55 and No. 3 at $1.90.

Rolled Oats—The market is steady and prices are firm, quoting 80-lb. sacks at $2.25; 40-lb sacks at $2.35; 30-lb sacks at $2.35; 8-lb sacks at $2.65, and 6-lb sacks at $2.85.

Canned Fruits--The market is fairly firm for all lines of new stock canned goods now available, quoting strawberries at $3.25 per case; raspberries at $3 per case of 2 dozen. Jams have advanced slightly and the market quotes both Upton's and Aylmer's pail jams at 47 1-2c.

Green Fruits—The market is still very active. Oranges are quoted according to quality from $4.50 to $5.50 per case, lemons $5 per case, bananas $2.75 to $3 a bunch, Ontario pears 85c per basket, Ontario apples 40c per basket, and Ontario tomatoes 85c per basket. California peaches are quoted at $1.50 per crate, Washington peaches at $1.25 per crate, Washington pears at $2.50 per case and Washington plums at $1.50 per crate. Ontario apples are now quoted at $3 50 per barrel. American apples are off the market. California grapes, the market quotes at $3.50 per crate, and watermelons, $3 to $4 according to size.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELING IN CANADA

Special to The Birmingham Daily Post.

THE following is a rejoinder to Mr. P. B. Ball's contribution to the columns of the Birmingham Daily Post, on the subject of "Commercial Traveling in Canada," which was reproduced in last week's issue of The Canadian Grocer :

Mr. P. B. Ball, the Canadian commercial agent in Birmingham, is by common consent a genial and estimable gentleman, but, to judge by his letter of July 15, logic is not his strong point. Probably this quality is not essential to the discharge of his official duties, but it is desirable in a journalistic controversy.

In the article which I contributed to the Daily Post under the above heading, the point upon which of all others I laid the most stress was the fact that the British manufacturer had largely himself to thank for the humiliating position of British trade in Canada to-day. I dwelt upon the long neglect of that market by our traders at home, whereby the Canadian had been driven into the arms of the American, and I was particular to say that the Canadian could not be blamed for this result. I stated that we had much leeway to make good before we could catch up with the Yankee; I shattered the fallacy that the Canadian was willing to buy English goods merely because they are English; I warned old-established firms at home not to presume upon their mere reputations to provide them with gratuitous passports to the Dominion's markets; I summed up the situation in the words that "Canadian trade was not an overripe apple, ready to fall into the first British jaw that chose to open for it." Finally, I emphasized the point that my strictures did not apply to those trades in which regular business was being done, and that my advice was offered only to such firms as were contemplating their initial journeys to Canada.

Patriotism.

Now, what is the Canadian commercial agent's rejoinder to all this? Speaking of my, to him, unknown individuality, he says: "No doubt he thought that he would be able to sell his goods amidst the waving of the Union Jack and the singing of the National Anthem. He believed that anything that sold in Great Britain or any Continental country was quite good enough for Canada. What did he think we were going to do; sit and suck our thumbs?" And he sums up, "In spite of the gentleman's remarks, there is a large business to be done if the British will go after it and make what we want, but it is useless thinking he can sell any old thing just because it is British."

All this is a corroboration of what I myself have said, but, in the temper of a Mrs. Caudle, Mr. Ball scolds me for having said it. "Argument" of this kind is puerile. But it is very characteristic of the official commercial agent. It is quite in the style of those precious lucubrations, the trade reports, which, at the bidding of the foreign office, are periodically sent home by those well-meaning gentlemen, the British consuls abroad, to teach British merchants and manufacturers the first principles of business.

Mr. Ball's other rejoinders are for the most part on the lines of the above quoted examples. I have written that "In Canada—as elsewhere—patriotism stops short at the pocket," but Mr. Ball conveniently ignores the words "as elsewhere," and construes my remarks into a special disparagement of Canadian patriotism. I had elaborated the point that the Canadian's "loyal feelings to the Old Country prompt him — all other things being equal—to favor England as against the foreigner." "What more can any fair business man want?" is Mr. Ball's querulous comment upon what was obviously a tribute from myself to Canadian loyalty. "The writer of the article," says Mr. Ball, "sneers at our modest little 10 per cent. preference. He evidently expected he would get 33 1-3 per cent. How high did he think our tariff was?" For Mr. Ball's benefit I may say that I was myself perfectly posted up beforehand as to the tariff. But as I know, that there is in England a certain amount of misapprehension on the subject, I endeavored to explain its precise bearings. My words were intended to show that the preferential tariff must not be expected of itself to transfer Canadian import trade to British hands, and I venture to think that they would be so understood by the ordinary reader.

Proximity to the United States.

Similarly, Mr. Ball misinterprets my remarks as to the proximity of the American manufacturing districts to Canada, and the advantages which that proximity confers on the American. He indulges in some humerous remarks about a Yankee porter, "handing packages across the border at no expense," and goes on to state that "it costs as much to send a ton of stuff from Pittsburg to Toronto as it does from Liverpool to Toronto." Possibly so, but the Birmingham manufacturer has first to get his ton of stuff from here to Liverpool and then on board ship there, which is no small additional item. Moreover, when one is speaking of the influence of "proximity" in international trade, one has other things in mind besides the actual cost of freight. There is the ease and cheapness with which travelers can visit the adjacent country; there is the rapidity of postal intercourse and of goods transit—all of which are very important factors in export trade. It costs no more to send "a ton of stuff" from Hull to Antwerp than from Dusseldorff to Antwerp, but does Mr. Ball suppose that the proximity of Rhineland or Westphalia to Belgium does not give the German manufacturer an advantage over his competitor from the English Midlands? All these considerations are well understood of business men, although they may not be obvious to an official commercial agent.

I stated—Mr. Ball says I "complained," but that is a way he has—that in their system of railways, sanitation, lighting, heating, cooking, and other things, the Canadian adopts American plans and patterns. This was written in order that intending British exporters might know what to expect. I admitted that it was a case of the operation of the inexorable law of gravitation. But Mr. Ball makes my remarks the text for a homily to the Englishman on the antiquated fashion of his cooking ranges and his cast-iron pot. As a business man I admitted that in many directions we English have to meet the "handier notions and cleverer patents of the Americans," and Mr. Ball is welcome to his little chuckle over this admission. No one could complain of this, but every Englishman traveling in Canada observes with regret the Canadian tendency to adopt an American habit, mannerism, or system, merely because it is American. As an example, take that abomination, the American pattern sleeping car, which is in use through the Dominion, and which is designed to secure the greatest misery to the greatest number, combined with the minimum of decency. Doubtless it all comes of "proximity."

"Mr. Ball confesses that he "does not know the nature of my business;" it seems to him to be "something in the household furnishing line." So, for the information, not only of Mr. Ball, but of other of your readers, I may say that the nature of my business is one into which the element of design and style enters very largely, and I have enjoyed opportunities of judging the standard of taste in many countries. In Canada I found that standard below that of this country, or of the more artistic nationalities of the Continent. I found that some of the best productions of some of the best makers in England did not appeal to the Canadian tastes. And when, on comparing notes with other travelers, I found my own experience corroborated, I recorded my opinion that in certain artistic trades—which I enumerated—"the trend of taste in Canada was to the light and flashy." Hereupon Mr. Ball proceeds to indulge in abstract generalisations on the folly of British manufacturers in "putting a ton of metal in an article when half a ton will do." It is the old hardy-annual, the consular report in a new guise. The hand is the hand of Mr. Ball, but the voice is the voice of the official commercial agent, which is very like unto that of the parrot.

Expense of Travelling.

With regard to the expense of traveling, Mr. Ball's figures are interesting, but his line of reasoning is, logically speaking, beside the mark. Railway fares are in point of mileage slightly lower than here. But in no European country—Russia alone excepted—are important towns so far apart. This geographical fact, coupled with the slowness of the freight traffic, renders a business journey with heavy samples a very costly undertaking, despite the rebate obtainable under the Commercial Travelers' Association—of which, I may incidentally inform Mr. Ball I duly availed myself. "Hotels are excellent but high priced," I had said. It is a pity Mr. Ball could not let this inoffensive statement pass. Instead, he enters upon a long dissertation to show that if a commercial traveler in England were to put up at, say, the Carlton or the Savoy, it would cost him quite as much as in the best hotels of Toronto, Montreal, or Quebec. No one doubts it. "Everything is table d'hote," he says. "And a bill of fare is put before the traveler which could not be got for three times the money in Great Britain." That is also true. The mere reading of a Canadian menu will give a European an attack of indigestion. If a man could but eat half what is offered for his choice the Canadian hotel would, I admit, be the apotheosis of cheap feeding. But, it is just this dearth of good moderate-priced hotels, this obligation to board on the so-called "American plan," that makes Canada so costly a ground from the commercial traveler's point of view.

Duty on Samples.

To my charge of rapacity in the levying of duties, Mr. Ball's only retort is the lame one that "all travelers have to pay this, no matter from what country they come." It is but a negative satisfaction to the British commercial to know that his Yankee rival is rooked to like extent. Mr. Ball likens the annoyance to that of the Canadian having to pay duty on entering England with a broken pound package of tobacco. But the parallel does not hold good; the tobacco is a dutiable article in England and is going to be consumed in the country. The samples going into Canada are only for the purpose of showing, and, if not sold there, the duty paid on them should be recoverable when they are taken out of the country. This is a concession to commercial travelers that is granted by the most protectionists of European States, as also is the exemption from duty on one's traveling cases and trade catalogues. "Had I been willing to take a little advice," Mr. Ball says, "I should have gone with the invoice of samples and packages and 'might probably have paid a little less.'" The single quotation marks are my own: the delightful vagueness should not be missed by anyone who may be thinking of taking "a little advice." But it would be interesting to me personally to know upon what grounds Mr. Ball assumes I was such an ignoramus as to go to Canada without taking a certified invoice of my samples and packages.

Mr. Ball is good enough to offer me his "most sincere sympathy" upon what he calls the "failure" of my visit to Canada. I was not aware that—beyond describing certain difficulties with certain classes of goods—I had given any indication as to the success or otherwise of my visit. My article embodied the experiences of many other men with my own as, in fact, I mentioned. I described certain conditions existing in Canada, and certain characteristics of Canadian business men. My criticisms were levelled at least as much at my own countrymen as at the Canadians. But, according to Mr. Ball, it seems my conclusions are wrong, my experiences of no value, and all because I would not take "a little advice." He has no difficulty—consuls and official commercial agents never have—in showing how easily the trick may be done. All that the British manufacturer has to do is to change his methods of production, alter his patterns, cut down his prices; then, if he will take "a little advice" and a great deal of money, he may go out to Canada, and—so Mr. Ball assures us—"there is no doubt that he will do business." It is true that under the aegis of the tariff the Canadians may take—as Mr. Bell tells us they are in the habit of doing—"what they consider the best ideas and manufacture them for themselves." But that is an after consideration.

Who Ever Heard of Such a Grocer?

Have you ever known a grocer who went back to soaps and sodas, Household Ammonia Powder?

Ever even heard of one?

"No" to both questions, for they don't go back.

We have a retail grocer who, up to 18 months ago, never expected to make anything out of his soaps or sodas. Said he had resigned himself to it as one of the fixed conditions of trade.

Real reason is that soap prices are all cut to pieces by departmental and bargain counter stores.

To-day he makes a splendid profit on it. He now regards it as one of the safely profitable features of his business.

Who performed this miracle? It wasn't a miracle—he simply started to sell Household Ammonia in cartons. He escaped the labor and got back his profit.

JOPANESE FISHING SCHOOL.

JAPAN's foresight, energy and industry have, in no line of effort, been so marked as in the development of her fisheries. As early as 1882 the fisheries of the Empire underwent associated direction, and it became the concern of the leading men of the then infant industry to further its expansion by a system of enlightened instruction. In 1888 the Minister of Agriculture established the first school at Tokio, and today there are in the Empire the following: One school of instruction in marine and freshwater products, sustained without government aid; twenty-five experiment stations under state subvention; three fishery schools also assisted by the state; twenty-one subsidized schools for the fullest instruction in all that appertains to the preparation or to the gathering of the varied harvests of the waters. In the principal of these institutions the students undergo a three years' course of instruction; the first year in fish culture, sea and river fishing, ichthyology, botany, chemistry, physics, drawing, foreign languages, etc. The second year they study the mechanical arts, boat building, navigation, tin working, fishery jurisprudence; the third year being largely practical instruction, the Government furnishing a number of fishing vessels, each comfortably accommodating twenty-four students, besides the crew, the fishermen and the teaching staff. Among the facilities of instruction are colored representations, in the highest style of art, of ninety-six fishes, in most instances life-size, also a text-book for fishermen, fully and clearly illustrated. Norway, Germany and Holland have likewise schools of fishery instruction, but not upon Japan's impressive scale.

The steadily increasing development of Japan's fisheries challenges our interest, for her enterprise extends to foreign waters.

Ere debarred by restrictive legislation, Japanese fishing boats operated largely upon the Skeena and Fraser Rivers in western Canada, and also in Australian waters, the alert, quick-witted, knowledge seeking little Oriental apparently finding everywhere a field of profitable activity.

In 1899 Japan had 400,000 fishing craft in service that directly or indirectly gave employment to 3,338,000 persons, or about a twelfth of the population. The total value of the product was 70,761,846 yen, against but 44,527,645 yen in 1895. Until very recently Japanese exports to Europe and America were substantially limited to fish oil and pearl shells; but to-day her salt and smoked fish have found a lodgment in European markets with an assurance of a future extensive sale. At the great Russian International Fishery Exposition Japan's exhibit excited exceptional interest; her display, among various other marine products, including sea weeds furnishing glazing or stiffening materials for textile and other fabrics, specimens of pearl shells, worked and unworked, salted salmon roe, canned oysters and mussels, eels in oil, also sardines, fish puddings, codliver oil of exceptionally fine quality, etc.

Japan is no longer like a girl at her first ball, waiting anxiously to be noticed; the throng thickens about her, and she is to be reckoned with.—Pacific Fisherman.

MOLASSES TRANSPORTED IN TANK STEAMERS.

IN view of the fact that Russian refineries are contemplating the transportation of raw beet sugar molasses to this country by means of tank steamers, the following item taken from the New England Grocer is of particular interest:

"The molasses business in the past years has undergone changes like all other commercial enterprises. There was a time when all these goods were handled in packages from the size of a nail keg to the familiar hogshead, but within the last few years enterprising transportation companies have been carrying molasses on shipboard in tanks similar to those used for the transporting of oil. It is customary for certain lines to charter their vessels in the oil carrying trade during the greater part of the year, but during the spring to use a certain number of these vessels in the molasses business for the purpose of transporting goods from Cuba, Porto Rico and the Islands of the United States. This of course takes place only in the spring or during the season, as it is called.

To the uninitiated the thought of carrying molasses in vessels principally used for oil seems somewhat unpleasant, and the usual question is what deleterious effect the oil has upon the molasses. Strange to say, it is a fact that there is very little danger of the oil injuring the molasses. The trouble has always been that the molasses seems to injure the oil. However, there is very little chance of any action of either the molasses on the oil or oil on the molasses, for at the end of each trip these vessels are very carefully and thoroughly cleaned. The usual method is to batten down the hatches, fill the tanks with live steam and then after a certain period to scrub and wash down the tanks thoroughly by hand, and it is a fact that in the case of molasses not the slightest trace of the oil can be detected.

The purpose of handling molasses in tank ships is many sided, but all features of this class of trade tend to the same object, that of saving money. In the first place there is a great saving in the first cost of the packages, which may amount to many thousand dollars for a small cargo. The cooperage of these packages when they have been discharged from the vessel to the wharf is another large item. The cost of handling, both in loading the ship and in discharging the ship is an item which is reduced to a small matter where the cargoes are handled in bulk. If the old 'saw' that 'Time is money' holds good there is certainly a large saving in this respect, as a cargo of molasses, say of 500,000 gallons, may be loaded on the vessel in a matter of from 15 to 30 hours, and discharged in approximately the same amount of time. There is a great saving in space, both on the ship and in store, and finally when the molasses is once placed in the steel storage tank there is a constant element of expense avoided in that there is no leakage or cooperage, which is always true of the same goods when stored in wood.

BIG SUGAR MILL.

The Honolulu Iron Works has been awarded the contract to build for Alexander and Baldwin's sugar plantation at Makawell the biggest sugar mill in the world. It will be a 12-roller mill, with revolving cane cutters and a Krajewski-Pesant cane crusher.

The new Makawell sugar plant will consist of a 34-inch by 78-inch 12-roller mill in connection with revolving cane cutters and a 26-inch by 72-inch Krajewski-Pesant cane crusher, all driven by two Corliss engines, and will probably be the most complete milling outfit in the world.

FINANCE AND INSURANCE

CHARTERED BANK STATEMENT.

THE statement furnished by the thirty-four chartered banks for the month of July shows evidence of steady but continuous expansion, even when compared with the most expansive of Canada's recent prosperous periods. As compared with June, the note circulation of the banks shows slight contraction—a natural development during July. As compared with July last year, the note circulation has expanded more than two million dollars, and the expansion is about eleven million when compared with July, 1901.

The deposits of the public with Canadian chartered banks also continue to increase in the most encouraging way. The total deposits amounted to $431,045,762 for July, as compared with $423,874,030 for June, and $382,140,101 for July, 1903. Deposits after notice continue to show the greatest relative expansion, but the expansion in deposits on demand has been quite appreciable, being nearly two and a half million dollars as compared with June.

Deposits of the public on withdrawal after notice have more than doubled since July, 1896. They were then $122,100,974, whereas for July, 1904, they were $312,713,823. When the July deposits withdrawable after notice are compared with those of June, an expansion of nearly five million dollars is shown.

Current loans and discounts amounted to $208,759,940 for July, 1896, and to $414,096,802 last month, a gain of $205,336,862, or nearly a hundred per cent. There is a slight gain in discounts comparing July with June, and a gain exceeding fifty millions as compared with July a year ago. It is also significant to note that call loans which went up to $45,876,667 in July, 1902, are now down to $34,924,405.

Foreign business has contracted appreciably since last year, which goes to show that the Canadian banks have now pretty nearly enough Canadian business to keep them busy. The total assets of the banks now amount to $696,409,519, or $140,000,000 more than the liabilities, as compared with $641,985,699 a year ago and $319,582,621 for July, 1896. At that time, July, 1896, there were thirty-eight chartered banks, so that the average assets amounted to $8,410,000, whereas now there are only thirty-four chartered banks, and the average assets amount to $20,482,632.

AUSTRALIAN OPPORTUNITIES.

IN his latest report on trade conditions in Australia, D. H. Ross, Canadian Commercial Agent at Melbourne, remarks that up to the present no Canadian or United States banks have opened branch banks in Australia or New Zealand. There appears to be a splendid opening for an extension of the Canadian banking system to Australia, which would be appreciated by all Canadian houses doing business there, as well as by exporters to Australia. At present all exchanges are made through London, which is inconvenient, expensive and pregnant with delay. Gold can be shipped from Australia to Vancouver or San Francisco at less rates than to London. The United States Government exchanges gold at par between its sub-treasury in San Francisco and the treasury at Washington or other sub-treasuries in the different United States cities. This would enable a Canadian bank, having offices in Australia, San Francisco and New York, to secure the greater portion of the profitable exchanges on Canadian and United States business which is now all settled through London. In this connection, it may be of interest to bankers to note the Australian shipments of gold to San Francisco in recent years, the values of which are as follows :—

1900	£3,710,156
1901	2,150,363
1902	1,601,000
1903	1,500,000

INSURANCE IN MONTREAL.

OWING to unsatisfactory conditions prevailing at the Montreal Water Works, the Executive of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association decided on Aug. 11 to charge in the congested districts of Montreal 50 cents more than the existing tariff on fire insurance. Since then the underwriters have taken the ground that the congested city districts were getting insurance too cheaply, from which the inference may be drawn that the old level is not to be restored even after the requisite repairs to the water works shall have been completed. Considerable dissatisfaction has been expressed by the mercantile interests of Montreal over this alleged unjustifiable action of the fire underwriters, and some drastic measures may be taken as a result.

This matter is of great significance to the large colonial offices doing business in Great Britain.

GREEN FRUITS

Fruit Trade in Great Britain.

THE following figures giving the quantity and value of fruit imported into Great Britain for the year ending December 31, 1903, will be of interest to Canadian fruit exporters.

	Cwts.	Bbls.	£
Apples.....	4,568,413	3,426,300	2,781,348
Pears	271,483	.....	326,462
Plums	596,483	.....	622,948
Strawberries..	32,644	.....	49,362
Gooseberries..	34,312	.....	28,444
Cherries.....	110,192	.....	167,142
Currants.....	76,419	.....	110,535
Grapes	687,938	.....	717,830

With regard to Canadian apple exports general satisfaction is evinced, as to branding, packing and quality, and as to the latter it is pre-eminently first. Packed in barrels properly graded is the method preferred by the Manchester trade. It is deemed advisable to ship as few varieties of apples as possible, as mixed lots do not bring as high a price as shipments of one well-known apple of uniform grade. Large dealers buy the uniform lots, and the different varieties indifferently graded, are only purchased by small dealers at cut prices.

Apples Should be Packed in Boxes.

IN his last report the Canadian High Commissioner in England says regarding apple packages:

"Shippers are now using very extensively a new package for apples in the shape of boxes, which are very highly spoken of in some quarters. For instance, one firm in the north of England expresses the opinion that the market for Canadian apples might be vastly increased and developed in Great Britain were they to be sent across in smaller packages than the ordinary sized barrel. It is very glad to notice that the custom of sending apples across in boxes of a handy size seems now to be rapidly growing.

"It thinks any further development in that direction will largely increase the field for Canadian apples in England, and that the large size barrel, which has been used in past years, has greatly stood in the way of consumers purchasing supplies of Canadian apples where, as must have happened in many cases, a barrel was too big a quantity for them to buy at a time, and where in many cases they might not even have accommodation for an apple barrel.

"Care should be taken that both barrels and cases are sufficiently strong for carrying in view of the distance to be covered and the frequent handling necessary. It has been suggested that uniform weights might be adopted with the best results, e.g., not less than 166 pounds gross for barrels and 50 pounds net for fruit in cases. Several shippers sent barrels 20 pounds lighter than usual, the effect of which was to cause confusion and loss among sellers."

Fruit Report.

THE Fruit Division, Ottawa, reports as follows regarding prospects for the fruit crop in Canada:

Prospects for apples have not changed materially since the last report. In Southern Ontario the fruit will be at least equal the crop of last year in quantity and surpass it in quality. In the Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario district everything points to a medium crop, cleaner than usual. Nova Scotia is developing considerable fungus. The storm of August 20 did thousands of dollars worth of damage in Nova Scotia, particularly in the Annapolis Valley. Prince Edward Island reports no appreciable change.

Pears of all sorts are a light crop. Plums are a total failure in more than half the orchards, and only a light crop anywhere. The prospects for peaches have not improved. Fifty per cent. of correspondents throughout the country report a total failure. Black rot has injured the grape crop materially in the larger vineyards, but the crop will still be fair.

Japan Fruit and Vegetable Market.

In his last report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, A. MacLean, commercial agent at Yokohama, Japan, says evaporated apricots, dried raisins, canned pears, peaches and apricots, asparagus, corn, beans and peas in cans find a sale in Japan. Tomatoes and other vegetables are not generally in brisk demand except when an English or American man-of-war comes to town, or a sailing ship, for stores. In Tokio there is a good deal of canned asparagus (French) imported. Canned peas are also greatly used in Japan, mostly French canning, put up without label other than a thin brass plate giving name of maker and contents in French. Nicely labelled cans take well in almost every line.

There is a demand during apple season for fresh apples, the earlier the better. A quantity of French fruit preserved in glass bottles holding each about a pint, usually cherries and plums, is also selling in Japan. The Americans are putting a similar article on the market. Practically all canned fruits arriving in Japan come from California. Canadian fruit canners should take note of this, with a view to pushing to the front.

Foreign Markets and Crop.

The first American apples of the season sold in Glasgow at 12 to 14 shillings. The British and continental crop fill the English market at present, but the fruit crop is lighter than was anticipated, though still a good crop. American apples are 75 per cent., peaches 60 per cent. and grapes 90 per cent. of a full crop.

U. S. Fruit Must be Marked.

British Columbia and Ontario packers have recently made complaint regarding the evasion of the Fruit Marks Act on the part of American fruit growers importing fruit into the Canadian West and particularly Manitoba, and insist that the law should be applied as rigorously to American as to Canadian products. It is impossible for the American packer personally to mark all packages shipped into Canada, and in this case the Canadan receiver of American fruit is required to mark the package, or pay the penalty provided for by the statute. The result of the enforcement of this law in the case of the American shipper will probably be that the standard of first-class fruit will be raised, the finest American fruit setting the grade. Much fruit formerly graded No. 1 will be graded No. 2, and fruit formerly grade No. 2 will be rejected.

Fruit Notes.

The annual meeting of the Province of Quebec Fruit Growers was held on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week at St. Jerome. It was resolved to hold the Winter session at Ayer's Flats on December 14 and 15 next.

SPECIAL NOTICE to the TRADE.

IN a previous issue of the Grocer we called the attention of the Trade to our very tender Sugar Pea. We now beg to call their attention to another line of peas which we believe to be first-class value. We refer to our brand "Midget" Peas. This is a pea just one grade larger than Petit Pois, and is selected from what is the most tender peas in the entire pack. It can be retailed at ten cents at any point in Ontario where the freight rates are only ordinary. As a straight ten cent line we believe it the best value to the consumer of any pea we pack. We finished packing peas on the 30th July, and all through the pack the weather was perfect for packing peas, cool and moist, so that the raw material was kept in fine condition. Taking the pack as a whole, we have every reason to believe it is the finest in quality that we have ever packed.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The Grain Situation.

IN grain circles just now the principal topic of interest both at home and abroad is: "What shall the harvest be?" in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories. Rust has been at work on the ripening grain, and until the last day or two it was impossible to give even an approximate estimate of the damage done. Meanwhile the "bulls" have been spreading all kinds of alarmist reports, and one indirect result has been a big jump in the price of wheat.

The Winnipeg grain dealers have returned from their tours of inspection of Manitoba and the Territories, and report that the yield will be about 44,000,000 bushels, or about 13 bushels per acre. Taking twenty bushels per acre, or from 70,000,000 to 80,000,000 bushels as a fair estimate of what the crop promised before rust developed, this blight would seem to have depreciated the harvest prospects something like thirty-five per cent. Threshing, which is the final test, will, in the opinion of some western authorities, show the rust to have done much more damage than has been expected, this judgment being based on what has already been seen in South Dakota.

One of the redeeming features of the situation is the fact that the rust damage is all in the older settled and comparatively wealthy sections of the country. The new districts, where many of the settlers would be unable to stand such a loss, have escaped disease. The worst conditions of rust were found around Glenboro' and Treherne, where the crop is one week earlier than in the extreme southern districts. It is thought that grain is now too far advanced to suffer much more from rust, the principal danger from now on being from damp weather and frost, as wheat generally is considerably later than a year ago.

In the Territories the damage so far has been very light, and all the crops look promising. All the way from Brandon to Moose Jaw practically no rust has been discovered, and the same may be said of the Prince Albert District.

On the whole it looks as if Manitoba and the Northwest will have enough wheat to supply the shortage in Ontario, with about as much for export as last year. The general agreement, moreover, is that on account of the big shortage in the United States crop, and a shrinkage in the world's wheat crop of between ninety and a hundred bushels, fairly high prices will rule.

Advices to Bradstreet's this week are of better weather in the United States for harvesting Spring wheat and a more cheerful tone in sections heretofore displaying uneasiness. Serious impairment of early promise is, however, confirmed in advices that the three northwestern states will raise slightly less wheat than a year ago. Conservative maximum estimates point to a wheat yield of about 570,000,000 bushels, which harvest and threshing results may revise later. Much needed rains have fallen in the corn belt and have done good in that portion west of the Mississippi. Improvement is also noted in the Ohio Valley, though here impairment of earlier promise is also noted. A large but not a record crop is the present outlook, hinging upon the advent of warmer weather—it is now too cool for best results—and the occurrence of a late open Fall. Generally excellent reports come from the western country as regards oats, barley, rye, flaxseed and other less important crops.

The following is a condensation of foreign crop conditions as published in Broomhall's, Liverpool, Corn Trade News:

United Kingdom. — Reports regarding wheat are a shade better, but on oats are less favorable.

France.—Crop reports are bullish in most cases.

Germany.—There are fair supplies of new wheat, the quality of which is good. The outlook for the fodder crops is improving.

Russia.—At some ports the arrivals of new wheat is fair to good, with the quality excellent, but at Odessa receipts are very small and the grain of poor quality.

Rumania.—Rains are needed to admit of ploughing.

Hungary.—Is buying cargoes of Argentine corn.

Sweden.—Heavy rains have stopped harvesting.

India.—The crop situation is satisfactory.

Will Flour go Higher?

IN the course of an interview with The Grocer this week, a prominent Toronto flour exporter remarked that the price of flour had in all probability nearly reached its upward limit. It was extremely unlikely that the level of prices would go lower than at present. Unless something unforeseen happened there would not be much further advance.

Canadian millers are paying $1 per bushel for wheat, when they can get it. Not in years has there been such a scarcity of Fall wheat in Ontario; so scarce is it that in the Lake Erie District many farmers are having to buy seed wheat. During the week a Toronto flour man bought a car of flour at Chatham, and within an hour had sold it to a miller in Amherstburg, all going to show the scarcity of wheat for milling purposes. The situation will improve as soon as the Manitoba crop is ready for shipment east.

The flavor is very marked, and the large tasty flakes provoke a greater appetite. It is this fact of large consumption that has a significance to the grocer—the more consumed the more frequent the sales, and, of course, the profit is multiplied.

At the present time no flour is being exported from Canada, the price of wheat in Liverpool being $1 per bushel, the same as the price ruling at home. The consensus of opinion, however, is that the English market will come part way to meet the Canadian grain exporter, since it is no secret that there is a demand across the water for Manitoba hard wheat, which no other variety can supply. The only countries growing hard wheat besides Canada are Russia, the United States. Neither of these countries will be able to export as much as last year, thus leaving Canada in pretty good shape to bid for this market. In Minneapolis and Duluth prices are away above an export level, and it is questionable whether there will be any appreciable reduction for some months. Prices ruling in Winnipeg are a little above export level, but in all probability they will have to come down in the near future.

Great Britain is getting sufficient soft wheat and flour from Argentina, India and Australia to answer her requirements in this line, even if Canada is unable to send her any soft wheat, which is now a foregone conclusion.

Estimates of the World's Wheat Crop.

PRELIMINARY estimates of the world's wheat crop, subject, of course, to free revision after the harvest is over and the results of thrashing reported from different countries, are beginning to appear in leading grain trade journals. The following estimates have been published in Broomhall's Corn Trade News, Beerbohm's Evening Corn Trade List and Dornbusch's Floating Cargoes Evening List. The estimates for 1904 are given with the estimates of the same authorities for 1903 and 1902 :

Broomhall—1904, 3,056,000,000 bushels; 1903, 3,097,600,000 bushels; 1902, 3,155,200,000 bushels.

Beerbohm—2,917,600,000 bushels; 1903, 3,087,800,000 bushels; 1902, 3,029,600,000 bushels.

Dornbusch—1904, 3,064,000,000 bushels; 1903, 3,160,000,000 bushels; 1902, 3,080,000,000 bushels.

These estimates, says the Journal of Commerce, fall below last year's crop, but they exceed the six years' average, 2,880,000,000 bushels, and about equal the annual normal consumption of the world, which is said to be something like 3,000,000,000 bushels. The Journal continues : "It is generally assumed that the European yield will be considerably less than that of last year, but there is a wide variation in the estimates. A good deal depends upon Russia. The Argentine and Australian figures are altogether uncertain. There is a practical certainty that the yield in the United States will be from 40,000,000 to 80,000,000 bushels less than last year, and Canada may fail to make the anticipated gain. But there is no sign of anything like a wheat famine anywhere, and no likelihood of a serious deficiency in the world's supply."

New Elevator for Port Colborne.

Tenders will be asked at once for the new 2,000,000 bushel elevator to be erected at Port Colborne, Ont., by the Dominion Government. This will be one of the largest working elevators on the Canadian side of the Great Lakes, and will in all probability be in operation in time for next Summer's grain crop. The move is a significant one in so far as it will tend the lake grain traffic which now goes via Buffalo.

Cereal Notes.

The A. Kelly Milling Co., Brandon, Man., are enlarging their premises.

The Empire Elevator Co. have commenced work on the construction of a 1,750,900 bushel elevator at Fort William, Ont. Between 300 and 400 men are employed on the job and it is expected that it will be finished in time for this year's crop. It will be capable of unloading 150 cars of grain in ten hours, and two 505 ft. vessels will be able to tie up at the elevator's wharf and be loaded at the rate of 60,000 bushels an hour.

NOT A BAD RECORD.

In the fine exhibit of The E. W. Gillett Co., Toronto, in the Manufacturers Building at the Canadian National Exhibition, there is a beautiful picture painted on glass, showing the new factory building they are soon to occupy. The picture in question is illuminated by electricity at night and is sure to be an attraction to all visitors. Immediately under the picture the following appropriate notice appears :

Not a Bad Record.

"We did not have a piece of paper or a lead pencil left after the fire of April 19 last, yet sales in June and July this year exceeded those of corresponding months of 1903."

The record is certainly a phenomenal one. Not many concerns who suffered in the big conflagration last April can make similar claims, although the enterprise and energy displayed by many of them is wonderful.

Tobacco Burdens in England.

ACCORDING to The Daily Chronicle, Mr. Austin Chamberlain has now replied to the arguments by which the tobacco section of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce attempted to show him the unwisdom of his new duty of 3d. on strips. They pointed out that if the extra duty on strips was necessary in order to put whole leaf and strips on an equal footing, then the Chancellor has convicted tobacco importers of incompetency in business, for these gentlemen for upwards of half a century, have been importing leaf in large quantities, when they might have saved 3d. per lb. by importing strips. Mr. Chamberlain practically tells them that they do not understand their business so well as he does, and he offers them elaborate data to show them how grievously they have erred. He does not believe that even now with the 3d. duty on strips it will pay to strip the leaf in this country.

The Liverpool merchants, with an eye on the Budget debate, reply to the following effect :

That there has been practically no business done in imported strips since the Budget announcement.

That virtually all making of strips in the United States for shipment to the United Kingdom has ceased.

That the revised scale of drawbacks has adjusted any disadvantages from which stemming in this country may previously have suffered, and that the differential scheme is now unnecessary to achieve this object.

That such differential duty scheme if persisted in will virtually lead, in the future, to the disuse of imported strips, as it would be much more profitable for manufacturers to use leaf at 3s. duty than strips at 3s. 3d.; and heavy losses would in consequence be sustained by merchants on their present holdings of strips.

That practically no revenue will be derived from the 3d. tax on imported strips after existing stocks have been cleared from bond.

The section, in conclusion, hopes that Mr. Chamberlain will pay its members "the compliment of believing that in a lifetime devoted to the trade they have aquired some knowledge of it."

Mr. Chamberlain has also been assailed by the retail tobacconists with a demand for the abandonment of the duty. It is pointed out as an instance of hardship that the manufacturers of "B.D.V." who raised the price of this tobacco from 4½d. to 5d. per ounce with the ordinary increase to the trade, have now found it necessary to go back to the old selling price with 2d. per pound increase to the retailer.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, in reply writes a letter deeply sympathising, but declaring that "inconvenience" is at first inevitable.

The Factory Reader.

THE increased demand for hand-made cigars of recent years has led to the immigration to the United States of a large number of Spanish or Spanish-speaking makers of cigars. Many of these have worked their way north, and now in every large American city may be found a growing colony of them, still speaking their musical tongue, retaining in some instances the customs and manners of their native countries. Although they conform to the northern idea of dress.

A transplanted cigar making factory is an interesting place to visit for several reasons, says the Tobacco World. In the north it is usually hidden behind an unpretentious shop, and is a long, narrow room with dust stained walls, hung with natural leaf tobacco, filler and wrapper, tools, forms and boxes. In this room 20, 30, 40 and even 50 dark-haired, bright-eyed, swarthy-complexioned men may be found throughout the day bending over their work. Their deft fingers never cease their movements; their eyes seldom rise from their task, and even their tongues are stilled. This may seem wonderful to anyone knowing anything at all about the Latin people, but it is explained by the presence of a sonorous voiced man, who sits on a platform raised in the middle of the room. He is the reader. He is the man whose duty it is to so interest the workmen that the facile tongues are kept quiet, and the usually gesticulating hands are kept at work.

The reader for a cigar factory has almost as long hours as the other men, and receives almost as good pay as the best. He is, in fact, a workman. Gifted with a good reading voice, a clear pronunciation, an ability to select interesting reading matter, and, last of all, some talent as a story teller, for whenever the printed word tires and the hearers are beginning to show weariness then must the reader turn to telling stories, and they must be of every variety.

It is early morning and the men have just begun work. Enter the reader with a bundle of papers under his arm ; first of all the morning paper, then the weekly magazine, then the Havana papers. Last of all, a comic paper from Madrid which is regarded as a prize, no matter how much opposed to the mother country the men may be in other things. The news—the important news—is the first thing read—news of Cuba, Porto Rico and Spain, changes in ministers, plans for future statehood, ambitions of leaders, defeat of the week, success of the strong, and finally the flotsam and jetsam of news, telling of South American revolt so dear to the heart of the Spaniard. The Havana papers are taken up in turn, the magazine follows, and last of all comes the funny paper.

These are always read last, because by that time it is growing late in the day, and the men are becoming wearied of statecraft and politics. They have heard the last instalment of the current novel, and their minds are pining for lighter things.

In Key West, Tampa, Punta-Gorda and other coast towns the men of a factory are taxed 40c. a week for the reader. Where 70 or 80 men are in one place the pay amounts to a very snug little sum. But in these exceptional cases the reader is exceptionally good of his kind. The wisdom of thus employing the minds of the men has impressed itself upon the northern employers of such labor, and in New York it is the custom for the employers to Cigars from Sugar-Beet Leaves.

The proximity of the Presidential campaign in the United States is giving birth to a number of interesting trade enterprises over there, among which may be mentioned an industry for the manufacture of cigars and stogies from the leaves of sugar beets. The plan is fathered, it is said, by a Philadelphia tobacconist who has enlisted the support of a number of Pennsylvania capitalists, men presumably, who, having had the opportunity to study the stogie in its native haunts, have come to the conclusion that the endurance of the smoker's stomach is limitless. Over the woes that he proposes to inflict upon his fellow men the promoter of the scheme seems to have no qualms of conscience. "What," he is reported as saying, "does the smoker of stogies or cheap brands of cigars care, whether they contain tobacco or not? Those who smoke the "two-fors" or three-fors" are troubled with nervous affliction that only the act of smoking will alleviate. They care nothing whether it's tobacco or other vegetable leaves they are smoking. If the cheroot or stogie smokes, that's all they care."

Change of Taste in Cigars.

THAT a change of taste in the matter of clear Havana cigars will take place during the coming winter is within the bounds of possibility, says a leading exchange. As has been frequently pointed out by Havana correspondents light colors are rather rare in the Vuelta wrappers of this year's crop, and will probably be held at high prices. Hitherto the call has been largely for light colors. The smoking public prefers, as a general rule, a mild Havana, and they judge the strength by the color of the wrapper. As a matter of fact, the criterion is an unreliable one. True, a dark wrapper is stronger than a light one, but it is really the filler that determines, for the most part, the quality of the cigar, and though it is unusual to combine extremes, yet a light wrapper may contain a fairly strong filler the result being a moderately heavy smoke.

This preference for light colors is far from universal. For example, in Havana itself, in Spain and in the South American republics, very light wrappers are practically unsalable, the taste running chiefly to colorado and colorado maduro, which find little favor in Canada and the United States. Of course, in those climates it is generally admitted that heavy cigars are less overpowering than in more northerly latitudes; at the same time, however, it is the opinion of experts that the moderately dark shades furnish a more aromatic and satisfactory smoke, than the extremely light, and that is particularly the case with this year's crop. However, a number of manufacturers, declare that they have noticed the beginnings of a gradual change in the public taste in favor of the darker colors, and from this they prophesy that moderate shades, like colorado claro, and colorado may be the best sellers this year.

Of course all this is merely in the nature of speculation, but it is a subject that the retailer would do well to consider. Could the consumer be induced to try a cigar a little darker colored than what he has been accustomed to, it may be that there would be less grumbling about "trashy stuff" and "no flavor," and a few adroitly put hints on the subject might win for the dealer many a valuable customer. Of course if the public wants claro, claro it must have it, for the public taste is the retailer's master; but the dealer who is first to spy the indications of a change in taste or to comprehend conditions which may lead to such a change, is the dealer who will get the trade. At times it is conditions of supply that regulate the character of demand; and here is when the retailer who reads his trade journal, and consequently knows all about the goods he is handling from the time the seed is put in the ground until the cigar is in his hands, will be able to utilize his knowledge to win the trade from his less well-informed competitors.

Hints to Smokers.

Buy none but new cigars, the newer the better. Old cigars that are dry and brittle are avoided in those countries and among people where smoking is a second nature.

Leave the ash on your cigar until it falls off. A cigar not only burns more evenly while the ash remains, but it lasts longer and tastes better.

If your cigar goes out be sure to blow through it as soon as possible. You will see some dead smoke leave it. That would become stale, and make your cigar stale if left in.

You cannot tell whether a cigar is good or bad unless you light it properly—that is to say thoroughly.

Do not smoke too much, and do not smoke a good cigar while you are out of doors.

If you think smoking is injurious to your health stop smoking in the early morning. Two-thirds of the people of this country have their stomachs out of order, and no man ailing that way can smoke in the early morning before or after breakfast.

Should be in the mouth of every smoker. What?

Duty on Sumatra and Havana Samples.

In a letter to the Collector of Customs at Niagara Falls, N. Y., under date of Aug. 17, 1904, the United States Treasury Department has ruled that samples of tobacco taken to Canada by commercial travellers are dutiable upon their return to the United States.

Up to the present samples of Sumatra and Havana tobacco have been admitted to entry free of duty upon their return through certain ports on the Canadian frontier. The practice has been to admit such samples as American goods exported and returned as personal effects, or samples of no commercial value. It further appears that such samples are put up in packages of one pound or less in weight and that sometimes twenty or thirty pounds are admitted to free entry at one time.

Tobacco Notes.

Reports have been received from certain sections of the Province of Quebec showing that the heavy hail storm of August 5, damaged very considerably the tobacco crop. One report especially noted was from the district around Valleyfield.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

FOR tonnage, in both steam and sail, for foreign and coasting trade the market continues dull. It does not seem to be the fault of offerings of vessels, as there are quite a number offering in the several departments, in most instances upon favorable terms, but orders of an important character are lacking. Operations in steam freights are somewhat restricted, owing in a measure to the difference in owners' and charterers' limits. An important subject, which has a relative value in connection with Canadian in order to promote their export of wheat, and because English millers are compelled to have American wheat in order to compete with American flour, and the flour, must be exported to their market to furnish the inducement for competition, otherwise the people will have to be contented with inferior flour, and the millers will use the cheaper wheat from India. The assumption is that the export of both wheat and flour might be increased to the benefit of the railroads, by increasing the freight on the former. What the real into flour, being of interest to the railroads, is almost absurd. Representatives of the big railroads deny that it is more profitable to carry flour than wheat at the present rates. Handling wheat in bulk is considered very much cheaper, than handling flour in barrels. Ocean steamers will take grain frequently as ballast, at a very low rate. There is a great interest in all these facts for Canada, because if the trunk lines in the United States, raise their rates on wheat, it would help to send export grain through

When ocean charges are collectable at port of destination, rates exchanged on basis of $4 80 to £1 stg. When ocean charges are prepaid, rates exchanged on basis of $4 86 to £1 stg.

If freight is offered other than specified above, on which steamship connections are accustomed to quote a weight or measurement rate at their option, prompt replies will be facilitated by giving, when applying for rate, the relative weight and measurement of the merchandise.

freights, has arisen as a result of a statement made by the traffic manager of the Millers' National Association in the United States. He visited Europe to study the situation affecting the export of American wheat and flour. Some arguments were used in favor of increasing the railroad freight for wheat, which in some respects are inconsistent with each other. For instance, one was that Americans must increase, or keep up their export of flour, effect would be can only be described as a possible dimunition of the export of wheat by raising the cost of transportation so that the export of flour might be increased. Perhaps this is the object of the Millers' Association in demanding an equalization of rates. The reduction of the rate on flour and an increase on that of wheat would benefit the millers and not the railroads. The argument that exporting no wheat at all, without first converting it Canada to the Gulf. It would therefore injure the American trunk lines, as far as wheat traffic is concerned, without materially increasing their flour traffic. The business of railroads, however, is not usually embodied in any such work, hence it is likely that no such increase of rates will take place.

Mr. J. Patton, Montreal, formerly in the wholesale crockery trade in Toronto, is dead.

The language of advertising is very much the same all over. Everybody claims to make the best goods and grocers must find out by actual experience what to let alone. We guarantee you against loss by refunding money in all cases where proves in any sense unsatisfactory. Business hasn't drifted our way blindly, and there's no reason why we shouldn't get all the trade there is in baking soda.

You run no risk at all in recommending "Cow Brand."

None so Blind As Those Who Won't See.

THE CANADIAN GROCER can prove of valuable assistance to the selling end of any business which seeks trade among the grocery and general storekeepers of Canada.

We advance many plain, indisputable arguments to this effect.

And still there are some folks who can't see it.

Some who can't see how it's going to pay them.

And won't even invest a few dollars to find out.

Very few folks like this, but we would like to convince even them.

If we only could, we'd get a good deal of satisfaction out of it—and we know they would, too.

Don't you think they're blind to their own interests?

Here's a paper that finds a welcome in every worth-while grocery store from Halifax to Vancouver once every week—so can't you see that an announcement of any interest must surely command some attention?

The advertising columns of THE CANADIAN GROCER provide about the best way we know of keeping in close touch with all the grocers of Canada all the time.

You can see value in a paper like this—

Can't you?

Cut out as rapidly as possible the teas the sales of which are steadily, year by year, dwindling.

In Canada---indeed, in all English-speaking countries, the demand is for Their flavor and strength, combined with cleaner and better methods of preparation account for this change.

Ceylon Teas are sold in bulk and in package---in either case one gets a Ceylon Tea. Ceylon Teas come in black and green.

Timely Hints and Suggestions

Interior Order.

THERE are stores which require a half a dozen clerks to do a $20,000 business, while another can satisfactorily handle a $30,000 trade with half the number of salesmen. The cause of this is not difficult to discover. In the first store the stock will be found to be arranged in no settled method, and a clerk is forced to hunt a few minutes for almost any article asked for, while the clerk in the second store where everything has its place, will wait on a couple of customers in the same time. It is a simple case of arithmetic, but one that too seldom bothers the brains of a merchant, that if a clerk can wait on two customers, while he is under the present system waiting on one, only half the staff or little more would be required.

Of course every store has some system and order in the arrangement of the stock, but it is not uncommon for the belief to be held that as long as an article is known to be in a certain section or on a certain shelf, that is all that is required. Nine out of ten merchants honestly believe that the plan they have adopted is the best in their power, urged on to this conclusion by the fact that they have spent really very little time on the working out of the plan. If the merchant himself does too little of the waiting in his store, he is apt to let pass the difficulty of finding any required article. If he observes nothing the chances unfortunately are that his salesmen will bestir themselves little to remedy existing evils in the placing of stock.

A section or a length of shelving are not sufficiently confined limits for the greatest facility of finding an article asked for. A clerk should be able, when waiting on a customer, to turn directly to the spot where the article would be. Every minute lost in the search is so much money lost, when there are customers enough to require the services of more than one salesman. After a little time the salesman should be so conversant with the place where every article should be, that there would be no risk of their replacing it in a wrong position, and thus disturbing the search of the next clerk for it.

If, in his attendance on the wants of a customer, the salesman is unable to return to its proper place an article taken down for inspection, he should not be allowed to hurriedly place it on any vacant part of the shelving, whichever is the most convenient, but he should place it on the counter, or better still upon a ledge at the bottom of the shelving, until he or some other clerk has leisure to replace it where it should go. This should be the duty of every clerk during his first unoccupied moments, to return every article out of place, whether put there by himself or not. In this way there is little likelihood of any quantity of stock remaining off the shelves, and interfering with the wants of the clerk who may be waiting on a customer. It is, at any rate, far more simple to glance along the edge where unplaced articles are, if it is not found in its proper place, than to be forced to look all over the shelves, as would be necessary if the clerks were allowed to shove the stock in any part in his haste. This rule should be strongly enforced, and it will not take long for the salesmen to readily fall into the habit.

But it is not only the time saved that makes this matter of great importance to the merchant, but there is also the effect it will have on the customer. If there is anything that irritates a customer after asking for an article, it is to notice hesitation on the part of the clerk in looking for it, and delay in finding it. Such expressions as "we have it here some place," should never have to be uttered by the salesman. The customer stands on his side of the counter, and looks wearily around, perhaps endeavors to assist the clerk if he is a long-sighted man, endeavors to look uninterested, but all the time he is mentally commenting on the lack of order in evidence, or upon the time he is wasting waiting to be sold a five cent article.

Interior View of the Grocery Store of The J. Forde Co., Brantford, Ont.

Once the customer gets the idea that the business is run without first-class order, he does not hesitate to conclude that it is only of second-class merit in every way. Everything carried, but found only after a few minutes' search, will not create as favorable an impression as the answer in a moment that the desired article is not in stock. Promptness in serving is absolutely necessary in an up-to-date business. The rush of modern life will not allow a man to think that he can waste seconds no matter how much time he may have at his disposal. The store that serves the most quickly, and that displays a thoroughly carried out order has a large advantage over its rival, however backward in other things it may be.

This Week's Illustration.

The accompanying illustration is a very good example of what orderly arrangement may do for the interior of a grocery store. What strikes one is the precise manner in which everything is displayed. The shelves are filled with condiments and canned goods, but the arrangement is so compact and regular as to be almost artistic. Every inch of space has been utilized. The pyramidical stocks on the top shelves are excellent features. Perhaps the most distinctive thing about this interior, however, is its handsome show-cases, and one has only to look at the illustration to see how attractive and effective they are as a means of showing off goods.

TEA EXPORTS FROM JAPAN.

The following figures of exportations of Japan tea from Japan for the present season up to July 31, have been received from C. M. Bernard, agent for Bernard & Co., Yokohama, Japan:

	Pounds.
To New York and the East	8,161,730
To Chicago and the West	8,266,346
To San Francisco	2,023,322
To Canada	2,347,529
Total	20,798,927

This shows an increase to Canada of 1,101,410 pounds, and to New York of 139,703 pounds. The other points show a decrease of nearly 3,000,000 pounds to same date last year.

OTTAWA WHOLESALE GROCERS' GUILD.

The new Wholesale Grocers' Guild of Ottawa, formed July 22, in that city is showing great vitality, and the interest taken in it by its members augurs well for the trade. The officers of the association are as follows:

President—H. A. Bate, of H. N. Bate & Sons; secretary, Albert Allard, of Provost & Allard. The association will be conducted on the lines of the Ontario and Montreal Guilds, and all matters pertaining to the one will most naturally interest the others. Ottawa has during the past decade forced itself to the front as a grocery and distributing centre and it was realized that grocery interests could be more harmoniously and beneficially looked after by a guild, hence the formation of the Ottawa Association.

Why is it that

Upton's

Jams, Jellies and Orange Marmalade

are easier to sell than other kinds?

Thousands of consumers can tell you the reason.

"Consider the Japanese and be Wise," says the Boston Globe; "with only Dried Fish and Cereals in the Commissary they are holding up on Land and Sea a Great Flesh-eating Nation."

There ought to be a lesson in this for every storekeeper — especially for every grocer, for the health of the customer is of importance to the dealer. It is well known now that people eat too much meat and that they should eat more fish, so it should be the business of the grocer to interest his customers in such articles as HALIFAX, ACADIA and BLUENOSE BRANDS of prepared codfish—fish that are good for the health and just salt enough to make one of the tastiest dishes for the fussiest people. Get your customers interested in these fish. It will improve their health, and the better their health the more groceries will you sell. We have just issued a booklet called "Down by the Sounding Sea," which contains some interesting pictures of the fishing fleet and the home of the fish which are made into the above-named brands; also receipes telling how to prepare the fish. You can help to interest your customers by distributing copies of this book.

BOARD OF TRADE BLDG., MONTREAL.

The Fisheries and Fishermen of Newfoundland.

By P. T. McGrath in Outing.

THE cod fishing in Newfoundland occupies from May until November. It has three distinct branches—the Banks, Shore, and Labrador fisheries. The first is identical with that of the Americans, Canadians and French on the Grand Banks. Schooners carrying from twelve to twenty men sail for the ledges and anchor there, putting out their crews in pairs, in flat-bottomed boats, called dories, which contain trawls, or long line fitted with hundreds of baited hooks that the fish swallow and are caught with. While the men are off at their work, fogs often arise and obscure the region, leaving them to drift about the ocean in a vain quest for their vessels. These craft are also liable to be sunk by speeding steamers in the fog or swamped by pooping seas, and few years pass without ten or twelve vessels and one hundred or one hundred and fifty men being engulfed in the waves.

The Shore Fishery.

The Shore fishery is pursued in the in-shore waters near the coast, in punts or skiffs. The puntman operates with hooks and line, the rudimentary method; the skiffman uses a trap, an inclosure of netting, sunk in the sea, and so arranged that the herds of cod, in swimming by, will blunder into it and become enmeshed. Lonely is the lot of the puntman, and perilous withal. As his boat swings to her grapnel he needs the nimble wit of two—one to play the lines, the other to watch the wind. Many a life goes out in this calling, many a family waits in vain for the return of a father already lying in his oozy ocean bed. The frail boat and lonely sailor can do little against the wrath of the storm. Greater risks, in a sense, are run by the skiff crews; but as they number five to nine, companionship generates partial security. But the gale often smites them fatally, too, some boats vanishing before the eyes of their fellows. The women watching on the hill-tops with flaring torches and ruddy beacons alight, are crazed with terror and apprehension as the storm increases and the boats battle with wind and wave, maybe having to run for miles along the shore to harbor or anchor, or else being dashed to pieces against the rugged cliffs. Even if all goes well, there is the heart-breaking prospect of fishing gear destroyed, nets torn, boats damaged, stations beaten down; all of which have to be replaced, with inadequate means and materials, and only native handiness and infinite patience, coupled with unremitting toil, to compass the endeavor.

A Dangerous Shore.

In stormy periods, happy is the settlement that boasts a good harbor. Its people are spared the oft-recurring misery of anxious hours when the boats are off the land. But much of the foreshore is composed of rampant cliffs, with narrow gaps bitten therein or sparse areas of rocky beach strewn at their feet. These places it is certain death to approach in storm time. Here boats have to be hauled up by cranes and capstans, and launched from cribs and chutes, while the men carry their catch and nets in baskets strapped on their backs, up vertical ladders fixed to the rocks. These operations are possible only in moderate weather, and the colonial Legislature is deluged every year with petitions for the repair or providing of such accessories, as to make fishing possible. Hundreds of men, living in such places, fishing under such disadvantages, bring on their shoulders not only their catch, but the wood to build or repair their stations, the food they eat, and the materials to construct derricks and windlasses. They count this nothing exceptional; their fathers had done so, their sons would do likewise. And with surprising ingenuity and pertile resource they overcome serious natural obstacles, and make efficient the primitive adjuncts they contrive.

The Gale of 1875.

The chief shore fishery is off Cape St. Mary's, a famous codding ground. Here, in the season, a thousand boats are moored and when a storm comes up, woe to those lax in leaving. In the awful gale of 1875, some three hundred and fifty souls perished there in a single night. Some skiffs went down at their anchors, the shrieks of their doomed crews rising above the blast. Others were driven ashore and beaten to pieces, their occupants meeting the same fate. Several were flung high against the cliffs and dropped back with their human freight into the yawning abyss below. One was tossed into a crevice seventy-two feet above high-water mark. Of her five men, four perished when she cracked in two and her stern shot down again; the other, a fine young man of twenty-two, was rescued next day by volunteers let down by ropes from the hill above. He was a raving maniac and has never recovered his reason.

The Labrador Fishery.

The Labrador fishery is a business peculiar in itself. It is conducted by some 20,000 Newfoundlanders, who leave their homes every June and voyage to that sterile northern strand—men, women and children—where they live in turf huts or timber shacks, or on shipboard, until October, and then return home with their fare of cod. They divide into two classes—stationers and floaters. The former fish from fixed points on the shore. The latter cruise up and down the coast, netting the cod where they can. The seaboard is uncharted, unlighted, forbidding and poorly harbored. In the early months it is beset by ice floes; in mid-season bergs are a constant menace; towards the Autumn furious gales are frequent. Often one hundred and fifty to two hundred fishing crafts are ice-bound in June for weeks, unable to get north, and when they do, some are frequently forced on the rocks or crushed between the floes.

Dangers of the Labrador.

When the vessels are crushed in the ice, the occupants try to make their way to land across the floes, or else camp thereon until succored. The icebergs, ghostly monsters stealing by and proving a wraith of ruin to the fabric unlucky enough to strike them, often send a stout craft to her doom. But it is the naked ribs of scores of vessels along the coast which attest most completely the extent of the destruction wrought by the Autumn gales on Labrador, when every harbor is a tumble of breakers and every craft has her moorings trebled. Rope and chain and timber frequently cannot hold the ships and then it is "every man save himself." But the heroism of the fisherfolk disdains this, and the stories of self-sacrifice and gallant rescues along Newfoundland and Labrador would fill volumes, with as golden records as the world knows of. Every year gives opportunity for the display of this virtue, as not a week passes during the fishing season without some disaster occurring which brings out the sterling quality of the manhood of these toilers of the deep. How extensive are the shipping disasters along Labrador is best evidenced by the fact that in 1886 no less than 217 vessels were driven ashore and over 7,000 people had to be conveyed home in steamers chartered by the Government; while last season the little mail boat brought back 285 shipwrecked fishermen in one trip, and 217 the next, 52 schooners having been broken against the rocks.

Fraser River Salmon Pack.

The retort count of the Fraser river salmon pack now complete, shows the following returns:

	Cases
Pound talls	8,913
Pound flats	9,932
Half-pound flats	37,880
Half-pound ovals	5,799
Squats	230
Total	62,753

In addition to the above pack 8,000 cases of trap fish were packed on the Fraser. The grand total for the river pack therefore stands at 70,753 cases.

To Make Oil of Dogfish.

The Department of Marine and Fisheries, Ottawa, has ordered two rendering plants for the purpose of converting dogfish into oil. They will be erected in Nova Scotia, the site to be announced simultaneously with the intimation of the dissolution of Parliament. One location will probably be on the Strait of Canso. It is not intended to offer a bounty for the taking of dogfish, but the Government will purchase them from the fishermen at a certain rate per ton.

Conference re Fisheries.

IN response to advances made by the Fisheries Department of the State of Washington, the British Government has indicated that it is favorably disposed toward the plan of securing joint action to protect the salmon supply in the Pacific Northwest. It has been made clear in the course of the diplomatic correspondence, however, that neither the United States nor Canada is in favor of establishing an international hatchery on or near the Fraser River.

The approved plan has not yet taken definite shape, but both sides are agreed that in a general way steps should be taken to secure a conference between representatives of the State of Washington and the Province of British Columbia to the end that uniform legislation and regulations may be obtained to provide for the protection of the fisheries. Such a conference would probably have for its chief aim the adoption of identical rules relating to the taking of fish and not the establishment of common hatcheries. The subject of hatcheries, however, might be made a matter of conference between Washington and British Columbia but for the fact that the sentiment in Canada seems to be against the project of maintaining these hatcheries as a joint enterprise.

Scotch Curing Methods Successful.

The demonstrations in the Scottish method of cleaning, curing and packing herring which have been conducted at Canso since May by J. J. Cowie of Lossie Mouth, Scotland, will continue until the month of November. The experiments so far have been very successful, although the supply of herring was not as large as expected. A shipment of Canadian herring put up by the Scotch method was sent to St. Petersburg, which is one of the most critical markets in the world. The fish realized from $13 to $14 a barrel as against from $3 to $5 cured and packed under the old method. A shipment sent to Boston brought $11.

Whale Meat on Sale.

Newfoundland whale meat is offering in the City of St. John's at the present time, says the Newfoundland Fishing Gazette. One of the largest provision houses is handling the line as an experiment. The product comes smoked and dried, for all the world indistinguishable except on close inspection, from jerked beef. We know of no reason why a market should not be created for the excellent dietary. The whale is the cleanest feeding mammal alive, and the meat is every whit as fine in texture, and quite as palatable as many grades of ox beef. It can be sold at an infinitesimal fraction of the cost of the latter.

Notes.

The Nanaimo Fisheries of British Columbia, has been incorporated to acquire the fish business of Jervis & Co., capital $10,000 in 100 shares of $100 each.

The salmon fishing in Eastern Canadian waters during the season just closed has been very poor, the only exception being on the Moisie River, where the run has been better than usual.

In addition to the three reduction works for converting dog fish into oil in the Maritime Provinces, it is stated that a similar establishment will be erected in British Columbia, probably on Vancouver Island.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

The Poultry Fattening Stations.

SEVENTEEN illustration poultry fattening stations are being operated this year by the Dominion Department of Agriculture under the supervision of F. C. Elford, acting chief of the poultry division. The following is a list of these stations:

Ontario—Bowmanville, Holmesville.

Quebec—Bondville, Chicoutimi, La Trappe, Stanfold, L'Islet.

New Brunswick—Andover, Rogersville.

Nova Scotia—East Amherst, North-East Margaree.

Prince Edward Island—Vernon River Bridge, Alberton, Eldon, Glenfinnan, Montague Bridge, Mount Stewart.

A great deal of the operator's time is given to showing farmers how the work of fattening is done, therefore the salary of the operator and the cost of installing the plant are considered as experimental and educational expenditures. The selling price of the dressed chickens is, however, expected to exceed the first cost of the chickens and the cost of feeding, plucking and marketing. The work of each station is confined to fattening enough chickens for illustration purposes, about 200 being the maximum number kept at one time. The operator, moreover, is not allowed to be a competing buyer with others who have begun to fatten chickens as a private enterprise. If the farmers are already getting a fair price for their poultry, the station will confine its efforts to illustration or experimental work with even less than 200 birds. Those who are carrying on the work for themselves will be considered not rivals but friends, and will be offered assistance wherever possible.

Special attention is being paid to choosing the right sort of birds for fattening; for instance, the blocky type of Plymouth Rock or Wyandotte is recommended as suitable for the purpose. The operators are required to spend as much of their time as may be required in assisting those who are engaged in or entering the business by giving instruction in buying the proper type for fattening, in killing and plucking, packing, shipping, etc.

Only birds of the proper type will be bought this year and seven cents per pound will be paid for these at the stations. An extra good type might well be worth eight cents, while another type of the same breed would be too dear at five cents a pound.

Each operator is considered responsible for the work and success of his own station. He is expected, as far as possible, to find a suitable market for the birds fattened at his station. The department will, however, endeavor to provide a market for any surplus stock above local requirements. Each station will be conducted as much like a private enterprise as possible, the department assisting the operator in marketing, etc., as it would a private firm initiating a new business.

The demand for chickens fattened at the Government stations is very brisk this season, and from the offers already received it is expected that the ruling price will be from 11 to 13 cents per pound.

Preservatives in Butter.

THE review of the British produce market, issued by Weddel & Co., of London, which is regarded by the trade as an authority, points out the gratifying fact that the quality of Canadian butter shows a considerable improvement over any previous year. While this is sympathetic toward the Dominion, it serves to emphasize the fact that butter from Canada is not the best offered on the market. The chief cause of complaint is the mouldy condition of the butter arriving from Canada, and it is said that this prevails largely in butter from western Ontario. The method of land transportation to Montreal is blamed to a considerable extent, but there is also a serious complaint as to the lack of preservatives in butter from the Dominion. It is argued that there is no reason why Canada should not be able to make as good butter as Denmark or other continental countries. To do this it is declared that we will have to revolutionize our methods. Canadian butter in the last few years has acquired a reputation in Britain not to the advantage of the Dominion. As a remedy it is pointedly declared that if the Canadian Government would permit preservatives in safe and moderate amounts the quality of the butter when it reached Britain would show considerable improvement over its present character.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—The provision market continues strong. Several lines have almost disappeared and stocks are thinning down to a few seasonable lines. This is satisfactory, as the end of the season for smoked meats is fast approaching. The demand is good and keeps the prices up to last week's level. Backs are quoted at half cent higher. In fresh meats the supply and demand are increasing with the diminution of smoked meat stocks. Spring lamb is down from a half cent to two cents and hogs have declined a quarter cent. We quote:

Butter—The supply of butter is fair for the season of the year. Receipts of both dairy and creamery have fallen off perceptibly during the past couple of weeks, presumably on account of the high price of cheese, which draws more milk into that branch of dairy manufacturing. Prices are accordingly a trifle firmer in solids and tubs. We quote the following prices:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 19	0 20
" solids, fresh	0 18	0 19
Dairy prints	0 14	0 16

Cheese—The price of cheese on the boards has reached what appears to be close to the limit. Dealers anticipate a little advance hereafter for some weeks, though the next ten days may see a fractional advance. Over nine cents is altogether too high; anything beyond nine is abnormal and bound to fall. English demand has not corresponded with the prices paid here, yet in spite of this there is a fairly good sale in the export market at a fair level. Board reports for the week ending September 7 are as follows:

Provisions—The provision market is firm. Early in the week there was a scarcity of live hogs. The demand from packers was very good, at 5 1-2c to 5 3-4c in selected lots; 5 1-4c for mixed lots, and 5c for heavy fat per pound, weighed off cars. Fresh killed abattoir stock remains the same, with a fair demand at $8 for light weights, and $7.75 for heavy. Cured meats and lard remain steady with fair demand. We quote:

Cheese—The cheese market is again easy. Competition has slackened and sales are restricted. There is a strong feeling that the advance was over-done. Not only has a halt been called, but a decline is in sight. Notwithstanding these facts there were numerous offerings of Quebec's at fair prices, which were quoted in the vicinity of 8 7-8c. This is in harmony with the local market, where the range from holders runs from 8 7-8 to 9c for finest Quebec's; 9 to 9 1-8c for Townships, and 9 1-4 to 9 3-8c for Ontario's, with some asking 9 1-2c for choice colored. The demand by cable was very slight, and mail advices from the Old Country report remarkable dullness over there.

Cheese Exports—The exports of cheees for the week ending September 5, amounted to 65,720 boxes, showing a tremendous falling off, not only in regular business, but in comparison with the same week of 1903, a decrease is shown of nearly 15,000 boxes. The total exports for the season reach 965,256 boxes, and for a similar period last year the Butter—Some improvement has been noticed in the butter market in the country, and naturally the local market has stiffened considerably. Quebec butter sold at the wharf at 18 1-2 to 18 3-4c and this covers the general tone of prices in the east. Townships held firm at 18 3-4c to 19c, with some uncertainty in the market, the tendency being to develop higher prices. Heavy stocks are held here, and the demand from the Old Country is reported fairly firm. The receipts on the Board of Trade Tuesday morning were reported 284 packages.

Butter Exports—The exports of butter continue to increase. For the week ending September 5 the totals reached 21,348. This of course is an increase of the corresponding week last year, but a slight falling off in the preceding week of this year, owing perhaps to the cool and wet weather. The total shipments of butter to date, amounted to 215,110, showing a decided increase over the figures of 1903.

Provisions—In barreled pork and beef the market seems unsteady. There is very little sale. Hams and rolls are scarce and full prices are asked. Pure lard shows quite an advance and the market is firm. Refined lard is rather lower. In fresh meats beef is quite low. Lamb is freely received, quality good and price unchanged. Veal is scarce with a fair demand. Mutton is dull. In pork there is a rather improved market.

Meat Famine Imminent in U. S.

THE Butchers' Union is determined to force a meat famine in the United States, according to the New York Journal of Commerce. The Butchers' National Organization evidently thinks this is the best weapon with which to fight the Trust packers, although it may not be welcomed by the independents.

A boycott has been declared against all meat and the announcement made that union men will quit all packing establishments regardless of where live stock has been secured. No member of the Meat Cutters' and Butcher Workmen's Unions will be allowed to dress any animal until the strike is settled. The idea seems to be as far as possible to prevent butchering and the distribution of meat throughout the United States as a means of coercing certain employers in Chicago into submission to the terms of the Amalgamated Butchers' and Meat Cutters' Union.

The Journal comments as follows on the situation: "It is a perfectly crazy proceeding, and the kind of reasoning that would regard it as a legitimate or effective weapon for organized labor to resort to is inscrutable to the sane mind. If it could be successful it would undoubtedly cause great loss to capitalists engaged in the packing industry, but it would be relatively no greater than that inflicted upon labor in the same industry, while the injury would be extended to the cattle raisers and to all employed in the traffic in meat. Such a strike order is impossible of enforcement; but, suppose it could be enforced and a 'meat famine' could be produced, the sufferers would be the whole body of consumers. This 'weapon' would be used upon the whole community as a means of coercing the 'trust packers' of the Chicago Stock Yard district. This shows how utterly and hopelessly irrational the mental processes of this kind of a labor leader are."

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Sept. 3, 1904.

THE weather during the past week has been decidedly favorable and consequently harvesting operations throughout the country are pretty well advanced. The first carload of the season's crop has already reached Winnipeg and been marketed. Authorities state that nearly one-half of the crop is already harvested.

With regard to markets all lines are firm, a decided advance being noticeable in flour and sugar. New Japan tea has arrived.

The market reports a general firmness in all varieties of canned goods, prices remaining unchanged.

Coffee—Quotations on this line are stiffening up somewhat, the market quoting green Rio at from 10 1-2c to 11c.

Fruits—Quotations on these lines remain unchanged in general. A rise, however, is quoted on Upham jam combination, it now being on the market at 47 1-2c.

Sugar—On the first of September a general advance on all lines of sugar has been called of 5c over last week's quotations. Montreal granulated, per barrel, $5.35; per sack, $5.30; yellow, $4.70; Wallaceburg, per barrel, $5.20, sack, $5.10.

Flour—During the past week flour has continued to advance being quoted at the present time at the following prices: No. 1 patent, $2.75; No. 2 patent, $2.55; No. 3 patent, $2; No. 4 patent,' $1.50.

Canned Fish—Shipments of salmon, the product of the new catch, are now en route and are expected to reach Winnipeg in less than one week. Owing to the light catch this season prices are very high.

All other lines remain practically unchanged.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

E. D. Marceau, Montreal, reports arrival in a few days of 120 mats of 5 and 10 lb. boxes Japan tea at 18½ and 21c., showing extra fine value.

S. J. Major, Ottawa, is quoting new Valencias arriving shortly ex steamer Escalona, at very interesting prices.

In conversation with Mr. Mann, of the Montreal office of Salada, it is learned that the business passing through this branch is breaking all previous records, and the most encouraging part is that it is mainly made up of repeat orders.

In vinegars, S. J. Major, Ottawa, advises the trade that all grades of strength are in stock at prices highly interesting to buyers.

The F. J. Castle Co., Ottawa, have just received two carloads Barbadoes molasses in barrels, half barrels and puncheons, which they are selling at low prices.

California prunes are offered at low prices by S. J. Major, Ottawa. Buyers' inquiries will receive prompt attention.

Cheap Young Hyson, Ping Sue teas, are offered by L. Chaput, Fils & Co., Montreal, at 10 1-2c, these teas are to arrive in the Fall.

L. Chaput, Fils & Co., have a few boxes of the very finest and best grade of Japan teas, imported into Canada, and are offering them at 40c per lb.

THE OFFICE END

DEVOTED TO THE OFFICE STAFFS OF BUSINESS ESTABLISHMENTS

A SUGGESTION FOR THE COLLECTION DEPARTMENT.

By Henry Wheeler.

A GREAT deal of unnecessary trouble and detail is gone into in making collections on the accounts of the average retail house. A study of the ledger cards is usually made, and efforts made to collect once a month or oftener. The writer has found that a good way to handle these matters is to have a statement made of every account which is due. Of course this statement should be made in duplicate, using carbon paper for the duplicate copy. Thus one statement can be sent to the customer and the other retained for a collection record.

A suitable file (provided with guide cards, showing days of the month) is used and as a statement is sent out to a customer, its duplicate is placed in an appropriate division of the file.

We will say that the cashier makes up his mind that this account should be paid in ten days or something further done about it. He will thus put the duplicate statement into his file ten days ahead of the date the statement is sent. Each day he takes out of its compartment the papers applying to that day's work, and he is then in a position to take whatever action he deems necessary.

The duplicate statement shows just how old the account is and a reference to the ledger will show whether any payment has been made. As the ledge folio or the card number will appear on the statement, reference to the ledger will be very easy.

If, after investigating this particular case, he comes to the conclusion it will be wise to wait a little longer, he can file the statement over again under the date he determines on for the next action on the subject.

If he thinks it would be expedient to write a letter to the debtor just at that time, the letter can be written and the whole thing filed ahead to come up when he expects to take further steps to collect.

In writing collection letters, it is always well to set a certain definite date on which you expect a response. If the response is not forthcoming at that time you have something definite on which to base your demand upon the debtor.

Thus the account, when it becomes delinquent, is always kept before the party who has charge of the collections and it is never in danger of being overlooked or "sidetracked."

It is sometimes deemed expedient to mark the ledger page or ledger card, showing that the account has been placed in the hands of the collection department for action, and thus the cashier or bookkeeper is relieved of the necessity of making a new statement each time a set of statements is drawn off.

It is usually the case in most establishments that delinquent accounts cease to be active; that is to say, while they are delinquent no further goods are purchased, and so long as this is the case there would be no necessity of a new statement until the account was settled and the delinquent debtor could again become a customer and his account again becomes active.—The Book-keeper.

MAKING COLLECTIONS.

MANY merchants who do some credit business have a lot of trifling accounts on their books which, although small in themselves, go to make a very respectable total. These accounts should be attended to as systematically as though they were larger. If small accounts are allowed to run for a long time people forget them. Then there are some people who do not like to go into a store where they owe money and, as a consequence, not only the money that they owe is lost but their trade as well.

In no department of business is more diplomacy required than in the collection of bills. The man chosen for this work should be especially qualified for his work. He should be tactful and discreet and ever on his guard against giving offence. Many good customers have been lost through the indiscretion of a too persistent collector. Women are more likely than men to take offence at the collector's methods and he should be especially careful when collecting from them.

These remarks, of course, do not apply to the debtor whose account is long standing and who shows no inclination to pay. But even with this class of debtors, more may often be accomplished by diplomacy than by more drastic measures.

Mr. J. H. Butler, representing McMahon, Broadfield & Co., wholesale crockery dealers, Toronto, is on his regular trip; while Mr. Fred Oberndorffer, the Kingston cigar man, and Mr. Bert Geen, Toronto, are carefully looking after cigars and boots and shoes.

Years and Years!

For years and years the most persistent buyers of Windsor Salt have been the most successful cooks. One woman has told another about the salt that doesn't cake, the salt of unequalled purity, whiteness, dryness, and each woman is a link in the chain that has been forged from one little word, "confidence."

A woman can make or mar your success in business. She can influence trade—above all, she does like to talk. Think of the cumulative effect of years and years of constant talking—constant praise for Windsor Salt.

A DANGEROUS PRECEDENT.

LAST Saturday several Canadian newspapers contained the display advertisement of the Alberta Central Land Corporation, Limited, offering for sale 120,000 acres of farm lands in Alberta. This company has recently been incorporated with a board of directors including among the rest George H. Gooderham, E. F. B. Johnston and Mr. Justice Britton, of Toronto.

It is much to be regretted that the last-named gentleman has seen fit to become a director of such a purely speculative concern as the Alberta Central Land Corporation, Limited. The dignity of the bench and the nature of the oath of office should have been of sufficient weight to have deterred him from taking such a step.

The Canadian judiciary is by no means so perfect but that it might be improved upon and the alliance of Mr. Justice Britton with a speculative land company is a retrograde movement which, harmless as it may appear on the surface, yet establishes a dangerous precedent. It must be understood once for all that no judge can with impunity accept a position on the directorate of a speculative company. The risk is too great.

It becomes the duty of Mr. Justice Britton to withdraw himself from an equivocal position and take up his stand for the dignity of the bench. As it is, he can do so without loss of prestige. Later on it may become more difficult.

There lies in this incident a lesson, which the whole Canadian people would do well to take to heart. There is every reason to believe that the temptation placed before our judges to participate in speculative enterprises is greatly increased by the difficulty which the judges experience in living, in conformity with the dignity of their positions, on the meagre salaries paid them. So inadequate are these salaries that they almost afford a justification for the judges embarking on enterprises which would augment their incomes.

For some months now The Grocer has been campaigning in favor of increasing the salaries of Canadian judges and one of the strongest arguments which was brought forward, was the very one relating to the danger of the judges compromising their independence. The proximity of such a danger was scarcely dreamed of, yet it was right at hand. The sooner that the judges receive a competent salary, the better will it be for all concerned. Then there can be no excuse for a judge debasing the dignity of the bench in order to augment his income and there need be no fear that justice will be perverted.

SCARE IN MANITOBA WHEAT.

WITHIN the past two weeks a discovery has been made which has temporarily upset the market for wheat graded as Manitoba No. 3.

It will be remembered that large quantities of grain were destroyed last Winter by the burning of one of the large elevators at Fort William. By some inexplicable means considerable quantities of damaged and partially burned grain have got mixed with regular No. 3 Manitoba and been shipped to eastern millers to pass as No. 3 Manitoba. The result is that the high reputation of Manitoba wheat has been brought into question and buyers who usually bank upon the sterling quality of this article are so dubious that the market is practically at a standstill. A representative of The Grocer overheard a prominent Ontario grain and flour exporter the other day advising a client to fight shy of No. 3 until some adjustment had been made.

In all probability the mixing has been unintentional. At the same time those who are responsible ought to have impressed upon them the far-reaching evil effect such mixing may have upon the Manitoba wheat, especially in foreign markets. It may yet be necessary for the Dominion Government to take the matter in hand, and such is being hinted at now in certain quarters. The utmost astonishment is expressed that any Government inspector could have allowed such a sample of grain to pass through his hands undetected.

A CASE OF INADEQUATE PROTECTION.

A GENTLEMAN who until recently was carrying on business in Western Ontario is looking for a situation. A short time ago he was burned out, and as he had not taken proper precautions in regard to insurance he is now in his present predicament.

This is not a new experience. Those who watch the fire losses closely will have, no doubt, noticed the frequency with which little or no insurance is carried by business men who are unfortunate enough to be burned out.

Insurance against fire is as much a part of a man's business as window dressing, bookkeeping, advertising, etc. When merchants are negligent in this respect, and either do not carry sufficient insurance, or as in some instances, none at all, they are following a practice which is as unbusinesslike as it is unwise.

BUSINESS MEN AND ELECTIONS.

A GENERAL election is evidently not very far away. The political organs are already beginning to play afresh the tunes that did service in the past, and the politicians are busy getting into condition for the fray.

As far as the business interests of the country are concerned it matters little which of the two parties are in power. The only difference between them is in name, and that is not vital.

But while it does not matter to the commercial interests of the country which party is in power, it does matter a great deal what manner of men compose the respective parties.

Worth, unfortunately, is not always the determining factor in the selection of representatives, either at the party nominations or at the polling booth. Those who have ever had a glance at the inside working of the party machine scarcely need to be reminded of this. But business men need to be put on their guard against it. And if they want good government they must be on their guard against it.

A well-known politician told the truth when he declared that elections are not won by prayer. They are, however, often won by preying upon the susceptibilities of the passive electorate. Obviously the results which are obtained from such election methods are not conducive to the commercial welfare of the country. It is within the power of business men to minimize this evil. And the first step is to refuse to support the incapable men that the political heeler has set up. Get business men into line and support them.

WAR AND THE TEA TRADE.

MORE than once since the outbreak of the war between Russia and Japan have wholesale and retail grocers been asking themselves what would be the effect on tea prices generally.

Prior to April 1, when conditions were more uncertain than at the present, there was a good deal of speculative buying from the retailer to the importer. Bulls were the feature of the tea market, and for a time it looked as if their anticipations would shortly be realized. Had the Russians been able to attack ports from which tea shipments are made the result to the tea trade would probably have been far reaching. The Japanese by their rapid and agressive campaign and early naval victories removed this danger. Again it was feared that Japan would have to enlist the services of her farm laborers at the front. The resources of this newly discovered eastern power, however, have been an eye-opener to western civilization, and instead of the tea plantation of Japan being depopulated the first crop has already been picked and placed on the market at prices more favorable than have ruled for two or three years.

The Ceylon, Indian and China tea markets have remained practically undisturbed, and at the present time the only appreciable effect of the war on the tea trade of the east has been a trifling increase in marine insurance on account of the war risk.

The following is a sample of many letters received by us daily from Great Britain inquiring about our trade newspapers and frequently enclosing subscriptions. Our circulation in Great Britain, Ireland and the colonies is steadily increasing, principally because they want a good trade paper over there, and also because they are becoming more and more interested in Canadian affairs.

EDITOR CANADIAN GROCER:—
Will you kindly let me know if your paper can be had in Great Britain or Ireland. I got a few copies of it some years ago and found it so original and advanced that it has since been my intention to take it regularly, but it is only just now that I got your address.

HOW TO INCREASE CANADIAN TRADE.

THE Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, has undertaken an important campaign in the interests of Canadian trade and is including in its weekly report special hints to Canadian manufacturers desirous of building up an export trade in the various foreign countries covered by the commercial agents of the Dominion Government. Within the last few years Canada has awakened to a realization of the splendid opportunities for trade in certain foreign markets, especially the various sea-girt colonies of the British Empire, and while in some instances Canadian trade has already become firmly established, the Government has shown admirable foresight in distributing capable commercial agents wherever there is a possible trade opening. There is more truth than poetry in the statement that if Canada wants trade she must go out after it, she has now taken the all-important step, and it rests entirely with herself to pave the way to successful competition for a fair share of trade in the newly discovered markets.

As an instance of the valuable prospective work already accomplished along these lines the latest report of Mr. Alex. MacLean, newly appointed agent to Japan, is interesting. Foreigners have long been casting envious glances at the Japanese market as offering an excellent opening for foodstuffs. United States exporters were early in the field and the result is they have had a lion's share of the spoils. Canadian millers have come to the conclusion that they can cater to the Japanese trade quite as well as their American cousins and are now making an ambitious bid for that market. Mr. MacLean's report is especially valuable as showing the requirements of Japanese trade as well as the trade conditions prevailing in sunny Japan.

The commercial agents in Australasia J. S. Larke and D. H. Ross, have done particularly effective work not only in giving hints to Canadian exporters as to the commodities most in demand in Australian markets, but in correcting false impressions concerning freight regulations and offering timely suggestions towards an improvement in the present methods of carrying on the export trade.

The same remarks apply to the agents scattered all over the United Kingdom and Europe.

DEATH OF MR. T. G. WILLIAMSON.

The Grocer regrets to announce the death of Mr. T. G. Williamson, which occurred in Toronto on September 6. Mr. Williamson was well known in Toronto business circles as a chartered accountant. Some years ago he was engaged in the grocery brokerage business and later he became a mining broker.

Mr. Williamson had also won considerable fame as a curler, having on more than one occasion skipped Toronto Granite Club to victory in the competition for the Ontario Tankard.

MR. A. T. MELDAN.

THE GROCER has pleasure in presenting to its readers in this week's issue a portrait of Mr. A. T. Weldon, recently appointed to the position of secretary of the Halifax Board of Trade.

Mr. Weldon has spent practically his whole life in the Maritime Provinces, and his business training has been along such lines as fit him peculiarly for the important post he has been appointed to fill. He was born at Dorchester, N. B., on March 6, 1876. Entering the employ of the Intercolonial Railway at the age of 14, he continued to serve this organization up to the time of his resignation to accept the secretaryship of the Halifax Board of Trade. All the way through Mr. Weldon's experience has been principally along the line of transportation. He spent some years in the local freight office at Moncton, N. B., after which he was transferred to the claim department, where he remained for one year. In December, 1901, the company moved him from Moncton to Halifax, where his position has been that of chief clerk to division freight agent, Mr. D. A. Story, up to the present time.

NEW CANADIAN CLUB.

The Grocer is in receipt of an interesting communication from J. H. McLeod and A. W. Donly, both of the City of Mexico, relative to a Canadian Commercial Club which has recently been organized there for the purpose of promoting closer trade relations between Canada and Mexico.

The membership is already in the neighborhood of fifty, of whom the majority are residents of Mexico of some years standing, and whose business experience should prove of great value to Canadian exporters desirous of extending their field of operations. The club is not a commercial enterprise, but an organization of Canadians most of whom are in active business, and all of whom are desirous of seeing a healthy growth of trade between the two countries. The president, J. H. McLeod, has been identified with the grocery trade for a number of years, and is one of the most successful foreign merchants in the City of Mexico.

The officers of the club are as follows: James H. McLeod, president; E. A. E. Halliwell, vice-president; A. W. Donly, secretary-treasurer; directors, A. R. Dobson, N. P. Dewar, G. W. Saunders, E. T. Bailey, W. K. Macdougald, C. T. Ambridge, George F. Ross.

RETURNED SEP 9 1904 Cat Box 23 Page 10 Class

The Mexican Herald of July 23 is of the opinion that the Canadian Commercial Club will have a large and fertile field for its operations. It says that "owing to lack of transportation facilities it has been impossible, up to the present time, for Canada and Mexico to make an exchange of their products except by the indirect route through the United States, which has been the equivalent of saying that there has been no trade between them. With the establishing of the proposed steamer lines on both the Atlantic and Pacific sides there is no doubt that a mutually profitable business would soon result. The Canadians are an enterprising, energetic people and probably will be able to convince the Mexican people that it will be to their advantage to give them a share of their patronage. The Canadians are also large buyers, especially of the products that tropical and mineral Mexico have to offer for export."

The executive of the club will be glad to supply manufacturers and others interested in the field with information on trade conditions existing in Mexico, and all inquiries addressed to the secretary, A. W. Donly, Apartado 2029, Mexico City, will receive prompt attention. The secretary will also be glad to receive catalogues and other information as to lines of goods carried by Canadian manufacturers, and to put importers of commodities which Mexico has to export in direct communication with Mexican exporters. The external trade of Mexico, both in imports and exports, is increasing by leaps and bounds, and it is high time Canada was reaching out for a share of it.

THE LATE MR. W. F. MOUNTAIN.

THE GROCER chronicles with regret the death of Mr. W. F. Mountain, who was killed in the fatal railway accident at Richmond, Quebec, on August 31. Mr. Mountain was traveler for Carter, Galbraith & Co., wholesale grocers, Montreal, and was one of the most popular and best known grocery travelers in the Eastern Townships. Before going on the road for Carter, Galbraith & Co., Mr. Mountain was in the employ of Mr. A. Trudeau, of Windsor Mills. About seven years ago he entered the employ of Carter, Galbraith & Co., and in the words of Mr. Galbraith, of this firm: "Mr. Mountain proved himself to be one of the most energetic and trustworthy representatives that it has ever been our privilege to have associated with us. In fact we cannot say too much, or speak too highly of his good qualities. He was very popular with his customers and at the same time friendly and obliging to his competitors. He had hosts of friends and leaves no enemies. He had worked up a most extensive trade, and it is safe to say that no man did a better business for any house in this city. It will be some consolation for his friends to know that although a young man he leaves his widow and three children fairly well provided for. Had Mr. Mountain lived it was the intention of our firm to have given him an interest in our business at the end of the present year."

The Grocer had the pleasure of being personally acquainted with Mr. Mountain and knew him to be a most popular traveler, and one whose pleasant ways and manners will be missed by the boys.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION, TORONTO

AUGUST 29 TO SEPTEMBER 10, 1904.

HIS Honor the Lieutenant-Governor struck the right note in his address at the official opening of the Canadian National Exhibition on Monday, August 29, when he remarked "This Exhibition is the greatest Exhibition of the kind which has ever been held in Canada. It is a subject of general remark that the Exhibition of Toronto is the best thing of the kind on the North American continent.

This year's Exhibition is no exception to the rule and reflects the greatest possible credit upon the directors and all who have taken an active part in its management. What strikes one most is the enormous strides the Exhibition has made during the past year. New buildings have been added, and the grounds improved generally until the prospects resemble a miniature city of palace structures.

Improvements.

The most important addition is the new Administration Building, a fine buff brick structure two stories high, built in colonial style. The directors and business managers occupy handsomely appointed quarters here and make the Administration Building their centre of official operations. It is to be hoped this is only another addition to the already large number of handsome substantial structures which now adorn Exhibition Park. The Toronto Exhibition is now assuming such large proportions that increasing accommodation of the best possible sort has become a necessity and it is hoped that the time is not far distant when the Horticultural, Machinery and various other exhibits will be housed in buildings approximating the palatial Manufacturers' and Liberal Arts Building, which compares favorable with anything of the sort not only only in this country but abroad.

Another noticeable improvement is the out-door appearance of the grounds. Now that the Exhibition has been placed on a satisfactory financial footing there is no doubt but that the "powers that be" will pay more attention to landscape gardening. The natural beauty of Exhibition Park is hardly to be excelled in Canada or the United States. There is, however, much room for further improvement and it must be confessed that one is inclined to heave a sigh when he remembers the magnificent effects in landscape gardening produced at the St. Louis Exposition this year. There is reason to believe the Toronto authorities are thoroughly imbued with the idea that the reputation of "Toronto the beautiful" must be upheld, and that "The Canadian National Exhibition" must be second to none. Accordingly visitors to the Exhibition next year may look forward to seeing a wonderful transformation in the park.

A Golden Harvest for Toronto.

The Exhibition season has come to be a golden harvest for Toronto. Merchants report a big increase in the volume of business; the manufacturers are jubilant over having placed their products in the most favorable light before the largest number of actual and prospective consumers that have ever visited the Toronto Exhibition; the factories are busier than ever owing to their output having to be materially increased; proper food has been provided for nursing the national commercial and industrial spirit among Canadian citizens, and lastly a means of annual education has been provided visitors to the Exhibition which it is difficult to overestimate.

The Exhibits.

What appeals most to The Grocer is the splendid display in the Manufacturers' Building. Over 150 manufacturers have exhibits, the majority of them being works of art which have cost the proprietors in many cases thousands of dollars. Canadian manufacturers have evidently come to realize the value of representative displays of their respective products, and have vied with one another in their efforts to do things up to "the King's taste."

The Dairy and Process Buildings are of especial interest. In the former the latest dairy apparatus is shown in almost endless variety, while lectures on agricultural and kindred subjects are delivered daily in the adjoining amphitheatre by leading authorities. The Process Building is a feature of the Exhibition that is attracting much attention, the majority of Exhibition visitors having never seen such commodities as carpets and boots and shoes in process of manufacture.

From an Educational Point of View.

From an educational point of view the Exhibition this year is far ahead of any of its predecessors. The Grand Trunk, the Intercolonial and the Canadian Pacific railways have each creditable exhibits, the first consisting of a large series of scenic views taken at various points on the system; the second in charge of Mr. A. E. Barton, is similar in nature, and is winning the approval of all who visit the Transportation Building. The C.P.R. authorities have a building all to themselves, in which moose heads, buffalo horns, samples of grain and views of mountain scenery figure prominently. Thanks to them also, several pack horses with regular mountain outfits and riders make the rounds of the Exhibition daily, while Ojibway Indians ply their birch-bark canoes along the waterfront for the entertainment of pleasure seekers. The Gravenhurst Sanitarium authorities, moreover, are to be highly commended for having placed their institution before the public eye in such an attractive way.

Under the grand stand are a number of perfect models of British and Japanese battleships and cruisers as well as an extensive display of Canadian wild flowers. The growing west is written large in the Edmonton exhibit, which gives an easterner a fair idea of the vast agricultural resources of the district of Alberta.

The aesthetic tastes of Exhibition visitors have not been forgotten this year. In the Art Building is perhaps the most interesting collection of valuable paintings ever seen on public exhibition in Canada, His Majesty King Edward VII. having loaned for the occasion "The Death of Wolfe," while the public is indebted to Sir Henry Drummond, of Montreal, for a series of three large canvasses, all by leading European artists.

In the way of amusement this year's Exhibition is quite up to the high standard of former years. The Black Watch band is of course the principal attraction. The performance before the grand stand has never been better, while "Vanity Fair" has honestly earned its reputation of being the place where one goes to laugh and grow fat.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of The A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co.

MacLaren's Imperial Cheese.

The representative and imposing exhibit by the A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Toronto, is a veritable Mecca for the thousands of visitors passing through the Manufacturers' Building daily. The plan has been to model the exhibit as a whole after the contour of a jar of MacLaren's Imperial Cheese, three of which of mammoth size form a graduated tower for the castle-like structure of the booth. Green, white and gold are the colors used in decorating the walls and pillars. Union Jacks are effectively used as hangings, while lithographs of pyramids of MacLaren's cheese packages, stocks of the real article and huge pots of maiden hair fern fill in the background.

Numerous attendants at the counter are engaged in serving biscuits and MacLaren's Imperial cheese to any who care to partake—which means everyone. An exact reproduction of Jersey cow and calf stand on guard over the main entrance to the exhibit.

The McGregor, Harris Co.

The McGregor, Harris Co. has a booth decorated in tasteful style. The leading feature of the exterior is the "McGregor" tartan colors, which covers the whole of the upper part of the booth, while cords and tassels of the same pattern hang from the framework above the counter. Inside the exhibit are a series of shelves in the shape of half cones, broad at the base and gradually receding towards the apex, on which are displayed a large variety of the company's excellent candies. Those in charge appear to be having a brisk time supplying the public with butter scotch and other varieties of sweetmeats.

The Grimm Mfg. Co.

The Grimm Mfg. Co., of Montreal, evidently believes in the value of a suitable environment for their pure maple sugar and syrup products and sugarmakers' supplies, and as a background to their exhibit have reproduced in miniature a French-Canadian farm scene in the height of the sugar making season. The front of the booth is draped with purple and white hangings, the whole exhibit being one of the most representative and interesting in the Manufacturers' Building.

Bates, Peacock Co.

This Hamilton firm has an effective booth in red, white and blue, with additional decoration of flags. In the background stands a magnificent stuffed peacock, which is by the way, the trade mark of this firm's brand of mincemeat. About the haughty fowl are grouped stocks of cream cheese packages and of peacock mincemeat. Mr. Bates is in charge of the exhibit, and has employed an efficient staff of demonstrators who are kept busy satisfying the wants of both the curious and those who are really interested.

Armour & Co.

This is undoubtedly one of the most imposing booths in the Manufacturers' Building. In style of architecture it is Oriental, being in the form of an Eastern mosque. The color scheme is white and yellow, while the interior is hung with striped Oriental curtains. From each of the open arches hangs a Moorish lamp of dark metal with red lights. The adjacent pillars are decorated with crossed swords, shields and coats of mail; while the whole structure is crowned with a large banner in green and white with gold fringe and supports.

In one corner of the booth a huge horn of plenty extends from the ceiling, filled to overflowing with sample packages of Armour & Co.'s various preparations such as "Vigoral," "Extract of Beef," "Asparax," "Tomato Buouil-lon," and "Beef Cordial." In the rear are stacks of Armour & Co.'s packages, pleasantly relieved by banks of ferns and palms.

The demonstrations are in charge of Miss Dunbar, who, with her staff of waitresses is kept busy supplying visitors with samples of "Beef Cordial," etc.

The Kurtze Acetylene Gas Co.

The Kurtze Acetylene Gas Co., of St. Williams, Ont., in many ways is one of the most interesting on the grounds. It is unnecessary to dwell upon the nature of the acetylene gas generator; suffice it to say Mr. Kurtze claims for his machine that it is the most advanced and the safest made to-day. An attractive showing is made of 60, 40, 20 and 10 light generators, with stove and table attachments and all commodities derived from gas, in actual operation. "The Krutze" generator was exhibited last year and was awarded a bronze medal.

Mr. Kurtze may be considered a mechanical genius. He has already built a large number of engines and is at present engaged in the construction of an automobile after an original pattern. Although a German by birth Mr. Kurtze has settled in Canada and will in all probability allow the land of the maple leaf its share of credit for the creations of his inventive brain.

The Natural Food Co.

The Natural Food Co., of Niagara Falls, N.Y., is treating exhibition visitors to an especially attractive exhibit in the Manufacturers' Building, of conventional design in white and gold, with massive, colonial pillars and rich decorations carried out in sheaves of wheat. The interior is given a touch of color by way of yellow hangings and numerous colored pictures representing shredded wheat biscuit and triscuit in the various stages of manufacture. Among other things especially worthy of note is a handsome painting of the home of "Shredded Wheat," and one of the Spirit of Niagara. The booth has also an attractive arrangement of incandescent lights which have a brilliant effect at night.

Mr. Hewitt, the Toronto agent of "Shredded Wheat," is in charge of the exhibit, and kind and considerate in answering numerous questions asked by visitors to the Natural Food Company's booth. He is assisted by a capable staff of waitresses who serve triscuits and Shredded Wheat in numerous tempting ways for the benefit of the uninitiated.

Edwardsburg Starch Co.

The fine display of the Edwardsburg Starch Co is divided into two portions. On the one side in a handsome glass case is shown a full line of the company's well-known starch products, particularly the "Silver Gloss," made up in handsome 6-lb. family tins and 1-lb. packages, "Benson's" prepared corn starch for culinary purposes and "Benson's" enamel starch for cold water use. The other portion of the exhibit is devoted to the company's well-known and popular "Crown" brand of corn syrup. Inside the oak rail are massed from the floor to the roof three well arranged piles of this syrup in tins ranging from 20 lbs in weight down to the 2-lb. size. In the centre of the booth on a small table is placed a tall show bottle filled with the clear syrup.

The exhibit is attracting much attention and the attendant in charge is kept busy distributing small sample pails of "Crown" syrup. The company will be pleased to mail a sample pail free of charge to any readers of The Canadian Grocer who may desire them.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of Edwardsburg Starch Co.

National Cash Register Co.

A centre of attraction is the commodious booth of the National Cash Register Co. It is square in formation with blue velvet hangings, a color which harmonizes beautifully with the metal exhibits. A fringe of the velvet edged with gold also hangs gracefully from the roof. On the floor space stands a number of square antique cabinets, the four sides of which display beautifully illuminated pictures of the company's factories and of various institutions established for the benefit of their employes. On each of these cabinets are displayed different styles of National cash registers. The firm's chef d'oeuvre is the National Multiple Register which is really six registers in one. It is built to be operated by six different clerks, each of whose transactions is separately recorded and affords a positive and complete check on every transaction of the day.

At the back of the booth against the velvet background are displayed individual component parts of a cash register, the number of which would probably surprise most people. In the National Multiple Register there are in the neighborhood of 3,000 separate and distinct parts, which explains, as the firm's notice says, "why good cash registers cost something."

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of The National Cash Register Co.

Canadian Gelatine Co.

The Canadian Gelatine Co., Toronto, has a neat and fresh looking booth in one of the main aisles of the Manufacturers' Building. The main color scheme is lemon yellow, to which touches of color are added by various colored moulds of flavored jelly or to be more explicit "Gel-O." In the background are banked masses of ferns and palms. At the counter maidens dispense samples of "Gel-O" to hungry Exhibition visitors.

John Taylor & Co.

Have an exhibit of perfumes which for artistic excellence is hardly to be excelled by any at the Exhibition this year. Under a tall canopy of green is situated a large upright cabinet of antique oak and plate glass containing an artistic assortment of Taylor's "Valley Violet" perfumes. From the canopy festoons of green and flowers extend to the four corners which are flanked with high growing plants of purple iris. Hangings and carpets of purple velvet give a luxurious finish to the display.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of "Bovril."

Bovril Limited.

No expense or pains have been spared by a number of the largest manufacturers this year in making their exhibits works of art that will not only take the fancy of the sightseers at the Fair, but remain as attractive pictures in their memory long after the Exhibition is a thing of the past. This is notably true of the proprietors of "Bovril" who are to be congratulated upon having one of the most beautiful exhibits in the Manufacturers' Building.

It takes the form of an Oriental shrine, with cupola and supporting pillars of palest ivory with delicate tracing in gold. Color and life is lent to the interior by hangings of pale green silk, palms artistically arranged, and here and there a Union Jack or ensign. The monarch of the forest occupies a commanding position and rears his majestic antlers as if in defiance of all competitors of "Bovril." In the background is a fine bit of bronze—the traditional bison with the motto underneath—"Alas my poor brother." Pyramids or "Bovril" artistically piled complete the interior decoration.

The work of demonstration is in charge of Mrs. J. H. Small, of Montreal, who, with her assistants has won the approbation of thousands of visitors. No one can say he has not met with the utmost consideration and courtesy when incidentally he dropped in to have a cup of "Bovril."

"Bovril" came into existence shortly after the Franco-German war. The French Government was much concerned at the hardships many of the French garrisons had been compelled to pass through and sent a commissioner to Canada to investigate the question of concentrated provisions. The actual investigation came to little at the time, but lead to the discovery of the ideal form of nourishment known first as "Johnston's Fluid Beef," and later in an improved form as "Bovril."

Frontenac Cereal Co.

Another very effective display is that of "Orange Meat." Round the top of the roof is built a superstructure about four feet high consisting of cardboard divided into shapes resembling the well-known "Orange Meat" packet. Inside against the back wall are built up artistic piles of this popular breakfast food. Orange colored bunting in graceful festoons gives an artistic touch to the whole. Several lady attendants dispense packets to interested visitors.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of The Frontenac Cereal Co.

The Frontenac Cereal Co started in business just about a year ago and some idea of their progress may be gathered from the fact that now their product is to be found in every colony of the British Empire. The company make the claim that theirs is the only breakfast food that is put up in hermetically sealed packages lined with mercerised paper thus making the food absolutely moisture and vermin proof. No human hands touch this food from the time it leaves the car till it is put on the table.

Cerebos.

Numerous as the exhibits are in the Manufacturers' Building none is more characteristic and neat than that of "Cerebos" salt, made by W. G. Patrick & Co., agents and importers, Toronto.

The exhibit is compact with the predominating color effect bright red. Large palms scattered artistically about serve to relieve the severity of the excellent display of tin packages of "Cerebos" table salt which takes the form of a graduated pyramid. "Cerebos" salt is manufactured at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England. It is claimed for this commodity that it contains a requisite proportion of phosphate of bran, which renders the salt fine, dry and free from caking.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of The E. W. Gillett Co.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of Cerebos Salt.

E. W. Gillett Co.

This exhibit deviates from the massive, substantial style characteristic of most of the larger booths, this year, in being open without canopy or roof. It is screened off merely by a low white balustrade on an olive green foundation, with large palms at regular intervals. The floor space is spread with rich Oriental rugs and fitted with antique ebony chairs and divans. The rear is hung with green curtains and between the white supporting pillars are stacks of Imperial and Magic Baking Powders and Gillett's Perfumed Lye. In the foreground rise imposing pyramids of Gillett's well-known products—capped with chandeliers bearing four immense electric lights. The exhibit as a whole has a luxurious, airy appearance which is enhanced at night by a great number of incandescent lights.

The Nasmith Co.

The Nasmith Co., Toronto, has adopted the prevailing mode and has erected a structure in white and gold with low railings and counters surmounted by colonial pillars. Over the structure is a huge canopy of red with yellow lining. The prevailing color in the interior is rich blue which serves as an effective background for numerous ornamental glass jars filled with Nasmith's brand of chocolates, bon-bons, etc. Mirrors and plate glass show cases also help to lend an air of elegance to Nasmith's artistic exhibit in the Manufacturers' Building.

The Pure Gold Co.

The Pure Gold Co.'s exhibit seems to be attracting great attention from the ladies' contingent at the Exhibition, the booth usually being surrounded by a throng of animated visitors. The exhibit, moreover, is well deserving of their attention, as the company's popular goods are displayed to excellent advantage. A handsome glass case at one end contains a full line of the company's flavoring extracts so well known to the trade, while another case at the corner of the counter is filled with dainty samples of jellies. At the back are built up artistic mounds consisting of cases of coffee, baking powder, salad dressing quick pudding in various flavors, jelly, etc., all of course "Pure Gold." The lady attendants are exceedingly courteous and anxious to explain and please.

Black Bros & Co.

Black Bros. & Co., of Halifax, have seized upon a happy thought in bringing up from the Maritime Provinces a taste of the sea by way of a real lighthouse. This makes a very effective centrepiece for Black Bros. & Co.'s excellent exhibit of "Halifax" and "Acadia" brands of prepared codfish in the Manufacturers' Building. The lighthouse is illuminated in the evenings and presents a very attractive and beautiful spectacle.

For about a century have Black Bros. & Co. been in the fishing and outfitting business. Indeed you may say that the history of this firm is part and parcel of the history of the great fishing industry of Nova Scotia. But until lately their trade in fish was entirely foreign and the fish they sold were cured especially to suit foreign tastes. Quite recently their thought was directed to preparing it in a manner that would suit the taste of the consumers of Canada, and thus was inspired the idea of making and putting up in packages the different brands of prepared codfish knowns as "Halifax" and "Acadia." These brands were devised after a course of experiment and study, and commanded a ready sale as soon as put on the market, even in Nova Scotia, where the people had been accustomed to the very finest quality of codfish.

These fish are put up in neat boxes of two and three pounds. In Halifax

"Lighthouse" brand—more commonly known as just "Halifax"—nothing but the very best quality of fish is used. The product has that pure, white look that renders it so attractive to the housewife, and it makes up into particularly tempting-looking dishes. What is quite as much to the point, it makes up into the very tastiest of dishes. The fish is just salty enough to be nice, and has a flavor when cooked that one does not grow tired of. The same may also be said of the taste of "Acadia" brand, prepared codfish.

Black Bros. & Co's brands of prepared codfish are absolutely boneless and can safely be recommended as a most nutritious food.

Few grocers have realized hitherto the magnitude of the codfish industry which, as a matter of fact, is practically equal in importance to the salmon industry. The catch of 1903 amounted in value to over $4,000,000. The grocery trade would find it much in their interest to give greater prominence to this line of goods, as there is no doubt that once "Halifax" and "Acadia" brands of prepared codfish are thoroughly known to the public they will become a staple article of diet.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of The Walter Baker & Co.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of Black Bros. & Co.

Walter Baker & Co.

The booth of Walter Baker & Co. is especially prominent for its tasteful simplicity. The counter forms a semi-circle, the roof being supported by two pairs of pillars. The predominant color is of course chocolate brown, while from the ceiling hangs yellow drapings in graceful festoons. On the counter are displayed various specimens of the company's well-known chocolates, with an assortment of cocoa beans, cocoa pods, etc. On stands at the back of the booth are built up an artistic pile of "Breakfast Cocoa" in 14, 1-2, 1 lb. and 5 lb. tins, interspersed with pictures of "La Belle Chocolatiere," the company's well-known trade mark. Two of the young ladies in charge are dressed in the costume of "La Belle Chocolatiere" and perform their functions with much grace.

This firm's goods have now been on the market for a period of over 120 years. Their name is a household word. The present factory occupies the site on the Neponset River, Dorchester, Mass., on which the original factory was built in 1780, a record the firm is justly proud of.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of Gowans, Kent & Co.

RETURNED OCT 3 1904

Gowans, Kent & Co.

An imposing display of glassware is being shown at the handsome booth of Gowans, Kent & Co. The booth itself is built of solid oak with an attractive sign bearing the firm's name in gilt lettering. Inside the brass rail surrounding the exhibit are two handsome glass cases filled with beautiful specimens of cut glass articles. In the rear against large mirrors are displayed three more elegant cases on a purple velvet covered stand containing a wide assortment of that elegant glassware so well known to the trade. On the top of these cases are ranged a number of handsome lamps, vases, etc., all in cut glass. The whole forms a most striking and creditable display and in every way deserves the universal attention that is bestowed on it.

Canada Cream Cheese.

The superstructure of this handsome exhibit is gothic in style with pillars at the sides, all done in pure white with enamel finish. The interior decorations are grouped around a mammoth box of Canada Cream Cheese covered with silver foil. The Canada Cream Cheese trade mark—an Indian in war paint and feathers paddling a birch-bark canoe—makes a prominent scenic background, while tier after tier of boxes of Canada Cream Cheese fill up the intervening space. Young ladies at the counter spare no pains in giving visitors to the Exhibition a practical demonstration of the many excellent qualities of Canada Cream Cheese.

J. J. McLaughlin.

The framework of this exhibit is happily wrought out in polished oak, and in appearance resembles an open Summer arbor. The roof is in the shape of a canopy, crowned by a decorative jar of Hygenia Fruit Juices, and at the four corners by similar jars of smaller size. Branches of grape vines, containing clusters of purple grapes hang from the four sides of the booth, being caught up in the centre by a mammoth bunch of red, white and green grapes, each a miniature incandescent lamp. On two sides of the exhibit are shelves stacked with different varieties of Hygenia fruit juices.

Sovereign Mfg. Co.

"This exhibit looks as if it had been transported straight from a Parisian art salon," remarked a visitor in passing the Sovereign Mfg. Co.'s exceedingly pretty exhibit. The plain pine woodwork loge, stained green after the fashion of to-day, requires no other decoration than some artistic gold lettering and festoons of American beauty roses. The striking feature of this exhibit is the electric lighting scheme which is carried out in beautifully shaded effects. A Grecian fountain illuminated and hung with garlands of flowers is also a great attraction. Elaborate show cases at the rear are filled with this firm's specialty "June Clover" perfume.

The Eby-Blain Co.

An exhibit which cannot fail to attract attention is that of the Eby-Blain Co. The booth is not large but contains a well arranged assortment of Eby-Blain goods, comprising "Kolona" tea, "Gold Medal" coffee, and others of their well-known lines. The predominant feature of the exhibit is a huge coffee pot which towers above the booth and can be seen from one end of building to the other.

It was intended as a model on a colossal scale of the "Kin Hee Quick Pot" for coffee of tea which the firm claim effects a saving of 25 per cent.

Quaker Oats.

The American Cereal Co. has a display which is excelled by none in their own line. Their booth is large and the double pillars supporting it at each corner and the centre give it a very substantial appearance. A sheaf of oats together with a group of flags ornament the corners of the roof while the words "Quaker Oats" are ingeniously wrought in the natural oats serve as an artistic decoration for the walls.

An imposing display of Quaker Oats is made inside the booth, while two large mirrors placed at angles to each other enable visitors to see themselves smiling while they are partaking of this excellent food. Many a face displays "the smile that won't come off." The decorations are in red and green and are extremely effective. The lady attendants are most assiduous in their attentions to the interested crowds which hover around the booth.

Eze Mfg. Co.

The Eze Mfg. Co., Toronto, has a neat little booth looking out over the south entrance to the Manufacturers' Building. The booth itself is covered with red, white and blue bunting, and the interior is stacked with pyramids of Star Ammonia, Washing Powder in red wrappers with gold lettering.

Blue Ribbon Tea.

curtained with rich blue hangings. In one corner of the bungalow is an inner recess, also curtained off and serving admirably for a tete-a-tete. Large and small boxes of Blue Ribbon Tea are in evidence everywhere. A staff of pretty waitresses graciously serve visitors with the cup that cheers but inebriates not.

H. J. Heinz Co.

Unquestionably one of the finest exhibits in the Manufacturers' building is that of H. J. Heinz Co. It takes the form of a huge pyramid, on the sides of which rise tier above tier the company's different pickles and other products. The apex of the pyramid consists of a long bottle of pickles which in its turn supports a huge girkin bearing the Heinz trade mark in electric lights.

Three arms connect the pyramid with the pillars at each corner of the counter, on which are placed handsome bottles containing a tempting display of different pickles all arranged in artistic color formations. The Heinz exhibit is in every way worthy of the enterprising firm whose name is now a household word in Canada.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of The H. J. Heinz Co.

Harry Webb Co.

This well-known firm of confection has a handsome exhibit near the main entrance to the Manufacturers' Building. A long low counter in white enamel serves as a foundation for a number of white pillars which in turn support a canopy. The hangings which are in rich blue serve as an effective background for the brilliant display of chocolate in boxes, bon-bons, dainty sweets, candies and novelty boxes bearing the "Harry Webb" trade-mark.

Maclure & Langley.

The exhibit of Tobler's Swiss Milk Chocolate, made by Maclure & Langeley, importers, Toronto, is deservedly attracting a great deal of attention, the skilful blending of the delicate light blue and pink shades used in the decorations being very pleasing to the eye. The popularity of Tobler's Swiss Milk Chocolate is amply proved by the crowds that visit the exhibit daily. The lady attendants wear an exact reproduction of the Swiss costume and very pleasingly explain the process of manufacture of this celebrated chocolate. Tobler's is one of the oldest manufacturers of Swiss chocolate, and its products have been awarded gold medals at many European exhibitions. One important feature in the manufacture of Tobler's chocolate is the fact that it is ground for five days by electric machinery run by water power. This adds greatly to its digestive qualities. It is put up in the form of croquettes, tablets, fancy boxes, etc., all of various sizes.

The shipments received by Maclure & Langley are large and are steadily increasing with the growing demand, never less than a carload being received at one time.

Lever Bros.

The proprietors of "Sunlight Soap" may justly lay claim to having one of the miniature palace exhibits in "Royal Row" in the Manufacturers' Building. It takes the form of a colonnade with three wings, having massive pillars in white and yellow embossed in gold, and surmounted by an ornamental balustrade. Over the centre wing are displayed the lion and the unicorn with flags and pennons artistically crossed. Some feet within the front railing rise a number of plate glass cabinets filled with Lever Bros'. newest brands of soaps including among others the "Monkey Brand," "Crest," "Lifebuoy" and "Cheerful." Above the cabinets, filling in the upper space to the roof, are a number of framed pictures illustrating Lever Bros.' factories in various parts of the world. Within the floor space palms are grouped here and there among glass show cases on pedestals containing several lines of toilet soaps put upon the market at the beginning of the present year, namely the "Coral" and "Silkskin" brands. These soaps are put up in 5 and 10c lines and are rapidly achieving an enviable reputation.

Peter's Chocolate

This exhibit is undoubtedly one of the centres of attraction in the Manufacturers' Building. It possesses all the advantages of a corner situation and is artistically draped in white and green. Two attractive young ladies gowned in the national Swiss costume with laced bodices of black velvet and soft muslin fichus have the work of demonstration in hand. W. G. Patrick & Co., Toronto, who are the agents for "Peter's" chocolate, are to be congratulated on having secured the services of such efficient demonstrators. They are not only pretty but have a way of imparting to all who pass the booth "the smile that won't come off." He is an unhuman wretch who does not become persuaded straightway that everyone eats "Peter's."

The firm manufacturing Peter's Swiss milk chocolate, which is capitalized now at $5,000,000 has its headquarters in Vevey, Switzerland. Mr. D. Peter experimented nearly ten years before producing the commodity which is now almost a household word in America and Europe owing to its many excellent features. It is used extensively by Swiss mountain climbers as well as a number of large European hospitals on account of its sustaining properties.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of Peter's Chocolate.

Packard & Co.

Jockey colors, horse shoes, etc., are quite in keeping with the spirit of Packard's shoe dressing for various colors and qualities of leather and combinations of liquid and paste, so familar to all. Packard & Co. have a compact, but artistic exhibit with color effect in black and yellow—a sort of open lattice at the sides being formed of satiny black oblong horseshoes. The walls are suitably decorated with pictorial testimonials and piles of Packard's shoe dressings.

Metallic Roofing Co.

The exhibit of the Metallic Roofing Co. is by universal consent one of the finest at the Exhibition and reflects the greatest credit on that enterprising firm. The structure in which the exhibits are displayed is in itself a source of much admiration. It is a building of striking proportions in the Eastern style of architecture. Everything is constructed of metal, but it has the appearance of a stone structure, supported by marble pillars. The metallic roofing of the interior has evoked much admiration and is really a beautiful specimen of artistic workmanship. Inside on stands are displayed a circular group of samples of exterior and interior decoration in different styles and colorings. Another line that is displayed is the company's fireproof window. The distinguishing feature of this window is the way in which the wire netting is made inside the glass. The advantage of this is that in case of fire, while the glass may crack it will never fall out and thus allow a draught of air to fan the flames. At the back of the booth against a rich velvet hanging is displayed an attractive line of zinc and copper ornaments eminently suitable for decorative cornice work.

The Eureka Refrigerator Co.

The exhibit of the Eureka Refrigerator Co., Toronto, is proving a big attraction to all up-to-date butchers and grocers, who visit the annex at the entrance to the Exhibition grounds. Mr. F. W. Reed is in charge of the exhibit and takes particular pleasure in pointing out the many excellent features of Eureka butcher, grocer and domestic refrigerators respectively, the latter of which are made to order by the company. It is claimed for the "Eureka" that its air chambers are entirely free from that humidity which is the weak point in many refrigerators to-day.

The "Eureka" company are feeling the results of the growing time and are now erecting a manufacturing plant in Toronto, to be completed by December next, which will be three or four times the capacity of the present one.

The Imperial Starch Co.

This firm from Prescott, Ont., has worked out a decidedly original and effective scheme in its exhibit in the main aisle of the Manufacturers' Building. The predominating colors are blue and white, the most striking feature of the exhibit being a huge pyramid of packages of "Royal Gloss Laundry Starch," "Imperial Crystal Gloss Starch" and "Imperial Corn Starch," the whole topped by shields and flags and a huge rock of starch. On the double counter are exhibited tall glass vials containing samples of the Imperial Starch Co.'s products including raw and refined "Banner Golden Syrup."

The Ingersoll Packing Co.

The exhibit of Millar's Paragon Cheese, while following the colonial style so popular this year, is handsome and spacious. The dead white of the pillars and roof are relieved by red and striped Oriental draperies. The background is in quiet and subdued colors, and serves admirably to display shelves and conventional stacks of Millar's Paragon Cheese packages. The Toronto agents for the Ingersoll Packing Co., is W. H. Millman & Sons.

C. Wilson & Son.

The feature of the exhibit of C. Wilson & Son of chief interest to the grocer is their fine display of scales in Machinery Hall, which is certainly second to no scale exhibit ever shown in Canada. They have a most complete line of their well-known scales on view, ranging from the chemist's scale, which registers the weight of a grain, to the hugh railway weigher, capable of registering 100 tons. All their scales are made with a fine finish and their accuracy and durability are well known to the trade. Ball bearings and agates are used wherever practicable. This firm has been building scales in Toronto for the last 53 years and has achieved a reputation of which they may be justly proud.

The Globe Metal Polish Co.

Have a neat and artistic booth in the annex, in a white and yellow color effect, with rich green drapery, and a black background which serves particularly well to show off the graduated stocks of Globe Metal Polish packages. The commodity itself is used for polishing gold, brass, silver and copper, and the loquacious miss in charge of the exhibit in her own inimitable way seeks to impress upon all visitors that Globe Metal Polish is "non-inflammable, non-poisonous, non-injurious" and goes so far as to say "it is used by the coachman of King Edward's household."

HINTS TO BUYERS.

H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, have been so rushed with orders of Ludella Ceylon Tea that their shipments have been delayed a few days. They hope to be able to catch up again shortly, when all orders will be shipped promptly.

Buyers of Demerara crystals, and Trinidad and Barbadoes grocery sugar, will find a good assortment with H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto.

The Heinz exhibit at the Exhibition has been the centre of great interest. Their booth has been crowded almost continuously since the show opened. Probably 100,000 people will have tasted their products by the time the fair closes. Some large orders have been placed with H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, for the "57 Varieties" during the past few days.

A REMARKABLE DISTRIBUTION.

The vendors of Orange Meat breakfast cereal have been including in every package of their goods a premium coupon. When the consumer has accumulated a certain number of these coupons she can exchange them for silverware—tea, dessert and table spoons, sugar shells or butter knives. Between January 1 and August 1 of the current year over 110,000 tea spoons, 3,000 table spoons, 1,000 butter knives and 1,000 sugar shells have been sent out from the Toronto office of the company. This is a surprising statement, and a significent one.

Mr. Pryor, sales agent for Orange Meat, is delighted with the progress of the article to which he has pinned his faith. He has recently opened up an Australian connection and 5 carloads have been sent to the company's agent there.

Free samples, coupons, general newspaper advertising, and last but not least, the advertising done in The Canadian Grocer, are given credit for the rapid sale of Orange Meat.

GERMAN FACTORY BURNED.

The largest sugar factory, named Kulmee, near Thorn, West Prussia, has been burned, involving a loss of $1,250,000. The fire caused a rise in the sugar market at Hamburg of 3c a hundredweight.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Groceries.

Toronto, Sept. 8, 1904.

THE week of Exhibition has brought about a considerable increase in the volume of business actually done in wholesale circles. More than the usual number of retailers have been in town, and almost without exception have found it convenient to visit their favorite wholesale grocer, placing orders incidentally which had been overlooked when the traveler was last on his rounds. The wholesale trade is gratified not only because of these direct good results, but because it is a great boon to business to have customers come into direct touch with the heads of such firms.

The regular Fall trade can hardly be said to be well under way as yet. Prospects, however, point to a splendid Fall season, additional leaven having been added by the improvement in western grain crop conditions.

Sugar remains very firm, an advance in Canadian refined having come into effect on September 1 following a similar advance in New York. Canned goods are firm, particularly 1904 pack sockeye salmon, which has been withdrawn from the market. Syrups and molasses, tea and coffee, spices and rice and tapioca are without special feature for the week under review. Additional firmness rules in the foreign dried fruit and nut markets respectively.

CANNED GOODS.

The principal item in canned goods this week is the continued firmness of the sockeye salmon market. It is believed that packers at the Pacific coast are general in their withdrawal of quotations. Unquestionably they must have a market in view, presumably the English market, for what has not been already sold, which will pay higher prices rather than do without British Columbia Sockeye salmon. In view of the firmness of the situation, lower prices in salmon can hardly be expected this year. It is known definitely that Australia is bidding for sockeye and that considerable quantities will be forwarded there.

The usual volume of trade in canned vegetables and fruits continues. Neither corn nor tomatoes, new pack, are on the market yet, nor is any reliable information available regarding the extent of the pack.

Some new pack kippered herring have arrived on this market, and higher prices are reported on account of the relative smallness of the catch this season. Our quotations are as follows:

SUGAR.

Just as we went to press last week there was an advance of 5c per cwt. all round in local refined, following similar advances in New York. There were large sales of raws to New York refiners at 1-16c advance, embracing 65,000 bags Cuban centrifugals for September shipment at 2.94c c. and f. New York for basis 95 test, which is equal to 4 5-16 duty paid, thus confirming the prediction made in our last report. Since then the tone of the market has, if anything, been firmer, although no further changes in quotations are recorded. Beet sugars after declining to 10s 7 1-2d for September shipment recovered 3d per cwt. and are now quoted firm at 10s 10 1-2d for September and 11s 1 1-2d for October shipment, the former being equivalent to full current parity of centrifugals in New York markets. Recent cable advices from Europe indicate more favorable weather for the growing crop of beets; a few days of rain can make but little improvement now, however, in crop conditions, a large proportion of the damage being irreparable. Holders are still firm in their pretensions and some sugar afloat in American waters will be stored rather than to accept current quotations.

Receipts at U. S. Atlantic ports for the week ending August 31 were 39,656 tons, meltings 44,000 tons, leaving total stocks in all hands of 124,168 tons, of which over 10,000 tons were in refiners' hands. There were no receipts at Cuban shipping ports for the week while exports reduced stocks 12,000 tons, leaving total stocks in the island of 42,000 tons, against 200,500 tons last year. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 1,622,168 tons, against 2,167,073 tons last year, a decrease of 544,905 tons.

The month of August just closed has been eventful in trade as having marked a steady advance in raws of 5 1-6c per lb. quotations of centrifugals at the opening of the month being 4c duty paid, New York for 96 test. The end of the month also marked the close of the first campaign year since the European bounty was abolished, beet sugars having advanced during that period 2s 4 1-2d per cwt. and cone centrifugals in New York 7-16c per lb.

Present indications are that the requirements of the next two months will be very heavy and in view of the general strength of the market it is expected that the present high level of values will be maintained. This is of course contingent on the eagerness or indifference of planters to the sale of their sugars.

COFFEES.

The coffee market continues firm locally, with buying only in small quantities.

New York markets have eased from five to ten points, the weakness of the market being due largely to Krische & Co.'s estimate of the receipts of coffee at Rio and Santos for September at 1,650,000 bags. This is practically the same amount of coffee that arrived at these two ports in September last year, and was a larger estimate than expected, many believing that the estimate would be below 1,500,000 bags. Another development that attracted general attention and had considerable influence during the damp upon the market was the indicated large increase in the world's visible supply during August. With only London, Antwerp, Bordeaux and Marseilles to hear from, the increase amounts to 981,000 bags. London stocks, according to private advices, have decreased 35,000 bags. Only slight changes are expected to be shown by the other ports, so that an increase for August of about 925,000 bags is indicated. Inasmuch as the deliveries of coffee in the United States and Europe for August were about 125,000 bags larger than the same month last year, and the receipts of coffee at Rio and Santos were about the same, the indications are that the mild movement of coffee to Europe was again heavy. The approximate total arrivals of mild coffee in the United States and Europe during August were 550,000 bags, comparing with 250,000 bags in August, 1903. Influenced by the unfavorable statistical developments there developed moderate selling to liquidate long accounts and there was practically only one buyer to absorb these offerings.

Foreign Dried Fruits

Trade continues seasonable in all lines of foreign dried fruits ; it is not expected, however, that the volume will be large until later in the Fall. Cable advices report a sharp advance in Valencia raisins. California fruits continue very low. Filberts have taken a sharp advance, those bringing 6¼c in the Spring having jumped to 9¾c. Almonds are also advancing. A good crop is expected of both Grenoble and Bordeaux walnuts. EGGS.

There has been very little change in conditions prevailing in the egg market during the past three weeks. The supply continues fair with no appreciable increase or decrease to affect prices. Quotations are strong in every branch of the provision and egg markets. Prices remain the same as last week—17 to 18c.

HONEY

An authority on honey says that the past severe Winter and cold Spring killed 70 per cent. of the bees in Ontario, the same being true of Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. Entire apiaries have been wiped out. Even with a full yield per colony this would reduce the honey crop to one-third. Clover was also Winter-killed, and during its bloom the weather has been abnormally cool. Linden, the next great source for white honey, requires cool weather, and as it opened about July 15, during very hot weather, the honey crop has been decidedly light. Speculators are reported to be getting hold of honey and prices have already advanced, with the prospect of advancing still more. The scarcity of small fruit will tend to further strengthen the honey situation. Our quotations are as follows :

Honey, extracted clover, per lb	0 07	0 07½

" handpicked, per bush	1 50	1 60

Green Fruits.

Prices brought by domestic fruit during the week under review have been higher than was anticipated. The result is probably caused by the large number of purchasers on the local market during the Exhibition. Arrivals of Canadian fruits from Niagara district, according to reports, are fair, with the exception of Canadian plums and peaches, which are below their respective averages of last year. Fruit merchants report a large consumption of fruit at the Exhibition.

Only two cars of California fruit have made an appearance on the local market during the last week. Prices of domestic fruits are too low for California goods to compete. The season for Valencia oranges is practically over. Jamaicas are expected to take their place in a week or ten days. Florida pineapples are more plentiful, and as a result, prices are easier. The condition of the banana market is better than it has been for some time. In all probability apples will be a drag on the market this season, although reports show that the exports this year are below the average. This is due to the lateness of the season. The season for imported cantaloupes is over and Canadian fruit has taken their place. Crawford peaches have arrived and are selling at $1 per basket. In addition to the regular list the following quotations on Canadian grapes have been added : "Champions," in small and large baskets ; "Moore Early's," also in small and large baskets, and Delawares in small baskets.

Following are the prices we quote for this week :

Fish.

As a result of the cool weather the demand for fish continues good. Prices remain unchanged. With the first of the month the oyster season began. A fair-sized quantity has arrived for so early in the season, and the cool weather has created a seasonable demand. "Long Island Natives" are selling at $1.70 per imperial gallon and "Baltimores" at $1.50 per wine gallon. Our quotations are as follows :

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

Prices continue to sag. During the week Manitoba Northern Nos. 1 and 3 have each dropped 1½c per bushel, while No. 2 has dropped 1c per bushel. Red is 2c easier and white is ½c. Rye has taken a sharp advance. Our quotations are as follows :

FLOUR.

This market has been very slow in responding to the excitable wheat market, and the result is a firmer market. Manitoba wheat patents and strong bakers have advanced 10c and 5c per barrel respectively. We quote the following prices :

BREAKFAST FOODS.

SEEDS.

Up to date the movement of seed has been slow, this being caused by the busy harvesting season. Alsick clover has advanced from $1.65 and $6 to $4.65 and $6.25, and for real fancy trade higher prices are being paid. This advance is due to the shortness of supply, and there is no doubt but that when the present harvest is over prices will again decline. Alsick badly mixed with Trefoil is only worth from 2 to 4c per pound. Seed mixed with Timothy is also at a discount. Red clover new crop seed has not yet started to move. "Mammoth" clover seed, bringing from $5.50 to $6.28 has been added to quotations as well as timothy bringing from $1 to $1.35 per bushel. Timothy badly hulled or mixed with foreign seed is only worth from 1 to 2c per pound. Following are the prices quoted :

Alsick clover, per bush	4 65	6 25
Mammoth clover, per bush	5 50	6 25
Timothy	1 60	1 35

Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool.

The market in hides, tallow, skins and wool remains practically unchanged. The season for sheep skins is over, lamb skins having taken their place. Lamb skins and shearling are advancing, otherwise the price list remains the same. Supply and demand is improving. Our quotations are as follows :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Sept. 8, 1904.

Groceries.

SOME signs of business improving are now in evidence. Everything is steady. It is not a case of feast and famine; all departments report an even trade. Prices keep up in different lines and general interest is manifested in the opening of Fall trade. Midsummer dullness has not been able to send prices down, which is unusual. Country collections are reported first-class. Farmers seem to be prosperous, and their prospects are good for Fall and Winter. This is about the time the jobber finds his out of town trade better than the city business. Retailers are quite right in buying cautiously from hand to mouth, owing perhaps to the fact that sales are by no means abnormal at this season. Sugar advanced again five cents last week, and is still strong, with a tendency to further advance. The shortage in the beet crop, of 600,000 tons, is attracting the attention of the world. The Demara and Trinidad crops are over for the present. So too is the Cuban crop, and American refiners having only 900,000 tons of supply from the Cuban source, have had to buy beet sugar from Europe, and are even buying Java sugar for delivery next Spring. Molasses, that is new Barbadoes, is held firmly at 26c, and as it is in the hands of one or two holders, it promises to be interesting. Tea is still low, but experts state that the markets of the world are fairly steady. Flour is high beyond reason and its value is said to be largely speculative. Spices are active. Rice is lower than good judges expected. There is little firmness in the market, and the new crop is coming in at slightly higher prices. New salmon is selling at $1.60, and is in good demand. Prices are bound to go up, and retailers need not be afraid of getting over-stocked at the present market price. Canned goods of all kinds are in good demand. Pickles are unsatisfactory, the sources of supply having been effected by bad weather. In dried fruits, currants are lower and Valencias higher. First new pears in barrels have arrived in green fruit, and also the first Ontario musk-melons. California Tokay grapes have declined 35c a crate, and sold freely at $3.25. The popular kinds of coffee seem to be scarce and it is likely before another season rolls round, greater scarcity may be noted, for this reason. Coffees for which there is a good demand are likely to be higher in price.

SUGAR.

Sugar is up again, and it is commonly stated, for no other reason, than that the sugar trust is able to put it up. No doubt the strong position held by sugar to-day is due to the work of speculating. The future markets will be largely what the refiners make it, and according to good commercial sense, they may be depended upon to send it up higher still. The future of sugar is so entirely beyond the control of natural conditions, that it is almost absurd to estimate upon its possibility. An advance of five cents all round took place at 12.45 Thursday, September 1. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Some interest may be attracted to Barbadoes molasses shortly, inasmuch as it is held firmly at 26c now, and the holders comprise one or two large firms. Offerings are very numerous, but not much molasses is changing hands. Considerable advances are likely to take place, as soon as the heavy Autumn demand sets in, which ought to begin at the end of September. We quote:

Green Fruits.

Everything is alive in the green fruit trade at present. During the week there were noted the first offerings of the season of Canadain Bartlett pears in barrels, as well as the first offerings of Ontário musk-melons. The pears sold at $3.60 a barrel, and the melons at 60 to 80c per small crate, a large quantity being offered. A very large quantity of Canadian harvest apples have been sold also, at a decline of 40c per barrel, ranging from $1.20 to $1.60 per barrel. Bananas were somewhat firmer than for some time past, part of a carload selling at 80 to 90c per bunch. California Bartlett pears were in strong request, selling at $2.65 to $3.25 per box, this being considerable of an advance over last week's sales. The natural inference would be that the demand for pears is considerable in excess of the supply. Half boxes of Bartlett's brought $1 to $1.65 each, and a quantity of Buerre Hardy pears in boxes, sold at $2 to $2.40 each. Peaches were quite cheap, selling at $1.30 to $1.80. Plums showed some advance selling at 95c to $1.80. A carload of Maryland peaches being the first full lot of the season, were sold at $2.60 to $2.95 a crate, and a car of sweet potatoes sold at $2.75 per barrel. We quote:

Vegetables.

Vegetables remain steady and the demand is still strong. The low price of mushrooms is still very noticeable, and is caused by the heavy rains. Pickling vegetables seem to be very scarce, although some improvement has been noted this week in supplies of cucumbers. Sweet potatoes sold at prices considerably less than a week ago. Beans continue to keep up to 1.25. Prices generally are similar to those of last week.

Fish.

The scarcity of fish is somewhat broken now, as Dore is increasing in supplies from the Manitoba lakes. Prices will be easier shortly. Ample supplies of fresh haddock are coming in, and dressed perch and dressed bull-heads are now selling freely. The demand for haddock has increased, owing to the fact that large numbers of families have returned from the country, and are being supplied in the cities. Steak cod is scarce and prices are firm. Oysters are still attracting attention, owing to their newness on the market. Large quantities are being consumed everywhere. It will be a week or so before Malpecques arrive, excepting small consignments which have been ordered by express. Salt fish of all kinds is active, and higher prices are expected. We quote:

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Eggs are still firm and prices show a tendency to remain high. Over a thousand cases arived in the city on Monday. The demand for round lots of straight gathered stock is very firm, and sales were made Tuesday at 17 1-2c per dozen. Jobbers reported the demand for selected stock to be fair at 20c to 20 1-2c, while No. 1 candled stock sold at 18c per dozen.

POTATOES.

BEANS.

There is a tendency to an advance in beans, prices are very firm. The bean syndicate report, however, that the demand is comparatively slow. Choice primes in carlots were quoted at $1.25 to $1.30, and primes at $1.20 per bushel. Honey is still quiet. The demand being chiefly for buckwheat. FLOUR.

Floud is still high, and if speculators keep on advancing wheat, it is hard to say where the flour price will arrive at. Some of the elements at work include war news, crop scares, and bull inventions and manipulation. Experts say that real conditions are not responsible for the high price of flour. There will be plenty of good flour on the market before long at prices far below the present rate. We quote:

A LAND WHERE BANANA IS KING.

By F. T. Miller in The World To-day.

AN American appetite has reconstructed an island of the sea; re-established its financial integrity, erected adequate schools, built substantial church organizations, and is to-day paying the taxes and affording the necessities of right living to a million struggling people. In the tropical lands, washed by the blue waters of the Caribbean Sea, the fruits and the delicacies of nature were falling to decay; a native peasantry was degrading in its poverty, dwelling in wretched hovels and steeped in squalor and sensuality. Moral perception had almost become a lost virtue, and in certain villages illegitimacy reigned with a proportion totalling three quarters of the population.

The optimist, believing that everything in nature is for the most good, may find much that will make his faith strong in this brief story of the saving grace of gluttony. True, it is, there seems to be nothing in nature but what availeth someone. My misfortune is the fortune of another; the ills furnish a livelihood to a remarkable profession; our misdoings are the foundation of a most respectable body of men and open a field of possibility for our sons of legal bent to enter diplomatic service. And so it is the gourmand qualities of an American people have rescued a dying race; our epicurean evil has become a lifeline.

America is becoming a fruit eating nation. A few years ago when everything west of the Hudson was the great wilderness, our Atlantic coast dwellers depended upon the gill-breathers of the sea and the roving forest meats. As the howl of beast died from the forest the good red soil furnished the sustenance; and now when the woodland becomes great world centres of industry we turn again to a diet that better assists in meeting the fuel requirements of the strenuous life. The great southland became a garden of blossoms; the Pacific shores sweet in the scent of the orange bloom. A little world of people became thrifty and prosperous through our insatiable fruit appetite. Wholly disregarding the chemist's theory of food units, we wisely seasoned the flesh-producing, foodstuffs with the delicate sun-ripened flavors of the red-warm skies. Men of aptitude caught the opportunity and extensive estates are to-day founded on the appetites of the American people. It, too, has been an important factor in the solution of the color problem and through it the Southern negro has been taught the remuneration of diligent labor, the reward of industry. I recall a few years ago, standing in a thrifty orchard in Albemarle County, Virgina, a few miles from the Monticello home of Thomas Jefferson, and watching a half hundred burly negroes encasing the most beautiful apples that I have ever seen.

"Where are these going?" I asked.

"These, sir, are for Queen Victoria," replied the overseer.

The cases were stenciled with the royal insignia of Windsor Castle and the finest fruit of the kind that the world produces went on its way to the Queen's table. If King Edward VII. of the British Empire inherits the epicurean taste of his mother then Virginia is to-day still growing apples for His Majesty.

To the American fruit proclivity King Edward is again indebted; through it his royal exchequers have been replenished and a colonial financial enigma, which puzzled the astute Lord Chamberlain, has been solved. In the West Indies. England holds vantage ground from which it keeps a watchful eye on the revolutionary South American colonies and on the Panama situation. In the Island of Jamaica, alone, it enthrones a governor, Sir Augustus William Lawson Hemming, G.C.M.G., who protects its interests at a salary of $30,000 annually, and is surrounded by an army of Lancashire Fusiliers and Royal Garrison Artillery. It was here that a Scotch regiment was once sent en masse to atone in disgrace for its misdeeds, but to-day the troops are there on important duty, with Brigadier-General James Edward Wilmot Smyth Caulifield in command. The "wee crimson-tipped flower," the heather and the whin, lend color to the life about the solitary camp in the mountains 4,000 feet above the sea level. Down at the parade grounds English military society gathers, and it was here recently that I found the long, lank, Colonel H. E. C. Kitchener, commander of the depot of the West India Regiment and brother of Lord Kitchener of South African fame, mounted on a dashing pony and playing polo as though the safety of the Empire depended upon it, galloping recklessly down the field after the ball as if is was a retreating Russian spy sneaking through the ranks on a Chinese frontier. The gorgeous Marquise, who recently created a social turmoil in the island by marrying the governor's private secretary and taking him on an extended honeymoon, was an interested spectator. In Kingston harbor, which "is the finest harbor in the seas and will shield the navies of the world," according to Captain T. C. D. Thompson, of the Royal Navy, who made the statement while attending the Shamrock-Reliance cup races on Howard Gould's yacht last fall, England keeps a small fleet alert for immediate attack. "This harbor," he said, "at the completion of the Panama Canal, will become one of the most important coaling stations in commerce." But England has had many difficulties and discouragements in preserving it. It has been a dragging expense with the rewards lost in the far future. Its million negro subjects have been a drain on the treasury, severe Crown Government failing to force them to keep the island under cultivation.

Then came the American appetite to the rescue. An old trading captain discovered a potential wealth lying in bananas. Captain Lorenzo Baker, born on Boundbrook Island, in Wellfleet, Massachusetts, in 1840, with a mother of the good Yankee maiden name of Thankful Rich, was engaged in the fishing and oyster business around Cape Cod a few years ago when he "heaved to" off the coast of Jamaica with a cargo of fish, which he traded for a few hundred bunches of bananas, and unloaded from his little schooner at Boston at a good profit. To Our Friends,

We cordially invite you to pay us a visit when you come to Ottawa during the Central Canada Fair. Of course we feel quite sure that you will come, as "everybody meets everybody" in the Capital during Exhibition Week. Our Fair promises to be better than ever--and that is saying a great deal.

All our travellers will be called in between the 16th and 27th and will join us in welcoming our friends and patrons.

Yours very truly,

Wholesale Agents for "SALADA" Tea.

Captain Baker, the sea-faring fisher boy, was president of a company with a capital of $20,000,000, controlling 60,000 acres of Jamaica plantations, employing 800 head of oxen plowing the fields, 700 mules and thousands of negro peasants acting as beasts of burden carrying fruit to the wharves, where sixty steamers take it to the markets in the United States.

There were 913 vessels that cleared port at Jamaica last year, with crews numbering 34,606 men, and carrying 943,585 tons. The value of fruit shipped reached $5,007,255, of which the United States markets purchased product valued at $4,626,685, while the markets of Mother England gave the colony but $323,995. The entire Government expenditures in the island were not as large as the sum paid for Jamaican fruit in the United States. For the products of Jamaican soil in the last twelve years the markets of our country have paid a great total of nearly seven million dollars, while the remainder of the nations of the world have given them combined less than one-half that amount. Nearly twelve million bunches of bananas were consumed by the ever-hungry, and the value of these alone may be estimated at about $4,000,000.

I sat in the colonial Legislature a short time ago, during the hurricane relief debate. Sir Hemming occupied a royal chair, a painting of Queen Victoria at the time of coronation hanging on the wall behind him. He dipped his pen in a silver inkstand and pushed his monocle under a shaggy gray brow. Hon. Sydney Oliver, Colonial Secretary, arose:

"We must protect the American market," he said. "Across our entire budget is written the word 'bananas'; we must hold our trade with the United States."

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer
St. John N. B., Sept., 1904.

BUSINESS is quite active. During the past week it has been somewhat upset because of holidays. On the 31st of August the retail grocers held their picnic. It was not altogether a success. The wholesale grocers closed for the afternoon, but there was some trouble among the retailers, and many of the largest stores were open all day. The day was fine and while the attendance was much smaller than expected, a fair number enjoyed a very pleasant outing. Everything passed off successfully.

In markets flour is still the matter of interest, there being a further advance this week. Cream of tartar is always changing in its first cost. After quite a dropping off in price, the market is again higher. Hops are very firm and higher prices are expected. In rice there continues to be little change in price. The market is still low.

We are looking forward to the opening of the exhibition and everything points to its being a success. It opens on the 17th. We are having the finest weather of the season. The Summer was very cool, the only drawback being the fog, of which we had more than for years. Very large numbers are going west from these eastern provinces on the harvest excursions. The chief domestic line in the grocery business is fish, and the price in all lines keeps very high. The extreme price in smoked herring over a very few years ago is most marked.

Oil.

In burning oil the market is unchanged. There is the natural increased sale at this time of the year. In lubricating oils this is the quiet season. In this line it is more a matter of quality than price. Paint oils have but a fair sale. Linseeds are very firm and tend higher. Turpentine is unchanged. In cod oil there is still some of last season's oil held. New oil is being received. Prices are quoted low, particularly as compared with last year.

Salt.

In Liverpool coarse salt one cargo has just been landed, another is due about the middle of the month, and a third about the end of the month. There is a good demand. On the other side the price tends higher. In Canadian the chief season of demand is over.

Dried Fruits.

There is little of interest in spot goods. Dealers have largely bought their new currants. Prices are rather lower than last year. Cleaned currants are chiefly bought and very largely in cartons. In California prunes, prices are very low for new goods. There are very few spot goods. In raisins dealers are buying few except California stock. The very low coast prices continue. Some small lots carried over will show a loss. Evaporated apples show little business. Prices are firm. Valencia onions sell freely at quite low prices. Peanuts are easier. Foreign nuts are coming in below Virginia prices. Shelled walnuts are very low, but shelled almonds are higher and very firm.

Green Fruits.

There was a large business last week. Bananas were rather short, but there are lots now. Apples are very plentiful. They are not keepers at this season. Demand is but fair, so prices are low. While barreled pears are firm the sale is not active. California plums and peaches are still freely offered. Ontario peaches, pears and plums are now plentiful. In grapes, Delawares and Tokeys are freely sold. Tomatoes are now quite cheap. Rock cranberries, which are greatly liked here, are more plentiful than for years. Oranges and lemons are firm at full figures.

Canned Goods.

The trade are anxiously waiting for full prices from the association. There is nothing of special interest. Salmon is firm at full figures. Blueberries are quite cheap. Strawberries are firm with pack light. Gallon apples are dull. In domestic sardines the outlook is for a fair pack. Haddies are not a large pack. Kippered herring is likely to be a light pack.

Sugar.

Market continues very firm. Dealers carry full stocks. There was a further slight advance this week. Considerable foreign continues to arrive, much to the displeasure of the dealers in the guild.

Molasses.

There is a fairly large stock of Porto Rico held. Price quite firm and a steady sale. Barbadoes is not a large stock though quality this year is good.

Fish.

Dry fish are being received quite freely. While prices are rather easier, there is little chance of much change. Pickled herring are coming in in fair quantity. The market was bare and a good demand makes steady prices. Some new smoked herring are being offered; prices are still high. In boneless fish prices were not advanced as in dry fish. Some finnan haddies are now seen. Fresh fish are rather light supply.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

In flour Ontario grades show a further advance. This is the most interesting feature in the market. Demand is good. Feed is rather higher with a fair sale. Oatmeal and cornmeal remain unchanged. New oats are offered. Prices show a rather lower range. In beans, prices are firmer; there is but a fair business. Barley and split peas continue scarce.

Crockery and Glassware

Spun Glass.

SPUN glass must still be counted as a novelty, and a novelty that is sure to excite the interest of the public. And yet it is by no means of recent origin. It was doubtless first made in Venice, and was probably not so much an isolated invention as the outgrowth of the high development which the Venetian glass industry attained long ago. Prominent among the Venetian wares are glass beads and mosaics, and the glass for both these is worked into rods or tubes. To make a glass rod, a lump of glass is gathered on an iron rod, and rolled on a marver; another rod is fastened to it, and by pulling the two apart the glass is drawn out until it is as thin as is desired. This work requires two men to do it, and a certain amount of skill as well. When the industry extended so as to make use of very large quantities of glass rods, and when a great many very thin rods were in demand, as they were for the Venetian filigree and millefeori work, naturally it was attempted to displace this slow and laborious trade by some mechanical device, and following this idea the spinning of glass by drawing it out and winding it on a wheel soon became commonly used at Venice for making the finer glass rods, and was a great help to the Venetian industry. Although the original idea of the wheel was to obtain a better grade of glass rods at least cost, yet it will be readily seen that as the rods were drawn out finer and finer, the natural result would be that in the end there would be a glass thread, and the workman would not unnaturally ask himself why this could not be used for manufacturing woven fabrics. At any rate, they began to attempt it, and made little baskets and fancy articles by weaving the glass threads. But when they tried to extend its use, the brittle nature of the glass proved to be a great obstacle in the way, and so its use was restricted to a few little ornaments which did not need not be very strong. Attempts were made at Paris, Lyons and Milan as well to make use of glass threads by mixing them in with silk. Some beautiful goods were made, but the glass proved to be too brittle, and as the glass threads were very fine and stiff, when one broke it would be like a needle point in the cloth, and equally annoying to anyone handling or wearing it. A piece of fine tapestry made of spun glass which was presented to King Ludwig I. of Bavaria, gave so much trouble with the threads snapping and throwing off needle-like pieces of glass that the room where it was hung could not be used to any great extent. Accordingly, spun glass found very little practical use until it was taken up and studied practically about fifty years ago by Jules de Brunfaut, a French chemist. As a young man, he led very much of a Bohemian life, and among other things he visited Venice, and saw them spinning glass there. Later, he took up the subject, and, being a chemist, he undertook to solve the difficulties that arose out of the nature of the glass itself. He settled finally in Vienna, and devoted himself to the solution of these problems, and it may be said that the practical application of spun glass dates from this time, though it had been known for so long a time before. First he softened the hard, shiny effect of the glass fabric, and used a glass that had a soft, silky appearance much more pleasing. The question of brittleness was a much more difficult one, yet he met with quite a good deal of success in solving this, too. He made a spun glass, or "mineral wool," so fine that its threads were thinner than silk threads, and persons who did not know what it was pronounced it to be wool of the finest grade. Brunfaut set to work to make practical use of it, and made muffs, hats, caps, plumes, etc., of excellent quality, soft and agreeable to both eye and touch. Whereas the old spun glass could only be knitted, Brunfaut's could be woven.

The chemical or physical nature of glass was at first a hindrance in the way of spinning it. But this resulted later in developing new uses for it. Its cleanness and antiseptic properties render it peculiarly suitable for medical and surgical use. Since glass is almost entirely unattacked by strong acids—except hydrofluoric—it is a most valuable material for laboratory filters where we have to do with strong acid solutions. So valuable is it for this purpose that scarcely a laboratory is without this glass wool or mineral wool.

However, the promise attending Brunfaut's experiments has not yet been realised. Glass in the form of spun and woven fabrics is yet merely a curiosity. Whether its use shall some time become common enough to remove it from this designation to that of a luxury, or even a necessity, remains yet to be seen. In the meantime, it will continue to be an interesting subject of study for the practical glass man.—Illustriertes Fachblatt.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

A DECIDED firmness has set in for ocean freights. The August dullness still permeates the September outlook but there is every hope of a better September and October. Increased offerings of practically all lines will be the record, save perhaps in the case of live stock. The falling off in live stock shipping for last month was so distinct that a great deal of untaken space was noted. The expected increase in ocean freight rates has therefore not taken place. To certain ports the bookings have been much larger for the end of September than they were for the beginning. Particularly is this the case with Manchester. With other ports the reports are about steady.

Grain rates have advanced from three pence to six pence all around for September, and steamship agents are looking forward to much better times all through. A new freight is now occupying some attention, namely, apples, which from this time on will be going forward in large quantities. It is now certain that the export quantity will not be anything like as large as it was last year owing to the fact that the Canadian crop is not so large while the Old Country crop is considerably larger. Some shippers think that the rates for oats will be affected by the offerings of apples and that higher prices may be asked owing to the space being better occupied. There is not a great deal of liklihood of this being carried out.

There is a fairly well founded claim that the new grain inspection Act is operating against the port of Montreal. One shipper of oats stated that there was every possibility of large quantities of Canadian oats being shipped by New York if some of the inconveniences were not removed at the Montreal end. Of course Portland and Boston would get a share. It is also said that a grade of No. 2 white oats may be made at these American ports based on last year's Canadian standard.

New Freight System.

Consequent upon its rapidly increasing freight traffic the C.P.R. will inaugurate on September 12 the "red card" freight system. This will not imply any change in the train service, except that fast freight will be handled with more facility than formerly.

All Will be Red.

Under this system cars containing fast freight will be ticketed with red cards and waybills will be accompanied by red envelopes, on which will be marked full particulars of shipment. Cars thus labelled will be placed on designated red card freight trains that will carry them through to their destination.

Certain stations have been designated as "red card stations." To each of these is assigned a symbol letter or letters and a series of numbers, to be used in marking envelopes carrying bills for cars loaded with red card freight.

Biscuits And Confectionery

An Interesting Anniversary.

THE Mooney Biscuit & Cancy Co., of Stratford, Ont., is an example of the growth and progress of Canadian industries. Starting a little over a year ago, with a plant which should have fulfilled all demands upon it for some time to come, the company has already had to double it.

Of course there are reasons for this, outside of the natural growth of the Dominion. The chief reason lies in the biscuits themselves, which are known to the trade and the people as something unsurpassed by anything on the Canadian market.

Mooney's Perfection Cream Sodas, as they are called, have firmly established their reputation all over Canada. As Mr. Mooney puts it, "They are the biscuits that made all Canada cracker-hungry."

The firm has come to the conclusion that the quickest and best means of further developing its biscuit trade is to tell the consumer the interesting story of Mooney biscuits and confectionery through the columns of the weekly and daily general and trade newspapers. Accordingly, it is entering on a regular advertising campaign. As one of the members of the Mooney Biscuit and Candy Co. remarked, "We are taking the all important initial step and then trusting to the quality of our products to place them on every table in the land." That they will succeed is a foregone conclusion. One has only to taste the dainty, crisp deliciousness of Mooney's Perfection Cream Sodas to discover the secret of their popularity.

Mr. W. J. Mooney, president and manager of the Mooney Biscuit & Candy Co., is a man whose eighteen years in Stratford have made him a familiar figure in that city, especially in business circles where his principal activities have been centred. During the greater part of that time he was connected with a large confectionery house as traveler, being considered one of the most successful commercial men in western Ontario, but even while on the road he was interested in a number of other enterprises, notably in real estate. His investments in this line are generally known to have been of a profit-bearing nature, and he is still actively interested in the business, being at the present time president of the Stratford Improvement Co.

His experience on the road prompted Mr. Mooney into the manufacture of biscuits and confectionery. Knowing in part the requirements of the trade in this line, he returned from a trip to the coast a year ago last Fall fully determined to form a company and establish a factory in Stratford, feeling confident that the output of other factories was not sufficient to cope with the demand and that people were not receiving their goods promptly or in the quantities required. That his judgment was correct has been shown by the growth of the business and the demand already created for the goods of his company. Operations were started last September with a paid up capital of $100,000, and since then the growth has been such that it was recently found necessary to instal a second oven of the largest capacity purchasable.

Mr. Mooney is of Irish descent, his father, the late Hugh Mooney, having come from the Emerald Isle to settle as an early pioneer in London Township. Previous to going to Stratford the greater part of his life was spent on the old homestead and in Strathroy, where he conducted a business for some time, and where twenty-five years ago he married Miss Henrietta Challoner, daughter of Mr. Thos. Challoner, of that place, previously of Sarnia.

Mr. Mooney is comparatively a new comer on Stratford board of trade, his connection with that body dating from time of reorganization. He was elected to the council of the board for the first time at the last annual meeting. During his residence in Stratford he has been prominent in a number of other circles.

IMPROVED SAMPLE ROOMS.

The firm of S.J. Major, wholesale grocer, Ottawa, recently enlarged its sample room to double its previous size. There is plenty of room now for the sample room salesmen and for the better display of samples and shelf goods. In conversation with the president, S. J. Major, and Mr. Cote, manager and secretary, the Grocer learns that business is very satisfactory and prospects for the future bright.

H. N. Bate & Sons, Ottawa, have been for some time past engaged in enlarging and re-arranging their sample-rooms, warehouses and offices, which when completed will be thoroughly modern and convenient for carrying on their large business. The Grocer hopes shortly to be able to show photos of these newly arranged premises.

GREEN FRUITS

THE consumption of cider in many parts of the United Kingdom, which is already considerable, is steadily increasing, says the curator of the Canadian section Imperial Institute, London, Eng. Consequently, the manufacture of this beverage has been, and is, the subject of careful study and investigation, and the adoption of scientific and up-to-date methods has resulted in makers generally producing cider of high quality. Particular varieties of apples are cultivated for cider-making purposes which lend to the liquid special qualities in the direction of appearance, flavor, etc., and in normal years British makers can obtain from the home crops most of the apples which they require. All the same, there is generally a certain quantity of cider imported both from France and the United States. Although the phenomenal condition of affairs resulting from the failure of the apple crop in Europe generally last Autumn must be regarded as quite exceptional, the scarcity of fruit has attracted general attention to the apple resources of Canada.

Looking Toward Canada.

Many inquiries were made as to the possibility of obtaining apples and even cider from the Dominion. Advantage has, therefore, been taken of this occasion to endeavor to ascertain whether the apple-growing facilities possessed by Canada cannot in some way be converted permanently to the use of British cider-makers. There are, apparently, very large quantities of apples available annually in Canada which could be advantageously utilized for cider-making, if the pressing could be carried out on the spot. These apples represent, on the other hand, neither the best table fruit, nor could they bear the long transportation to Europe without sustaining considerable deterioration and damage, and they can usually be purchased locally at extremely low prices. Up to the present the production of cider in Canada appears, with the exception of one or two cases, to be conducted in a very elementary and hap-hazard style. Even were better methods adopted, the prospects of Canadian makers being able to profitably sell Canadian cider as a distinctive brand in the United Kingdom are extremely problematical. The variety of apples available in Canada differs materially from those used in Europe for cider purposes, with consequent difference in the quality of the cider produced. There is keen competition between the different British cider-makers, and for many years large sums have been expended in introducing and advertising their various brands.

Exportation of Apple Juice.

To establish a Canadian brands of cider in this market would be an undertaking both expensive and uncertain as to ultimate success. Better prospects would seem to attend the preparation and exportation of apple juice to be made according to the requirements of the British cider-makers and to be used by them for mixing and blending with the juices of apples possessing particular cider-making qualities. As a first step in this inquiry, samples of the best commercial Canadian cider were obtained by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa and sent to the Imperial Institute, where they were examined and analyzed in the Research Laboratories, the results being compared with the analysis already available of various types of United Kingdom cider and also by cider made in the United States.

Canadian Cider Tested.

The general results of the examination shows that the Canadian ciders analyzed possess most of the characteristics of American cider. The samples had a higher specific gravity, and contained a smaller proportion of alcohol and a larger amount of sugar than most English ciders. In this country and in France, varieties of small and bitter apples are grown especially for the production of cider, imparting a particular flavor and color to the beverage. In the United States, inferior and surplus sweet apples are employed often indiscriminately, and this would also appear to be the case as regards much of the cider made in Canada. That Canadian cider made from the varieties of the fruit in most common use would resemble English cider made from specially cultivated apples, is impossible. On the other hand, with greater care in the selection of the apples used and by the adoption of more systematic methods, the quality would be greatly improved. If British makers could obtain sufficient quantities of home-grown fruit to cover their requirements, they would not handle any other. The fruit crops in the British Isles, are, however, of very uncertain dimensions, and the demand for cider is constantly increasing, so that in most years makers are obliged to obtain some portion of their requirements from abroad.

Official trade returns show that for some years past the importation of American cider has approximated 350,000 gallons, but is is interesting to note that the declared value of the American is only from 8d to 9d per gallon, compared with 1 shilling to 1 shilling 2d in the case of cider imported from France. As a competitor with American cider, it would appear that there should be an opening for the Canadian article, but as to whether the trade would be uniformly profitable there is much difference of opinion. Several trial shipments have been made this last Autumn, and several representatives of cider-manufacturing firms have personally visited Canada.

Phenomenal Crop of Blueberries.

According to The Rat Portage Miner over 146 tons of blueberries have been shipped from Rat Portage during the present season. This amount will be considerably increased before the end of the crop ie reached. It is expected there will be additional shipments of over 14 tons, making a total of 160 tons, or 320,000 pounds, for the full season.

The price obtained by the pickers has been slightly over an average of 4c per pound, which would net $12,800. To this must be added an additional three cents to the dealer for baskets, packing, handling, profit, etc., which would add an additional $9,600, or, making a total of $22,400 brought into circulation in Rat Portage through the medium of the blueberry crop.

Disastrous Apple Season

According to a statement made at a recent meeting in Hobart, Tasmania, of fruit-growers the loss sustained, by exporters of Tasmanian apples for shipment to England this season will reach £50,000. On approximately 600,000 cases shipped from Hobart this means an average loss of (1s 8d) 40 cents per case. The early shipments proved fairly remunerative, but the latter exportation was most unprofitable. Poor carriage conditions caused a large proportion of the fruit to land in London in inferior condition, and it has been proved that unanimity among shippers is absolutely essential in future.

It has been suggested that the Tasmanian Government should grade the fruit and thus prevent inferior apples being packed for shipment. Shipments from Nort America have been larger than usual, which combined with the early advent of continental soft fruit, have contributed to the poor prices obtained for Tasmanian consignments.

SPECIAL NOTICE to the TRADE.

IN a previous issue of the Grocer we called the attention of the Trade to our very tender Sugar Pea. We now beg to call their attention to another line of peas which we believe to be first-class value. We refer to our brand "Midget" Peas. This is a pea just one grade larger than Petit Pois, and is selected from what is the most tender peas in the entire pack. It can be retailed at ten cents at any point in Ontario where the freight rates are only ordinary. As a straight ten cent line we believe it the best value to the consumer of any pea we pack. We finished packing peas on the 30th July, and all through the pack the weather was perfect for packing peas, cool and moist, so that the raw material was kept in fine condition. Taking the pack as a whole, we have every reason to believe it is the finest in quality that we have ever packed.

The Growing Grain Crops.

LATEST reports on crop conditions in Ontario are as follows :—Essex and Kent—No crop. East Grey—Rust bad ; half a crop.

West Lambton—One-third of a crop.

Oxford—Half a crop ; testing 55 pounds.

Durham—The first few miles back from the lake the wheat has been killed out ; farther back there are prospects of a good crop of Fall wheat.

Perth—Half a crop, testing about 55 pounds.

Huron—Half a crop, testing about 50 to 56 pounds.

Lincoln and Welland—About one-third of a crop, testing from 52 to 58 pounds.

Ontario—Fall wheat about half a crop with considerable damage from rust. Barley and oats—Good crop. Spring wheat—Half a crop, badly damaged by rust.

In Nova Scotia the drouth which set in during July and lasted well into August has materially checked the growth of wheat, and present indications are that many counties will not give more than 60 or 70 per cent. of the average grain yield.

In Manitoba harvesting is about half over, and in several districts practically completed. Farmers report themselves as surprised at the unexpectedly large yield, and say the damage from rust is not nearly so great as they expected. No frost has been reported as yet from any source. If it comes, however, the worst that is now looked for is a crop equal to last year's. At present the wheat crop of Manitoba and the Territories is estimated at 58,000,000 bushels, or, an increase of 5,000,000 bushels over last year's.

Grain prospects in the Territories continue excellent. Some fields of wheat, barley and oats are still backward, but there is every indication of a good crop and a good sample. Very little, if any, damage is reported from frost or rust.

According to Bradstreet's special report on crop conditions in the United States corn has made good progress in Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas, but it is still green and needs dry weather, heat and a late Fall. Rains in the Northwest have retarded Spring wheat cutting and threshing, and rust damage is reported increased. The movement of Spring wheat to market is rather slow. Quality seems good. Winter wheat is moving heavily, as are also oats, supplies of which are mounting rapidly. Yields of crops other than wheat in the Northwest are excellent. From Spokane reports come of disappointing wheat yields in the Big Bend country, but of heavy yields in the Palouse region. The feeling is now that 550,000,000 bushels is the maximum possible yield.

The following summary of the prospects of the European wheat market is taken from the London Times. Very cheap wheat and flour will this season be out of the question owing to the more or less complete failure of the wheat crop in Austria-Hungary and Roumania, and the fact that France, Italy, Spain and Portugal will be under the necessity of importing breadstuffs in addition to the probability that the United States will have very little to export to Europe.

Dominion Millers Meet.

THE annual meeting of the Dominion Millers' Association, held in Toronto on September 1, was attended by seventy-five representative millers from all parts of the Province of Ontario. Naturally one of the topics discussed was the 1904 crop of Winter and Spring wheat, which the members present estimated at about one-third of the regular yield.

"Dollar wheat" was also discussed with much interest. President Hedley Shaw presided during the business session, in the absence of Mr. John Goldie, the retiring president.

The secretary, C. B. Watts, in his report, announced that he had corresponded with the British committee investigating preferential relations, and had strongly urged the admission of colonial flour on the same terms as colonial grain, pointing out that a discrimination against the flour would result in an increase in the price of breadstuffs to the consumer, as the milling capacity of the United Kingdom was not sufficient to grind the flour to supply their needs. Mr. Watts also pointed out that the milling industry in Great Britain already enjoyed a certain amount of protection in the lower freight rates on grain. The secretary also referred to the new inspection act doing away with the board of millers and grain dealers, which formerly met yearly to appoint the grain standards.

For the benefit of members who have joined the association recently a description of the central wheat buyers' duties was also given, and of the assistance that has been given the millers in buying their wheat at the lowest possible price. Mr. Watts stated that the car shortage during the Winter months of 1904 was even more pronounced than that of the previous year. Purchases were made for 110 millers who were members, and 23 millers who were non-members, and the total commissions earned were $4,042.67.

The discrimination in freight rates under which Ontario millers had suffered in shipping to eastern points was dealt with in another report, which also took up the question of export freight rates. Instead of securing the advantage of the shorter haul to the seaboard the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific companies were charging Canadian shippers higher rates than to their Michigan patrons. During the past two years, however, the railways were according Canadian mills more equitable treatment.

Prof. Day, of the Ontario College of Agriculture, delivered an interesting lecture on foodstuffs, after which there was a brief discussion. The secretary was instructed to insert in the next bulletin a standard scale for the buying and exchange of wheat.

The officers were elected as follows :—President, H. Shaw, Toronto ; first vice-president, George Goldie, Ayr ; second vice-president, S. W. Vogan, Walkerton ; treasurer, William Galbraith, Toronto ; secretary, C. B. Watts, Toronto ; executive committee, W. G. Bailey, Hamilton ; H. Barrett, Port Hope ; J. D. Flavelle, Lindsay ; J. I. A. Hunt, London ; M. McLaughlin, Toronto ; H. L. Rice, St. Mary's.

Canadian Foodstuffs for France.

IN his latest report on trade conditions existing in France, A. Poindron, commercial agent, says that despite the grain and food productive power of France, which has been raised the highest available mark in the present era of agricultural science, a steady yearly demand exists in France for hard wheat and corn imported for manufac-

—We had no quarrel with the grocery trade when they made the foregoing statement to us, when we solicited them to buy —the ready-for-serving cereal. We knew we had something distinctly superior in the matter of breakfast foods, but that wasn't enough. We started in to create the demand, with what success every grocer knows. Our premium plan, coupled with liberal newspaper advertising, has done the trick. We hope to have every grocer in Canada selling Orange Meat before very long. It will be a good thing for him when he begins its sale.

turing purposes, however heavily taxed it may be by the French custom's tariff.

The French soil does not grow the hard wheat necessary to make the various alimentary pastes such as macaroni, vermicelli and others which France uses in large quantities. A certain amount of hard wheat is imported every year to mix with the home grown wheat to steengthen the flour.

MUST STUDY THE FRENCH MARKET.

In order to increase their export trade to France, Canadians should pay steadier, keener and more direct attention to the French market in the matter especially of grain, wood, ores, mattes and minerals. In trying shipments of hard Manitoba or Ontario goose wheat, and of corn, which is always in demand in France for manufacturing purposes, the Canadian exporter, through direct connections, will place himself in a position to fill the demands of the French consumption whenever the French crop of any kind of grain proves short. In fact, it is rather seldom that the crops of all classes of grain are altogether plentiful all over the country, and as Canada and France grow the same grain, dealings would be easy when the chance occurs to have the occasional shortage of one grain or another filled with Canadian imported grain.

FRENCH GRAIN IMPORTS.

Despite a very large crop in 1903, France imported, during the first six months of 1904, a total of 280,000 tons weight, in round figures of wheat, oats, barley, rye and corn. This includes 91,000 tons of wheat in spite of the very large French wheat harvest in 1903. The figure for wheat imports during the corresponding six months of 1903, that is to say, after a good average crop in 1902, was 197,000 tons.

The 280,000 tons aggregate figure for the first six months of 1904 will, at least, be doubled for the total year 1904, turning in a total yearly import of, at least 550,000 to 600,000 tons weight of the five principal classes of grain. After the exceptional crop of 1903 and the fairly good one anticipated in 1904, such amount may be considered as a bare minimum; but in spite of this if the Canadian exporters of home-grown grain were suitably represented on the French grain exchanges, the large share they would secure out of such a minimum import would again be a substantial profit to them and to their country.

WOULD ENCOURAGE A DIRECT SERVICE.

On the other hand, an average yearly export of 20,000 to 25,000 tons of hard wheat or other Canadian grain of the five above classes, would supply the ballast cargo to 15 or 18 modern ships a year, and would be, by itself, a very strong contribution to the maintenance of direct steamship connections between Canada and France. But Canadian export possibilities to France in grain lines and agricultural products are not confined to wheat, oats, barley, rye and corn only.

BEANS.

Canadian statistics for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1903, show that 2,384 bushels of beans, valued at $3,080 have been exported to France. It will be easily seen that since Canada was able in quality and prices to supply 2,384 bushels of beans, through the very few connections now existing, her share in the French bean imports during the above year would have been much larger if a majority, at least, of the Canadian bean exporters had been in the French market through direct representatives.

PEAS.

Canadian statistics state that during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1903, 20,769 bushels of pease, valued at $44,078 have been exported to France.

The French requirements for Canadian pease, including pease for seeding purposes and consumption pease, are far larger. The demand is so good and so steady that two French firms have long ago undertaken to grow their seeding pease in Ontario, with a view of exporting them to France. The success obtained with seeding pease should show the way to the exporterI of pease for table use and otherwise for which a steady demand prevails in France, and of which Canada is one of the large exporting countries, the total amount of Canadian exports of pease in 1903 having been 1,144,754 bushels, valued at $1,052,743. There is accordingly a very big outlet at hand for Canadian pease.

CLOVER SEED.

According to the Canadian statistics for 1903, 73 bushels only of clover seed, valued at $597, have been exported to France.

The Canadian exports of clover seed would allow of a substantial development of the trade with France. The aggregate exports of Canadian genuine clover seed have been 113,496 bushels, valued at $839,459 during the fiscal year 1903.

GRASS SEEDS.

Canada has also an important foreign trade in grass seeds, the exports having been 65,324 bushels, valued at $75,464 during the fiscal year 1903. No shipment appears in the statistics as having been forwarded to France during the same period, despite French importers used to buy a certain quantity of such seeds in Canada.

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Canadian Opportunities in Australia.

IN his last report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, on trade conditions in Australia, D. H. Ross, Canadian commercial agent at Melbourne, reports as follows on the possibility of establishing a market for Canadian plug and cut tobaccos:

CANADIAN PLUG TOBACCO.

Despite the efforts of the Australian tobacco combine, there is undoubtedly a fine market in Australia for the better class of plug tobacco. Samples of the quality for which there is a big demand were forwarded recently to a Canadian tobacco manufacturing company, who undertook to supply a similar article at a suitable price with the result that an order was placed for a trial shipment. This first shipment of Canadian plug tobacco arrived at Melbourne but unfortunately it proved quite unsuitable for Australian requirements. Importers have decided not to place the line on the market for the reason that it would damage the reputation of the business they are anxious to build up.

The importers are deeply disappointed at the result, as they had made contracts for advertising to the extent of over $200 a month, and they had otherwise arranged to "push" the sale of this Canadian plug tobacco to the utmost extent. Much invaluable time will thus be lost, under any circumstances, before this business can be placed upon a proper footing.

This incident is regrettable in the extreme, for had the shipment been placed upon the market it would have permanently injured the manufacturers' chances of securing further business in Australia, besides reflecting upon other Canadian makers who may be disposed to supply exactly what is required.

CANADIAN CUT TOBACCO.

One of the principal retail tobacconists in Melbourne is giving Canada a splendid advertisement by a handsome window display of cut tobacco. An increasing trade will result if the requirements of the trade are studied, although the importation of cut tobacco is very limited in comparison with that of plug tobacco.

Tin Boxes for Cigars.

One of the most recent inventions is a tin box for packing cigars, to take the place of wooden boxes, which for decades have housed the whole gamut of smoke-producers, from the stogie to the most expensive domestic or imported article.

In appearance the new box resembles the wooden cigar box very closely, the label which completely envelopes the box being lithographed to resemble the cedar box used in packing the best goods. For the tin cigar box it is claimed that it will keep a cigar fresher than its wooden predecessor. It is not a hermetically sealed affair, as no solder is used in its construction. Put together in this way, sufficient air is admitted to prevent the cigar from sweating; which would occur if the box were sealed.

U. S. Tobacco Crop.

In its weekly summary of crop conditions in the United States, the Weather Bureau states that in the middle Atlantic States of New England tobacco has made favorable progress, cutting being well advanced. The yield of the Connecticut tobacco crop will be phenomenally large, and the quality the best in years. While the crop has been shortened by drought in the Ohio Valley late rains have improved the outlook in that locality. Tobacco is making good growth in Wisconsin and will be about two weeks late.

Consumption of Foreign Leaf in U. S.

THE statistics of importations of foreign leaf to the United States during the fiscal year 1903-04 recently published by the Treasury Department show that the importation of foreign leaf suitable for wrapper purposes was 7,387,390 lbs., the largest on record with the single exception of the McKinley year. With the quantity of wrapper left in bond on June 30, 1903, which amounted to 5,548,883 lbs., the total number of pounds of wrapper leaf for consumption in 1903-04 was 12,936,273. From this total, however, must be deducted (1) 1,196,607 pounds which were exported, and (2) 6,110,102 pounds which remained in bond on June 30 last, which leaves the quantity of 5,729,564 pounds as the amount which was withdrawn during the year for domestic consumption. And as all of this with the exception of but a quarter million pounds was imported from the Netherlands, the consumption of Sumatra during the past fiscal year was very nearly 34,000 bales, an increase of 10,000 bales since 1898.

Of all other, that is filler leaf, was imported during the last fiscal year 23,775,246 pounds, or four millions pounds less than during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1903, while of wrapper leaf the imports during the last fiscal year were by a million pounds larger than during the preceding year. On June 30, 1903, the stock of filler leaf in bond amounted to 18,580,477 pounds which gives a total for the year of 42,355,723 pounds. Of this total 4,329,228 pounds were exported and 16,694,598 pounds remained in bond on June 30, 1904, so that 21,331,897 pounds were withdrawn for consumption. As all of this total with the exception of a million and a quarter was imported from Cuba the consumption of Cuba filler leaf in the United States for the past fiscal year amounted to about 180,000 bales, the bale figured at a hundred pounds.

The Tobacco Trade in Belgium.

The people of Belgium are heavy consumers of tobacco, their consumption being 4.86 pounds per capita, as against 4.40 pounds in the United States, 2.55 pounds in France and 1.71 pounds in England. The United States is the chief source of supply of the tobacco, which is imported mainly in its unmanufactured state.

gium. According to the most recent statistics East Flanders had 12,830,214 plants under cultivation, being 10,805 plants per acre. The number of plants is reported as increasing annually. In 1895 the total yield of tobacco grown in Belgium was 5,166 tons. The domestic tobacco is largely manufactured at Ghent, and is of inferior quality.

Antwerp has 43 tobacco factories of various kinds, and over 300 shops in which tobacco, cigars and cigarettes are sold. In Antwerp, as elsewhere in Belgium, long pipes are more commonly smoked than cigars. There is considerable demand for chewing and snuff tobacco. Leaf tobacco is imported from the United States—mostly from Kentucky and Virginia—South America, Sumatra, Java, Turkey, Greece, China and Algeria.

The importation of Mexican tobacco began to assume importance in 1895, when several companies which had been founded in Antwerp for the purpose of cultivating tobacco in Mexico were making Antwerp an important market.

Tobacco Growing in Rhodesia.

THE following interesting information on the cultivation of tobacco in Rhodesia has been received from a South African correspondent:

With a view to creating an industry in the manufacture of a good class of tobacco, for which there is sure to be a large demand in South Africa, every effort is being made in Rhodesia to induce the farmers to take a keen interest in tobacco cultivation, which has so far proved most successful. The best kinds of seed are provided, prizes for competition are offered, and the services and advice of the Government tobacco expert are placed at the disposal of the farmers. Not only in the country itself is the industry being stimulated, but in England also steps are being taken with a view to securing a market for Rhodesian tobacco as soon as the farmers are able to send it to the factories in sufficiently large quantities. Earl Grey, who is greatly interested in establishing trade between Rhodesia and the mother country, is devoting special attention to this branch of the future export trade of Rhodesia. He has recently been visiting the tobacco factory of the Co-operative Wholesale Society at Manchester, where he exhibited samples of Rhodesian tobacco and obtained information from the manager as to the best leaf for the British market. The Co-operative Wholesale Society has promised its assistance in the enterprise as soon as packing for importation is begun.

Doctor Sketchley, who is working a series of experiments in tobacco growing at the Stapleford plantation, near Salisbury, holds very decided views, says the Salisbury Times, about the necessity of alternating crops in due course, if the fertility of the land and the quality and size of the plants is to be preserved. He specially favors the use of imported seed when the right varieties have been ascertained by actual experiment. He considers that to cultivate from seed raised in Rhodesia is a mistake and will only lead to the degeneration of the plant. He argues that the best tobacco seed is the product of many years of careful culture in localities where particular kinds are indigenous. These kinds may do well in other countries, but their characteristics are likely to deteriorate with each succeeding crop raised from locally grown seed. Doctor Sketchley believes that after being under tobacco for a year the land should be allowed either to lie fallow for a couple of years or a green crop should be raised on it. Doctor Sketchley also stated that another farm had been secured, about 3 miles distant from Stapleford, being the old Rhodesia Lime Syndicate's property. A lease has been obtained of 3,000 acres, and extensive planting and irrigation is intended on this ground next season, the Mazoe River and Chingyika and St. Gerera creeks all being available for irrigation by gravitation. Tobacco and cigars from Stapleford are expected to be on the local market for sale in a couple of months.

Tobacco Salaries.

Before the American Revolution, ministers of the Angelican church in those American colonies where that church was established by law were remunerated "in kind" instead of in money. Maryland gave an incumbent forty pounds of tobacco a year for every tithe payer in the parish, whether churchman or dissenter, white or colored. These terms were handsome enough to secure the pick of the clerical market. In Virginia the stipends represented a fixed and unvarying quantity, by weight, of the manufactured leaf. These stipes were rather beggarly in quantity. In a bad year even the "sweet scented parishes," where the minister's salary was calculated on a high priced and exceptionally fragrant tobacco, yielded only about $500 a year. The parishioners sometimes refused to induct a clergyman unless he would consent to take one salary for serving two parishes. In 1758, when the price of tobacco had greatly risen, the house of burgesses passed a law fixing the cash equivalent of debt payable in tobacco at one-third their true value, thus wiping out two-thirds of the incomes of ministers. Patrick Henry made his first fame in defending this law when a test case was brought in behalf of the injured clergymen.

Tobacco Notes.

Professor Harper, of Lexington, Ky., has accepted an offer of the British Government to instruct classes in the educational institutions of Ireland in the culture of tobacco.

The American Tobacco Trust has again struck out in Philadelphia through the American Tobacco Co., cutting off all supplies from three of the most extensive jobbers and serving notice upon the others to the effect that no more goods will be furnished them unless they cease handling the output of independent factories forthwith.

J. S. Larke, Canadian commercial agent at Sydney, N.S.W., Australia, reports that two Canadian companies have good representatives there. One has already secured a trade and the other should do so. The one obstacle in the way is an intimation that the Governments of Australia and New Zealand may take the tobacco business into their own hands and transform it into a public monopoly. No steps, however, have been taken in this direction as yet.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Kirkwood specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

John C. Kirkwood,
TORONTO.

The Grocer's Newspaper Advertising.

ADVERTISING one's store is not confined to the announcement in the daily newspaper—one's windows, counters, shelves, delivery wagon, all have their part in proclaiming the grocer's wares. Good advertising consists in having all these several forms of attention-compelling, favor-producing advertising the best possible.

It is the newspaper statements, however, that are most eloquent, for they talk to the largest audience, and make the most abiding impression. The grocer has a better opportunity in the daily or weekly newspaper to promote his business than can be found elsewhere.

What shall the grocer talk about in his newspaper advertisement? Talk those things that are being talked over the counter, that interest the proprietor, the customer, the salesman. Talk those things that the grocer wants his customers and others to know about his store. Make the public believe what the grocer believes. It is wonderful how much one can find to talk about when on the search for news.

For example, the grocer sells, we shall say, fancy biscuits. He believes enthusiastically in the lines he sells. He can say:

Lemon Bars

2 lbs. - - 25c.

Crisp and dainty Lemon Bars made from only the choicest materials.

Perhaps it is his coffee trade that he is proud of. He calls his pet blend "Premier." Of it he can say:

Our 40 cent Premier Blend Coffee

Coffee connoisseurs use it regularly and prefer it to any other kind. The reason is that "PREMIER BLEND" represents a higher type of genuine Java and Mocha Coffees than any other Coffee we know of.

Then, again, in grinding, the inner chaff of the coffee is removed. This is why "PREMIER BLEND" is sold only ground.

In ordering please state whether you wish it ground coarse, ground fine, or pulverized.

Or again, teas may be the grocer's hobby. He might say:

Our 40c. Perfect Blend Tea . . .

This is one of our popular-priced teas.

And it's equally popular in flavor.

It is a blend of the highest grade Foochow Oolong and true Moyune Young Hyson.

It is free from the "rosy" character of Formosa and Ceylon.

It belongs to the old school of standard teas, which has stood the test for many years.

Worth more money than 40c. But we have priced it 40c., and it is your gain.

Perhaps preserved fruits is a specialty. Here is a suggestion:

Preserved Pineapple

The unusually fine quality of the fruit used has enabled the canner to make this season's preserves more delicious than ever.

May we send you a winter's supply?

In glass jars:

lbs.	Pints,	Quarts,
20c.	25c.	40c.

SWEET BRIAR PRUNES.

Those delicious sweet briar prunes! Finest flavor; thin skin; a meaty and tender fruit that one never tires of.

2 lbs., - - 25c.
5 lb. box - - 60c.

And so on, throughout the fifty and one other things constituting a grocery stock. It is taking one thing at a time and letting the mind regard it as a line that can be intelligently and profitably exploited in the columns of the newspaper. It would not be a bad plan to have short, snappy, readable, convincing advertisements such as those suggested scattered through the newspaper. They would get the attention, be read, leave an impression, and probably persuade to the purchasing point. One thing is sure—namely, that if a grocer, in a fair-sized town "keeps everlastingly at it" with little advertisements such as these, and backs them by having the things he advertises as good as his advertisement, he will swell the volume of his business. Such short crisp, readable announcements are better than noisy bargain lists. It will be noticed, too, that in the things named, the grocer can get his price, maintain his price and not provoke his competitor to cut prices.

When an Apple Drops

from a tree it always falls faster the last second than it does the first—and the farther it falls the more speed it acquires and the harder it hits the ground.

And the longer your ad runs in THE CANADIAN GROCER the more force it acquires and the harder it hits.

In these days of keen competition it is usually necessary to hit hard to make an impression.

Which means that you must often keep your ad running a long time before it "hits" some readers.

Every ad that appears in these columns has the force of all previous ads behind it—and with each consecutive insertion YOUR ad hits harder.

The first time your ad appears it does not do as much good as the second time—and the second time it is not so effective as the third time.

"Appearances" count for a great deal in advertising.

ONE of the principal objects of the canners' amalgamation was to reduce the cost of production to the lowest possible point, and at the same time improve the quality to the highest standard.

Sugar, Labels, Cases, Solder and Labor are considerably higher this season than in 1903. Notwithstanding this, our opening prices, so far as made, are lower than last season.

We tell it over again

Why are our Canned Fruits and Vegetables better than those packed by other people?

First: We are in the heart of what is admittedly the choicest fruit and vegetable section in all Canada—the County of Prince Edward, Ontario.

Second: We have unquestionably the finest, the most modern, the best equipped canning factory in America.

Third: We have in our service, as head processman, one who bears the name in the United States as being the best in the business.

Fourth: Our principals are practical men, known far and wide, trusted equally—men who cannot afford to produce anything but the very highest quality of canned fruits and vegetables.

Such, in brief, are the reasons why

Carl Bender's First Order—A Sketch

(Written Specially for The Canadian Grocer by Hec Secord.)

THE Orillia House, as all the boys know, is one of the most frequented and popular hostelries on the line of the Northern Division of the Grand Trunk. Orillia is also well known as the Monday morning Mecca of a host of grip-men from Toronto and Hamilton, to say nothing of the hearty-handicapped clothing, dry goods and boot and shoe drummers with their heavy and unwieldy trunks, and it naturally follows that there is quite a hustle among the drummers to get the drop on each other for business. No sooner has the train discharged its lively cargo, no sooner is the 'bus driver in charge of the boys' trunk checks and grips thrown on top of the conveyances, assisted materially by the hands of the travelers and gentle admonitions to "get a move on there, Mike," "Don't wait for Joe, he's always behind like a cow's tail," or "for Heaven's sake, Mike, are the horses anchored?" than every face indicates readiness for the strenuous life.

At last Mike gets the horses touched up and the jolting 'bus lumbers up through the town. As it passes the post-office the mail bags are thrown out, while one or two of the boys disappear to "drop in" on a possible customer with a smile and friendly handshake, and a hint that "he'll be round after dinner."

The Orillia House, situated on the Main street ,has for more years than the writer's knowledge goes, enjoyed the reputation of "bang up" meals and accommodation. Its proprietors have always had the comfort and convenience of the boys constantly in mind, with the natural result that it secures a large share of patronage. Everybody is made thoroughly at home and treated alike, as should be the case with all hostleries —and would with more did their landlords reflect upon the value of the travelers' opinions and spreading influence. The millennium, however, is not yet, and there are still many inn-keepers who do not simultaneously improve their premises to modern requirements and their financial prosperity. The traveler is a power in the land; his constantly moving business throws him into contact with the public in such a manner that he can, answering inquiries of strangers ,either send or keep a man from patronizing specific hotels. A few words of faint praise, or a shrug of the shoulders, will often make or mar a reputation.

This digression concludes the preamble to an experience of a certain grocery traveler with one of the merchants of Orillia years ago. Maybe the salesmen who have covered the northern ground will recall the characters portrayed, also possibly bring to mind experiences with the same irascible individual. Orillian merchants, as well as the citizens of the town and county near by, will remember the late Mr. Tom—— well, we'll call him Mulvaney. Mr. Mulvaney had conducted a general store business in the town for more than thirty years and being a hard-working and thrifty man, and an Irishman at that, he had prospered in worldly goods and in local influence and notoriety. At the time of the incident related here, he had built himself a large and substantial brick store not far from the hotel across the way, and installed a stock modern and complete in every particular. His clerks were bright and hustling young men and women, and Mr. Mulvaney was "it," not only in his own opinion, but as he thought in the opinion of his townsmen. At the back of the store was the office, occupied by the lady bookkeeper, and Mr. Mulvaney, when he wasn't strutting around looking after the help.

Mulvaney was what might be termed a "squat" man, about five feet two and built like Falstaff—a weighty man in every sense of the word. Though he had lived in Canada from his youth, he had retained to a considerable extent two of his countrymen's most irradicable national characteristics, a thoroughly Irish face and a decided Irish brogue. Being a self-made man, he was strongly self-opinionated; his dollar was (in his mind) worth one dollar and ten cents, or more, and in the management of his business he brooked no contradiction or advice.

Among his numerous clerks some few years before this, was a young Irish-Canadian, Joe Delaney, a bright, pushing, active and promising young man, possessed of a ready Irish wit and repartee. Ever ready with his tongue and a good salesman to boot, Joe had, after a few years' service, established himself in a prominent position in Mulvaney's store, until one evil day he grievously offended his employer. Within an extraordinary brief period he found it convenient to secure a position on the road for a Toronto wholesale grocery house. Probably some of the boys will recall Joe, in fact, all of them should, as he still is a power in the North country and a salesman to boot. Joe's greatest failing was a tendency to pomposity and self-importance, acquired no doubt during his service with his compatriot Mulvaney. As a methodical, painstaking and intelligent traveler, however, there are few in the trade who have ever surpassed him. That he was liked by the boys is a question, it was no doubt due to his self-assertiveness and push that he forged to the front. He was not one who hid his light under a bushel; he "let it shine before men" at every opportunity, even if he had to swing the lantern around himself.

Being well known in Orillia he naturally secured a good share of his old fellow-townsmen's trade, with the exception, of course, of his former employer Mulvaney.

Joe fell a victim to la grippe, and as it was a serious case and likely to be a protracted one, his house considered it unwise to leave the ground uncovered and sent out one of their young sample-room men to keep up the connection. It is with this young man's encounter with Mulvaney of Orillia that this tale has to do.

Carl Bender, as his name indicates, was of German extraction, having come to Canada from the Fatherland with his parents at an early age. He was a young man about twenty-five, and had worked his way up from office boy to second assistant in the sample-room. He was keen to get on the road, the commercial instincts of his nation showing him brighter prospects and larger scope for his abilities in the outside field. He was a good talker, quick and ready with either wit or satire, and withal full of tact and judgment of human nature. This was Carl's chance, and when the boss told him to go up to Delaney's house and get posted on the route, list of customers, etc., he was more than delighted. Unfortunately when he got to Delaney's, that individual was in such a bad condition that the nurse forbade much conversation. However, getting a list of customers in each town, Joe's sample case and a few hints from Joe as to route, trains, etc., Carl had to make the best of what he had gathered.

On Monday morning the 7.45 northern train carried, among the many knights on board, young Bender. Of course a new face is readily spotted by the old hands, and Carl came in for a goodly share of direct criticism and comment, with the usual amount of banter and advice,—the latter of doubtful value, as the boys like a joke at all times. Arriving at Allandale, the usual Hamilton contingent got on board, and while a few dropped off at Barrie, the majority went on to Orillia, Carl among the number. As it was his maiden trip Carl concluded on his arrival at Orillia to follow the rest of the boys, and in consequence was landed at the Orillia House. He had observed by the sample cases, as well as from the conversation of the boys on the train, that there were about nine grocery travelers looking for business in town that morning, among them such old veterans as Charley Kyle, Bob Gowanlock, and Bob Keyes, from Toronto, while the loquacious Mike Malone and Bob Stewart held up their end for the "Ambitious City" trade. Poor Bender's heart almost sank into his boots when he contemplated what he was up against as a newcomer trying to get business from such a host of veterans. He did not lose heart, however, and resolved to get right out and look the ground over before dinner.

Now it happened that the first promising looking store near the hotel was Mulvaney's. It may be mentioned here that while Mulvaney's name was on his list of customers nothing had been said to him about the row Delaney had had nor that Mulvaney had not bought a dollar's worth of goods from Carl's house for nearly fifteen years because of a little trouble about an unsettled claim of leakage in some puncheons of molasses bought by Mulvaney and not allowed by Carl's firm. This molasses matter was a thorn in Mulvaney's side. He swore long and loudly and vowed to get even with the house or its representative some time, "be jabers, if it takes me twinty years !"

All innocent, unsuspecting, and keen and bright, with a pleasant smile on his face, Carl entered the store, inquiring of one of the clerks if Mr. Mulvaney was in. The clerk pointed to the rear of the building where a gentleman and lady were sitting in the office. Approaching, Carl poiitely touched his hat and said :

"Is Mr. Mulvaney in ?"

"Yis, sorr," answered the little fat man in the first chair ; "Oi'm Misther Mulvaney, fwhat is it yez want ?" at the same time coming down the steps and approaching Carl.

Carl took his firm's card out of his pocket and handed it to Mulvaney, at the same time saying, "Good morning, sir ; my name's Bender ; I represent (mentioning his house), of Toronto, and I called to see if you are open for anything in the grocery line this——"

He didn't get any further, for with a jump and an oath, Mulvaney had him by the collar and turned him round towards the door.

"Yez riprisint ——, do yez ? You're a foine young man to be riprisintin' a lot of thavin' rogues ;—git out o' here, or I'll break ivery bone in your body."

Carl did not like this reception, particularly as the lady bookkeeper and the clerks were laughing at his discomfiture. Representing, as he knew, an honorable firm, and not being used to treatment of this sort, his Teutonic temper got the better of him, thinking to himself at the same time "if I can't do any business with the cuss, I'll hand him one anyway," he threw Mulvaney's hand off his coat and let out a quick, short body blow, taking the fat one in the wind, and bringing him to a standstill. "Take your hands off me, you miserable little tub, and listen a minute to what I've got to say. Now look here, Mishter Mulvaney (putting on as strong an Irish intonation as he could, in mockery), I represent one of the best houses in the trade ; this is my first trip on the road, and you are the first merchant I've called on. If there is anything you want in the grocery line, say so ; if not, say so, too ; but keep your hands off me. If you don't deal with our house, or there is any trouble between you, I didn't know it. I came here like a gentleman expecting to be received by a gentleman as a gentleman ;—if I am mistaken in thinking you one, I beg your pardon, and wish you good morning, sir."

With that Carl turned round, raised his hat to the lady bookkeeper, at the same time winking at her, and started for the door. This sudden change of Carl's, and the sharp quick lecture he had received evidently struck Mulvaney and touched something in his composition that must have appealed to him, for he started after Carl.

"Oi say, young man, shtop a minute, will yez, come back here, come back, sorr."

"No, sir ; I'll not come back," said Carl, "for if I do there'll be trouble. You don't want anything, I can see that, and I am not going to stand abuse from you or any other man in Orillia."

"Now, now, come back young man ; I want to talk to yez," said Mulvaney.

"Well, I don't want to talk to you," answered Carl, somewhat mollified; but like a wise salesman he felt that possibly an explanation might be useful as an experience, so he turned back and faced Mulvaney.

"Well, sir; what is it?"

"Fwhat's your name, sorr?"

"It's on the card,—my name's Bender."

"Are yez Irish?"

"Well, now, do you suppose after I've seen an Irishman act like you have, Mr. Mulvaney, that I'd own to being one. No sir; I'm Dutch"—with a strong emphasis on the Dutch.

This remark evidently tickled Mulvaney, for he smiled and said:

"An' yer Dutch, are yez, now,—I wouldn't have thought it, for be all that's howly, ye flew up loike an Irishman. Where's that rashcal Delaney? Isn't he thraveler for yer house innymore?"

"Mr. Delaney is, I am sorry to say, laid up with the grippe, and pretty sick at that, and I'm taking his ground until he's able to get out again."

"May the divil take him—"

"I hope not, sir, for I'm sure if he does I'll have to take his ground, and judging by my first experience with you, Mr. Mulvaney, I don't think I can hold the job down for long. Now tell me, what's the trouble anyway, though I feel that you and I won't do any business together?"

"An' who says we won't? Oi'm thinkin' Oi'm the boss; an' look here Oi loike the Dutch—an' yer Dutch, are yez, now—well the Dutch are great people"—this latter with strongly assertive nods of his head. "Oi always thought a lot of the Dutch,—an' yer Dutch?"

This repetition of the fact of Carl's nationality seemed to highly amuse Mulvaney, but Carl couldn't see any business prospects, so thinking to cut matters short, he said:

"Well, Mr. Mulvaney, no use taking up your time and mine to no good purpose, besides I'm hungry, so good morning, sir. Glad to have met you," at the same time holding out his hand, which Mulvaney grasped in his fat, pudgy fist.

Holding on to Carl's hand Mulvaney turned round to his bookkeeper. "Is there anything on our lisht to-day, Miss Crawley ?"

While Miss Crawley was taking the want list off the hook, Mulvaney harangued Carl about his house having "chated him many years ago on tin puncheons of molasses, the thavin' rogues, sorr, and divil a cint could Oi get out o' the rashcals. Oi took the case to coort and losht it ; yer house, sorr, are a lot of thaves, an' that Delaney is'nt a bit betther,—used to worrk for me and he takes divilish good care not to call on me, sorr ; but, young man, Oi like your looks, and, bedad, yer foine tongue, for be jabers, Oi'm thinkin' there musht be some good Oirish stuff in yez—Oi don't mane Cruishkeen Lawn aither, and Oi'll give yez an order. Miss Crawley, pwhat do we be wantin' ?"

"There are a few things on the list, Mr. Mulvaney," replied Miss Crawley, handing him the slip, at the same time casting a sly look at Carl, who winked again, this time more emphatically.

Mulvaney said, "Well, Misther Binder, you go on an' get your dinner, an' come back this afthernoon about three an' Oi'll give yez a little encouragement."

This, however, did not suit Carl, knowing that the town was full of competitors in his line, so he said :

"If it's all the same to you, Mr. Mulvaney, I'll run over and get my grip and take the order now, as there are too many travelers in town, and you might forget me ; you know the old saying 'a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.' "

"Begobs, yez are Dutch——"

With that Carl ran across the way, got his sample case, and was back in three minutes. Inside of twenty more he had a fine order booked, the first in fifteen years for his house.

Besides having made a friend of Mulvaney and secured a good order, he felt encouraged, and after dinner made the rounds of the trade, securing no less than five additional orders. On his arrival at the hotel shortly after six he was much bantered by the boys for the reception he got from Mulvaney, the clerks in that gentleman's store having related the proceedings, with all the embellishments they were capable of, but Carl could afford to smile and bear the chaff as his order book contained a satisfactory solace. Mulvaney had told him on parting to "call agin, young man, but don't sind that rashcal Delaney."

On his return to the city at the end of the week he received high praise from his principals and a satisfactory monetary consideration for having brought back, "at the risk of his life," as his senior expressed it, such a good and valuable lost sheep as Tom Mulvaney of Orillia.

PRESIDENT OF THE BRADSTREET CO. DEAD.

Mr. C. F. Clark, president of the Bradstreet Co., is dead. Mr. Clark was born in Preble, Cortland Co., N.Y., in 1836. For a time he published a Detroit city directory, and was associated with C. Schurz in the publication of The Detroit Post. He found his life work, however, in the development of Bradstreet's Mercantile Agency, being successively superintendent of the Detroit, Philadelphia and Boston offices, and general manager with headquarters in New York. The business was incorporated in 1876 as The Bradstreet Co., Mr. Clark becoming secretary and later being elected to the presidency. He was also vice-president of the Washington Trust Co., a director of the American Cotton Oil Co., Niagara, and a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce.

The assets of S. Viner, general merchant, Rimouski, were advertised to be sold on September 15.

Explain to Your Customers Why the Japs are so successful.

You will be healthier if you eat dried fish like the Japanese.

Have you noticed that the leading medical authorities are drawing attention to the fact that the food of the fighting Japs consists largely of dried fish and connect their success to a large extent with this fact.

It may seem strange to the average reader that this diet should have so much to do with success.

But it is a fact that dried fish is both a wholesome and nutritious diet, and especially valuable as a brain food.

The moral of this is that it would do Canadians good to eat less meat and more of "Halifax" and "Acadia" Brands of Prepared Codfish—the nicest form of dried fish on the market.

CANADIAN TRADE WITH THE ANTIPODES.

MR. G. J. MILLER, representing Gollin & Co. Proprietary, Limited, of Australia and New Zealand, has been in Canada and the United States during the past few weeks in the interest of his firm, who are one of the largest commission firms in the antipodes, having offices and warerooms in Melbourne, Sydney, Adelaide, Wellington, and sub-agents and representatives in every large town in Australia and New Zealand. The Gollin Co. are dealers in almost every line of merchandise, and realizing that there are great possibilities for Canadian manufactured products in Australia and New Zealand, have deputed their Mr. Miller to visit this country and form additional connections to those which they already possess.

Mr. Miller, who has visited Montreal and Toronto, is confident that our possibilities for trade in his part of the world are excellent, provided Canadians will only reach out after it. As every one knows, the United States have obtained a strong foothold there, but with the preferential tariff Canada has been given an enormous advantage over that country and Germany.

"Take," he said, "for example the one item of canned fish. The customs duty on these goods from United States is now 6c, and but 4c on Canadian goods. Already to my knowledge this has caused a large trade to be turned in the direction of Canada."

In his pocketbook Mr. Miller carried a list of articles on which the preference is given. Following is a list of goods, with the preference allowed on each, according to the new tariff law of New Zealand :

Article.	Rates on British Goods.	Rates on Foreign Goods.

The free list includes empty bottles of plain glass, not cut or ground except at the neck and stopper; jars with the mouths up to 3 inches in diameter; antique glass in sheets for ornamental window making; glass for making railway lanterns and hand lamps; lenses for magic lanterns, microscopes, and ship's side lights; and glass roofing tiles.

Gollin & Co. specialize the different branches of their trade, that is, an expert is placed in charge of each. This is naturally a great advantage to those who do business with them. They have in all a staff of 150 salesmen, who cover Australia and New Zealand from one end to the other.

Mr. Miller informed The Grocer that his firm would be glad to supply information to any one writing in regard to trade matters in the antipodes.

"Canadians," he said, "do not realize that there is in Australia and New Zealand trade for them. Our consuming power is enormous, and it would pay them to reach out after our trade. I find that at present the Canadian manufacturers are all very busy supplying the home market, and have, consequently, very little desire to reach after the export trade, but I certainly think that they should make an effort to increase their business with our part of the world. New Zealand, as you know, gives a preference, and I feel certain that Australia will eventually do the same. As far as New Zealand is concerned, I believe the preference will be ultimately increased."

Mr. Miller left for the coast on September 13, en route home.

Rush for Salmon in England.

It is learned from Liverpool that the news of the short salmon pack on the Pacific coast has caused considerable excitement in the English market and simultaneously a rush of orders from the country which is characterized as one of the most extraordinary ever experienced. The demand was principally from the hand to mouth character, but orders were so numerous as to absorb the available stock and encroach upon the spot stocks that are being held for next year's use.

A report by mail goes on to say: "The shipments of 1904 pack, due next year, will probably be the lightest on record. The U. S. packers are reported to have sold their first pack in advance to Canada and Australia, to an unusual extent owing to pessimistic reports of the English market circulated some months ago. The first pack which ought to come to England will go elsewhere and thus the shortage in the pack fall mainly on this country."

The Price of Cohoes.

THE agreement among the salmon canners with respect to the price to be paid in British Columbia waters for cohoes has apparently been knocked out through the alleged action of certain of the canners in breaking the terms of the understanding, says the Vancouver Province.

A few days ago the Fraser River Canners' Association held a meeting at which it was decided that on the Fraser River the price of cohoes should be twelve cents and that for fish taken outside the river, but ten cents should be paid, the latter price being made on account of the cost of transporting outside-taken fish to the canneries on the river.

All went well for a few days and contentment reigned among the canners. Then it became rumored that some of the canners were paying higher prices for cohoes than those agreed upon. As a result of a little investigation some of the canners came to the conclusion that there was truth in the report. This meant that the agreement stood for nothing, and it was a case of each man shifting for himself and securing as many cohoes as he could at any price he might wish to pay.

It is a matter of rumor that fifteen cents has been paid for cohoes on the Fraser. It is true that the fish have not yet appeared in any number, and the season does not really open until September, but the fact remains that the harmony of the canners with respect to the price agreement has been rudely disturbed. It is asserted that some of the canners were not consulted when the agreement was reached, and for that reason it is possible that all canners do not consider themselves bound by it.

It is likely that an attempt will be made to bring about an understanding among all the canners within the next week or so, for should the cohoe season arrive without an agreement, there will be a general scramble for fish, and there is no telling how high the price might go.

It is feared that the break in the price on the Fraser and contiguous waters will extend to northern British Columbia cannery points, and it is even considered possible that the price of humpbacks may take an upward turn as a result of the trouble. Humpbacks have lately been selling at a cent apiece, and a great many have been taken.

The Story of Fish Traps in Canada.

The Hon. R. Prefontaine, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Ottawa, tells how the Dominion Government came to change front on the question of fish traps, the granting of which promises to revolutionize the salmon canning industry in British Columbia.

It was the self-complacency of an American canner that really lost for the American canners the advantage of monopoly in trap fishing. It was shortly before Hon. Mr. Prefontaine's call to the Cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and he was as a private citizen making a Summer trip to the Alaskan wonderland and the Klondike. When a call was made at an Alaskan salmon port he heard an enthusiastic Seattleite exultantly commenting on how the Americans, with the use of traps, had the Canadian salmon packers hopelessly beaten in the race for business. Four months later, when he became Minister, he was prepared to give the subject his broadest consideration with a view to the allowance of traps on this side of the line.

B. C. Salmon for Australia.

It is satisfactory to note that, through the efforts of a Melbourne business man, who recently visited British Columbia, considerable sales have recently been made, in Australia, of the new season's pack of Canadian canned salmon. Hitherto this business has been almost entirely in the hands of San Francisco exporters, but now that Canadian interests have exceedingly capable representation in Australia a considerably increased business can, with confidence, be looked for.

Northern Salmon Pack Moving.

The salmon pack along the Northern British Columbia coast has now commenced to move in quantity, and every steamer coming from the northern cannery ports for the next month will be heavily laden with cased salmon. Much of the salmon from the Northern British Columbia coast will be held in Vancouver for shipment to the United Kingdom, but it is reported that a large proportion of the pack of the Finlay, Durham & Brodie canneries is to be sent overland to the east via the C.P.R.

Fish Notes.

The new Dominion Government fisheries protection cruiser, Vigilant, built for use on Lakes Erie and Huron, was launched on September 10. The cost of the Vigilant with complete outfit and armament is about $150,000.

An official order has been issued from Ottawa, authorizing an extension of lobster fishing in the Magdalen Islands for 30 days, commencing on September 9 and ending on October 8. This action is taken in view of the small pack at the Magdalen Islands during the present season.

The catch of herring off the coast of Nova Scotia has been very small and Mr. Cowie, the Scotch expert, who is demonstrating at Canso the Scottish method of curing and packing herring, is finding some difficulty in procuring an adequate supply. It has been decided, however, to continue the demonstration for another month.

Canada vs. Danish Bacon.

THE best Danish authorities agree in placing the cost of production of bacon at 6c per pound, live weight, and at the present time farmers are receiving a little over 6 1-4 cents per lb. live weight for their hogs. A number of recently constructed factories in Denmark have failed, and others are running at a loss, not being able to obtain enough hogs to make the business profitable. When these two facts are considered together, the reasonable inference is that as soon as the price of hogs drops to the neighborhood of six cents per pound, the Danish farmer curtails his operations, and fewer hogs are fed for market; and that unless a cheaper method of feeding is discovered, the Danes are not likely to increase their exports of bacon.

In other words, it looks very much as though the Danes had very nearly reached their limit in the production of bacon, for the present at least. Canadian farmers can make money at six cents per pound for their hogs, and it is right here where they score a very important advantage over the Danes. Against the advantages of uniformity, abundance of creamery by-products (skim-milk and buttermilk), and closeness to market, Canada has the great advantage of cheaper foods.—Prof. G. E. Day, in September 1st Farmer's Advocate.

Quality of Butter Depreciated.

THE high reputation of Eastern Townships butter was brought into question by one of the judges at the Eastern Townships Exposition at Sherbrooke last week. This is in distinct contrast to the fact that Mr. Boucher of St. Hyacinthe has just won first prize for butter at the Toronto Fair in competition with all Canada.

The criticism by Mr. A. J. Brice, one of the largest export dealers in butter in Montreal, which was read at the last meeting of the Sherbrooke Dairymen's Association, is as follows:

"I desire to call the attention of your association to my impressions after examining the butter on exhibition at your fair. I found the quality of the creamery butter very disappointing, and it appears to me that we are retrograding in our make, so far as quality is concerned, and it is therefore, of the utmost importance that investigation should be made to discover the reasons and bring up this product to a higher degree of proficiency, otherwise we will lose our prestige in the English market. I believe the method, which is apparently growing, principally in the Eastern Townships of gathered cream, is in a large degree responsible for the defects in quality, and it stands to reason that it must be very detrimental both to the uniformity and flavor; also to the keeping qualities, and this system of manufacturing butter should be discouraged at once.

"I believe if your association would take the matter up with the Agricultural Department, either at Ottawa or Quebec, good would result by thoroughly considering the question in all its various phases, such as the proper churn, whether it is desirable to have the combined churn and worker, etc., and other matters. I also find that some creameries are using very inferior parchment paper. Hoping this matter will be taken up by your association."

Tainted Milk.

It is reported that influence will shortly be brought to bear to secure Government legislation compelling cheese and butter makers to take out licenses which will carry with them a certificate of capacity. Some such law is required for the protection of the makers themselves. It is unreasonable to expect a man to turn out first-class goods with inferior material, which is exactly what a great many men employed in the butter and cheese factories of Canada are endeavoring to do at the present time.

The contention is that if cheese and butter makers were licensed and made responsible for the purity of the milk received by them, the man who through indifference or carelessness brought tainted milk to the factory would be speedily compelled to mend his ways for lack of a market.

Packers' Strike Over.

THE strike of the butcher workmen which has demoralized the meat packing industry of the United States for the last few months has been officially declared off, and simultaneously affiliated unions who quit work in sympathy with the butchers, decided to resume operations. The men have been ordered to return to work in order to save the unions from total disruption.,

During the strike approximately 53,000 persons have been involved, and the struggle is estimated to have cost the men about $5,100,000 in wages, as against an estimated loss of $7,500,000 to the packers in loss of business and increased expenses. The greatest number of men idle in Chicago during the strike was 26,600, while the total in the country outside is estimated to be about the same.

The original cause of the strike was a demand by the butchers' union that the packers pay to the unskilled workmen 18 1-2 cents an hour. The packers refused to sign an agreement, but offered to arbitrate the question. This was accepted, the strikers agreeing to return to work, pending the decision of the arbitrators. The men, however, were dissatisfied with the manner in which they were being put to work, and declared that they would not return unless all the men were given their old places in one day. The packers declaring that this was physically impossible, the men went on strike for the second time.

The men now return to work under the conditions that existed before the strike.

Provisions—Considerable strength is evidenced in the smoked meat market for this season of the year. Many dealers are completely cleaned out of certain lines which makes prices a shade stronger, although little advance can be quoted. Hams are scarce and the result is a limit higher by a half cent. The demand for fresh meats has fallen off since the closing of the Exhibition and things appear dull for the moment by comparison. The prices quoted this week are as follows:

Cheese—Since the high prices of a week ago, when cheese ran over nine cents on the board, there has been a little reaction although the board price of September 12 was 8 15-16c. Prices abroad still remain at such a level that the local high prices are unsuited to supply export demand. On the whole there cannot be said to have been any tangible weakness in board prices and the coming week may see a temporary nine cents again. Board reports for the week ending September 13 are as follows:

Provisions—Cool weather has stimulated the provision market. Large quantities of tinned meats have been received and the demand generally has been excellent. The supply of live hogs on the market was good, the majority of them having been contracted for last week, by two local packers. The offerings therefore for sale were not large. Sales of selected lots were made at $5.60; mixed lots at $5.25; heavy at $5 per hundred pounds. The demand for hams, bacon, and lard was fairly good and prices were steady. We quote:

Cheese—Dulness still rules. Little new business, except the actual transactions at the wharf, can be quoted. On Monday, for instance, there were 4,000 cheese on sale at the wharf, and it was late in the afternoon before the basis was settled. However, 8 5-8c was the ruling price, which was a quarter of a cent decline on the previous Monday's basis. In bold contrast to last year, this appears, when the offering exceeded 5,000 boxes, which realised 10 3-4c to 10 7-8c. Mail advices from England still report quietness, notwithstanding a general firmness of tone. One report states that there is an increase in the London stocks at the railway depot, of from 20,000 to 57,000 boxes. As three-quarters of this latter amount arrived on steamer Devona, the general report cannot be considered unsatisfactory. In grades, under the choicest, buyers have a wide selection, and values stand at about 40s to 41s. C.I.F. cables have been very bullish, and quotations have been advancing from day to day, so that they now stand as high as 46s 6d.

Cheese Exports—The exports of cheese for the week total 64,561 boxes; of these 49,159 were local, and 15,402 through. In comparison with the corresponding week of last year, the total shipments were 107,505, with a local shipment of 82,309, thus there is a falling off of nearly 50 per cent. locally. The total shipment of cheese since May 1st, 1904, amounted to 1,256,897, and for the same period in 1903, the exports were 1,632,356.

Butter—A firm and steady tone rules in the butter market. Nearly 500 boxes were turned over on Tuesday at 19c. At Eastern Townships points full prices were conceded. Mail advices from the Old Country state that there is a lack of animation in the market. Choicest butter stands at 92s to 94s, the special lots at 96s. Second grades are offering at 84s to 88s, while lower qualities bring 75s to 80s. The demand is very poor for these.

Butter Exports—The exports for the week ending September 12, amounted to 21,580 lbs., and for the corresponding week of last year 13,374 lbs. The total shipments for the year amounted to 311,856 lbs., as against 204,470 lbs. for 1903, during the same period.

Provisions—In barreled pork quite low prices are quoted. There is light demand. Beef seems rather scarce with no change in price. In pure lard prices are higher and large stocks are held. Refined lard is rather lower. In hams and rolls some new goods are offered. Fresh meats are easy. Beef is low, particularly domestic; lamb is plentiful and cheap and, there is a large sale. Mutton will even at the low figures. Veal is not a large supply and the price is easy. Pork is more freely received.

CANADA'S WEST INDIAN TRADE.

MR. CHAS. F. PICKFORD, of Pickford & Black, Halifax, N.S., arrived in Toronto on the 21st inst. He has recently returned from a seven months visit to the West Indies, and is in Western Canada on his annual mission trying to interest business men in the West Indies.

"While," he said, "business between the West Indies and Canada is improving we are not altogether pleased with the increase from Ontario. Considerable shipments are going forward all the time, but they do not increase as they should. Take flour from Ontario mills, for instance. Much of it goes via New York instead of via Canadian ports. A great deal more sugar is going from the West Indies to Canada. In fact practically all the raw sugar produced in the West Indies now finds its market in this country; but at the same time the trade from Canada to the West Indies is not nearly so large as it might be, and our steamers frequently go back with light cargoes. The people in the West Indies are willing to buy from us provided we can give them the goods. This we certainly can do if our manufacturers and exporters will cater to the trade. As it is one seldom sees a commercial traveler from Canada in the West Indies, while travelers from United States houses are to be seen on every side. The trouble is that we are too spasmodic in our efforts to secure the trade with the West Indies. There is one class, however, of Canadian enterprise which is doing well in the West Indies and that is the life assurance companies. They are sending their men down there regularly and are meeting with good returns. These are about the only people in Canada who are sticking to business systematically."

NOMINATIONS FO RGROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

At a special meeting of the Montreal Grocers' Association held last week nominations were made for the different official positions in that body. The elections will take place the first week in October and in the interim the keenest interest will occupy the attention of the candidates and their friends. N. Chartrand, who has held the position of president with great credit and success to the association, declined the nomination for re-election. Ald. Lariviere was then nominated by M. P. Daoust; for 1st Vice-President, M. E. Upton was elected by acclamation; 2nd Vice-President M. N. Seguin and Albert Bigaouette. A Laurendeau was chosen treasurer unanimously, and a similar honor for the position of secretary was accorded Mr. Beaudry.

The following directors were nominated: A. D. Fraser, G. A. Archambautl, J. B. Deschamps, ex-Ald. Raby, Pierre Filion, G. A. Galaraneau, H. Porier, George Neil, J. A. Labonte, T. Monpetit, E. P. Guillemette, A. D. Boileau, G. Pilon, M. De Repent-D. Boileau, G. Pilon, M. De Prepentginy, H. Laniell, E. P. Beaudoin, T. Bergeron, A. Sarrazin, E. W. Farrell, Felix Bigaouette, P. P. Boileau, W. Robidoux, H. Mallette, E. Manning and J. A. Dore.

It will be seen at once that the new directorate bears the names of some of Montreal's leading grocers whose appointment to office will add no small influence to the meetings during the coming year.

A Good Repeater

A prominent grocer, when recently asked what kind of goods he liked to sell best, replied:—

"Give me a good repeater like Royal Baking Powder; an established article of undisputed merit which housekeepers repeatedly buy and are always satisfied with."

NEW baking powders and new foods, like new fads, come and go but Royal goes on forever. Grocers are always sure of a steady sale of Royal Baking Powder, which never fails to please their customers, and in the end yields to them a larger profit than cheaper and inferior brands.

INDIGNANT BRITISH MERCHANTS.

MUCH harm is being done in business circles in the Old Country, particularly amongst Birmingham exporters by the representative of a Canadian publication, who claims to have been delegated by the Canadian Government to interview manufacturers and exporters with a view to securing their advertisements in the trade paper with which he is connected, and which, he claims, is a Government subsidized trade organ.

A number of advertisers have had their eyes opened to the misrepresentation recently, and a short time ago a meeting was held in Birmingham, when 75 firms decided unanimously that their advertising contracts would be immediately cancelled. These 75 men represent only a portion of the total number who have been induced to place orders in this paper, and no doubt the remaining advertisers will soon follow in their wake. It seems almost incredible, but a large number of these firms jumped at the offer of a list of "the best Canadian buyers," personally prepared by the gentleman in question.

The list of buyers supplied to a firm of steel manufacturers was precisely the same as that supplied to exporting jewelers. Incalculable injury has been done in this way, and many Birmingham houses now have peculiar and unjustifiable ideas of Canadian "honesty."

It is to be regretted that firms who placed their orders in the paper referred to did not make close and careful inquiry regarding the standing of the publication before entering into contract with it. We understand, however, that many allowed themselves to be rushed into signing the contract on the representation of the canvasser that his affairs would not permit him to call upon them again and another opportunity of obtaining space in this paper might not present itself.

MUST NOT EXPOSE FRUIT.

A NEW by-law has been proposed by the Health Committee of Montreal which when enforced will prevent the exposure of fruit, vegetables or any other produce outside of the stores. In the past a regulation of the Police department has tolerated the outdoor display of goods of various kinds provided such goods did not occupy a space more than six inches in width, measuring from the windows or the average front of the store. This law was very poorly enforced according to information brought before the Health Committee and many complaints have been laid regarding the encroachment of dealers on the sidewalks and the unsanitary character of the practice so far as food stuffs are concerned. To prevent contamination by dust, etc., it has been thought best to prohibit entirely the exposure of foods out of doors either for sale or for show.

This by-law should receive the hearty support of all citizens. The dust of a busy city which is bound to accumulate upon meat, bread, fruit or vegetables is certainly unpleasant to the particular customer and at the same time a menace to general health. Organisms of all descriptions have been found in the deposits of the streets. It is only fair to state that in many cases sensible and successful grocers have seen the point at issue and exposure of stock is not nearly so common as formerly. To compel as far as is in the power of civic authority all dealers to stop the exposure in every case will make for good health and cleanliness.

It is generally conceded on all sides nowadays that too much care cannot be taken in the preparation and handling of all articles of food. Wherever there is carelessness on the part of individuals to act voluntarily in this direction it is high time for the authorities to step in and force the issue.

TO CHANGE CHILDREN'S DAY.

THERE is a strong feeling among exhibitors at the Canadian National Exhibition that Children's Day should be changed from the first to the second week. Not that they are not in favor of giving young Canada a holiday; this year however, Children's Day happened to be muddy and thousands of little feet coated more heavily than usual with mother earth found their way into the Manufacturers and Liberal Arts Building where they left deposits of mud—principally about the booths where samples were given away. Exhibitors are bemoaning the soiled appearance of their respective booths and are unanimous in their recommendation that Children's Day be changed next year to the latter end of the Exhibition.

THE CAMPAIGN FUND.

JUST before the country becomes embroiled in another general election is a good time to enter a protest against the methods employed by the party agents in raising campaign funds. Business men especially have been practically held up heretofore and compelled to pay large sums into the party treasury. Intimidation has been used with some, others have been threatened wi the boycott, and there are many wh have been unwilling givers merely because they dared not refuse.

There is a tendency at present to stand out against this principle of raising funds from among business men to carry on elections. It has been felt by many that the sum raised is in most case far and above the necessities of the occasion, and that in assisting to raise a large campaign fund they are indirectly encouraging corrupt practices.

There is a certain amount of legitimate expense involved in conducting a campaign. The expenses of speakers must be paid for, and there are items relating to the rent and light of committee rooms and public halls. Added to these there are several other expenses, all perfectly legitimate. The whole, totalled up, does not net such a large sum as to be beyond the purse of any well-to-do candidate and his immediate circle of friends.

The public councils of the country require men of means and responsibility, and it would be just as well if only such men sought election as could afford to pay their own expenses. The rank and file of the party, and especially the business men in the party, would welcome and honor such candidates.

BEARING FRUIT.

AT the time when the agitation over the deportation from Canada of the American engineers employed on the Grand Trunk Pacific was at its height, this paper took the ground that such a step on the part of the Canadian authorities would be resented by the United States, and that there would be a serious danger that Canadian engineers employed in that country would suffer. It was also pointed out that as a result the graduates of Canadian engineering colleges would find it difficult to secure those opportunities for pursuing post graduate work at the great American universities which they enjoyed in the past.

What was then predicted is now actually happening, and we have news of two Canadian engineers losing their positions in the United States on account of the agitation in Canada. When we consider the number of Canadian engineers at work in the United States, and the importance of the positions held by them, this incident possesses a most grave import.

After what Canada has done, we cannot accuse the United States of any unfairness in thus protecting her native engineers. It is a logical and defensible step on her part. The only consolation is that the best-minded engineers on both sides of the line are regretting the misunderstanding which has arisen.

A NEED OF THE HOUR.

AN election is in progress at the University of Toronto. A new senate is to be chosen by the graduates of all the faculties. Owing to the federation of Trinity University with the University of Toronto, the senate will be increased in membership from twenty-six to thirty-one, exclusive of ex-officio members.

The functions of the senate are in the main academic, the members concerning themselves with the government of the university corporation, the prescribing of the curricula, etc. The management of the funds and the university property on the other hand are entrusted to a board of trustees.

It is accordingly natural to suppose that the senate would be largely composed of professors and professional men,—those directly interested in the work of the university,—and the board of trustees of men versed in the ways of the business world. This is the case with the senate and it is fairly true of the board of trustees. An infusion of more men of practical business training into both bodies would be highly beneficial.

At the approaching senate elections some forty graduates are up for election. Of these only a mere handful, some three or four, can be said to be business men. The remainder are lawyers, doctors, clergymen and professors. In Mr. W. T. White, of Toronto, we find, possibly, the only genuine business man in the list of candidates. Mr. White is a clever and successful financier and one who understands the needs of the business community in the way of higher commercial education. His election would be most beneficial.

What is needed is a representation of men like Mr. White, who will add to the more theoretical and visionary ideas of the academician, the practical everyday knowledge of the business man. In a university provincial in character and cosmopolitan in its aims, commercial interests should not be overlooked.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN AND CANADIAN FLOUR.

THE Canadian people have as a whole taken kindly to Mr. Chamberlain's preferential tariff scheme, realizing that it is not only a means whereby Great Britain may retain her position of commercial supremacy among the nations of Europe, but at the same time serve the best interests of the colonies.

The newest phase as outlined by Mr. Chamberlain at Welbeck Abbey will not be quite so favorably received by Canadian business men and in particular flour, wheat and provision exporters. He advocates the imposition of an import duty on the chief products of the farm, namely 50 cents per quarter on wheat and such duty on flour as will result in the whole milling of wheat being done in England. He would place a similar duty of 50 cents per quarter on every kind of grain except maize, which is an imported product and 5 per cent. on meat, dairy products, butter, cheese and preserved milks, poultry, eggs, vegetables and fruits.

Mr. Chamberlain is perfectly right as far as British interests are concerned. He points to the millions of uncultivated ares in England and proposes by the duties on wheat, oats and barley to shut out colonial and foreign cereals in order to stimulate the cultivation of cereals among English farmers. In the words of his speech "none but British farmers should supply everything that British farms are capable of supplying of the things required by the British consumer."

Further he says that the milling of British flour should be done in Great Britain not only for the employment it will give British capital and labor instead of capital and labor outside the United Kingdom, but for the sake of the bran and feeding stuff which would enable British stock-raisers to rear and breed more stock and increase operations. Mr. Chamberlain would admit corn on account of its value as feed for stock; but this is a product of the United States rather than of the British colonies. In other words Mr. Chamberlain advocates protection pure and simple.

If his speech is to be taken literally it will come with anything but a welcome sound to Canadian ears.

Canada's exports of wheat flour for the fiscal year ending June 30 last amounted to no less than $2,338,667. The ambition of Western Canada is that the greatest possible portion of the wheat grown in this country should be converted into flour here. Canada already has an extensive milling capacity and new mills are going up. The development of the Canadian milling industry is a matter of foremost importance to the continued advancement of her progress and welfare, and naturally Canadian millers have looked to Great Britain as a market for their flour.

The proposed duty would be undoubtedly prejudicial to the milling industry in the United States and Argentina and certain Canadian interests feel sure that Mr. Chamberlain's intention is to operate directly against these countries which together furnish about ninety per cent. of the flour imported by Great Britain. It may be that Mr. Chamberlain intends to give Canadian wheat and flour a preference over the foreign article, and if so, well and good. If, however, his object is to shut out all produce from over the seas, Canada not excepted, the result will be a direct and irreparable loss to Canadian milling interests.

A CALLER FROM HALIFAX.

Mr. W. H. Troop, director and secretary of Black Bros. Co., Halifax, was a visitor to the Toronto offices of The Grocer during the week. Black Bros. & Co. have just finished a successful campaign at the Canadian National Exhibition. Thousands of consumers have become wiser as to the superior qualities of the "Acadia" brands of prepared codfish and inquiries are pouring in from the retail grocery trade throughout the country. Many visitors to the Exhibition were not previously aware that codfish was put up in such convenient form for Summer use and welcome the news accordingly.

Mr. Troop is wonderfully pleased with the result of his firm's efforts at the Toronto Exhibition, and anticipates that the market is now firmly established in this particular point of Ontario for Black Bros. & Co.'s products, which have occupied a position of prominence in the markets of Eastern Canada for a number of years. He left on September 14 for Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton and intervening points in the interest of trade. An excellent market will doubtless be found for "Acadia" brand codfish, etc., among the numberless ranches and farms of the great west, for the use of which it is admirably suited.

CANADIANS AND SOUTH AFRICAN TRADE.

GREAT interest is being taken at present in South African trade, and The Grocer has received many inquiries from importers in that country. In fact, a list of importers is now in the office of The Grocer, which will be gladly explained to inquirers. A special circular has been issued by shipping firms, interested in the Canadian-South African trade. These are Furness-Withy. and the Elder-Dempster Co., who, in a carefully worded letter, outline to prospective shippers the advantages Canadians enjoy in this market. The letter reads:

"You are doubtless aware of the recent changes in tariff regulations affecting goods the growth ,produce or manufacture of Canada, when such goods are imported into the British South African colonies for consumption.

"The amended customs regulations above referred to, place shippers of Canadian goods at a decided advantage over others, inasmuch as the said regulations, which took effect July 1, 1904, besides placing a number of articles on the free list, provide as follows:

"'A rebate of customs duties shall be granted on any goods and articles the growth, produce or manufacture of Canada, imported therefrom into this colony for consumption therein to the extent following:

"'In the case of goods and articles liable to customs duty under class I., II., or V., of schedule B, a rebate of 25 per cent. of any duty chargeable thereon at an ad valorem rate, but of no other duty; and,

"'In the case of goods and articles liable under class III., of schedule B, to duty at an ad valorem rate of 2 1-2 per cent., a rebate of the whole of such duty.'

"In this connection, we would take this opportunity of again calling your attention to the Canada-South Africa joint steamship service maintained by the undersigned; the steamers of which service sail at regular monthly intervals from Montreal, in Summer, and St. John, N.B., in Winter, for South African ports.

"We hand you herewith, sample forms of necessary declarations, and trust to hear that this important reduction in duties on goods the growth ,produce or manufacture of Canada, will enable you to materially increase your Canadian shipments, by the steamers of the Canada-South Africa joint service.

"The next proposed sailings are: Oriana, 18th September; Wyandotte, 18th October."

BOARD OF TRADE REORGANIZED.

The Prescott, Ont., Board of Trade was reorganized on September 12 with a membership of over 80. The following officers were elected: President, F. S. Evanson, boot and shoe merchant; 1st Vice-President, W. P. McCarthy, grocer; 2nd Vice-President, W. F. McPherson, hardware merchant; Treasurer, F. B. Bennett, banker; Secretary, J. D. Mills, hardware merchant.

EXCESSIVE EXCHANGE CHARGES.

A LETTER has been received from a reader of The Grocer in reference to a resolution passed at the recent meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade favoring a reduction in the present rate of bank exchange.

He says the excessive exchange charged by the banks throughout Canada presses hardly on the retail trade. For instance, the lumber companies at Haileybury, Ont., pay by cheques as well as the railway contractors. The expense of getting these cashed amounts to a considerable item in the course of a year. Chartered banks even make a charge on cheques issued on other branches of the same bank situated not more than five miles away, and this to their regular customers. Considering the big dividends paid by the chartered banks it seems as if they might lower the rate of bank exchange to the retail merchant.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Sept. 15, 1904.

Groceries.

THIS week has not been a record breaker in as far as the actual volume of trade is concerned. Many of the retail grocers took a week off and came to see the Exhibition and as very little was doing in the country, the travelers took a holiday.

The Fall trade can hardly be said to be well under way yet, as it is only a couple of weeks since the travelers settled down to "chase up" Fall trade. They report an improved feeling all through the country and look forward to an exceptionally successful Fall and Winter season.

Several wholesale firms have been doing a large business in Northern Ontario, supplying railroad construction gangs, etc. Speaking of the general volume of trade this season as compared with last, one prominent Toronto wholesaler says his sales for August this year were larger by 50 per cent. than those of a year ago.

The sugar situation remains firm. Owing to the shortage in the fruit crop this year the consumption of sugar will be slightly under the average. Salmon continues very firm and high as well as sardines and herring. Japan, Indian and Ceylon teas are a shade firmer. The coffee market continues firm, while tapioca is a little easier, and cloves and peppers are high and advancing. The foreign dried fruit market is firm and high with the exception of California prunes and raisins, which are both exceptionally cheap. Dried fish are quoted for the first time this season. Bird seed is reported very scarce.

CANNED GOODS.

A seasonable demand continues in canned vegetables, fruits and meats. Nothing definite has been heard as yet about the extent of this year's pack of corn and tomatoes. The present weather is anything but suitable for ripening and a short pack with correspondingly high prices is not improbable.

New sardines are beginning to arrive on this market. Prices are considerably higher than those of last year on account of a poor catch. The same remarks apply to kippered herring.

First arrivals of the new pack Sockeye salmon, including "Horseshoe" are reported, in the shape of one large car which has been distributed among the wholesale trade. The bulk of stocks are either en route or due to arrive shortly.

It is reported that there is now very little salmon on the Pacific coast for Eastern Canada, the bulk of the pack of 325,000 cases being made up of squats, 1-2-lb. flats, and 1-lb. tolls for foreign markets. We quote the following prices:

SUGAR.

The market has been mostly quiet since last week's report, sales of raws being limited to September 8 and 9, when a fair business was done in centrifugals at full former figures, namely, 4.31c duty paid New York for 96 test. As receipts to refiners for the current week are likely to be heavy, they are naturally indifferent buyers, but would readily pay 4 1-4c for any available parcels. Sellers, however, are still firm in their ideas and will not shade below 4 5-16c.

The statistical position is still strong with stocks in importers' and refiners' hands nearly 95,000 tons less than at the same time last year, the figures being 125,863 tons, against 220,517 tons for the same period a year ago. Receipts for the week ending September 7 were 33,695 tons, with meltings 32,000 tons, the latter being 12,000 tons less than the previous week. The reduction is owing to holidays across the line.

Cuba will be less of a factor for the balance of the present campaign, there being no receipts at shipping ports, while exports totalled 31,000 tons as against 196,887 tons last year. Of the small stock on hand the bulk is already sold, thus reducing available supplies from that source to a minimum. Fully 12,000 tons of this will be required for local consumption.

Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 1,517,873 tons as compared with 2,054,360 tons last year, the decrease being 536,497 tons. Crop reports from Europe have been more favorable and as a result prices reacted 3d per cwt., going to 10s 7 1-2d for 88 test. Since then there has been a partial recovery and as we go to press the market is firm at 10s 9d for September shipment, thus seeming to indicate that no permanent improvement in crop conditions need be expected at this late date.

Beets are about on a parity with ruling quotations for centrifugals in New York, and at the close the market is steady to firm. European consumption again shows considerable increase, the total for the months of September, 1903 to July, 1904, both inclusive, being 3,681,043 tons as against 2,936,807 tons during the previous campaign, a net increase of 744,236 tons or 25 per cent. since September 1, 1903, when the abolition of the bounties took effect. This increase is apparent in all European countries, even including the United

TEAS.

Japan teas are rather stronger in primary markets, and in some cases an advance of 1-2c has been asked against prices accepted on the same standards a week ago. It is also reported that the quality has fallen off considerably, which is not unusual at this time of year.

There is no change to record in the position or value of Indian or Ceylon blacks beyond a continued improvement in the quality of Ceylons. The London market is reported as 1-2d to 1d higher on better grades, but when the improved quality is taken into account it is plainly seen that the higher price is for better tea, less desirable liquors remaining unchanged. COFFEES.

Many inquiries and very little trade is the rule in coffees this week ,on account of the exceptionally high prices asked, especially in green Rios. Local brokers will not give any forecast of the market, some surmise that there will be a reaction shortly, others look for the continuance of the present high level of prices.

The New York Journal of Commerce comments as follows on the situation: Only a moderate amount of speculative interest has been shown the past week in the market for coffee contracts, and the changes in prices compared with those ruling a week ago are unimportant. The statistical position, owing to the unexpected large increase in the world's visible stocks during August, has again come into especial prominence and has operated against bull interests, serving to hold buying in check, and also induced some selling for the account of speculative holders to liquidate their accounts.

The world's visible supply of coffee on September 1 was 13,492,000 bags, and the indications are that by September 1 it will have increased to 14,100,000 bags, or 320,000 bags larger than on October 1 last year. The heavy increases in the world's visible stock of coffee, it is claimed by believers of the market, is at the expense of the invisible supply. They argue that the consuming trades, both in this country and Europe, are operating on a hand-to-mouth basis, using up reserve stocks and allowing the various seaboard markets to carry the surplus stock of the world. The European deliveries of coffee in August, it was pointed out, were officially reported to the New York Coffee Exchange as 793,565 bags, compared with 708,434 bags last August, which on the surface would indicate larger takings for consumption than a year ago. Advices from Europe, however, state that such is not the case, but that the larger deliveries there a year ago were due to freer transshipments from one European port to another, which, while being figured as deliveries, did not decrease stocks, as it was only transferring coffee from one port to another. There also were about 25,000 bags of Brazil and mild coffees transshipped from Europe to the United States during August. These coffees were figured as deliveries from the European markets, but as they reappeared in the American supply of coffee they therefore made no effect upon the world's stocks. As a result of this explanation, what at first was believed to be a heavy movement of mild coffee during August, causing an unexpected large increase in the world's visible supply during August, bull interests claim proves to be erroneous. The movement of mild coffee they figure as being of only ordinary proportions, and find the cause of the increasing stocks in the comparatively small takings of coffee by the consuming trade.

There is no reason to believe that the actual consumption of coffee neither in this country nor Europe has decreased, and it is therefore maintained by bull interests that during the past six months of small deliveries the trade must necessarily have been living on reserve stocks, and that a considerable decrease, therefore, has been made in the invisible supply ,and that if it were possible to obtain a count of the present invisible as well as the visible supply of coffee existing in the world, it would be found that together they would make a smaller total than existed at this time last year.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

The only change to record in this market during the week is an easier feeling in tapioca. It is not thought the bumper rice crop in Japan will tend to lower prices to any extent as considerable reduction took place earlier in the season. Besides, the market will in all probability be supplied with rice from Texas. Large quantities are being grown there from Japanese seed and

Foreign Dried Fruits

A fair demand is reported in foreign dried fruits. There has been considerable trade in California prunes and raisins on account of the phenomenally low level of prices ruling at the present time. The majority of buyers are holding off, however, expecting to see prices go still lower. The opinion is expressed that it looks as if California seeded muscatels were going to have the market.

A cable from Smyrna advises an advance in sultana raisins, owing to a shortage in the crop and the market in valencias has advanced for the same reason. The upward tendency of the Denia market as indicated by recent cables is not meeting with any response from the local trade, because it is felt that the demoralized condition of the California raisin market must eventually have some bearing upon the price of Mediterranean fruits. Very seldom has so little interest been shown in Valencia rasins as this Fall. A fair business has been doing in currants on the basis 13s 9d to 14s c. and f. BIRD SEED.

One of the features of this week's market is the scarcity of bird seed. A brisk demand is reported, trade in this commodity, however, being always confined to comparatively narrow limits. Our quotations are as follows:

Canary seed, per lb	0 06½ 0 07
Hemp "	0 04½

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Prices for eggs are as high as ever, but it is thought by some dealers that there is not the same strength as a couple of weeks ago. Receipts have been larger for the past two weeks than for the previous month and it is possible that there may be a shade lower price next week although the sustained 18 cent figure gives little hope of a drop. Seventeen and a half cents to eighteen and a half is about the figure asked now.

HONEY

The demand for honey continues good. Although a large percentage of the bees were killed during the severe weather of last Winter the market is being supplied by old honey carried over from last year. Honey in sections, No. 1 has advanced from 25 to 35c per dozen, while No. 2 has advanced from 10 to 20c per dozen. Our quotations are as follows:

Honey, extracted clover, per lb	0 07 0 07½
" sections, No 1, per doz.....	1 75 2 00
" " No. 2, "	1 50

BEANS.

A good demand for beans keeps up. Owing to the protracted wet weather the prospects for a full crop are poor and holders are asking higher prices. We quote the following prices:

Beans, mixed, per bush.....	1 25
" prime, "	1 35
" handpicked, per bush.....	1 50 1 60
" Lima, per lb	0 06½ 0 07

Green Fruits.

The supply of Canadian fruit was not as plentiful during the week as anticipated. Cool weather seems to be the cause of the shortage. Canadian peaches and plums are bringing high prices and are both scarce. The crop of Canadian pears is good and this fruit is expected to sell at a reasonable price this season. Reports show that exports of apples this year are only one-quarter as large as those of last year. The outlook is for an over supply with low prices all season.

Niagara grapes are expected to arrive in the market this week. The season for importing watermelons is practically over, home grown fruit now arriving in large quantities. Canadian cantaloupes are plentiful and a decline in prices is expected.

During the week two cars of California fruit arrived on this market, one car being made up of peaches, pears and plums, while the other was comprised of "California Tokay grapes." These grapes are selling at from $2.50 to $3 per crate. For the rest of the season this will be the principal fruit to be imported.

Jamaica oranges are now on the market and are selling at $6.50 per bbl.; these oranges are taking the place of "California late valencias" for which the season is practically over. Bananas are plentiful and reasonable in price. Besides "Tokay grapes" and "Jamaica oranges" "Moyers," "Niagaras" and "Rogers Red" grapes, fancy and choice Canadian peaches and green gage plums have been added to our price list. As a result of shortage in the supply this week the demand is very active and several items have advanced. Our quotations are as follows:

Vegetables.

The supply of cauliflowers of inferior quality during the week, although first-class is very scarce. At present cabbage is in full supply. Dealers complain of potato rot this season, which is no doubt due to wet weather. Mushrooms are very scarce. Green beans selling at 40c per basket and turnips at 50c per bag. There is likely to be a good supply of turnips during the present season. Cauliflowers have advanced 15c per dozen, while "Butter squash" has declined and is now as low as 75c per dozen. Otherwise prices remain unchanged. Our quotations are as follows:

Fish.

The demand for fish and oysters has been good during the week under review. If the weather continues cool we may expect a brisk demand from now on. The supply of oysters is good for so early in the season. Finnan haddie is selling at 8c per lb. Perch are scarce, while the supply of whitefish is abundant. The market inclines to additional firmness althought there is no change in prices. Our quotations are as follows:

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

Reports received during the week state bad ripening weather accompanied by frost in Manitoba, also bad outlook for wheat crop in the United States. These reports have caused another sharp advance on the wheat market. Manitoba Northern No. 1 has advanced 6 1-2c per bushel, No. 2 7c per bushel, while No. 3 has advanced from 6 to 6 1-2c. Red and white wheat have each advanced and are selling at $1.09 1-2 to $1.10 per bushel. Old oats have dropped and are now selling at from 38 to 38 1-2c. New oats are selling at from 36 1-2 to 37c per bushel. Other prices remain unchanged. Our quotations are as follows:

FLOUR.

This article is beginning to respond to the sharp advance in wheat. Manitoba wheat patents and strong bakers' have advanced 30c per barrel, Ontario wheat patents are 40c per barrel higher than last week, and straight roller 10c per barrel. At present there is an active demand. Prospects point to another advance n the price of this article. We quote the following prices:

Strong bakers "	5 40
Ontario wheat patents "	5 50	5 60
Straight roller "	4 90	5 10

BREAKFAST FOODS.

During the week rolled wheat has advanced 5c per barrel. This is due to the advance in the wheat market. There is a good supply to compete with the fair demand of all articles on the list. Prices remain unchanged with the exception of rolled wheat. Our quotations are as follows:

SEEDS.

The harvest season is drawing to a close and as a result all seeds (especially Alsike) are moving freely. Seeds are from two to three weeks later this year than formerly, as the Spring was detrimental to the growth. Prices remain unchanged. Our quotations are as follows:

Mammouth clover, per bush	5 50	6 25

Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool.

During the week the demand for these articles has been good, with the exception of wool. The market this year is better than it has been for some three or four years. "New clip fleece wool" has advanced 1c per lb., otherwise the price list remains unchanged. Our quotations are as follows:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Sept. 15, 1904.

Groceries.

AUTUMN business is active. General trade, however, in wholesale circles has been of average kind. Some lines are beginning to feel the passing of the Summer weather, and consequently are in the midst of the greatest activity in anticipation of the early Fall business. With the cool weather the provision trade has taken a more active turn. Sugar is still ruling active. The strength of the market is added to by the existing insufficient margin for profit between raw and refined sugar, which is considerably less than usual. Molasses remains in the same state of quietness, although the offerings are numerous at 26c. Coffee is still strong, and the reports from abroad indicate that the prices asked in both Rios and Santos tend to make it difficult to do business, they being above the European parity. Considerable inquiry has been noted for East India coffee, and coffee generally, as quoted, is certainly interesting. Inquiry for tea is improving. The amount brought forward does not seem to be in excess of requirements, so that while there is a dullness much better things are expected. A very strong market is maintained for canned goods, and salmon continues to rule with strong interest. The rush for salmon in the Old Country is noted elsewhere in this issue. New packs of different lines are now coming forward, and of course renewed interest is being taken in the prices quoted. Dried fruits are reported as strong to the advance. Certain brands of raisins are quoted much less than former years. Jose Part have three notable quotations, such as: fine off-stalk, 19s; fine selected, 22s; four crown layers, 23s per hundred, c. and f. Montreal. Green fruits are plentiful, and the demand is excellent everywhere. California stock is on hand in abundance, and peaches, pears and Tokay grapes are selling at remarkably reasonable prices. Pears, for instance, sold at $1.40 to $2.05 per box. Watermelons are selling in carload lots, and are nearly finished. Prices are high, many selling at an average of 23c each. Flour is still strong in sympathy with wheat, which is gradually advancing. Eggs are very high, and retailers have paid as high as 30c for gilt-edge stock. This, of course, is exceedingly advanced. The wholesaler still holds at 22c.

SUGAR.

The advance in sugar has been strongly maintained. Strength in the foreign market is a feature, especially for raw beet sugar. Unfavorable weather for the beet crop is said to be the cause. Raw cane sugar has been strong in the London market and prices have advanced 1½d, with centrifugals now quoted at 11s 7½d, and Muscovado at 10s 7½d. According to mail advices from London the trend of the market for raw beet sugar has been one of increasing firmness, but it is added that the speculative market will no doubt to a large extent be influenced by the vagaries of the clerk of the weather; but it can be taken for granted that in many beet growing areas the damage is irreparable, and such as to indicate a probable shortage of some magnitude. Statistically the position is strong as the stock in Hamburg is only 79,000 tons, as against 209,000 tons for the same time last year. Locally the demand has been good for both country and city buyers, and active business has this prophecy verified. We quote :

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES

Molasses still remains interesting although quiet. The several holders of 26c molasses (Barbadoes) are keeping it, and buyers are not common. Advances are still expected, however, and the end of September will no doubt see this prophesy verified. We quote :

COFFEE.

The receipts of Santos coffee have been larger than expected, but in Rio the receipts continue so small that there can be little doubt that the crop will prove the shortest that has been gathered for many years. At the foreign auctions only moderate quantities have been offered, and notwithstanding the fact that the demand has not been so strong recently, there has been no reduction in value, Columbian selling quite on a par with the highest points, and Costa Rica showing a steadily advancing market. Coffee is decidedly interesting. We quote :

SPICES.

A quiet tone prevails generally in spices, but a steady demand is noted from the country. Black pepper is dearer, and there is a fair business doing for both spot and arrival. There is little pepper offering at the moment and higher prices are looked for during the next few months. Nutmegs have sold freely and values are temptingly low. Zanzibar cloves are firm for early delivery; forward prices are lower. We quote :

Ginger	0 17 0 24
Cloves, whole	0 25 0 35

TEA.

While teas are still quiet all around, the demand is active and considerable quantities have changed hands at satisfactory prices. There is every prospect of stiffer rates being maintained. For medium descriptions there is a better demand. Certain buyers have been attracted by the comparative cheapness of Assam teas, and the market rules firm. The increased demand for medium teas is a decidedly pleasing feature and is a proof that the consumer in the majority of districts is willing to give a reasonable price for good tea, in preference to buying the commonest at the lowest retail price. In Ceylons the market remains steady and fine teas are comparatively scarce. In China tea the market remains steady. Good liquoring gunpowders are considered very scarce and difficult to obtain except at advanced rates. Japans are strong and holding their own. We quote :

CANNED GOODS.

Great interest is being taken in canned goods, most especially in salmon. Alaska salmon is rather firmer and there is a larger business being done. French sardines are disappointing, the catches being poor and the prices high. Up to the present time the pack of French 18 oz. tins has been quite small; hardly any fish suitable for this class have been caught. Certain Portuguese packers are endeavoring to supply the deficiency in this special pack, and some very fine parcels have been produced. This would suggest a very interesting new departure in sardines, and so long as they are not sold as French goods, they should be acceptable. Canned meats are a little firmer, owing to a somewhat limited supply. Canned fruits are not selling as freely as formerly, owing perhaps to the abundant supply of green fruits on the spot. Foreign Dried Fruits.

The market for new Valencias has been open for a week, and prices remain very much the same as those of last year at the same time. However, the volume of business done up to the present for shipment by the first direct vessel has not been very large, owing to the fact that the trade both locally and throughout the country are rather inclined to hold off a little. Some sales have taken place at 20s for fine off-stalk, at 24s for selected, and 26s for layers, cost and freight to this market, for first-class brands, but other brands are quoted at 2s less than these figures. The first direct vessel is the Escalona, which has arrived at Denia, and may sail any day. The demand for Sultana raisins has been limited, owing to the high prices ruling on account of the short crop this season, and recent cables quote prices at a range of 23s to 31s. It is, however, known that offers of 1s 6d less than the above figures have been made and accepted. The latest cable advices from Greece report the tone of the market for currants firm, under a good demand, and considerable business has been done here for local and western account.

Watt, Scott & Goodacre report: Owing to competition from Alicante, Tarragona and other producing points, Malaga has not been able to maintain the high opening prices for shelled almonds referred to in our last report. At reduced figures considerable business has been induced, however.

Tarragona almonds are slightly easier, as it was found the market could not be maintained with so great difference between soft-shells and medium-shells.

The high price for Sicily filberts at which this crop will probably now go into consumption, being only 40,000 bales, including carry over, has turned attention to Barcelonas and Levants. The former show good value.

Sales of several thousand surons of comadre figs are reported.

Markets for Smyrna figs, Sultana and Valencia raisins are steady. The Escalona being presently at Denia, Valencias are of particular interest to importers this week.

Arrivals of Valencia onions to date have not been eagerly picked up. Interest may develop later when shortness of crop has been realized.

The steady fall in price of currants from opening figures has at last been stopped, and even some reaction has set in. The second and last direct steamer, the Jacona, is to sail 17th inst.

Green Fruits.

Abundance of green fruits of all descriptions are now on the market. Harvest apples are crowding the market, and are selling at remarkably low prices. The export trade in apples has set in, and abundant space is being taken on all outgoing steamers for apples exclusively. Watermelons are practically out of the market, and have sold as high as 23c each. California peaches brought $1.30 to $1.50 a box, and plums $1.40 to $1.50. A couple of cars of Canadian barrel pears and barrel apples were disposed of, the prices ranging from $3 to $3.75 for the pears, and $1.30 to $1.85 for the apples. A few basket pears sold at 27½c to 35c per basket, there being no peaches, plums or apples. Considerable decline has been noticed in pineapples and bananas are selling freely at reasonably low prices. We quote:

Fish.

Fresh fish is in improving demand, with much better supplies for lake and white fish, also trout and pickerel. Haddock is scarce and the prices have a tendency to the advance. There is a fair demand for salmon and halibut. Brook trout is in good demand; the season is nearly at an end for this popular fish, and after October 1 there will be no more. The demand for oysters has been exceedingly large, that is for shell oysters, but for the bulk oysters the dealers on the outside seem to have been somewhat wary about handling them. There seems to be a misunderstanding regarding shell oysters. The season in Prince Edward Island, where the Malpecques are found, opens only on the 25th of September. All the knowing ones, who claim September 15 as opening day, and others who take the 20th, should bear in mind that the exact date for the opening of the season in the east is September 25. The Provincial Legislature of Prince Edward Island found it necessary to protect the oyster beds, and it was they who shortened the season. Salt fish seems to be in very little demand. Skinless cod is selling at firm prices for this week. During next week there are three fast days, September 21, 23 and 24, known as the Quarter ten, or Ember days. Dealers in fish should be prepared for these days, as the consumption will no doubt increase. We quote :

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Supplies of eggs have been restricted this week, and prices have been very firm. In fact, receipts dropped over 50 per cent. during Monday and Tuesda and with high prices ruling at country points, naturally the market advanced locally. Sales were made for straight gathered stock at 17½c per dozen in fair sized lots. Selected stock sold in a jobbing way at 21c a dozen.

POTATOES.

Potatoes are selling freely at good prices. Round lots are changing hands at 60 to 75c per bag of eighty pounds, and as high as 80 to 85c has been realized in a jobbing way.

BEANS.

No improvement has been noticed in the demand for beans. The tone of the market remains steady. We quote :

Choice primes	1 30	1 35

HONEY.

Buckwheat continues to be the principal honey in demand, which is scarce. White strained in comb is plentiful. We quote :

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

The condition of the flour market has remained unchanged during the week, but it is exceedingly strong at current prices. The undertone of the market is very firm, caused by the continued high prices of wheat. With October wheat registered at around $1.05, there is every possibility of flour continuing high. We quote.

FEED.

During the week a firm of Manitoba millers advanced their price of mill feed $1 per ton, quoting bran at $19, and shorts at $21 per ton. Temporary quotations are now as follows : Manitoba bran in bags, $18 to $19; and shorts, $19 to $21. The demand is reported good, but millers' stocks are low, and they had great difficulty in filling orders. We quote :

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N.B., Sept. 1904.

THE exhibition, which opens this week and continues through next week, promises to be the best held for years. The holding of the Horse Show at the same time, together with the high class of entertainment and amusement features which have been provided, ensures a very large attendance. But one more thing is needed—fine weather. The outlook for this is good. Our western friends who are taking advantage of the exhibition for advertising are sure to be satisfied. Those who have not, have made a mistake.

Business is quite good. Markets are generally firm. Rice, which has continued low, is showing a stronger tendency. Cream of tartar while somewhat uneven, is firmer. Hops, while high, are likely to go still higher.

Oil.

The market for some time has shown little change. There is increased business in burning oil. Large orders have been taken for forward shipment. In lubricating oil there is but a fair business at this season; and particularly this year. Paint oils have a fair Fall demand. Linseed oil is very firm. In cod oil the tendency is to lower price.

Salt.

There are continued light arrivals of Liverpool coarse salt, about every two weeks. Prices on the other side are very firm. No change has been made here. Owing to an agreement between importers they quote the same price. In fine salt, season of best demand is over. Canadian has the larger sale.

Canned Goods.

Corn, tomatoes and some other lines are still not quoted; that is, new goods. As nearly all our dealers are under agreement to sell at a certain price they have been able to book largely at open figures. Sale of spot goods is not large. Blueberries are plentiful this year. New salmon continue to arrive with market very firm. Sale of meats is falling off. Strawberries and peaches are very firm. Golden apples are dull. In domestic fish such as sardines, haddies and kippered herring there is a fair pack.

Green Fruits.

Dealers are busy. Apples are cheap and just a fair sale. Gravensteins, our best Fall apples, are not yet received. Quality, it is said, will be particularly good. The best stock just now is our New Brunswick apple. Baldwins are said to be a fine crop. Oranges and lemons are quite high. Jamaica oranges are now offered. American pears are selling freely. In Ontario plums and peaches, receipts are light. Nova Scotia plums are plentiful. In grapes, Ontario fruit is now being freely received. Bananas are rather lower.

Dried Fruits.

Spot market is dull. Prices are very low. Some early valencia raisins are due. Price is lower than usual. Higher figures are now quoted. Owing to the low price of Californias, few other grades are being bought. The demand for layer raisins grows lighter each year. Seeded have the demand. Currants are unchanged. Except package goods, few are sold. Prunes are very low. Evaporated apples are little sold. Citron will be rather lower than last year. Canadian onions are now being offered. Price is quite low. Delivery next month. At present market is supplied with valencias and American. New filberts are higher.

Sugar.

Prices are unchanged and market is very firm. Full stocks are held, and dealers buy ahead as far as the refiners will sell.

Molasses.

The market is quiet. There is a fair stock of Porto Rico held. Barbadoes are rather light supply and prices are unchanged.

Fish.

There is a fair supply of fresh fish. At this season variety is not large. In dry cod fish, while price is rather easier, it is still high. Pickled herring are in light supply and full prices are maintained; there is a good demand. Smoked herring are coming to hand slowly. As yet there is little change in price. Few finnan haddies are yet seen. There are a few pickled shad offered and price is high.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

Flour is held firm but shows no further advance. There has been a large sale. Oatmeal is unchanged. Oats are rather lower. New are now offered. Local cornmeal millers have been short of stock. Prices are unchanged. Beans are rather higher. There is but a limited sale. In barley price unchanged. Dealers report a light demand. Split peas are quite scarce with only a light sale.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Robinson, of the North-West Miller, Minneapolis, was in Toronto this week.

Mr. R. D. B. Timmons, of Timmons & Co., general merchants, Almonte, Ont., paid The Grocer a call during the week.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 8, 1904.

WHILE there is no special feature to note in general groceries, the prices are firm, and in butter and eggs the advance has been maintained to such an extent that a further increase is not improbable. Eggs are very scarce, the first-class article retailing at 40c. It has always been possible to obtain a very good article for household use at 30c, but this price does not command so good an article as before. The cheaper eggs which have been disposed of during the past week or two have not been up to the usual grade, and the consequence has been that there is a greater demand for the best. There has been no change in the price of cured meats, and none in Manitoba flour, though the markets are firm. Okanagan flour has come up to the same figure as the Manitoba product, in sympathy with the recent general rise. Coffees are very firm, and a sharp increase is expected within the next few months. Japan teas are cheaper and the market for all grades of teas is easier than it was a year ago, except for Congos and Young Hysons, which, according to the advance in the rate of exchange in China, are about 20 per cent. higher than a year ago. Taken all round the Fall trade, which is beginning to open, is looking very bright, and the prospects are encouraging. Money is fairly plentiful and payments are easy.

The fruit market in Vancouver is amply provided, and the demand is well sustained. The shippers are taking more pains with the packing and shipping, consequently the fruit arrives here in better condition than it used to. California apples are now about off, and the local grown are taking their place. Some very fine apples are produced in the suburban districts in the vicinity of the city, Gravensteins being the favorite for this time of year. Some fine fruit has been shipped in from Thomas Earl's orchards at Lytton, equal to anything brought up from California, which speaks well for the province. The shipment includes pears, grapes and peaches. There is not a large amount of grapes grown in this province as yet, but the success met with by those who have ventured will encourage others. The peaches are the freestone variety, and of fine quality. Peaches are from 95c to $1.10; bananas, $2.50 to $3.25; pears, $1.50 to $1.75, California Bartletts; grapes, $1.75 to $2, black; green, $1.75; and tokay, $2; hothouse tomatoes, local, $1 per crate; canteloupes, which have been high, are now cheap, and go at $1.25 to $1.50; apples, $1.50; sweet potatoes, of which a large shipment is to hand, 3¾c. Local honey is now in stock. It is of fine quality and plentiful, selling at $2.40 per case.

The wholesale business in the coast cities of Vancouver and Victoria is good, incident upon better conditions in the interior of the province. Three large lumbering industries have been commenced, and mining generally is looking up. There must be between 4,000 and 5,000 men more than last year at work in the different parts, and a considerable portion of the trade comes to the coast, though a large amount goes east to the large cities. With the establishment of Nelson as a distributing centre, branches of some of the larger houses may be established there to be more in touch with the business and if possible secure some of the trade which is sent to Winnipeg, and even Toronto. There is a good district surrounding Nelson, which promises to become better.

There are more kicks from the Kootenay District relative to the increased cost of freight to towns in that district. On August 18th the rates from Winnipeg, Calgary and other points were increased 30c per hundred on produce, but merchants were not notified until the 25th. From Sandon comes one of the greatest objections, where the cost of living, already high, is made higher. They are beginning to wonder where they are at.

There is a small agitation in British Columbia for the erection of flour mills here. The argument is that so much flour is shipped to the Orient, a great deal of it on the Empress liners leaving Vancouver, that it would be a comparatively easy thing to manufacture it in this province. The wheat could be brought from the Territories, and the haul would not be as long as is required to get it to the Atlantic seaboard. Just at present the Byers Flour Mills, of Pendleton, Oregon, are filling an order of 60,000 quarter barrels of flour for Japan, and their capacity is 20,000 barrels a month. Flour from Washington goes from this port constantly, and the question of having flour mills on the Pacific Coast has been talked of more than once. There are a large number of mills on the Pacific Coast, the neighboring State of Washington having 68, compared to 6 in British Columbia.

It is expected that very little freight consigned to Dawson will be left at White Horse when navigation closes this year. The White Pass & Yukon Railway Co. stopped receiving freight two weeks earlier this year, and besides the river is higher. Att the boats are carrying larger loads, and all conditions considered all the freight offered should be carried through with little left over. Of course, there is always a rush at the last moment, as in everything else, and if the close-up should be sudden, what is en route may be left for the Spring.

Oregon dealers afford an instance of the mistake of deceitful packing. A short time ago a crate of apricots was unloaded, and the top layer led one to believe they were of the best that had ever been shipped to this province. Underneath the display layer, the fruit was small and inferior. The fruit inspector appointed by the Government has been very careful in inspection in matters of this kind, and the shippers are becoming educated to the fact that it is a mistake to pack in this way. They find they themselves are in the end the sufferers.

F. R. Stewart, wholesale fruiterers of this city and Victoria, have sent their first shipment of British Columbia fr i to the Territories for this season. They used the refrigerator car system. This firm are building up a good trade with the middle west, having a representative looking up business. The present shipment is apples, plums and crab-apples, and were grown on Vancouver Island.

Dry weather has made things a little dull in the vicinity of Ashcroft. Ther is a large amount of ranching carried on there, and the continued dry spell has affected the ranges. The crop the famous Ashcroft potatoes, however, is fully up to the average, though they are not quite up to their usual size.

The Atlin Trading Co., of which Mr. A. S. Cross is president, is adopting the cash principle, which is gradually creeping into effect in all the mining camps. The population there is so transient that business men feel it is necessary to adopt this mode of doing business for their own protection. It gives a lower price to those who do pay, and prevents loss from customes whose claims do not pan out as well as expected, and who leave the country without notice.

Some Exhibits at the National Exhibition, Toronto.

The Cowan Co.

One of the most commodious and attractive booths at the Exhibition is that of the Cowan Co. The predominant colors in the decorations are red and white. Inside the booth are exhibited on tables tastefully arranged, structures of the company's well-known "Perfection" cocoa. The counter displays elegant samples of chocolate, chocolate cream, etc.

Mr. Dimmock is in charge of the booth, assisted by several young ladies whose courtesy and attention are being much appreciated by interested visitors. Dainty cups of "Perfection" cocoa are served from an urn, which like the widow's cruise, never runs dry. Other lines evoking much interest are "Perfection" chocolate and prepared icings in their different flavors.

Another line the company is devoting much attention to is their milk chocolate which has already established a reputation for purity and high quality.

Mr. Cowan has just returned from a trip to Germany where he has been purchasing machinery for the Cowans' fine new factory near the Dundas bridges, Toronto.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of The Bennett Mfg. Co.

The Bennett Mfg. Co.

This manufacturing firm from Pickering, Ont., has an exhibit which is attracting special attention not only among the grocers but also among thousands of thrifty housewives who are visiting the Exhibition. Bennett's grocery and kitchen cabinets have now the commendation of all who have seen them. The latter appeal especially to the methodical housekeeper, on account of their conveniently arranged compartments for holding spices, flour, etc. In addition the Bennett Mfg. Co. have on exhibition seed and medical prescription cabinets and an attractive line of hardware and grocery fixtures.

Ontario Grape Growing and Wine Manufacturing Co.

One of the most attractive and picturesque spots in Canada is "Barnesdale," near St. Catharines, where the Ontario Grape-growing and Wine Manufacturing Co. has been established for thirty years. The company's output of port, claret, sherry, Catawba, Golden Diana and other wines represent an enormous business. Their vineyard consists of over 150 acres, and represents a good-sized fortune by way of investment. The vaults of the company are the largest in Canada, having a capacity of half of a million gallons. Their cellars are equipped with both heating and cooling apparatus, so that an even temperature is maintained throughout the year. In fact, the whole equipment is complete for the production of the best and purest article; every detail, from the crushing of the grapes to the bottling of the wine, being carefully looked after.

Col. R. W. Gregory represents this firm at the Exhibition this year. The exhibit, proper, a cut of which appears in this issue, shows the different brands manufactured by the company and is attracting considerable attention among connoisseurs of wines as well as the general public.

Anglo-Canadian Supply Co.

The exhibit of "York Metal Polish" made by the Anglo-Canadian Suuply Co., Toronto, takes the form of a booth decked in the royal colors of the Autumn, crimson and gold, with an artistic touch added by way of large vases of gorgeous sunflowers. In the background are ranged conventional stocks of York Metal Polish packages with wrappers of red, white and blue checked papers.

The Computing Scale Co.

Quiet and elegant is the exhibit of the Dayton Computing Scale Co. in the Manufacturers' Building. Rich green hangings and moquet carpets serve as a very effective background for the display of this firm's new weightless computing scales, cheese cutters, platform majestics, and near weight detectors, all of which are arranged on shelves at the back or on tables of polished wood ranged carelessly over the floor space, extending from the rear to the front railing.

The machines exhibited include those employed in the grocery, confectionery, provision and butcher trades. The Computing Scale Co. makes in fact all kinds of scales for counter-weighing, and is justly proud of its record. They have been awarded diplomas and medals in the United States, Great Britain and numerous foreign countries for accuracy of weight, workmanship and beauty of finish. The Majestic scale, No. 40, possesses glass platform, locking poises, Carling Brewing Co.

The Carling Brewing Co., of London, had, as usual, a splendid exhibit of the products which have given this firm a great reputation throughout the Dominion. Their exhibit occupied a prominent corner in the Manufacturers Building, and attracted considerable attention. The various brands manufactured by the company, including amber ale, export ale, lager, porter and half-in-half, were displayed under an enormous glass case, within which was the office of the firm's representative. Mr. Mace, manager of the Toronto office, looked after the exhibit.

This company takes great care that nothing of a deleterious nature enters its products. Its goods have attained great popularity in Canada, and a large demand for them is coming in from other countries.

Alonzo W. Spooner.

The exhibit of Alonzo W. Spooner, Port Hope, in the centre aisle of the Manufacturers Building, is proving a great attraction to hardware and machinery men as well as to grocers and general merchants. The principal lines exhibited by Mr. Spooner are a powdered deodorized and disinfectant known as "Phenyle" and "Copperine," a non-friction, non-fibrous box metal.

In conversation with The Grocer Mr. Spooner, who is in charge of the exhibit, said that "Copperine" is being extensively used in some of the largest agricultural, milling and mining machines, pumps, dynamos on the North American Continent. Mr. Spooner has been selling "Phenyle" for ten years and is justly proud of the comparatively large market supplied by him with this disinfectant.

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS MEET.

THE regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held on Monday evening, September 12, in the rooms of the association, St. George's Hall.

Mr. J. S. Bond, the representative of the association on the Canadian National Exhibition board, gave an interesting account of the Fair. He stated that the profits were considerably in excess of last year, and that Quebec Province had taken every prize in butter this season.

The profits of the July excursion to Niagara Falls and Buffalo were declared to be $292.

Mr. J. K. Nettlefield, the secretary, announced that he had decided to resign that position.

The principal topic of discussion was the treatment recently meted out to a number of members of the association, as well as to a large percentage of the retail grocery trade of Toronto, by a firm selling wooden butter buckets. The selling agent represented that the maximum cost of the buckets would be 12c per lb., whereas when the orders were delivered the cost was found to be 19c. This has caused general dissatisfaction among the grocers, a number of whom have refused to accept their orders. The general feeling of the association was that some definite measures should be taken, and accordingly the secretary was authorized to send a letter of protest to the firm in question on the ground that their salesagent had been guilty of misrepresentation, and requesting an immediate settlement, in the failure of which it would be necessary to make a test case in the courts.

A resolution was passed condemning the newly introduced premium exchange system, which it is claimed is only another form of trading stamps. The "modus operandi" in outline, as described by one of the members, is for grocers, dry goods men, butchers, etc., handling premiums, to pay $10 for the privilege of membership in a joint stock concern which manipulates the premium exchange system. On a motion of Messrs. Panter and Clark, a committee was appointed to co-operate with the Retail Merchants' Association in an endeavor to stamp out the system. The general feeling was that no legitimate business could stand a 5 per cent. rake off.

A motion was passed condemning also the system of exchange by coupons as prostituting legitimate business, and a letter to this effect was ordered to be forwarded to the manufacturers.

J. B. Vanier & Frere, dealers in groceries and liquors, Montreal, have sold to Telesphore and Arthur Vanier, who continue under the same style.

GREEN FRUITS

Growth of the Banana Trade.

THE consumption of bananas is increasing everywhere as well as the cultivation of this fruit. Even the poorest classes are now able to buy this nourishing and wholesome fruit. From the west coast of Africa it is learned through the French National Agricultural Society that the cultivation of bananas has arrived at important proportions. As many as two and one half million bunches were recently imported into Europe, and there is every probability that this consignment will be duplicated and increased. Thus it is likely that the markets generally will be well supplied with bananas. It is no doubt generally known that most of the bananas consumed in Europe come from the Canary Islands, and so profitable has the cultivation of them proven, that they are now cultivated from the Senegal to the Congo.

It is a noteworthy fact that the largest fruit companies in the United States have decided to adopt the method of selling bananas by weight instead of by the bunch. The reason given for this action is that there was so much variety in the size of the bunches and so much loss and complication that fair dealing has become practically impossible. Some of the large Canadian fruit men say that this method will become general in the Dominion before very long.

Manitoba Prefers B. C. Fruit.

AN interesting and attractive feature of the Winnipeg and Brandon exhibitions this year was the show of fruit made by the Fruit-growers' Association of British Columbia. The object of this display was to bring to the attention of Manitoba people generally the fact that British Columbia is capable of supplying the fruit market of the wheat province, and that the quality of the goods she offers is at least equal to those that can be obtained elsewhere.

Heretofore a very large percentage of the fruit consumed in Manitoba has been obtained from the Pacific states of the Union. The American railway companies have encouraged their fruit-growers to capture the market of Manitoba, by giving them a freight rate enabling them to compete with British Columbia growers, and a rapid service, much superior to that within reach of Western Canadians.

Largely for these reasons British Columbia fruit has not commanded the Manitoba market as it should, and although the B. C. fruit-grower can rejoice in the possession of the Alberta market, he has been inclined to believe that the prospect for controlling the entire market west of Port Arthur was very slim.

Of late, however, the tide has turned. It is now generally agreed that the Manitoba fruit market is for the British Columbia grower. Although the repeated promise of the C.P.R. that a faster service from the coast to Winnipeg would be given for fruit as soon as there was sufficient quantity being shipped to justify it has not been fulfilled to the letter, even that mighty corporation cannot much longer fail to encourage this branch of inter-provincial trade. Manitobans are Canadians, and will give preference to grown-in-Canada fruit.

England Wants Canadian Fruit, Etc.

IN his latest report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, P. B. MacNamara, commercial agent in Manchester, Eng., says the market for canned goods in England is one keenly exploited by United States and other countries doing an export trade. Canadian canned goods are looked on with much favor in this city, the varieties that command the greatest sale being apples, pears, peaches and tomatoes.

TOMATOES.

In the matter of tomatoes it is said the Italian canning is fast finding favor, and that it is supplanting the American. It is not difficult to trace the decadence of trade, usually depending on neglect by employes in preparing and putting up the goods. Canadian canned tomatoes have been all that could be desired and it should be the constant aim of every one connected with the trade to keep up the reputation for quality already established.

APPLES.

There is a great and growing demand for canned apples in one gallon tins, six tins to a case, and a high price can be obtained for them from reliable Canadian canners. United States canners controlled these goods for some time, but they are encountering vigorous opposition of late, while Canadian apples in tins are held in very high esteem by the great consuming public of the Manchester district, and a larger market is dawning therefor, which can be retained if quality is kept up to standard.

PEARS AND PEACHES.

There is a greater demand for pears than for peaches in the Manchester market, the chief source of supply being California and the Eastern States. California fruit commands a higher price than any other. Canadian Bartlett pear is unsurpassed for flavor and succulence, and should, if canned, bring as high a price as the best Californian.

Instructive Fruit Display.

One of the most instructive exhibits at the Canadian National Exhibition was that of the experimental fruit stations, operated under the direction of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

In a province so extensive as Ontario, having such a wide range of climatic conditions and such great variety of soil, one of the chief difficulties with which the agriculturist has to contend is the selection of varieties of fruit suitable to his particular locality.

This work of experiment and selection has very properly been taken up by the Government, as representing the whole community. The exhibit of the Ontario Department of Agriculture is ample demonstration of the effectiveness of its work in discarding unprofitable, and introducing varieties of fruit suitable, for various localities, thereby enlarging the farmer's opportunities, increasing the productiveness of his farm and encouraging the development of fruit culture.

The following facts published in regard to the cost of apple barrels are of interest to Canadian fruit growers and exporters :

(1) Apple barrels are costing 45 cents at the cooper shop.

(2) Similar barrels are costing the farmers and fruit growers of New York State 35 cents, delivered.

(3) A considerable portion of the stock from which these latter are made comes from Canada, and pays duty, besides.

This year barrels are from 10 to 15 cents cheaper than they were last season. Some years ago apple barrels cost about 25 cents, but three good crop years and large exports created such a demand that the price of barrels advanced, the top figures being reached last season. Then the bulk of the apple barrels sold at 50 cents each, although considerable quantities were purchased at 60 cents and some as high as 75 cents. This year from 40 to 45 cents have been asked for apple barrels.

In view of the lighter exports anticipated this year some dealers expect that the price of barrels will yet go lower.

SPECIAL NOTICE to the TRADE.

IN a previous issue of the Grocer we called the attention of the Trade to our very tender Sugar Pea. We now beg to call their attention to another line of peas which we believe to be first-class value. We refer to our brand "Midget" Peas. This is a pea just one grade larger than Petit Pois, and is selected from what is the most tender peas in the entire pack. It can be retailed at ten cents at any point in Ontario where the freight rates are only ordinary. As a straight ten cent line we believe it the best value to the consumer of any pea we pack. We finished packing peas on the 30th July, and all through the pack the weather was perfect for packing peas, cool and moist, so that the raw material was kept in fine condition. Taking the pack as a whole, we have every reason to believe it is the finest in quality that we have ever packed.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The Grain Situation.

REPORTS from Manitoba and the Territories show that from 60 to 70 per cent. of the wheat crop is now in stock. The estimated average yield is about twenty bushels per acre, while in the Brandon District the yield will average as high as twenty-one bushels per acre. On the whole there appears to be very slight damage from rust, except in South Manitoba, and none as yet from frost, except in the extreme north, notwithstanding the herculean endeavors of certain speculators to kill the crop.

According to the Ogilvie Milling Co., the western wheat yield will be fift8-eight to sixty million bushels. Nothing from now out can happen to prevent the crop exceeding that of last year, and if the present high price is maintained the amount of money pouring into Manitoba and the Northwest Territories during the next few months will be enormous, as more money will be paid for the 1904 crop than for any other crop in the history of the country.

T. W. Knappen, secretary of the Western Canada Immigration Association, has submitted the following comparative estimate of the 1904 wheat crop in the great west, as the result of a thorough personal inspection just completed.

Manitoba—Acres, 2,380,000; bushels, 33,950,000; average per acre, 14.36.

N. W. T.—Acres, 1,030,000; bushels, 16,480,000; average per acre, 16.01.

Total acres, 3,410,000; bushels, 50,-430,000; average per acre, 14.77.

Value 1904 crop, 50,000,000 bushels at 85c, $42,500,000.

Value 1903 crop, 53,000,000 bushels at 60c, $31,800,000.

Increased value 1904 crop, $10,700,000.

Among the latest sections in the west are Manitou, Pilot Mound, Minnedosa, Minto, Moosomin, and Indian Head, in all of which the crop is exceptionally heavy and practically undamaged by rust.

If the estimates of the best informed authorities are correct, the wheat harvest of the United States has met with one of the worst disasters ever experienced in the crop history of that country. The estimates range from 490,-000,000 bushels to 550,000,000 bushels, the latter being the estimate of Cincinnati Prices Current; but the general disposition is to accept the lower estimates.

If these are right the wheat harvest of the United States will leave for export the smallest absolute amount for twenty years, and the smallest amount relative to total production in thirty years. The average yield of the past half dozen years has been 611,000,000 bushels. The banner crop of 1901 was 748,500,000 bushels. During the past twenty-five years there have been only two or three crops which are at all comparable with the present as respects a short wheat crop. The first was 1893, when the crop amounted to 396,000,000 bushels, compared with 516,000,000 in the previous year, 611,780,000 in 1891, and an average for the period of about 490,000,000. The second was 1885, when the harvest fell to 357,112,000 bushels from an average for the period of about 450,000,000 bushels. But in neither of these cases was the shortage so great relative to the needs of the home market as in the present instance. From the crop of 1885 some 94,000,000 bushels were exported; and from that of 1893 over 164,000,000 bushels were exported. It is doubtful if much over 50,000,000 bushels from the present crop will be exported.

Not since wheat became a large feature of the export trade of the United States has that country been brought so near to a wheat production which barely suffices for home consumption.

Ice Breakers and the Export Trade.

GREAT interest is being taken in Montreal in a certain phase of the export grain trade, because in November next a specially made ice breaker is to be tested in the St. Lawrence for the first time. The breaker is now in the course of construction by Fleming & Ferguson, an English firm, who are to deliver it when notified. The Government's intention is to try to break up the ice which forms in great thickness in the river just above Quebec. Thus it is believed that navigation can be kept open at least five or six and maybe seven weeks later than heretofore. At the same time it is expected that navigation can be opened two or three weeks earlier in the Spring.

Last year, for instance, the port of Montreal handled tonnage from the ocean amounting to 1,400,000 tons, or an average of 200,000 tons per month. In the Autumn months the average increases very notably owing to the call upon shipping for new Canadian and American grains seeking a market. It would be a great thing for the port of Montreal if another four or five weeks of navigation could be obtained, since it would mean at least an increase in tonnage of 250,000 tons in ocean shipping, dependent entirely upon insurance rates. This would cut into the Boston and Portland trade, which depend largely upon the closing of navigation in Montreal. From statistics of grain shipments last year Montreal stood third in the list of American ports for grain exports. It would appear an easy

A Novel Scheme.

AN interesting venture, by which United States manufacturers and commercial houses will be able to introduce their goods into Oriental markets, is to be carried out by the North-Western Commercial Company, of Seattle, Wash. The company intends to inaugurate a "floating industrial exhibition." The S.S. Victoria, a large vessel of modern type, was recently purchased by the company, and the lower decks arranged in a convenient manner for exhibition purposes. The ship will accommodate 125 representatives of commercial houses, and space will be rented to exhibitors on the lower decks, which will be decorated and brilliantly lighted by electricity.

The vessel is only for exhibitors and their exhibits, and under no circumstances will any other passengers or cargo be accepted. The Victoria will sail from Seattle on November 15, and will visit Yokohama, Kobe, Nagasaki, Shanghai, Hong Kong, Manila, Singapore, Colombo, Mauritius, Delagoa Bay, Cape Town, Adelaide, Melbourne, Sydney, Honolulu, also Port Arthur and Vladivostok, if war conditions permit. At each of these places the general public will be admitted to the ship from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. The arrival of the ship will be extensively advertised beforehand.

To Interview Manitoba Grain Men.

On Monday, September 12, Mr. D. Plewes, of Toronto, one of the leading grain and flour exporters of Canada, left for Winnipeg and the West. Mr. Plewes' Western trip is for the purpose of sizing up the grain situation and making arrangements with the grain growers of Manitoba and the Territories for export shipments of wheat. In former years there has always been considerable surplus grain in Eastern Canada; this year, however, shippers will have to draw entirely from the West.

Mr. Plewes will spend a fortnight in Winnipeg and will afterwards visit Brandon, Portage la Prairie and other grain centres, which will afford him an opportunity of coming into personal touch with representative grain men of the West.

Flour as Medicine.

Japanese papers just now are full of comments on a theory current among the medical profession to the effect that a certain malignant disease prevalent in Japan is caused by the continuous and too exclusive use of fish and rice as food.

Foreign flour interests have already begun to speculate as to the possibilities of the Japanese market if the rice and fish diet of the people, even to the extent of 50 per cent. of its present quantity and value, were to be displaced by Manitoba No. 1 hard and concomitant brands. It is being remarked that the application of this remedy, however, will depend upon how far flour can be made to take the place pound for pound and dollar for dollar in food value of rice and fish.

Trade Conditions in Trinidad.

Latest mail advices from Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, dated August 25, 1904, say a sharp advance in cable quotations has brought about a better inquiry for flour of all grades, although no great improvement on previous quotations has thus far been established. Stocks are moderate, and a steady increase in values may be looked for from now on. American corn is scarce, and both oats and oil meal are gradually improving in value.

Cuban Tobacco.

MR. LEONARD SISMAN, of Havana, Cuba, contributes the following special article to the Western Tobacco Journal on tobacco culture in Cuba

This plant, whose rich leaf as produced on Cuban soil, is reputed to be the best in the world, occupies the second place in Cuban agriculture. Although it is not cultivated as extensively as cane, it serves as the basis for two important industries; one of which is the agriculturist, who prepares and packs the weed for export, and the other is the manufacturing of the millions of cigars and cigarettes consumed in the country or exported, giving employment to skilled workmen and contributing to the welfare of the laboring classes in Havana.

For the cultivation of tobacco a loose, rich, sandy soil is required. That which serves the best purpose is in the Province of Pinar del Rio, on the southern side of the range of hills that form the vertebrae of the province. Here is grown that of the greatest value, for which high prices are paid by the consumers in the United States. Also to the western end, from the city of Pinar del Rio to the Remates de Guane. In the small valleys among the hills the leaf is even more aromatic, that of Santa Isabel, Cabezas, Sumidero, Caliente and Luis Lazo being preferred. The leaf from these parts is not perhaps so fine as that grown around San Juan and San Luis, but has a good reputation among the Cuban tobacco buyers.

The fragrant weed is also grown in the Province of Santa Clara and Santiago de Cuba, but the prices paid per quintal (101 pounds), is much less than that of the Vuelta Abajo.

Notwithstanding its well earned fame the Cuban product can not reach the development it should, as all countries consider tobacco an assessable article and burden it with high import duties, which in some cases become almost prohibitory.

The recent reciprocity treaty between the United States and Cuba will no doubt be of great benefit to the Cuban planters and be appreciated by both sides; then the increase will necessarily follow.

A great deal of tobacco is grown under cover; the product being a very fine wrapper, perhaps not as aromatic as that grown in the open, but a dangerous opponent of the Sumatra wrapper, which is to-day preferred by numerous consumers.

An extract from the Cuban Government report by the Secretary of Agriculture as to the cost of preparing soil, its fertilization, value of seedlings, planting and distribution of fertilizers, care of plant, rent and general expenses, the cost per cabelleria (cabelleria equals 33 1-3 acres) from the time it is plowed up until the crop is gathered, varies considerably, due to many causes, but taking as an average the cost in the Province of Pinar del Rio would be per cabelleria (33 1-3 acres) $7,940. The yield of a cabelleria consisting of an average of 211 bales, at $50 per bale, 54 arrobas (twenty-five pounds) of seed at $4 per arroba (one arroba equals twenty-five pounds), and 12 cart loads of stems at $1, would make the receipts about $10,778, leaving a balance as profit of $2,838 per caballeria, or about $260 an acre.

Althought these figures are official, the average is much higher. For example a certain (Vega) plantation of three caballerias (near San Juan y Martinez) produced 40,000 poles of tobacco one year, worth at least $50,000, and taking official figures of cost of production of $7,940 per caballeria, left a profit of $8,726 per caballeria, a good general average for a good crop. The above plantation is one of the finest in the province.

The benefit derived from covering the tobacco with cheese cloth is to protect from and temper the sun's rays, to moderate the force of the wind and its action upon the leaves, keeping the earth moist, and above all to protect the plants from insects, which are oftentimes a pest to the planter. With the cheese cloth the insects are unable to deposit their larvae upon the leaves. The results obtained up to this time with this system of cultivation have been satisfactory, as according to the data furnished to the Department of Agriculture by the Provincial Board of Pinar del Rio, 212 hectares (one hectare equals

2,471 acres), in which 6,776,000 seedlings were planted gave trees, according as they budded or not, varying in height from 1.78 to 2.10 metres (about six feet), with fourteen to eighteen leaves to each plant, with a yield of 14 per cent. for filler for trees weighing 40 pounds and 60 per cent. of first-class leaf for wrappers, and the balance includes stems, stalks, etc. The average total cost per hectare (2,741 acres) in the Province was $736.44.

Again two well known and experienced tobacco planters of Pinar del Rio state that tobacco grown under cover will yield to the cabelleria 330 bales, instead of 150 by the ordinary method, producing leaves from 28 to 30 inches long by 14 to 16 inches wide in the proportion of 7 per cent. of the plant, but this may be because some planters have been planting two crops per annum under cover. The total number of plants laid out for the crop of 1902 and 1903 in all the island was about 1,260,628,800, which yielded approximately 399,020 bales, weighing 563,654 quintals, one quintal is equivalent to 46 kilograms (101 pounds) at an average price of $21.70 a bale and $15.70 per quintal.

Cigarette Factory in Corea.

The habit of cigarette smoking is growing in those countries which formerly used little or no tobacco, and also in those countries where the pipe was the usual method. Corea is a recent sample of this fact. A new enterprise has been started there, for the manufacture of cigarettes, in the city of Chemulpo, called the Chemulpo Cigarette and Tobacco Company. At first this company had in operation six cigarette making machines, but since the capacity has been doubled.

Three qualities of cigarettes are produced, the first made entirely of American tohacco, the second of a mixture of American and Corean tobacco, and the third entirely of native tobacco.

Cigarette smoking in Corea is replacing the pipe. Importations of cigarettes from Japan have not been able to meet the demand and the enterprise mentioned above has resulted. The activities will be extended to China and other Oriental countries as rapidly as possible.

Cheap Cigarettes.

THERE is great possibility of an interesting rate cutting war in the Dominion tobacco trade, says The Winnipeg Telegram, which will for the time being benefit the consumer, if no one else.

The American Tobacco Co. has been doing business in Canada for about 12 years, and until recently has had things pretty well its own way. Of late years, however, Canadian manufacturers of cigarettes have managed to make considerable headway in spite of the field being so much in the hands of the combine, and the result, according to certain dealers, is that the combine started on a policy of killing Canadian trade. It is alleged that the combine differentiates between the dealers, calling some of them consignees. To such consignees it offered special privileges, and in addition agreed to take any unsalable goods off their hands at cost. The consignees, on the other hand, had to agree not to handle the goods of other cigarette manufacturers unless obtained through the Trust.

Certain Winnipeg firms have complained again and again of the treatment meted out to independent concerns, and welcome accordingly the recent action of the Dominion Government in enforcing the law which practically nullifies the consignees' agreements and restores to every Canadian dealer full liberty of action to deal in his own or any other market without asking permission of the Trust.

It is surmised that the Trust may find a new means of carrying out its aims, i.e., rate-cutting. The Trust may decide to sell its goods at cost or even at a loss in order to force smaller manufacturers to come to terms. The outcome will be awaited with interest by the trade.

On September 8, Ottawa tobacconists received the following letter from the American Tobacco Co:

"Dear Sirs,—Recent legislation and the action of the government based upon it, make it necessary to cancel our contract with you relating to the sale of cigarettes and you are notified that this cancelation will take effect from this date. We hope that the withdrawal of this contract, which has been satisfactory to the trade and under which you have had a fair and reasonable profit on the sale of our goods will not prevent your making a satisfactory profit in the future.

"Our cigarettes will no longer be shipped on consignment, but will until further notice be sold to you, should you desire to obtain them, at the prices now prevailing; terms, 2 per cent. discount for payment within 30 days, freight prepaid.

"We offer you a rebate of 8 per cent. on cigarettes billed by us to you on the following terms: The rebate will only be paid providing we are satisfied that you have not sold any of our cigarettes at less than the retail prices as shown on our current selling price lists, as fixed from time to time. Dealers who sell at less than the list prices will not be allowed any rebate. We will remit you all rebates earned in respect of cigarettes purchased during any month, at the end of the next following month.

"Thanking you for your support in the past, and trusting for a continuance of the present cordial relations, we remain, yours very truly, The American Tobacco Co. of Canada."

This means that retail tobacconists hereafter will pay the same price for American Tobacco Co.'s cigarettes as before contracts were signed, and this decision also places them, so far as competition is concerned, on an equal footing with other companies.

Worthless Tobacco Destroyed.

A firm of customs brokers at Victoria, B.C., have destroyed about 20 tons of worthless tobacco which was recently shipped to them from the United States. The object of the shippers in sending it to a foreign country was to obtain a rebate of the stamp duty from the Washington authorities, to which they were entitled for doing so. The tobacco, it is believed, was originally exported to the Philippines from the States for the use of Uncle Sam's troops, but was found unsatisfactory and returned. A stamp duty was paid, but under the U.S. customs regulations part of the amount is refunded if the stuff is shipped abroad.

Tobacco Crops.

Word has been received from one of the largest tobacco growers in Western Ontario that the tobacco crop in the vicinity of Amherstburg will be very light this year. The chief cause is that the growers lost most of their young plants last spring in the hot beds when too late to secure others. The cold weather during the summer was against the development of the plant, but tobacco that has reached maturity is very good. If growers have good luck in cutting and curing the crop they will get better prices than last year.

The 1904 crop of Connecticut tobacco will be known as the best crop of tobacco in the past fifty years when it went into the sheds, but how it will come out of them is a question. The plants are so large that it will require one-quarter more curing space than the usual crop. It is too late now to build more shed room. If the weather for curing tobacco this year is not more favorable than it has been during the last few years, the prospects are for one of the worst pole sweat crops ever known.

Tobacco Notes.

Mr. T. M. Harris, wholesale and retail cigar dealer, Toronto, was married on September 6.

Mr. W. T. Rutherford, senior member of the firm of W. T. Rutherford & Co., wholesale cigar dealers, Winnipeg, is dead.

The consolidation of the American Tobacco Co., the Consolidated Tobacco Co. and the Continental Tobacco Co. into one corporation, to be known as the American Tobacco Co., is looked forward to at an early date. The earnings of these three companies in 1903 were over $22,000,000.

The Erie Tobacco Co., of Windsor, Ont., will shortly move its factory to Leamington, whence it came to Windsor three years ago. The company claims that concessions promised in the way of exemption from taxation and free water have not been carried out.

THE study of color effects is the basic study of the decorator's art. There is no need to be afraid of color. In fact, the decorator who will use color freely, firmly and liberally, and will induce his customers to have colors used according to his tastes, will find the homes he decorates improved 100 per cent.

Formerly the subdued wall papers gave no character to the walls, and did not help out the other home decorations. Now the whole room is enriched, the furniture is given a positive setting, and there is a reflection from the wall paper that gives the one essential of all the decorations of a room positive character.

It is sometimes a little difficult to convince a customer that bold colors are the proper ones to use. Many women think that washed-out comparatively insipid designs are more refined. However, it has been demonstrated that even green and blue, which often will hardly go together, can be made to harmonize beautifully. Colors seemingly in glaring contrast are brought together, and we find harmony. Put together properly, they are rich and in nowise obtrusive. In such cases we will generally find that somehow or other a little yellow is worked in. Yellow seems to be the color that links all others.

Of course we are not in favor of any glaringly incongruous effects in colors. Bold colors, to be artistic, must be used with particular care to be in harmony. The tendency toward such forms of richer harmony is growing stronger and the demand for bold designs and strong, striking colors will be even greater in the future than now.—Painter and Decorator.

Cured and Packed
Where Caught!

"Thistle" Brand Canned Fish.

One reason why the "Thistle" Brand of Canned Haddies, Kippered Herrings, etc., retain the rich, delicate flavor of the freshly-caught fish is because they are cured and packed right at the water side where they are caught.

There is no dirt, no slime in the "Thistle" Brand to spoil the natural flavor. There are no "odds and ends" thrown in in a hurry. The "Thistle" Brand contains nothing but carefully-selected fish—only the best will do for the "Thistle" Brand!

The cost per tin, or can, to clean, cure and pack the "Thistle" Brand is without doubt greater than the cost involved in marketing any other Brand in the country, yet the high quality has been steadily maintained from year to year even in the face of strong competition. The "Thistle" Brand competes on quality and not on price. It is the Standard Brand of Canned Fish!

Highest Quality Always.

Just like fishing

Building up trade is just like fishing.

If you use the right kind of bait and cast your line where the kind of fish you want are most plentiful, you'll quite likely get a number of bites.

Then if you go about it right you are pretty sure to land most of them.

Apply the illustration to business.

If you want to catch the grocery trade, cast your line where all the good grocers in Canada congregate every week —looking for bait to build up their businesses with — in THE CANADIAN GROCER. But

Suppose results don't come at fust
What be yew goin' tur dew?
Take out yewr ad, and kick yewrself,
An' go ter feelin' blew?
Uv course yew hain't; yew're goin' tew fish,
An' bait an' bait agin;
Bimeby some nibbles 'n bites 'll come,
Then yew'll pull 'em in.

Our Department of Advertising Service is now providing good bait for a number of our advertisers—and stands ready to help a few more in this connection.

Drop us a line about it.

Ceylon Teas

are

Green

—if you want them green.

Green Ceylons are yet something of a novelty, but not on that account to be regarded as unsafe.

Ceylon Green Teas

have established themselves solidly in the esteem of those whose business it is to know teas. The public, naturally, are slower in their appreciation, but time will work out the fact.

We emphasize Ceylon Green Teas for the benefit of those who think they must have green teas. Tea color is largely a matter of fancy.

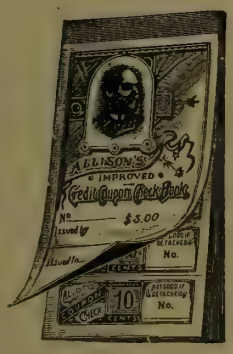
WILL IT NOT make you many profitable sales to keep Tanglefoot constantly at work within sight of every person who enters your store?

If You Have Money to Burn



Why! Go burn it. There is 10 times more satisfaction in burning money than in losing it in driblets, through carelessness of clerks, or disputed accounts. Who that has "pass-book" customers, has not had accounts disputed and partially repudiated? The best way to avoid all complications and misunderstandings is as follows:

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions

THERE is scarcely a merchant who will at the present day put himself on record as doubting the value of a well-dressed window. It is safe to say that, save in the most backward locality of the country, where no one bothers to attend to display of any kind, the successful merchant is in every case found to strive after attractive windiw displays. This fact alone would silence any argument brought against window dressing as a principle. But the merchant who allows an untidy, careless window never argues against the principle, he is in doubt as to the profit that would accrue to him from a display involving both time and expense.

That he will admit the value as a principle should convince him that even in his case there might be profit. Where he so easily deceives himself, is in his idea of the time and expense involved. Neat windows more or less attractive take very little time and can be arranged at no expense worth mentioning. An empty window would be preferable to the dirty, careless windows so often seen, but an hour or two a week would bring results which would change the tone and quantity of business done, and convince the most hard-headed, old-fashioned merchant that window dressing pays. The excuse so often heard that "I have no time," is usually the merchant's interpretation of "I have no inclination," or "I'm too lazy," and the expense cry is, on the face of it. given without any practical idea as to the expense to be incurred. When such a small amount of time and practically no expense is required to produce passable windows, what excuse has the believer in methods of fifty years ago for persevering in his unprogressive ideas?

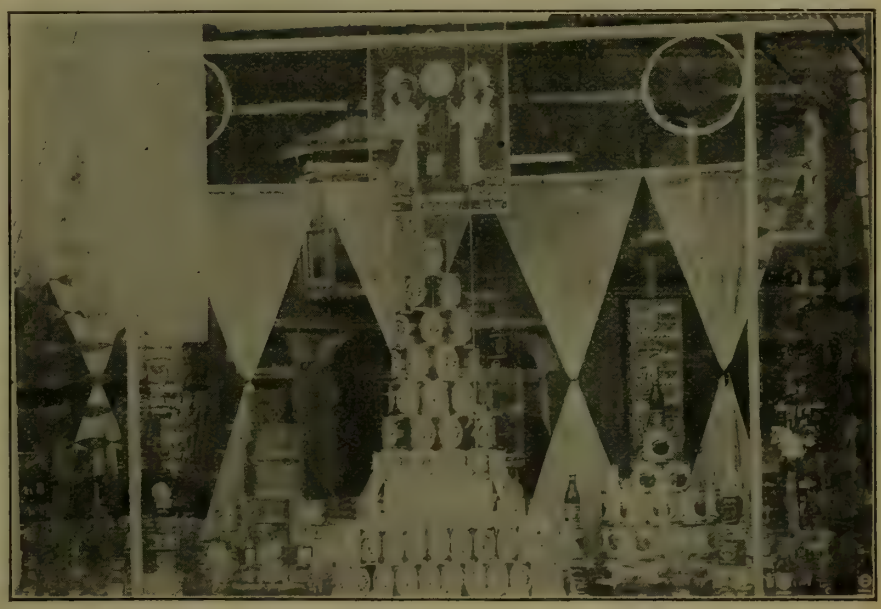
Man's dislike of untidiness should be sufficient incentive to neat displays. It will always be found that the store exhibiting neatness in the interior, makes some effort to decorate its windows. This the public knows, and concludes that a well-dressed window betokens a neat interior, a careful merchant, and an up-to-date stock.

If window dressing pays, and time cannot be set apart for it the conclusion follows that an extra clerk is required. Window dressing in any community brings as good results as any other feature of the store system. Not only are the direct returns worth considering, but the indirect profits are a big item as well and require just as close attention as an actual customer.

The value of a good window can never be accurately or even approximately calculated, and the merchant who commences dressing his windows after years of inattention to them, only realizes how much they pay, after the work has been continued for a year or more. The expense of a couple of dollars in a window display may not sell that amount of goods apparently, but the moral benefit is worth many times the money spent.

One of the good results of window dressing is the superior class of custom it draws. The wealthy and the good housekeeper (the buyer whose custom counts) will assuredly not patronize the store with untidy windows, but will go where business is carried on under conditions that show progress and a desire to please. It is through his windows that the merchant shows the public that he is after trade and is willing to exert himself to get it. The customer whom the merchant seeks, takes his trade where appreciation is shown, and in modern business a carelessly dressed window denotes a carelessly managed business.

There are so many other good qualities guaranteed in a merchant who has good window displays that the public trust him and feel more sure of being suited in the stock carried, in his method of doing business and in the cleanliness of the goods. The attractive window follows the advertisement in the local paper, and attracts inside the people who have read the paper. Once inside it rests with the salesmen to bring about a sale; two thirds of the battle, however, is won when the customer enters. "Goods that are well shown are half sold."



Arranged by T. A. Hammill for D. Almas & Son, Hagersville, Ont.

The small merchant on the side street argues that dressed windows do him very little good, as he has his regular customers. At the same time his most regular customer will buy on his trips to other parts of the town, if he is stopped on the street by a window display. The elaborate windows of the departmental store may not be suited to the small merchant, but they are not necessary. Neatness and effect can be obtained without nearly so much spectacular display, and the feeling of confidence inspired by such inexpensive but expressive windows will prevent surrounding residents from buying elsewhere. No merchant is too small to profit by a carefully arranged window, and no business is too steady to be uninfluenced by the neater, more attractive windows of a rival. The life of the larger business depends upon its push and wide-awakedness, and even the volume of business done depends to a certain extent upon the slowness and backwardness of small side street merchants who argue that their business does not demand a well-arranged window.

To get an idea of the value of the store front appealing to the public, it is only necessary to observe present-day conditions. All large businesses pay strict attention to their windows. An attractive display will stop a crowd any day. An article seen in a window will prompt a forgetful memory. Luxuries and lines other than staples can be successfully brought before the public in no other way. A common sense appreciation of these facts is all that is required to convert the most pronounced antiquarian as far as correct window-display is concerned.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELING IN CANADA.

THE following letter received from an eastern correspondent serves as additional proof that Canadian business men not only read The Grocer, but consider it one of the best possible mediums for the discussion of matters of public interest :

Editor Canadian Grocer :

Permit me to express my appreciation of the reproduction in your valuable journal of the correspondence published in the Birmingham Daily Post, between "Correspondent" and Mr. P. B. Ball, the Commercial Agent for Canada in Birmingham, on "Commercial Traveling in Canada." If you will not consider it presumptuous on my part, I am of the opinion that the gentleman who signed himself "Correspondent" is one too many for Mr. Ball. I consider Mr. Ball's reply to his first letter sadly lacking in logic and judgment. It is not my intention to discuss the relative merits of the different letters, but I do consider that it is most essential to do justice to Canada in the eyes of the people of the Mother Country, particularly to the readers of the Birmingham Daily Post, that such subjects should be discussed and Canada's methods of doing business, her transportation facilities and customs regulations, be upheld by a more liberal and broad-minded critic that Mr. Ball. In my opinion the reply by "Correspondent," which you publish in your last issue, does not leave a single argument brought forward by Mr. Ball in reply to "Correspondent's" first letter unanswered. I presume that part of the duties of Mr. Ball, as Canadian Commercial Agent, is to foster and encourage a closer commercial relationship between the Mother Country and Canada. A commercial agent, however, who ridicules the experience of any commercial traveler who wishes to expound his views through the medium of the public press, and resorts to personalities, as Mr. Ball certainly did, is sadly lacking in judgment.

He evidently wished to hold up "Correspondent" as an ignoramus, but "Correspondent's" reply shows that this is far from being the case.

There is no doubt that English business men are, as a rule, far from conversant with the methods of doing business in Canada, with the requirements of the Canadian market, and the class of goods wanted by the Canadian buyer. I presume as Canadian Commercial Agent it is part of Mr. Ball's duty to enlighten the English manufacturer and dealer on this subject; I do not believe it is his duty to hold up to ridicule in the eyes of the people a gentleman who went through the trying ordeal of a first trip through Canada, where conditions are so different from those of the Mother Country.

I believe that "Correspondent's" sole motive in writing to the press was to give a few friendly pointers to any manufacturer or traveler contemplating an initial trip to Canada, and if his views were not exactly in accord with those of Mr. Ball I believe Mr. Ball could have framed his reply in a more diplomatic and courteous manner.

There is no doubt that we travelers on the road, who meet some representatives from the Old Country on their first trip to Canada, see some amusing incidents, and are sometimes tempted to repeat them at his expense, but put the shoe on the other foot, and send over one of our most experienced Canadian travelers on a trip through Great Britain, he would appear equally odd. Let us remember that these English gentlemen who come out here carry home impressions, either favorable or otherwise, so let us boys on the road give them a helping hand, a kind word, and be more charitable to our brothers from over the sea. When they return they will have nothing but good to say of Canada and the Canadians, thus adding another link to bind the Empire closer together.

Explain to Your Customers Why the Japs are so successful.

You will be healthier if you eat dried fish like the Japanese.

Have you noticed that the leading medical authorities are drawing attention to the fact that the food of the fighting Japs consists largely of dried fish and connect their success to a large extent with this fact.

It may seem strange to the average reader that this diet should have so much to do with success.

But it is a fact that dried fish is both a wholesome and nutritious diet, and especially valuable as a brain food.

The moral of this is that it would do Canadians good to eat less meat and more of "Halifax" and "Acadia" Brands of Prepared Codfish—the nicest form of dried fish on the market.

Fresh and Cured Fish

Scotch Fishermen to Come to Canada.

MR. J. MACKENZIE, of the firm of Mackenzie Bros., of Stornoway, Scotland, an authority on the Scotch herring fisheries has suggested the emigration of Scotch fishermen to Canada believing they would prove a great acquisition to the Canadian herring fisheries which are now being experimented with in Nova Scotia. He writes as follows:

"I venture to bring under your notice the development of the Canadian herring fishing in Nova Scotia, now being experimented on. From my personal experience I am satisfied there is a great future before this industry.

"The herring fisheries of Scotland are at present in a state of transition, steam vessels taking the place of sailing boats, causing hundreds of first-class fishermen, who have not the funds to purchase steam, to fall behind. These men, to my mind, would prove a splendid acquisition to your populace, and, added to these we have even in this district a large number of skilled coopers, whose occupation is being wiped out by the introduction of machine-made barrels. Female expert fish workers, chiefly single women, could also be obtained in this district, and an exodus of such skilled workers would not only benefit the Lewes, but, I think, add to the extension of an additional important industry in your direction."

Codfish in the Grocery Store.

To grocers desiring to stock prepared codfish for which the demand is continually improving it will come as welcome news that Black Bros. & Co.'s prepared codfish, "Acadia" brand, may be placed in immediate proximity to any other goods in a grocery store, without the least danger of the latter absorbing or acquiring any bad odors, etc. The codfish itself is absolutely non-odoriferous, on account of the particular process employed in preparation, and the fact of the enclosing packages being constructed of non-porous wood. This brand of prepared codfish has for years been a regular item in the itinerary of the finest groceries in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, both in Summer and Winter, which cater to what is known as "the gilt-edged trade."

Newfoundland Fisheries.

The departmental councils of Seine-Inferieure, Ille-et-Vilaine, and Loire-Inferieure have been passing resolutions with the object of obtaining further concessions for French fishermen on the Newfoundland coast before the Anglo-French treaty is ratified. Among other things, the councils demand the repeal of the Newfoundland Bait Act, the authorization for French fishermen to purchase bait along the entire coast, and the right to erect establishments for the curing of fish and lobsters on the French shore.

If the French Chamber of Deputies listens to these petitions of the departmental councils and refuses to sign the Anglo-French treaty until the above concessions are granted, the whole treaty will, in all probability, fall to pieces. Great Britain has, however, conceded so much to France in order to deliver her colony from foreign dictation that the Chamber of Deputies is hardly likely to turn its back upon so much good fortune.

Halifax Fish Firm Burned Out.

Halifax has been visited with another severe conflagration, the second within two weeks. Among those destroyed was the warehouse of Black Bros. & Co., Limited, the well-known fish house packers of Acadia and Halifax brands. The warehouse was a three and a half storey wooden building, which was also used partly for storing hardware. The stock of dried fish was a prey to the flames.

Pickford & Black's three-storey warehouse, and Leslie, Hart & Co.'s were also among the sufferers.

Fish Notes.

It is reported that $1,000,000 worth of fish were destroyed in the big Halifax fire last week.

As a result of a complaint made by Western Ontario fishermen regarding the tardy opening of the fishing season in Canadian waters, Mr. Bastedo, deputy commissioner of the Ontario Department of Fisheries, has given consent to allow them to commence fishing operations at once.

The question of co-operating with the United States in regard to the protection of the British Columbia fisheries is engaging the attention of Dominion Government and it is believed that the invitation from Washington to hold a joint conference may be accepted.

NEW YORK FIRM ENTERTAINS.

The last of a series of entertainments by Francis H. Leggett & Co., wholesale grocers, New York, to some 300 of their town and country patrons was given on Wednesday, Sept. 7.

A reception was held in the Franklin street offices by Mr. F. H. Leggett, after which the guests were escorted to the factory, where they were shown the methods and processes employed in manufacturing, preparing and packing "Premier" products, (one of the specialties of this New York house). Luncheon was then served, consisting entirely of foods prepared on the premises, and interesting address delivered by Mr. J. C. Juhring, vice-president and secretary of the firm, Mr. R. N. Conger of the Sheldon School of Scientific Salesmanship, Messrs. T. M. Letson, J. B. Jones, E. J. Gage, and C. A. Hamner, on topics of interest to the retail grocery trade.

The entertainment was concluded by a sail around Manhattan Island.

The issue is a creditable one, containing copious reviews of various departments of the grocery trade, as well as a fac simile of the title page of the first edition of the American Grocer, dated Sept. 15, 1869.

One of the most interesting and attractive official publications of the Canadian Government in years is a book of colored cartoons, issued recently by the Hon. Clifford Sifton and dedicated to Canada, the granary of the world. The cartoons are cleverly wrought out, the object being to impress probable immigrants with a sense of Canada's vast resources.

Through the courtesy of the executive of the Vancouver Board of Trade, The Grocer has received a copy of the seventeenth annual report of this progressive western organization. The report follows in detail the transactions of the board during the year 1903-'04, and contains a valuable resume of commercial and industrial conditions in British Columbia, in addition to a number of representative half-tone illustrations.

Government exhibit at the St. Louis Exposition, has presented The Grocer with a copy of the official handbook of Ceylon for 1904. It takes the form of a condensed octavo volume, brim full of interesting information about the "Sunny Isle." Not the least interesting feature is a series of illustrations of characteristic scenes in this great tea producing district.

The Grocer has pleasure in commenting favorably on a prize essay by A. M. Payne, of Halifax, N. S., on the subject of "Halifax, the Key of the Dominion." Within brief compass the writer has succeeded in giving an interesting historical sketch, as well as the outstanding features of Halifax as a trade and shipping centre for the Dominion of Canada.

HAMILTON RETAIL GROCERS MEET

At the regular monthly meeting of the Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association last week, it was decided to prosecute in future all clerks caught pilfering from their employers. A resolution was adopted officially thanking the grocery travelers and the clerks for their assistance in connection with the games at the annual picnic.

A discussion took place on the question of the association doing its members' collecting, but no definite action was taken. Mutilated coin will be discussed at the next meeting of the association.

CROCKERY DEPARTMENT

How Venetian Glass is Made.

AMONG the lagoons, nearly due north of Venice, is the Island of Murano made famous by those light, thin blown, shapely colored glass miracles, in the manufacture of which the glass-makers of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries astonished the world and made those graceful vases, bowls, goblets, decanters, and wine glasses which in harmonious admixture of metal, form and outline, and masterly finish, will ever stand as the highest possible achievements of skilled handicraft.

The old Venetian glass was blown off-hand, but the name gives a very small idea of the manufacture. Glass has certain characteristics which give it its true beauty and value for art purposes, and though you may neglect these and force it to take forms utterly foreign to its nature, you are producing, not works of art, but monstrosities. Whatever glass may be, it is in its natural state not crystalline, so that nature is ennobled when we grind it into sharp angular lines that belong rather to other materials. The old Venetian glass was light, bright, vitreous, and all these qualities are retained in the newly revived manufacture at Murano. There is one more strong point in favor of glass blown and worked over that moulded—namely that every individual piece is an original work of human art, and as it is almost impossible that any two should be exactly alike, unless their form is very simple indeed, the buyer chooses according to his fancy, and is sure that no one else possesses a piece of exactly the same shape and size. The Murano material is worked as the ancient Venetian glass made on the same island used to be, and all the old methods have been discovered, or at least the same effects have been produced. The flamma, perhaps more strange than beautiful, the millefiore, the smelze, including perfect imitations of agates, chalcedons, lapis lazuli, etc., for mosaic and aqua marine, rich ruby colors, the brilliant aventurino, all are here, and many other kinds of work, some of which are imitations of the old glass and some new inventions.

The tools used are a hollow pipe of iron, a few instruments like shears, of different sizes, and a stamp with a strawberry shaped die. The end of the rod is dipped into molten glass of, say, ruby color, and a portion gathered on its end. If too much or too little is taken, the wineglass will not be of the right size, and if the metal, as it is called, is not too dark or too light, the lump is rolled on a table into symmetry and heated again. A few turns of the pipe and a breath or two through it, and a hollow ball appears at the end. One extra puff of the breath and the bowl will be too large and too thin. A boy brings up a small portion of white glass, which he has gathered out of another pot and blown hollow. This must be so hot as almost to drop off the rod, and must be ready at the exact moment. He touches the bowl with it, and the two adhere like sealing wax. A pull asunder and one dextrous twist form the delicate stem of the wineglass, upon which three little lumps of glass are then stuck and stamped as strawberries, and the whole is again introduced into the furnace, where it would instantly droop out of shape but for the deft manipulation which it undergoes. By the time it is heated the boy is ready with another globe of glass, perhaps of a different color, which he causes to adhere to the bottom of the stem. The man spins it around between his shears, nipping part of it off, and thus gaining the right quantity of metal for the foot, no less and no more. One tap of the pincers breaks off the superfluous piece, and leaves a small hole at the point of fracture. Once more the action of the fire is called in to soften the brittle material, and when the pear-shaped end comes out, the points of the closed shears are introduced to widen the opening into a cup-like form. A small lump of aventurino is by this time on the end of the boy's rod, melted and only saved from dropping by his dexterity. One touch and it adheres to the end of a cup just formed. He pulls it out, and winds it around, adhering as it goes to the edge. Again the fire does its duty, and then the artist finishes the form of the foot, detaching immediately the bulb at the top from his hollow rod. Another rod, with a molten piece of glass is prepared for him by the boy's ready co-operation, and is pressed against the centre of the foot, to which it adheres. Into the fire goes the whole piece, and when withdrawn the bowl of the glass is partly shaped by the shears, aventurino wound around the edge as before with the foot, a last heat, and with artistic care the delicate, crocus-like bowl, which is some day to contain the sparkling wine, is completed.

Metallic Lustre on Ceramics, Etc.

MR. RICHARD ZSIGMONDY, doctor of philosophy, of Blumenstrasse. Jena, Saxe-Weimar, Germany, has recently patented improvements in producing a coating of metallic lustre on ceramic objects, enamels, glasses,etc. The present invention presents a cheap way of producing metallic lustre on ceramic objects as well as of preparing lustre metals.

The reduced silver resulting from Mr. Zsigmondy's process is not fire-proof in itself however, and when burnt in, as usual, in muffles lost its lustre partly by oxidation partly by molecular variation. In order to elaborate a useful process on the basis of these facts the following problems had to be solved: (1) To prevent the reduced silver from losing its lustre. (2) For the purpose of imitating metals or alloys which reflect yellow, or yellowish-green, or red, to modify the silver-lustre by suitable additions. (3) To make the coatings sufficiently adhere to the objects. All these requirements have been met successfully by employing certain preparations and deviating from the common process of burning in the lustre-metals in muffle-furnaces under red heat.

Terra-Cotta Building in Pittsburg.

Word has been received that a new building, twelve storeys high, which is to be built for a Pittsburg firm, is to be constructed throughout of white enamelled terra-cotta. It is anticipated that the highly glazed surface of this material will enable it to be readily washed—an important consideration in so grimy an atmosphere, but one would imagine that considerable labor will be entailed by the cleansing of so great a wall area. Perhaps the fire engines will be called into use for this purpose. If so it will afford a good test of the power attributed to terra-cotta of resisting all forms of attrition.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S POLICY AND THE CANADIAN PROVISION TRADE.

THE provision merchants of Canada are not losing any sleep over Mr. Chamberlain's proposed duty on provisions imported by Great Britain from the colonies, preferring to see a promise of preferential treatment beneath the surface of the Welbeck address.

Undoubtedly a tariff wall against Canadian products such as meats, cheese, butter and eggs, would be a serious blow to the Canadian export trade. In the face of the fact, however, that there is not sufficient acreage nor facilities within the bounds of Great Britain to grow nearly enough provisions to supply the home consumptive demand, it is hardly likely that Mr. Chamberlain will be a party to increasing the cost of what has to be imported from the colonies.

The cheese trade would suffer most, since Canada has a practical monopoly of cheese in Great Britain. In the matter of bacon Canadian exporters would undoubtedly feel the weight of a heavy duty, as this department of the provision trade is becoming an increasingly important item in the yearly export list. A duty on fresh, chilled and cured meats would militate principally against the United States, which exports to England annually large quantities of barrel pork, etc. In regard to bacon, however, since the Canadian article compares so favorably with the Danish and Irish products, which are the only lines of bacon it has to compete with, the Canadian provision trade ventures to express the opinion that Canada can hold her own, even if the duty is imposed, provided only she is placed on an even footing with her competitors, notwithstanding the disadvantage of great distance. The same remarks apply to the butter and egg trades, which are steadily improving on the whole on account of the excellent transportation and cold storage facilities provided by trans-Atlantic steamship companies.

Cool Cured Cheese.

JUDGING from the greater demand for cool cured cheese which exists this season, Old Country merchants are beginning to realize more fully the advantage there is handling cheese which have not been exposed during the process of curing to a temperature higher than sixty degrees. Cheese factories able to offer strictly cool cured cheese are deriving so much benefit that it must be only a question of time, a short time in fact, until all factories are equipped with proper cool curing rooms.

The experience gained at the Government cool curing rooms has demonstrated that, while the first requisite is to control the temperature, it is also necessary to provide for some circulation of the air to carry off the moisture escaping from the cheese, and which comes from the increased relative humidity due to the reduction of temperature. If the relative humidity is too high the cheese will have soft skins and develop a tendency to mould badly.

The system adopted at the Government curing rooms has worked admirably, and can be employed without difficulty and at a moderate cost in connection with any cheese factory. Indeed, a large number of factory curing rooms have already been remodeled on this system. The necessary alterations and additions involve the putting in of a cement concrete floor, some extra insulation, and the erection of an ice chamber.

The question of the cool curing of cheese is one in which the patrons of cheese factories should take the keenest interest, because they will gain more through its adoption than any other section of the trade. They should be willing to bear a share at least of the expense of refitting the factory. The present scale of charges for manufacturing cheese based on the old plan, is too low to secure a good service.

Some of the factories with cool cured cheese have during the present season been getting one-fourth of a cent above the highest price paid for the ordinary cured article, and there is not the slightest doubt but the difference will be greater as cool cured cheese become better known. In addition to the increased price there is a saving in shrinkage of about one and a half per cent.

Canadian Meat Trade in Great Britain.

IN his last report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, J. B. Jackson, Canadian Commercial Agent in Leeds and Hull, Eng., says that although a large trade is done in Canadian cattle, there are drawbacks to the extension of this trade on account of the regulations that cattle have to be slaughtered at the ports. Until these regulations are rescinded he would suggest that a greater quantity of dressed meat be shipped from Canada, in which line there is a great future before the Canadian exporter. Chilled meat sells in Great Britain for almost the same price as fresh meat, the price at present retail being from 20c to 26c per lb. The cost of transportation of the live animal, feeding, attendance, lairage, etc., must of necessity be very much greater than the freight on the dressed meat, and with proper cold storage on steamer and at port the dressed meat business should not only be very much safer but also much more remunerative than that in live stock. The risk in shipping meat in this way is also much minimized.

There is also a splendid opening for a strong Canadian company exporting dressed meat, and with adequate cold storage facilities at British ports and in the interior cities, such a company could do a very large, remunerative and ever-increasing business, and easily compete not only with the American but especially with Australian and New Zealand exporters. Dressed meat exported from Australia and New Zealand into the United Kingdom is growing into vast proportions, the "Canterbury" lamb being quite a feature in the English meat markets. The carcasses arrive as a general rule in prime condition, and the "Colonial" lamb is preferred by many to the home-grown lamb.

It would be well for our Canadian exporters who are interested in the cattle trade to fully discuss this question, as it would undoubtedly mean extending Canadian trade to a very large extent. It would involve considerable expense, as proper cold storage would have to be obtained at London, Liverpool and Manchester, and would best be done by a large corporation organized jointly in Canada and Great Britain, who would own their own cold storage at the ports and principal centres in Great Britain.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Meats—Conditions in the smoked meat market tend to make it very strong. The demand is well sustained considering the small stocks carried. These are getting very low and roll bacon is difficult to obtain even at the half cent advance of this week. One condition that will count against smoked meats is the fact that fewer lumbermen are going into camp this Fall than for several years past, on account of the poor season of last year. This, however, will have only a minor effect on account of the shortage of supplies. In fresh meats the market is quiet and no change is quoted except in Spring lamb and light hogs both of which have declined. We quote:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$ 0 08½	$0 08½

Butter—As one dealer puts it there is no backbone in the butter market. Prices remain lower than usual although this week there is a little stiffening up. Receipts of creamery butter are larger, and there is a slight improvement in the amount of dairy prints coming forward. These will not be shipped in large quantities, however, until the factories close. A larger range is quoted this week, the higher price being for extra good quality. We quote for this week:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 19	0 21
" solids, fresh	0 18	0 20
Dairy prints	0 15	0 17

Cheese—The cheese market is fairly strong in spite of unsatisfactory conditions abroad. Although the price on the boards is not too high, the falling off in demand in the English market is being felt in Canada. Conditions are bad over there and a curtailment in the consumption of cheese is noticeable. No doubt if it could be sold more cheaply the demand would be stimulated, but makers here are unwilling to agree to this. This week prices are quoted a quarter cent higher all around. Board meetings for the week ending September 20, resulted as follows:

Montreal.

Provisions—The provision market has been very firm, although no actual change has taken place in the condition of the market. Nearly a thousand dressed hogs arrived in the market Monday morning on through shipments for export account. The condition of the market for live hogs is very steady, owing to the small offerings and the demand from packers' being very good. Sales were made at $5.50 to $5.60 for selected lots, and $5.25 for mixed lots, and at $5 for heavy per hundred pounds. In fresh killed abbatoir dressed stock, considerable trade was done and prices were unchanged, at $7.75 per hundred pounds. Pure lard is very strong in tone and there seems to be an easing off in demand for hams and bacon, while the demand for pork is improving. We quote:

Canadian short cut mess pork	$17 00	$18 00
American short cut clear	16 50	17 00

Cheese—There is some improvement in the cheese market, as there was a better enquiry. Buyers, however, were still backward about conceding the full figures asked in some cases. On Monday morning, 5,000 boxes were sold at the wharf freely at 8 3-4c, in one lot competition was so keen that they sold for 9c. Spot quotations are finest Ontarios, 9 1-8 to 9 1-4c; finest Easterns, 9c to 9 1-8c; and finest Quebecs, 8 7-8 to 9c.

Cheese Exports—The exports for the week ending September 19, were 76,081 boxes; of this 68,425 boxes were local export, and 7,656 were through. Compared with the corresponding week of last year, the exports were 106,371 boxes.

Butter—A sharp advance in the butter market during the week attracted some attention. The advance was 1 1-2c in England. Some of the best informed merchants in the trade seemed unable to explain what occasioned the advance. Its effect, however, on the local market was very marked. At first, prices were marked up 1-4 of a cent on receipt of the news; 500 odd boxes of Quebec creamery sold as high at 20c, being an advance of 1c per lb. on the previous week's basis. On spot, finest Townships are held at 20 1-4c to 20 3-8c, and finest Quebecs, 20c to 20 1-8c, while undergrade range down to 18 1-2c. Second quality seemed to be in pretty fair supply, and one merchant claimed that he had been compelled to accept 18c for some butter in order to make a sale. Fresh dairies are scarce, and 15c to 15 1-2c would be paid for them. It is stated that London is not buying at all, the orders being principally from Liverpool and other northerly points. Factorymen were receiving 19 3-4c for choice make at cold store, during the week. The 20c mark may be said to have been realized.

Butter Exports—The total exports of butter amounted to 28,110 boxes. Of this 25,537 were local. For the corresponding week of last year the shipments were 19,383 boxes. English Butter Market Quiet.

DOWDALL BROS., of Manchester, write as follows under date of September 3rd, regarding the butter market: "During the week the strong brisk tone which has prevailed for some time has been less noticeable. Notwithstanding reports of smaller arrivals in Denmark of both Danish and foreign, trade is inactive. Prices are, however, fairly well maintained. German markets are also reported rather weaker. Co enhagen telegraphs that orders from Great Britain are again curtailed, which may be due to holidays in the large northern industrial centres. Irish reports indicate a large and rapid shrinkage in production. Prices remain unchanged, and still show extremely good value compared with other classes.

QUEBEC EXHIBITION.

Among Montreal exhibitors at the Quebec Provincial Exhibtion Sept 1—10, were The Duncan Co., manufacturers of "Chaser" soap, who had a fine display of this popular product, as well as of premiums.

Mr. W. J. Condron was in charge of the Duncan Co's. exhibit, and as an old experienced grocery salesman did good work.

Mr. J. H. Maiden manufacturer of "San Toy" starch and "Eagle" Baking Powder had a particularly effective exhibit of his varied lines, the merits of which were keenly appreciated by exhibition visitors if one were to judge from the amount of sampling done.

Back again——

We are at last settled in our old premises—corner Scott and Front Sts. — glad to be rid of the inconveniences of temporary premises—WE HAVE AN ENTIRELY NEW STOCK—and while we are still short on some lines, these are being filled in as rapidly as the transportation companies can bring the goods from the point of production. WE ARE IN A BETTER POSITION THAN EVER to look after the requirements of our customers and the trade generally.

Mr. George Tuckett, president Tuckett & Son Tobacco Co., Limited, Hamilton, was a visitor to Montreal during the past week.

Mr. Henry Wright, of the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Toronto, is in Montreal attending the convention of the Manufacturers' Association.

Mr. Wm. Dobie, general manager of E. W. Gillett Co., Toronto, accompanied by Mrs. Dobie, left on Saturday last on a visit to friends in Chicago and St. Louis.

A visitor to the Montreal trade this week is Mr. F. Roblin, Ontario and Eastern Quebec representative of the Hamilton Distillery Co., Limited, Hamilton.

Mr. Geo. W. Baines, representing the Preston Metallic Shingle and Siding Co., Limited, Preston, Ont., is in Montreal this week. Business is reported up to the limit.

Mr. G. J. Wilson has resigned his position as general manager of the British Columbia Packers' Association. He will be succeeded by Mr. W. H. Barker, of Astoria, Oregon, whose long experience in the cannery business on the Columbia River eminently fits him him for the position.

Mr. Jason S. Creed, Montreal, Canadian agent for Lipton's jams, jellies, and pickles, has returned from a three months' thorough canvass of the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Creed's success is reported by him as most satsfactory, in fact, he feels satisfied the grocery trade has found a brand reliable in every way. Mr. H. S. Wallace, his Toronto representative, also sends in most satisfactory business and reports encouraging trade prospects.

A HALIFAX VISITOR.

Among the numerous callers at the Toronto offices of The Canadian Grocer this week was Mr. F. K. Warren, of the Dominion Molasses Co., Halifax. Mr. Warren is spending a few weeks in Ontario and Quebec in the interests of his firm, and reports that the volume of business resulting from this trip will be considerably larger than that of any previous campaign.

It looks as if West Indian molasses was gradually getting a firmer grip on the Ontario market, and the opinion has been expressed in trade circles that it will not be long before this section of the molasses trade will be as important an item as it is in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces where West Indian molasses is classed as one of the necessities of life.

The Purity Mfg. Co., Toronto, are about to establish a soap factory at the corner of Florence street and Brock avenue.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

E. D. Marceau, Montreal, reports arrival into stock this week of 20 packages choicest high-grade Formosa Oolongs.

Expected within a few days by the F. J. Castle Co., Limited, Ottawa, a carload of Santa Clara prunes, "Carnation" brand, new pack.

James Rutherford & Co., Montreal are offering special values this week in Ping Sueys, Gunpowders, Moyunes.

Owing to favorable market as advised by E. D. Marceau, Montreal, in his ad. lately, Condor Japan teas are of higher grade and less money than previous years.

White & Co., Toronto, have received their first shipment of Cape Cod cranberries for the season.

The F. J. Castle Co., Limited, Ottawa, Ont., have received into store the first car of new pack salmon, O-Wee-Kay-No brand. These should be ready sellers under the present condition of the market.

Wilson's fly pads are now being advertised in five hundred and one Canadian newspapers.

"Wee Macgreegor" Breakfast Food is having a very large sale with the F. J. Castle Co., Limited, Ottawa.

The first car of Jamaica oranges of the season has been received by White & Co., Toronto. The quality is excellent and the fruit exceptionally sweet for the season.

PROGRESSIVE FIRM.

The Grocer has received the official announcement that the capital stock of the Mooney Biscuit and Candy Co., Stratford, Ont., has been increased from $100,000 to $250,000.

MEXICAN STEAMSHIP SERVICE.

It is understood that the subsidy demanded for the proposed steamship service between Canada and Mexico via the Atlantic Ocean is much larger than the two Governments had expected. As a result direct communication may have to be confined to the Pacific Coast alone. If President Diaz's Government is ready to increase the appropriation Canada would no doubt gladly follow suit, so as to enable steamers to be put on the regular service along the east as well as the west coast.

CANADIAN TRADE STATISTICS.

A better showing is made by Canada's export trade for August than was made in previous months. The agricultural industry is the one which shows the greatest improvement. The exportation of animals and their produce exhibits a gain of $578,000, whilst in exports of agricultural produce there was an improvement of $119,469. Fishery exports were better by $29,000. There was, however, a decline of $2,206,467 in exports of mine products, and in imports of dutiable goods for consumption a gain of $200,000. Taking the first two months of the present fiscal year, the showing is not a very good one, but it is due to the temporary setback of trade in July.

The total imports for consumption in July and August were $40,499,000, and the duties $6,782,568. Last year's figures were $41,030,289, and $6,720,777. The exports of domestic products only were $35,680,255, as compared with $39,855,302.

For the month of August the imports for consumption were $22,479,102, as against $22,315,725 for the same period last year. The exports of domestic produce amounted to $21,824,954, a decrease of $1,671,831 as compared with August 1903.

Years and Years!

For years and years the most persistent buyers of Windsor Salt have been the most successful cooks. One woman has told another about the salt that doesn't cake, the salt of unequalled purity, whiteness, dryness, and each woman is a link in the chain that has been forged from one little word, "confidence."

A woman can make or mar your success in business. She can influence trade—above all, she does like to talk. Think of the cumulative effect of years and years of constant talking—constant praise for Windsor Salt.

MONOPOLY OF MEDICINE TRADE?

ONE of the most interesting developments in Canadian trade circles during the last few months is the joint agreement of some 25 Canadian wholesale drug firms and the Retail Merchants' Association, whereby the former shall have exclusive control of the sale of proprietary medicines in Canada. To this end the wholesale drug trade is making an effort to form an alliance with the Proprietary Medicine Association — with little or no success, it is believed—offering to take their entire output, the proposed object being to prevent the cutting of rates on patent medicines.

Already a large number of retail druggists have become parties to what is known as "the trade improvement scheme." It is believed that the promoters hope to secure the names of two-thirds of the retail drug trade; they will then go to the medicine manufacturers and say, you must sell to us exclusively else we will boycott your products. On the surface it is dificult to see where the general merchant or the wholesale grocer stands to profit by the trade improvement scheme. The former is, in many outlying districts, the only medium for the sale of patent medicines and it is well known that a number of the leading wholesale grocery firms in Canada make a feature of their patent medicine trade. Perhaps the wholesale druggists hope to secure the co-operation of Canadian wholesale grocers by allowing them to come into the combine on certain hard and fast conditions. If such is their intention they may as well give it up as hopeless since the wholesale grocery trade will not suffer dictation from any source. One case in point is that of a prominent Montreal wholesale grocer who has refused point blank to enter into any agreement which would not allow him a free hand in his patent medicine department.

The aim of the association is undoubtedly to block wholesale grocers and general merchants from selling proprietary medicines. From present indications, however, it does not look as if they would realize their ambition, because the medicine manufacturers prefer to sell to whomever and on whatever conditions they wish. On the other hand 33⅓ per eent. of the retail druggists in the Dominion in conjunction with the general mercantile trade can effectually hinder the introduction of a uniform scale of prices throughout the country which is ostensibly the aim of the Wholesale Druggists Association. There are always job lots of patent medicines available and the outside retail drug and general trades will cut and slash prices on these to spite their fellow tradesmen on the inside if for no other reason.

CARELESS LETTER DELIVERY.

THE case of Mr. Chouillou, of Montreal, reported in another column, brings into prominence a state of affairs which is, to say the least, most unpleasant. Mr. Chouillou, a prominent citizen of Montreal, and a man whose honesty it would be insulting to question, was accused in the courts of having received and opened letters not intended for him. In the trial, which ensued, it was shown that Mr. Chouillou was constantly receiving letters on which the addresses were misspelt, and that when the letters, concerning which he was accused came to hand, it was quite natural for him to conclude that they were intended for him.

While it may appear that in many cases the writers of letters are to blame and while it is certain that the postoffice authorities are not expected to be infallible, yet it must be admitted that there is too much carelessness in the handling of letters by the postoffice authorities.

There seems to be an amazing amount of carelessness in the delivering of letters at the Montreal postoffice. Letters come to the MacLean Publishing Co. addressed to J. C. MacLean, McGill street, to the Dominion Publishing Co., the Dominion Gazette, and the Military Publishing Co., none of which have anything about them similar to the proper address. It would be impossible to detail the scores of faulty addresses that continually pour into this office, and which must not only cause annoyance to the postoffice officials, but to those persons for whom these letters and parcels are properly intended. The Chouillou case should be taken to heart by the postoffice officials, and greater pains should be taken to look into the exact meaning of an address before it is blunderingly handed over for delivery to a postman who knows little more than an automaton.

EXPRESS SERVICE ON THE I. C. R.

DESPITE some faults incidental to a political railroad, the service on the Intercolonial is highly satisfactory and creditable to the management, and in some respects superior to anything either in Canada or the United States. An improvement, however, in the express service is very urgently needed, and it is to be hoped that the Minister of Railways and Canals may shortly be able to remedy the grievance and meet the wishes of business men generally by providing for a competing express service on the people's road.

As it is at the present time the Canadian Express Co., notwithstanding a stipulation in their agreement with the Government providing for equal facilities and terms for competing companies, has a practical monopoly of the express business on the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railway, and the Dominion Express Co., which desires to enter this territory has so far failed to overcome the obstacles placed in its way.

Meanwhile business men suffer in two ways. The absence of competition leads to laxity and carelessness on the part of employes and a general disinclination to extend accommodation and courtesy to patrons which is common to all monopolistic corporations. On the other hand, shippers have to bear the high rates charged for shipping over two lines in order to reach points not covered by the Canadian Express Co.

The chief sufferers are the fish shippers of Nova Scotia, the fruit growers of Ontario and the produce men of Prince Edward Island. Fish and fruit, particularly, require despatch and cannot bear the high charges entailed in shipping over two lines. Both these lines are capable of large development and the competition of rival express companies, in addition to ensuring expeditious dispatch, would lead to the opening of new markets and a general increase in that inter-provincial trade which is so necessary for the solidarity of the Dominion.

At the Maritime Board of Trade meeting in Moncton the feeling of the Maritime business men was expressed in no uncertain way, while that of the Ontario fruit growers was voiced by Mr. E. D. Smith, M. P., of Winona who, at the invitation of the board, addressed the delegates.

This is a point on which the east and west are as one for the good of all. Mr. Emerson would do no small service to the business interests of Canada by speedily providing for a competing express service on the I. C. R.

PREFERENTIAL TRADE WITHIN THE EMPIRE.

THE cable reports to the effect that Mr. Chamberlain's policy is to give such protection to the milling industry that all flour will be ground in Great Britain, we cannot believe to be correct. Advocating as he does an Imperial policy, we cannot conceive him becoming a party to a policy which would place the important industry of milling in the colonies in a far worse position that if it were in a foreign country, not only as far as exports to Great Britain are concerned but also trade in their own home markets.

If a tax of 2 shillings per quarter or 6c a bushel is put on wheat (corn) and it is admitted free, or on a preference of say 50 per cent. or 3c a bushel from the colonies, and an equivalent tax of say 1 shilling and 9 pence per sack is put on flour, whether from the colonies or foreign countries, it must be evident that all the wheat in the colonies will be taken by the mills in Great Britain to be ground there, as it would be cheaper than foreign wheat by the amount of the preference. This of course excludes such small portion of the crop as is required for home consumption in the colonies, which is all the colonial mills could hope to grind under such a policy, they having to pay the same price for the wheat as the English miller and 50 or 100 per cent. more duty on the same wheat when made into flour.

Even admitting colonial wheat and flour on exactly the same footing, the mills in Great Britain have a certain measure of protection in the lower freight rates granted on wheat than on flour. For instance the rate from Fort William to Liverpool at present is only 10c per 100 pounds, while on flour it is 19 1-2c per 100 pounds, thus giving the English miller a straight protection of 9 1-2c per 100 pounds or 10c per sack in freight alone. They enjoy another decided advantage over colonial mills in being located so they can distribute their products to the consumers at first cost, while the colonial mills have to pay heavy tribute to middlemen and a vast number of port and other charges, the aggregate of which shippers know to their sorrow.

If Mr. Chamberlain is correctly reported, colonial milling companies wishing to have a chance to export their flour to the Mother Country will be driven to start mills in foreign countries in order to be on an equal footing with foreigners. In this event the wheat they buy will be subject to the same rate of duty as the flour, so that they could buy their wheat at a price equivalent to what the English miller could afford to pay for it. This the colonial miller could not do if he remained within the colonies, as foreign countries would thus be built up by this policy instead of the Empire which is Mr. Chamberlain's heart's desire.

This can be easily shown. Suppose wheat (corn) is 33s 4d per quarter or $1 per bushel, and the duty is 2 shillings per quarter or 6c per bushel, wheat in the United States would only sell for 94c a bushel (that is after paying the 6c a bushel duty) less freight and other charges, while the price of colonial wheat would be $1 if admitted free, or 97c on a 50 per cent. preference, less the same freight and other charges, which means that the foreigner could buy his wheat equal to 42c or 21c per sack cheaper according as to whether it is free or has a 50 per cent. preference and yet his flour would go into Great Britain on exactly the same basis as flour made in the colonies.

Again if such a duty is put on flour as will make its importation into Great Britain prohibitory, the price of flour will inevitably be raised to the consumer even if wheat is admitted free from the colonies, unless colonial flour is admitted also, as the milling capacity of Great Britain is not sufficient to grind all the flour used in that country, nor could the capacity be increased sufficiently to do so for a number of years to come.

From the foregoing it would appear that the best interests both of the wage earner of Great Britain and the Empire at large will suffer severely unless colonial flour receives the same treatment as colonial wheat and it is to be hoped that Mr. Chamberlain and his associates will consider this question very carefully in all its aspects before deciding in favor of a policy which must prove disastrous to the colonial milling industry.

Canada has been termed a protectionist country, the acknowledged policy of this country has been to protect its native industries, and yet the Canadian miller has enjoyed no such protection against the United States miller in the past as it is now proposed to give to the English miller, as the duty on American wheat has always been equivalent to or higher than the duty on American flour coming into Canada. In view of this it sounds strange to hear of free trade England contemplating the adoption of a policy which the millers in protectionist Canada did not even ask the Government to grant, although they have always advocated a duty equivalent to that on wheat being placed on flour.

A communication from our London, Eng., office just as we go to press supplements the brief information cabled about Mr. Chamberlain's intention to protect the flour trade under his tariff reform scheme.

Mr. Chamberlain's idea is one that will be of great value, our correspondent thinks, to the Canadian milling trade. While Mr. Chamberlain does not go into details, our correspondent gathers from a source which enjoys a good deal of Mr. Chamberlain's confidence, that his idea is to overcome the objection to taxing food by admitting all wheat free of duty, but by putting a heavy tax on foreign flour and admitting Canadian and other Colonial flour free of duty. In this way he hopes to encourage the manufacture of flour in Great Britain and her colonies. This policy was advocated in the columns of The Canadian Grocer in the early part of the year.

BLAME THE POSTOFFICE.

A MONTREAL commission broker faced the courts last week on a queer charge, namely, that of receiving letters which did not belong to him. Now that he has been honorably acquitted of any criminal intent, it is easy to deal with the mixture of names which caused the action to be taken, in a more or less jocular mood.

Mr. Chouillou received letters which were addressed to a man named Cailloux. He stated to the court that he had been doing business with a French firm with whom the man named Cailloux was now dealing. Naturally enough when a letter came to him from that firm, he thought it was an overture to resume business relations, and took no more cognizance of the affair, until two or three letters had been exchanged. Mr. Chouillou further presented letters which showed that his name was spelt in about a hundred different ways and it was not surprising that the letters addressed to Cailloux should have come to him. The day after the case was settled in court, he happened to find in his letter box, a letter addressed to the name Chompton. Its post-mark showed that it came from Charlottetown. Immediately Mr. Chouillou took the letter to Mr. Palmer, the assistant postmaster, remarking—"Surely Mr. Palmer, your clerks are determined to put me in St. Vincent de Paul." Mr. Palmer looked at the letter and he found the name Chouillou wrtten in pencil at the bottom o fthe envelope. He immediately called the clerk of that department and an explanation was given him. He believed that the letter was for Mr. Chouillou. Mr. Palmer asked Mr. Chouillou if it was possible that he was expecting a letter from Charlottetown. He said that possibly he might get a communication from one of his customers there, Carvel Bros.

"Open the letter," said Mr. Palmer, "and see if it is for you." Mr. Chouillou did so, and to the amazement of all concerned he found that the letter was meant for him and was in answer to a circular he had issued to the trade clerk as to how he knew it was for Mr. clery as to how he knew it was for Mr. Chouillou, the poor fellow was unable to explain. He simply said that Mr. Chouillou's mail, which often embraced as many as a hundred letters a day had more peculiar combinations of letters, which meant his name, than any other firm that did business with the postoffice.

A PROGRESSIVE FIRM.

ONE need but glance at the statistics of the trade and commerce of Canada to realize the rapid strides of progress which have been made in the fish trade.

In this wonderful expansion of the past quarter of a century no name has occupied a higher place than that o Leonard Bros., whose establishments at St. John, N. B., along the Gaspe Coast and in Montreal, have been distributing centres for all important points between the two great oceans. One of the striking features of the trade, and of which Leonard Bros. are the pioneers, was the introduction of modern, attractive and sanitary methods in the preparation of fish for the vast army of consumers from coast to coast.

The process of drying, curing, smoking and packing the product of the sea and inland waters has, under the enterprising direction of this firm, increased the consumption in a marked degree.

In addition to the resources which the firm possesses in its many fishing stations in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and on Gaspe Coast, they are large receivers from various other important fishing centres skirting the Atlantic Coast, also in the districts of Lakes Ontario, Erie, Superior and Manitoba, and in recent years have been handling la quantities of frozen and pickled halibut and salmon from the Pacific Coast during the Winter months, as well as b express during the Summer.

The firm was organized in 1879, and then consisted of C. H. Leonard and W. F. Leonard. The former, since dea was in charge of the business in the

Mr. D. J. Byrne.

Maritime Provinces, while the latter, who still directs in an able manner the policy of the firm in the east, spent much time in Montreal in the endeavor to organize a central depot of distribution. The progress of this venture was necessarily slow in the opening years, but, as in all things, the reputation which the firm earned by its strict principles of honesty and its aim to furnish its patrons with the best article obtainable, bore good results.

At present Mr. W. F. Leonard devotes his whole time to the large equipment down by the sea, while the administration of the constantly expanding business in Montreal is in the hands of one of Montreal's best known young citizens, Mr. D. J. Byrne, who entered the office of the firm shortly after he completed his studies in 1885. Mr. Byrne from the hour of his entry into the establishment manifested a deep interest in every department of the business. He was ready to obey the command of his superiors and not slow to appreciate the persistency of his employers in attending to the supervision of the smallest details. As a result Mr. Byrne was appointed local manager in 1894 and given the full direction of the business in Montreal. So well did he discharge the important task that he was given an interest in the business in 1900, six years after his appointment as manager. Since Mr. Byrne's entry into the firm its operations have been largely increased. The scope of its work has undergone a marked change, and despite the competition from many quarters it has maintained its place as the leading establishment in the trade in this district.

Recently extensive improvements have been made in the premises occupied by the firm in this city, with a view of furnishing ample cold storage facilities, and other alterations are under consideration.

Mr. Byrne is very enthusiastic in regard to the future of the business of which he is now one of the proprietors. He is in the full vigor of his young manhood, possesses energy and experience, and is of acknowledged integrity. He enjoys, as few young men enjoy, the esteem and good will of all classes with whom he comes into contact.

The Warehouse of Chaput, Fils & Cie, Montreal, damaged by fire September 21.

DISASTROUS FIRE IN MONTREAL.

FIRE visited the wholesale business district of Montreal on Wednesday morning early. The loss will run into half a million of dollars and is divided between two large firms, Chaput, Fils & Co. and the Canada Hardware Co. The fire started about 1 o'clock a. m. in the premises of the Canada Hardware Co., DeBresoles street. Before 2.30 o'clock their building and stock were a total loss. By this time the whole brigade had been called to the fire which was spreading so rapidly that the whole district was threatened.

The handsome wholesale grocery premises of Chaput Fils were next door and quickly the flames licked over the fire walls and threatened the business house of one of the oldest firms in Montreal. It also spread in the opposite direction and damaged the premises of Meagher Bros. and those of the Central Agency. A weird and terrific sight added gruesome interest to the fire in the Canada Hardware building when a terrible pillar of dark red flame shot into the air accompanied by an explosion that told that gunpowder and cartridges in the warehouse had been reached by the flames. Incessant and continuous reports followed which sounded like the desultory fire on a battle field.

Meantime the firemen were putting up a strenuous fight to save Chaput Fils, but to no purpose. Already the big grocery emporium was ablaze. Liquors and groceries of all kinds furnished fine fuel and the fire greedily worked its way through the five floors of the structure. At once the fire took on renewed vigor and it was long after daylight before the flames were under control. Tons and tons of water poured into the building and and the damage by smoke and water was even greater than by the fire itself. The whole place was gutted. One very spectacular feature was noticed when the flames caught a broom room where 1000 dozen brooms were stored. They made a huge blaze for a few moments and the glare conld be seen for miles. The fire was under control by 7 o'clock and the total loss was estimated at $425,000 for Chaput Fils alone.

Long before daylight the different members of the firm were on the spot and arrangements were quickly made for new premises and the work of filling orders will be courageously undertaken even under almost insurmountable difficulties. The Chaput firm has been in existence since 1842 and is known from one end of the country to the other. Telegrams of sympathy were received by the Chaput firm from many quarters including the Old Country and certainly in Montreal every courtesy was shown. In fact some of their most vigorous competitors in trade paid the graceful tribute of inviting them to use their premises to continue business temporarily. Immediate orders were filled in a manner that was a compliment to the business energy and determination that would overcome almost any obstacle. An announcement elsewhere will tell to the trade briefly what the firm will do for the immediate future.

The Grocer extends the most sincere sympathy and with it the hope that this time honored house will be in shape shortly to do ample justice to the trade which it has maintained so well for over half a century.

L. Chaput & Fils are now temporarily located at 21 St. Antoine Street, where all orders will be promptly filled.

John Dais, wholesale commission dealer in all kinds of fish, of New York, was in Montreal during the week on business widening pursuits.

CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION

Thirty-Third Annual Meeting held at Montreal, Sept. 20, 21, 22, 1904

IN many respects the thirty-third annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association held in the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, September 20, 21 and 22, was like other conventions, warm in words of welcome and appreciation, only vastly magnified even in this superficial aspect as befitting the largest association of its kind in the world. But when the deeper significance of the meeting of the leading business men from British Columbia, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces is considered, the gigantic task the association has set itself strikes home with full force, and it is fully realized that the Association needs all the strength, energy and earnestness it can muster to bring to a successful issue the arduous duties undertaken. It was a remarkable meeting in many ways, remarkable for the vigor and energy displayed in grappling with the problems confronting the existence of Canadian industries, remarkable for the clear insight displayed in recommendations to secure proper legislation and to prevent improper legislation affecting our manufacturing or trade interests, remarkable for the encouraging reports received from the various committees which have been actively engaged during the year, and lastly truly remarkable as clearly depicting the identical interests of all Canadians, and serving as an irrefutable denial to all who have contended that the Association is but a mere tool for devising ways and means to satisfy the greed of the insatiate industrial class.

W. K. George, Toronto.
Elected by Acclamation President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association 1904-1905.

Work of the Branches.

The Association's branches cover the Dominion, with special executives at each centre to concern themselves with local affairs and to bring suggestions before the general executive council, and there are sections of the different trades to guard the interests of each. The reports brought in from these denoted not only wonderful numerical growth, but all told of accomplishment evincing earnestness and energy, and these suggestions were pregnant with the effort and time spent in their preparation.

It was noticeable how important were the tariff and labor problems in the discussions, although the conditions and outlook of business and suggestions for the remedy of grievances occupied a good share of attention. All the various phases of the many difficult problems were met with a bold front, and grappled with in an earnest and fair manner, as is only natural in men dealing with large issues.

The Members.

The members themselves who thronged the corridors and rotunda of the Windsor Hotel bore striking testimony to the future of Canada. Some there were who exchanged confidences in earnest discussion, while in others the spirit of jovial good fellowship reigned supreme. They all, for the most part, exemplified the best type of Canada's sons, vigorous alike in mind and body, and it was encouraging to note the large number of men who were in the pink and prime of life, indicating that the killing pace of modern business methods had touched them but lightly, at least to outward appearances.

Tuesday, the first day of the convention, was devoted to the meeting of the various trade sections of the association.

Manufacturing Grocers' Section.

At ten o'clock a meeting of the Manufacturing Grocers' Section was held in Club Room B, Windsor Hotel, under the chairmanship of Mr. S. W. Ewing. The attendance was the largest the section has had since its formation and the greatest interest was manifested by all. The various questions brought up for discussion, and those embodied in Chairman Ewing's report were closely gone into and the deliberations will be resultant of much good to the trade generally.

Hon. Mr. Brodeur, Minister of Inland Revenue, who had signified his intention of being present to receive the views of the members on the question of the Pure Foods Act and kindred subjects, was unavoidably prevented at the last moment from attending.

The section as a whole was thoroughly in accord with the intention of the department as regards the better enforcing of the law though it was felt that some modifications were necessary. A committee was appointed to bring these subjects to the attention of the Minister. Credit was given by the chairman to Hon. Mr. Brodeur for having deserted precedent and attempted in some measure to enforce the provisions of the Act, and the Grocers' Section was prepared to assist him in the work of securing legitimate manufactures. The question of freight rates was also taken up and will receive the attention of a special committee.

The members present were:

Chairman, S. W. Ewing; Secretary, E. H. Cooper and Messrs. R. A. Donald, Henry Wright, J. Rose, W. S. Kerry, Geo. F. Benson, R. Herron, Roy Ewing, Col. Fred. Welker, H. Picard, Robt. Greig, A. H. Brittain, W. H. Dunn, L. C. Van Bever, A. G. Spencer, A. W. Ewing.

Lack of space prevents a full report of the chairman's address. The election of officers resulted as follows:

Chairman—S. W. Ewing, of S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal.

Vice Chairman—Henry Wright, of The A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Limited, Toronto.

Secretary—E. H. Cooper, Montreal.

Committee—Messrs. J. Rose, R. A. Donald, Robt. Greig, Geo. F. Benson, L. C. Van Bever, Roy Ewing, R. Herron, Jr., W. S. Kerry, W. H. Dunn, W. P. Downey, John Carsley, J. Goldstein.

Delegates Entertained.

At 2.30 p.m. the members of the association were given a sail around the harbor by the Harbor Commissioners on the Duchess of York. Though the weather was raw and wet, about 100 delegates and their lady friends availed themselves of the courtesy of the commissioners and the trp proved highly enjoyable. Refreshments were served in a sumptuous manner. As the steamer neared the dock Mr. W. K. George, vice-president, in the absence of the president, Mr. George E. Drummond, thanked the Harbor Commissioners on behalf of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association for their kindness and courtesy. In a few well chosen words Mr. George expressed the opinion of the association that Montreal is the natural port of Canada and that the association stood prepared to assist them in making it the greatest port on the continent. Its future was assured and as it was the outlet of the products of the great west Montreal Harbor Commissioners were warranted in asking for the substantial support of the country at large. Mr. George closed his happy speech with the slogan:

"The National pride of Canada
Is the pride of a princely land,
And the goods that are 'Made in Canada'
Are the goods that her sons demand."

This apt slogan was received with cheers. Hon. Senator McKay responded on behalf of the Harbor Commissioners, expressing pleasure at the acceptance of the members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association of the board's harbor trip.

OPENING SESSION.

The formal opening session was held in the Ladies' Ordinary, at the Windsor Hotel, Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The room was tastefully decorated with "Made in Canada" emblems. Representatives of the Dominion's manufacturing interests from Halifax to Vancouver were in attendance. Mr. Geo. E. Drummond, the president, presided, and after an inspiring invocation had been pronounced by the Rev. Dr. Barclay, Mayor Laporte, on behalf of the city extended a most cordial and sincere welcome to the delegates, naively pointing out the advantages Montreal offered as a manufacturing centre. He was greeted with loud applause. Mr. J. J. McGill, chairman of the Montreal branch followed, tendering the welcome of that body and expressing the pleasure the local branch experienced by having the meeting at Montreal and assuring the delegates that the local branch would do all in their power to make their stay a pleasant one.

Vice-President Canadian Manufacturers' Association, 1904-1905.

Mr. W. K. George, Toronto, vice-president of the association, replied, alluding to the pleasure of renewing friendships in Montreal, and discoursing on the growth of the association.

Then followed the feature of the evening, the president's address, which naturally dealt with the great trade issues affecting the country, and needless to state Mr. Drummond carried his hearers with him from the start, and applause burst forth frequently, especially when he urged the importance of conserving home markets and the need of radical changes in the tariff.

President's Address.

Mr. Geo. E. Drummond's rising to give his address was the signal for an outburst of applause which lasted several minutes. He was obviously both surprised and affected by the tribute.

The president in a manly, straightforward way, referred felicitously to his pleasure in welcoming the delegates and then plunged into a masterly and full review of the position of manufacturers and industrial conditions. He urged that Canadians should read correctly the signs of the time, which interpreted meant they must be up and doing, and they must recognize this national and imperial obligation in respect to the naval protection of their commerce. By adept reasoning, he showed that in considering the course adopted for the building up of Canada, the manufacturing industries in Canada were of vital importance. Continuing, he showed clearly that the great fabric of commerce is all woven together on the warp of production.

By reference to industrial statistics he showed the importance of manufacturing compared with other great interests, proving that they entailed a larger output than the combined interests of agricultural, dairying, mineral, forest and fisheries, although by no means did he attempt to belittle their importance.

Mr. Drummond said in supporting these assertions:

"Let us as briefly as possible take stock of the position that our Canadian manufacturing interests occupy to-day.

"In the first place, I think we are well within the mark when we estimate that we have now not less than $520,000,000 of capital invested in manufacturing in Canada. In 1881 there were $159,000,000 so invested. Thus, in twenty years we have, in the face of many difficulties, increased our capital investment by $361,000,000.

"I have been favored with some particulars in regard to the 1901 census of the Canadan manufacturing industries, and in those statistics I find that we have much cause for congratulation.

"The total production of the 14,650 Canadian factories in 1901 is estimated at $481,053,375. To produce this amount of goods there were 344,095 work people and clerks employed, to whom were paid $113,283,146 in wages."

Mr. Drummond proceeded to quote figures to prove the importance of the manufacturing industries.

Then followed the question of marketing the enormous production, and it was strongly urged to conserve the home market, and to further establish native industries that will create and maintain a prosperous people and provide a home market.

In support of this Mr. Drummond said:

Make the Goods at Home.

"Can we not preduoe more in Canada, and what would that production mean to this country?

"Our importations of dutiable goods this year have been to a value of about $149,000,000. Statistical returns are not yet to hand to enable us to fully analyze the goods actually covered by this amount, but as a guide we know that our importations of wholly or partially manufactured goods last year was $149,600,000. With these figures before you I believe you will agree with me that with a properly constructed tariff, admitting raw material at a low rate of duty, and with proper protection upon the finished article, we could easily increase our output of manufactures by $60,000,000.

"According to the census returns 344,095 operatives produce $481,053,375 worth of goods, and the manufacture of $60,000,000 of goods will employ 42,900 work people—yes, even more, for we shall be making the more highly finished class of goods, which require more labor than many of the lines now manufactured. The employment of 43,000 people will build another city equal in population, if not in wealth, to that of Toronto, and it will consume upward of $20,000,000 worth of farm products annually. Surely here is a policy worthy of the support of a patriotic Government and people."

In referring to trade and navigation returns he maintained that they afforded ample proof for the need of the revision of the Canadian customs tariff. He condemned the growth of importation of goods from the United States. In urging tariff revision he alluded to the measures the Government has passed acceding to the points they had urged.

Canada's Importations.

"The trade and navigation returns," he stated, "for the year 1904, are ample proof of the need of radical changes in the present Canadian customs tariff. On the basis of goods entered for consumption and reports of domestic produce, the increase in Canadian trade for the past year was $2,788,611, which is a small increase compared with those of the years immediately preceding. A further analysis brings to light the fact that the domestic exports show a shrinkage of $15,987,235. This decrease is accompanied, first, by an increase of $1,813,152 in the export of foreign produce; and secondly, by an increase of $18,775,896 in the importation of goods for consumption; in other words, while our total trade statistics have not altered materially, the balance of trade has turned against us in one year to the extent of $34,763,131. That fact explains the liquidation of woollen mills, the four thousand silent cotton looms, the transformation of shirt manufacturers into shirt importers, and it is a striking statistical accompaniment to your need of business during the first six months of the present year. What further do we find? In 1903 our importations from the United States amounted in value to about $129,000,000. This year they have increased to $143,010,578, excluding bullion, an increase of more than $14,000,000, or about 10 per cent. Of this increase over $8,850,000 was dutiable goods, so that the main feature of our trade, during this past year has been the growth of importations from the United States, and the main feature of these imports is that they are to a large extent in goods that could be made in Canada. The amount of dutiable goods imported under the general tariff from the United States in the year ending June, 1904, was $77,390,807. That, in short, represents the value of the Canadian harvest reaped last year by the United States—a country that will not admit our goods on anything like reasonable terms. Nevertheless, we must admire the strong, consistent national policy pursued by the United States in conserving her own interests.

"In 1903 over 38 per cent. of that country's imports consisted of crude products, which are raw material for their industries. In Canada only some 20 per cent. of the imports is in the form of raw material, and that in spite of the fact that we must import our cotton, anthracite coal, and so forth, which the United States produces at home. The United States importation of articles wholly or partially manufactured, and articles of voluntary use, which are largely manufactured goods, comprises 40 per cent. of their importations, whilst similar goods in Canada made up 66 1-2 per cent. of our importations."

Canada's Tariff.

Continuing, Mr. Drummond said:

"Now, let us consider the Canadian Customs tariff and our trade relations.

"With respect to our present Customs tariff, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association occupies exactly the same position to-day as when we met at Halifax two years ago and adopted the following resolution, namely:

" 'Resolved, That in the opinion of this association the changed conditions which now obtains in Canada demand the immediate and thorough revision of the tariff upon lines which will more effectually transfer to the workshops of our Dominion the manufacture of many of the goods which we now import from other countries;

" 'That, in any such revision the interests of all sections of the community, whether of agriculture, mining, fishing or manufacturing, should be fully considered, with a view not only to the preservation, but to the further development of all these great natural industries.

" 'That while such a tariff should primarily be framed for Canadian interests, it should nevertheless give a substantial preference to the Mother Country, and also to any other part of the British Empire with which reciprocal preferential trade can be arranged, recognizing always that under any conditions the minimum tariff must afford adequate protection to all Canadian producers.'

"As I have said on a former occasion, 'the two great and practically the only markets available for Canadian products to-day are, firstly, the home market; and secondly, Great Britain, the Mother Country.' What I may call our 'Halifax policy,' therefore has a double purpose, viz., to conserve as much as possible these two markets to the Canadian people, and in the case of the British market, to transfer orders for our surplus requirements to our own customers, the people of the Mother Country."

With regard to preferential trade he said in part: "We have placed ourselves unreservedly on record as favorable to a tariff arrangement that while encouraging the development of industries in Canada, will nevertheless give a substantial preference to the Mother Country, and also to any other part of the British Empire with which reciprocal preferential trade can be arranged." He continued by discussing particular aspects and colonies in a full manner.

The labor problem loomed large and he advocated clearly that labor and capital were mutually dependent and should work hand in hand. Strikes always involved loss on both sides, generally with a settlement which could have as easily been made at the outset. Mutual peace was the cry and the necessity of this day. Reference was made to the successful exploiting of the engineering trade, and then the vital question of fire insurance, which is agitating the business men, particularly of Montreal and other cities with congested districts was touched upon. As the manufacturers are the largest payers of such insurance, it was strongly urged that measures be taken to secure not only proper inspection but also proper adjustment of rates, which was hardly the case at present. This was gone into very fully.

In conclusion he referred not only to the remarkable growth of the association but also to the national character it had assumed and its consequent national importance. The importance of unity and co-operation was dwelt upon. His parting message as retiring president was in part: "Let Canadians be known for their fair dealing and business integrity the world over. Take pride in your national products and let the goods be of such a standard of excellence that the stamp 'Made in Canada' will ensure recognition in every market."

Vote of Thanks.

Mr. E. Gurney, of Toronto, in moving the vote of thanks for the able and careful address sparkled with mother wit and endorsed the opinions expressed in no uncertain manner, concluding by an earnest appeal for the co-operation of all concerned to make Canada a name to be proud of. He ridiculed reciprocity arrangements.

Mr. R. H. Alexander, of Vancouver, seconded the motion by referring to the national scope of the organization as well as alluding to the noble work done by the president.

The president then called upon Sir Lloyd Wise, of England, who in a few happy words endorsed the president's address and made mention of an exhaustive report he had prepared for the consideration of the association. With a fervent singing of the National Anthem the meeting broke up to begin its active business duties in the morning.

Business Sessions.

The first business session was commenced Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock in the Ladies'. Ordinary of the Windsor Hotel, with President Geo. E. Drummond in the chair, and past and present officers on the platform, and a fair representation of the manufacturing interests present.

After a summary disposal of a few preliminary items of business and the reading of several letters of regret, the reports of the proceedings of the committees were taken.

Treasurer's Report.

Mr. Geo. Booth, Toronto, presented a most satisfactory report, which clearly showed the marvellous growth of the association, and notwithstanding greatly increased disbursements the balance was the most satisfactory in the history of the association since its re-organization four years ago. The total receipts principally from membership fees were six times as large as four years ago, and although the detailed accounts were higher and more numerous the cash balance was satisfactory.

The total receipts were $34,417.13, and the total disbursements $30,006.11, leaving a cash balance of $4,816.38.

In moving the adoption of the report Mr. R. C. Wilkins, Montreal, contended that it was advisable to have the next treasurer's report printed and distributed to all visiting delegates. Mr. T. P. Murray, of Toronto, also spoke in reference to this, and the resolution was unanimously carried in adopting the satisfactory report.

The Secretary's Report.

The call for the secretary's report was greeted with loud applause, testifying to the popularity of that gentleman. Mr. R. J. Younge, B. A., the secretary, presented a report which he characterized as the most successful in the history of the organization. He traced the history of the association since its re-organization four years ago when it had a membership of 120. Now from a provincial association they had grown to national importance with six branches and 13 sections, with a membership of over 1,500, an increase of 246 in the past year. He outlined the importance of the association and advocated correspondent membership in foreign markets. Note was made of the progress during the past year and the problems discussed. The association was advertising Canada and creating a national patriotism. There had been 120 committee meetings at the head office with an average attendance of six, and ten legislative measures were traceable to this influence. He cordially thanked the associate secretaries for their co-operation.

In moving the adoption Mr. T. P. Murray, Toronto, commented upon the modesty of the secretary and testified to his untiring energy and ability. The report was unanimously adopted.

Reception and Membership Committee Report.

Mr. Robt. Crean, chairman of the reception and membership committee, presented the report. The membership campaign had resulted in a net increase of 246 during the year, giving a total membership of 1,511, of which Ontario has 876 and Quebec 412. Reference was made to the successful western excursion after the conclusion of the meeting last year, as well as a mention of the Quebec banquet.

A Great Britain excursion was recommended also. In conclusion the active interest of the association in securing new members was requested.

The discussion following touched upon all features, the Great Britain excursion being especially commended as ensuring both interest and instruction. Mr. Murray was particularly interesting.

Commercial Intelligence Committee.

Mr. Arnold W. Thomas, chairman of the committee, presented a report eloquent of increased activity and usefulness. Eleven good meetings had been held and among the subjects of discussion might be mentioned the correspondent membership question, and in this connection it was resolved that whereas valuable markets for Canadian products are to be found in many parts of the world, the following resolutions be submitted :

(1) That the Dominion Government should be urged to extend its system of commercial agents.

(2) That the representatives should be active, energetic men, and should revisit Canada at least every three years to keep in touch with Canadian exporters.

The Japanese tariff discriminates against Canada, and it cannot be removed till 1911. The admission of United States catalogues was now subject to duty, although the circulation of their magazines could not be restricted. In conclusion the members were urged to use the facilities offered to the fullest advantage.

After some discussion the report was unanimously adopted.

Railway and Transportation Committee.

Mr. J. O. Thorn presented a very satisfactory report touching fully upon the transportation problem, and thus commending the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. The following resolutions were introduced as essentially sound :

(1) That rates shall be, with qualifications, what the traffic will bear.

(2) In the consideration of what the traffic will bear the cost of manufacturing or preparing freight for transportation must be a factor.

The committee had secured the services of an expert in the person of Mr. W. H. D. Miller, whose work was highly commendable. The function of the committee was advisory, although freight classification, especially a temporary schedule which would give manufacturers the reductions due them, was discussed. Coast rates, import and export rates, marine insurance, cartage, claims, delays in shipments and demurrage all had received attention and were commented upon. Specific cases and their adjustment were reported, and the railway express service touched upon. Among the resolutions submitted the following loom up :

(1) That Canadian steamship lines should be extended a preference by Canadian shippers in both import and export trade.

(2) That the Railway Act of Canada should be amended so as to place the express companies in Canada under the jurisdiction of railway commissioners.

In moving the adoption of his committee's report, Mr. J. O. Thorn commended the work of Mr. Miller and urged the use of the committee. Mr. W. K. George also bore out the above. In seconding the adoption Mr. Wilkins urged that copies of the able report be sent to manufacturers not present at the meeting. The entire report was unanimously adopted.

Parliamentary Committee.

Mr. P. W. Ellis presented a full and exhaustive report, the following features being worthy of special mention. The aggressiveness of organized labor was exemplified in the Union Labor Bill, which, owing to the work of the committee, was held over, as several clauses of this bill were shown to be particularly injurious to the manufacturing industries of Canada. It was also urged that the importation of workmen who could not be secured at home be encouraged.

It was pointed out that there was a scarcity of labor in Canada, and in this connection the work of the Parliament in placarding Great Britain to the effect that skilled mechanics were not wanted in Canada was shown to be false, as in July last 6,717 hands were needed among this association.

In resolutions submitted to be forwarded to the Dominion Government the following are especially important :

(1) That the Dominion Department of Labor should give equal consideration to the needs of employer and employe.

(2) That provision should be made for the importation of skilled labor, provided the same cannot be secured in Canada.

The general labor question was not in as favorable position as desirable and strikes were too numerous. A more friendly relation was hoped for during the ensuing year.

The Provincial legislation in both Ontario and Quebec was closely watched, and the influence brought to bear upon several bills was touched upon.

In moving the adoption of the report Mr. P. W. Ellis outlined the classes of labor and prayed for two classes of unions. In seconding the adoption Mr. J. J. McGill commended the work of the committee. A discussion followed. Mr. Wallace gave the views of the stove section, while Mr. J. S. McKinnon followed by praising the work in watching the bills introduced in the Parliaments. Mr. S. J. Vaudry gave an outline of Quebec legislation. The report was finally unanimously adopted.

Amendments to the By-laws.

Mr. R. J. Younge, the secretary, read two amendments, the first of which enlarging committees of the Parliamentary section to include chairmen of branches and sections, was adopted. The second amendment, dealing with the disposition of finances from the branches and restricting their expenditure so as to have it referred to the executive council, was finally thrown out.

The conclusion of the afternoon session witnessed a deputation from the Lord's Day Alliance, which urged the observance of the Sabbath. The reverend gentlemen were particularly happy in their views, and evidently favorably impressed the delegates. Canon Renaud urged the attention of manufacturers to this aspect of labor, while Rev. Dr. Gordon cited instances of Sunday work which he considered shameful. He thought a more equitable adjustment in some cases was necessary, although realizing the exigencies of expedition in some cases. The Rev. Dr. Pedley indorsed the views expressed by the other reverend gentlemen.

In the evening the delegates attended the performance of "The Silver Slipper" at His Majesty's threatre, as the guests of the Montreal branch.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. J. Donnelly, Jr., of the Pittsburg Milling Co., Limited, Pittsburg and New York, was in Montreal this week. Mr. Donnelly enjoyed some pleasant automobile tours as the guest of Me. Anson, of the Ogilvie Milling Co.

Mr. L. C. Van Bever, of the Toronto branch of Armour & Co., Chicago, was a delegate to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, held at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, this week. Mr. Van Bever in an interview with The Grocer stated that since the establishment of their branch factory on Alice street, Toronto, their Canadian business was developing extensively, their ability to promptly attend to the requirements of the trade was established and a large business is looked forward to in this market.

A visitor to Montreal this week was Mr. J. M. Wiley, vice-president of the Dominion Packing Co., Limited, Charlottetown, P. E. I. A representative of The Grocer interviewed Mr. Wiley at the Windsor. He had just returned from a trip through the Northwest and British Columbia, and speaks glowingly of the future prospects of that great section of Canada. The tour, Mr. Wiley stated, was of a missionary character as regards the introduction of his company's products, and the result was most satisfactory and encouraging. The fame of "Beechnut Brand Bacon" had been carried to the far west. Mr. Wiley before returning to the east will make a trip through Ontario, and also visit Chicago.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Sept. 22, 1904.

Groceries.

THE grocery trade shows signs of steady improvement as the Winter season advances. Travelers continue to bring in satisfactory reports concerning trade conditions existing throughout the country and what is better are effecting larger sales than ever before. The wholesale houses report generally that this season's trade promises to be away ahead of last year's average. Good sized orders from Northern Ontario are still being received.

Sugar continues firm with business quiet. New Orleans molasses has advanced 1c within the last two weeks, and an increased volume of trade is reported at current quotations. New prices on 1904 pack peaches are out and are considerably above last year's level. Tea and coffee business is quiet to fair, prices on coffee being very firm and advancing. Dried fruits are firm, an advance being reported in California seeded and Malaga raisins. Evaporated apples will be on the market within the next few days to replace old stocks which are entirely exhausted.

CANNED GOODS.

A seasonable demand all round summarizes the canned goods market for the week under review. The most interesting item is the prices of 1904 pack canned peaches quoted this week which are considerably firmer than last year's quotations, this in view of a comparatively short pack. At the present time packers are veritably falling over one another to buy stocks of fruit wherever they are available. Prospects point to a fair pack of tomatoes. Salmon continues very firm, none at present offering at the coast. Other lines continue unchanged from last week. We quote below prices on Clover Leaf sockeye salmon. Our quotations are as follows :

SUGAR.

Considerable uncertainty has prevailed in the sugar market during the past week, at one time a decidedly easier tone was noticeable, especially in Europe where beets declined again to 10s 7½d for September. Since then, however, the market has taken a firmer turn; beets have recovered what they lost and are now quoted firm at 10s 9d for September, and 11s 1½d for October shipment, the former being a net gain of ¾d per cwt. for the week, while the latter is a gain of 2½d per cwt. These advices reflect the influence of the latest European beet crop estimates of Mr. Licht figuring the probable outturn at 5,170,000 tons, which when compared with total outturn of last year's crop of 5,865,000 tons would show a decrease of 695,000 tons. Later cables from Willett & Gray estimate the entire deficiency for Europe at 13 per cent. less than last year's outturn, thus giving a total crop of 5,103,000 tons. This is confirmed by a cable from London, Eng., to Willett & Gray reading, "Estimate deficiency beet crop 760,000 tons, being average commercial opinion."

Business in raw sugars in American markets has been restricted to small parcels at current quotations. Arrivals to refiners at present are heavy which makes them indifferent to offers. The latter, however, have been light and there has been no pressure to sell though it is believed that business could be done on current basis. Cuban sugars for shipment are held at 3c c. and f. for 95 test, which, if realized, would be an advance of 1-16, but there are no indications that this will be paid. We therefore quote the market firm at former figures, namely, 4 5-16c duty paid for 96 test.

Receipts at Atlantic shipping ports for the week ending Sept. 14 were 68,720 tons, with meltings 46,000 tons, the highest for the season so far. Stocks in all hands were 148,583 tons as against 125,863 tons for previous week and 195,110 tons last year at the same time. Combined stocks of U. S. and Cuba were 174,583 tons, or 210,084 tons less than last year. Total stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 1,387,583 tons against 1,967,987 tons last year, the decrease now being 580,398 tons, which is the greatest deficiency apparently so far this year. Present indications are that the new campaign will be entered upon with visible supplies very much short of those with which the present campaign began. The prospects are that there will be a further shrinkage to an abnormally low figure in consequence of the deficiency in the beet crop and of the requirements to meet the increased consumption which as indicated in last report shows 25 per cent. more than last year in Europe alone.

Cuba is practically no factor now in the sugar situation, stocks in the island on Sept. 14 being only 14,000 tons as compared with 189,557 tons in 1903, and 166,303 tons in 1902. Only two central factories remain in operation. Indications for the coming crops are favorable and prospects are that it will be large provided weather conditions are satisfactory during the months of grinding.

The only change to note in the refined sugar situation is a shading of 5c per 100 lbs. by one of the American refiners, making the net selling price for granulated now 4.95c, thus reducing the margin between raws and refined to 64c per 100 lbs.

Locally there have not been any changes, and the market is without special indications at the moment. Apparently there is not much new business but prices are firmly maintained and only two refiners have sugar to offer. Our quotations are as follows :

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Considerable business is reported in New Orleans molasses for the week, prices being fully 1c higher than they were two weeks ago. TEAS.

Business in tea has been rather quiet during the past week. Cable reports state that cold weather has set in and that the quantity of tea for price for this reason will in all probability be much curtailed. Well informed buyers apparently are not looking for lower prices than exist at the present time and in consequence there has been more buying in Calcutta during the past week than for several weeks previous.

Japans are unchanged and selling slowly. The same remark applies to green teas generally, with prices becoming established on a fixed basis. Our quotations are as follows :

COFFEES

Very little buying is reported for the week on account of the excessively high prices ruling. Purchasers' ideas are that the coffee market will be easier in the near future and they are buying to fill immediate requirements only. The lowest quotation on Rios is 9c, prices laid down ruling on the street at 9 to 9¾c.

In mild coffees there is very little change, although the feeling is strong and there are prospects of an advance. Mochas are higher as well as West Indians, while other mild grades hold about normal.

Wholesalers report that September business is away ahead of last year's. The demand for coffee from now on ma be expected to improve owing to the season.

During the week the tendency o speculative prices in New York was towards a higher basis. At the close, however, part of the advance was lost.

The buying in the speculative market was induced by the bullish character of the crop cables received from Brazil. Of the numerous Brazil cables received they have, with few exceptions, reported unfavorable prospects for the growing Brazil crops, and the estimates of the present Santos crop now current range from 6,250,000 to 6,750,000 bags. The receipts of Santos coffee thus far this season, it is true, are larger than for the same time last year and also in 1902, but the information received during the week from Brazil quite generally stated that the receipts in October will show a falling off.

Although there has been more activity to the trading in the speculative market, the trade demand for actual coffee has continued limited, the interior trade still showing a disposition to hold back and await developments. The large visible stock of coffee and the indications that on October 1 the world's visible supply of coffee will exceed 14,000,000 bags have a tendency to hold trade interests in check. Believers in the market continue to argue that although the world's visible supply of coffee is slightly larger than a year ago that the invisible stock of coffee, owing to the comparatively small takings by the trade the past six months, is much smaller than a year ago, and that the total world's supply of coffee is therefore smaller than at this time last year.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

There are no changes to report this week in either the rice or tapioca market. The heavy stocks of tapioca held all Summer are beginning to dwindle and for the time being the market is a shade firmer. Regular shipments, however, are expected to arrive in 6 weeks, which will adjust the irregularity. We quote the following prices :

Foreign Dried Fruits

The Valencia raisin market is unchanged although latest cables advise an advance in primary markets. Raisins and currants generally are working at about the same level as last week. Malaga raisins are fixed at practically the same price as last year, since the crop is not larger than last year's and barely sufficient to meet the consumptive demand, being less than 1,000,000 boxes all told. Malagas are not being offered at lower prices for later than for prompt shipment. Last year later actually cost more than early shipments, although this is contrary to the usual rule and it looks as if the same thing would be repeated this year.

California raisins are in a stronger position as to prices than a week ago, fancies having advanced 1-4c. In the interval the seeders' combination and the Raisin Association have come together and prices are fixed for old seeded at 1-2c above what was being currently quoted by firms disposed to cut prices in anticipation of the arrangement with the association possibly falling through. Any orders, however, given on these cut quotations were not executed as the parties forming the combination had control of the fruit during the process of negotiation. It would therefore be correct to say no change in prices has taken place. Our quotations are as follows:

FOREIGN NUTS.

Reports state that walnuts are not maturing well on account of hot winds. At present there is a fair demand for everything on the list. Prices remain unchanged. DRIED FISH.

The volume of trade in dried fish is growing steadily as the Fall and Winter season advances. During the week there has been a decided improvement in the demand, particularly for prepared codfish "Acadia" brand, which was recently introduced on this market. Labrador herring is on the market for the first time this season. Our quotations are as follows:

BIRD SEED.

Firm prices have ruled in the bird-seed market during the week, with stocks of seed growing scarcer. Certain dealers are seriously considering withdrawing quotations on canary seed per pound, believing that all their supplies will be required for packages. We quote the following prices:

Canary seed, per lb	0 06	0 06½

EVAPORATED APPLES.

Old evaporated apples are exhausted. New will be on the market next week and will be sold by the wholesalers at from 5 3-4 to 6 1-2c.

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Eggs are arriving in fairly free quantities. Commission men are beginning to handle larger quantities as dealers take their wagons off the route. This will not be general until about October 1. There is little change in the price, and it is likely that present quotations—18 to 19 cents—will rule without change for some time. Were prices regular an advance would be on very soon. Should frost soon come the hens will stop laying, but it is thought supplies will have to be much shorter in order to raise the present level. It is possible, too, that the stoppage of competition between the dealers will help to keep prices down.

HONEY

Trade in honey continues good with a sharper demand. During the week under review the price of extracted clover advanced 1c per lb. Otherwise quotations remain unchanged. We quote the following:

Green Fruits.

During the week three cars of California fruit arrived on the local market. These cars comprised pears, grapes and peaches. The quantity of pears arriving was small while on the other hand there was a good supply of peaches. First class quality of Tokay grapes are offering this week and selling well.

The season for late Valencia oranges is practically over and Jamaica stock is taking their place. These oranges are selling at $6 per barrel and at from $3.25 to $3.50 per box. Reports state that the crop is very good. Cape Cod cranberries are selling at $9 per barrel and $3.25 per crate. A good supply and poor demand has caused a drop in bananas of 25c on large bunches and 10c on 8's. California peaches are plentiful and have dropped from 25 to 50c per crate.

Canadian fruit arrived in large quantities during the week under review with the exception of pears. A better variety of apples is now being offered which is bringing stiffer prices. Cantaloupes are becoming scarcer, resulting in an advance of from 10 to 15c on crates, while baskets have become firmer although at present there is no material change in quotations. The season for "watermelons" is practically over.

Dealers are looking forward to heavy arrivals of grapes next week. Blueberries are getting scarce. The outlook on the whole is for steadier markets. We quote the following prices:

Fish.

As a result of an increased supply of halibut, cod, steak, lake herring and pike, during the week, prices have declined. New quotations are given on oysters as follows: "Standards," $4.50 per small pail and "Selected" $5.35 per small pail. These new quotations are due to the different methods dealers have of selling this article. "Finnan Haddie" is firm and has advanced in price. We quote the following prices:

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

During the week the price of Manitoba wheat has declined. Manitoba Northern No. 1 has dropped 3 1-2c per bushel; No. 2, 4 1-2c per bushel and No. 3 3c per bushel respectively. This is due to reports received regarding better growing and harvesting weather, and of an easing in the American market. New oats are easier and are selling at from 36 to 36 1-2c per bushel. Rye has dropped 1c per bushel. Our quotations are as follows:

FLOUR.

This market has become steadier, and is now firm with price list of last week unchanged. The demand, especially for old crop flour, is good. Prospects point to a decline in prices although it may be some time ahead. We quote the following prices:

BREAKFAST FOODS.

Being a slow responder, "rolled wheat" continues to advance (although wheat has again started to decline), the rise during the week being 25c per cwt. Other prices remain unchanged. The demand continues good with supplies satisfactory. Our quotations are as follows:

Farmers are now completing their harvesting and paying more attention to seeds, which are now offering more freely. "Fancy Alsike" is scarce and prices have advanced from $4.65 and $6.25 to $4.65 and $7, low grades being at a great discount. Prospects for trade are brighter to-day than a week ago. Our quotations are as follows:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Sept. 22, 1904.

Groceries.

EVERYWHERE business is brightening up. From all parts of the province news of activity in groceries generally is reported. The sugar market is like the weather, unsettled. The immense fruit crops, both in Europe and on this Continent, unfold a prospect of the present demand for sugar being continued for some time. The extra cost of the latter is compensated for by the extreme cheapness of the fruit. In America the markets continue firm. A certain falling off is noticed in the weekly meltings. Refiners seem satisfied with their recent purchases of beet, the more so because they can buy plenty of Java; in addition their own crops are indicating considerable increase this season. Molasses is considerably stronger, and 28c is the ruling price now. Coffee remains firm and interesting. The immense increase in the world's visible supply of about 49,000 tons, was more than had been expected. Prices are well maintained. Spices are in good demand, although there is a quiet tone prevailing in the market, most articles seem to be assuming a firmer tendency. No abundant supplies are coming forward of flake tapioca. Sagos are selling steadily. Arrowroot is considered in a stagnant condition, the demand being largely for manufacturing purposes. Black and white peppers remain firm, with a tendency towards the advance. This condition will likely continue for some time. The consumptive demand for Pimento has so increased that the drop in price has been very gradual. For Jamaica ginger the prices are weak and the demand has slackened. There is a steady demand for canary seed, which is stiffer in price. The Spanish crop is likely to supersede a portion of the Turkish birdseed. Low grade teas have advanced one cent, but the tea market generally is not very interesting. Canned goods are exciting more interest as the new prices appear, the latest being pears and peaches. There is some alarm over the scarcity of tomatoes. Dried fruits become interesting now as the holiday season orders are being placed. Soft shell almonds are much easier in price. Green fruits and vegetables are in the markets in abundance, and are maintaining firmness. Flour is a strong feature, having advanced thirty cents.

SUGAR.

Sugar is strong. The prospects of cane sugar throughout the world point to some increase in production, more particularly in the important countries of Java and Cuba, though here and there a small falling off is looked for. During the past week a much easier feeling has developed in the foreign market for raw beet sugar, and prices have declined 1½d with the September option quoted at 10s 8½d. The impression given by this reaction in the prices for beet, is that a temporary weakness has been caused by profit-takers, commonly called speculators, because there has been no development in the sugar situation to cause any uneasiness. In spite of these facts raw cane sugar has shown strength and the prices show an advance of 1½d with centrifugals quoted at 11s 9d, and muscovados quoted at 10s 9d. Recent advices abroad state that crop reports from Austria continue poor. In Hungary some factories have started working and acknowledge a very rich root giving sixteen per cent. sugar. As regards Germany, a good deal of rain has fallen in certain districts and undoubtedly has done good on rich and cultivated soil, but on light land it may have come too late. From other countries reports have been satisfactory, though France does not send such favorable accounts as hitherto. The volume of local business is first-rate. We quote :

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

A strong tone has set in in the molasses market and the ruling price for Barbadoes in puncheons is 28c. The prophesied advance has taken place and it is expected that prices may go still higher before the first week in October. We quote :

COFFEE.

Coffee maintains its strength, and from abroad it is learned that the deliveries last month were on a larger scale. Nevertheless for the eight months for this year there has been a falling off of deliveries to the extent of 20,000 tons. This has not been caused by a decreased consumption, therefore the indications are that during the next four months the demand for coffee will be improved greatly. A slight reaction has taken place in Colombian coffee which a short time ago advanced above its relative value. Considerable inquiry has been noted for really first-class Costa Rica, but the crop has been very poor this year and the fine quality stock is hard to obtain. We quote :

SPICES.

Spices of all kinds are steady and firm. Black and white pepper are still advancing in price. Ginger is considerably easier, while the price of cloves is still high and is likely to continue in that direction. We quote :

TEA.

Common grades of tea have advanced all around one cent. Indian teas of medium grade have met with good inquiry, especially the Assam growths, and prices generally are steady. In Ceylon teas a good tone is prevalent throughout. Broken Pekoes continue in good demand and the advance recently established in the medium and better sorts is sustained. Dodwell & Co., Limited, the big Colombo tea firm, report that the demand for green teas has apparently ceased, the offerings of some 21,878 lbs. being entirely neglected. The average price for the sale held on the 10th inst. was 37c, as compared with 35c for the previous sale, and 40c for the corresponding sale last year. We quote :

CANNED GOODS.

Unusual interest is being taken in canned goods just now, owing to the uncertainty as to what will be the ultimate result of the present position in salmon. High grade stock is very strong, in fact experienced men state that it has not been so strong for years. The supplies seem to be about one-tenth of an average quantity. There is, however, plenty of Alaskan salmon, but the better qualities are short. Country stocks seem to be very light. It is quite possible prices may be forced higher than the present ideas. Scarcity of tomatoes seems to be alarming. Corn is also scarce. New prices are out for canned pears and peaches, and these are announced herewith. Canned meats are firm and in good demand. California fruit is selling well. We quote :

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Weak advices have come from Greece on currants, noting a decline in prices of 9d for fine Filiatras, and choice Patras, and 3s for Vostizza, in spite of the fact that the crop is estimated to be 15 per cent. smaller than a year ago. There has been a good demand for local and western buyers and considerable business has been put through on 13s 3d for fine Filiatras, 15s 3d for choice Patras, and 18s for Vostizza. Str. Jacona, which was to have sailed on the 17th, has been delayed until the 23rd, (this refers to the port of Denia.) The market there in Valencia raisins is reported firm with no change in prices. Cables received on Sultana raisins this week were weak, and reported the market 3s lower at a range of 20s to 28s.

Messrs. Watt, Scott & Goodacre report, from the importers' standpoint:

Interest, such as it is, for the week, has centred in California raisins. Although the seeders and fruit associations have at last got together, the prices resulting from this combination have not proved by any means prohibitive, and several orders for carload quantities have been confirmed. Nevertheless it cannot be said that any great enthusiasm is manifest. On the contrary the same general indifference that marks all dried fruit business this season is in evidence.

Notwithstanding the hold-offishness of buyers, the Denia market has continued without mentionable variation since first shipments were effected in August.

The Smyrna market is in favor of buyers of Sultana raisins. There is a considerable carry-over of good merchantable stock in the most important buying markets, and a reported falling off in consumption in United States.

Once more open orders for Malaga raisins, early shipment via Liverpool, are costing less than direct steamer parcels.

Last direct steamer, the Jacona, was to have left Patras on the 17th inst., but is cabled as put back to the 23rd. Market steady with upward tendency.

An old time demand has sprung up for Comadre figs. There are various causes contributing to this revival.

Further concessions are reported in Tarragona on soft shelled almonds.

Sicily filberts maintain their high level and it is claimed that only a small percentage of a small crop remains in speculators hands, balance having been transferred to export accounts.

The few thousand crates of Denia onions that arrived in Montreal, dragged in sale, but have at last passed at advancing prices into second hands. A cable from Denia reports that only 200 crates in excess of actual import orders have been consigned on the Escalona. This was anticipated, as the crop in the primary market was said to be exhausted.

Fish.

Three ember days of the past week caused a noticeable enlivening of the fish market, although fish of all kinds is reported very scarce. Haddock is especially short, and is selling at an advanced price. Steak cod has advanced from 5c to 7c, owing to the ravages of dog fish in the fishing grounds. Fresh smoked kippers are attracting attention on the market this week, selling at $1

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Little change has taken place in the egg market, with the exception that receipts have increased considerably, nearly 700 cases having been received on Tuesday. Still while this is an increase in receipts it is considered small in quantity, thus the market is firm and a good demand from local jobbers for straight gathered stock, which sold freely at 18c to 18½c per dozen, while selected stock in a jobbing way are moving at 21c.

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

The advance of flour 30c is said to be totally unwarranted. It is entirely a speculative value. Both the big flour milling companies of Montreal are selling Manitoba Spring wheat patents at $5.80, and it is expected that with the bullish work of the American speculators $6 flour may be seen before the end of the week. One of the ablest flour experts in the city stated that if the crop damage reports were true, the price of flour was too low, and if they are not true it is absurdly high, and at any rate there was no genuineness to the heavy advance. PROMINENT ENGLISHMAN DISCUSSES WHEAT.

MR. W. P. WOOD, for three years president of the London (England) Corn Trade Association, is at present a visitor in Montreal, where he was introduced on 'Change this week.

Mr. Wood is still actively engaged in the grain trade in England, having a house in London and another in Hull, and as he has spent the greater part of a long lifetime in the trade his views are interesting.

He said that four years ago the proportion of wheat which Canada and the United States were selling in Great Britain amounted to about seventy per cent. of the total imports, while according to the latest figures the imports from the two countries named this year would not amount to over twenty per cent. This was largely owing to the high prices existing on this side of the Atlantic, which Great Britain was not obliged to follow, owing to the Argentine, the South Russia, the Indian and the Australian markets. Each of these had, roughly speaking, contributed twenty per cent. of the wheat imported into England this year, leaving the other twenty per cent. for Canada and the United States.

In Mr. Wood's opinion it was mainly the Indian which had saved them from what he characterized as "the extravagant American rise," in which the Canadian markets followed. The Indian crop during the present year has been a large one, amounting to some 380,000,000 bushels.

"India," said Mr. Wood, "is unlike other countries in respect to its crops. At times she has grown only a comparatively small amount of wheat, but at the same time she has been a very large exporter. This is accounted for by the fact that the natives do not confine themselves to any one grain for consumption. If rice, millet and barley or any one of them, is relatively cheaper that wheat, then the wheat is exported, and the other grain or grains is eaten at home. Other countries must retain a certain proportion of the wheat crop for home consumption; not so with India.

SHIPMENTS FROM EAST.

"The grain shipments from the great Eastern Empire to the continental ports of Europe have very largely increased within the past few years, to many of which it is furnishing more grain than all other countries put together."

The character of the wheat Mr. Wood described as hard and dry, and for these reasons it is found extremely profitable by the British millers. It lacks sweetness, however, and to make good flour must be mixed with a wheat such as our best Manitoba.

One of the peculiarities of Argentine wheat is its lack of uniformity. It seems that the wheat growers of the Argentine are very largely emigrants from other countries, such as France and Belgium. These settlers have not only brought out their own seed, but also their own methods of cultivation, the consequence being that there are on the market a half dozen types of wheat, each distinct and separate from the other. Of course the value of these different wheats varies as does the type, and sometimes an English importer receives a varied assortment all in one cargo. This trouble is greatly augmented by the fact that grain elevators are as yet almost an unknown quantity in the Argentine Republic, and Mr. Wood was of the opinion that a great part of the trouble would subside when the Argentinians were able to have their grains properly sorted and handled by good elevator systems.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by John C. Kirkwood, TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Kirkwood specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

The Hand of the Expert.

THERE is no lack in the number of men able to write good "copy." One has but to pick up the magazine, or the newspaper, and read over the advertisements of the larger advertisers to discover how smooth the style is, how aptly everything is expressed, how interesting is the story. One is pretty safe in concluding that every bit of such advertising has been prepared by the trained writer,—a man whose daily task is a traffic in words. If follows with all certainty that the man skilled in the choice of words, who has learned the economies of speech, whose mind is concerned with the problem of influencing other minds, to persuade them to buy the things whereof they write,—it follows that such a man can write advertisements infinitely better than can he who takes up his pen reluctantly an who labors long and hard in an effort to write a good advertisement. Every man to his trade. It is strictly business fo the merchant who feels that he cannot prepare good copy to entrust this work to a trained writer. It will cost money to give out this work—$5 a month, $1 a month, $25 a month,—but it will be money well spent. The good that will result from the work of the trained writer may not be perceived immediately, but the effect and the returns are as certain as the sunrise.

Proofs of the rightness of such a declaration are readily forthcoming. The writer has in mind the case of a grocer in a Canadian city whose advertisements are being prepared by a professional writer who resides many hundreds of miles away. The advertisement appears daily, and is of small size, but it stands out sharp and clear on a page that is given up entirely to advertising. This merchant pays $5 a month for the service given. He supplies an outline suggestion of what he wishes advertised and leaves the rest to the man whom he employs to prepare his advertisements. The results have been satisfactory in the highest degree, and the $5 charge is paid with genuine pleasure. This man's advertising has a freshness, a directness, a charm not found in his competitors' announcements of larger size. This store has acquired a reputation for goodness that stands it in good stead every day of the year. The proprietor who before was not more aggressive than his fellow merchants has caught the enthusiasm of his own advertising, and has responded to its spirit of superiority. His windows are better dressed, his counters have been made more inviting. His salesmen have smartened up. The good done him and his business has evidence in the daily sales, and the prospects of this store are of the brightest. It is upwards of a year since the new influence began to be exerted. It has cost the merchant so far $50 for the service of an expert. He has made several times that amount in extra profits, and has given a spurt to his business that is worth in prospect no small sum.

This history can be repeated in hundreds of instances, and one of the gratifying signs of the times is that merchants in all parts of the country are inquiring for the names of specialists for the preparation of their advertisements.

NEW STORE OPENED.

J. A. McCrea, grocer, Guelph, has opened a branch store at the corner of Norwich and Woolwich streets. The premises formerly occupied by the late R. Millar have been thoroughly overhauled, made into a thoroughly up-to-date grocery store, which for handsome appointments compares favorably with anything in the Province.

CALENDARS FOR HUDSON BAY.

THE handsome Calendar issued to the Wall Paper trade by Stauntons Limited, Toronto, has found appreciation and wide spread use, as is shown by the following letter:—

Messrs. Stauntons Limited,

Gentlemen:—Capt. Bernier, the commander of the "Arctic" which will soon sail for Hudson Bay, etc., for 2 or 3 years, asked us to try to procure him a few of your splendid Calendars such as he has seen in our office, and which among numerous qualities has that of lasting until July, 1905. If you have a few more to dispose of in favor of Capt. Bernier we shall be pleased to receive them for him.

EXPORTS OF JAPAN TEA.

The Grocer is in receipt of the following statistics from C. M. Bernard, agent for Bernard & Co., Yokohama, in regard to exports of tea from Japan to August 15, 1904:

	Lbs.
New York and the East	9,584,523
Chicago and the West	9,203,819
San Francisco	2,751,525
Canada	2,778,291
Total	24,318,158

This shows a decrease of 3,786,375 lbs. to same time last year, with the exception of New York, where there is a slight increase, and Canada, where the increase is 832,167 lbs.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Vancouver, Sept. 20, 1904.

EGGS are the feature in the local market. The prices are very firm, and since last report there has been an advance. Both eastern and local eggs are very scarce, and there is a possibility of the prices remaining high for some time. Cured meats are unchanged, and lard is steady. Creamery and dairy butter are unchanged. The 100 per cent. advance in cloves is a sensational feature due to a corner of the supply and one which should not last long. Business generally is good, and there are fair prospects for a good Fall and Winter trade.

One of the points worth noticing in connection with the fruit trade is that considerable offered for sale by local dealers has been grown by local people. It is an indication of the development of the resources of the province. The peaches mentioned last week, from the gardens of Thomas Earl at Lytton, the veteran fruit grower of the province, have been a surprise to the city, and they have been pronounced in every way the equal to anything imported, while they surpass in size and color. In quotations there is little change, though oranges have stiffened, and are now $4 per box. Mushrooms are very plentiful.

In flour there has been no change, the market remains firm.

Mr. P. A. Barry, writing from Toronto, has made a proposition to the Board of Trade of Kamloops, relative to the starting of a fruit canning industry there. The plant will put up all kinds of fruit which is grown so plentifully in the adjoining districts, and also vegetables. In connection, a factory will be operated for the manufacture of cans by an improved process of which he holds the sole right in Canada. The general opinion of the board was that the enterprise should be given every encouragement and a committee was appointed to recommend to the council that assistance should be given. The opinion of the council was that a free site should be offered, and Mr. Barry will come west to personally look over the situation.

Vinegar will soon be manufactured either in Vancouver or New Westminster. The exact location has not yet been decided upon, but the company favors this city, though if it cannot get water concessions it will be put in New Westminster. The company is composed of local people, Mr. William Braid, wholesale dealer in teas, coffees and spices; Mr. Robert Kelly, wholesale grocer; Mr. Frank Burnett, Mr. D. S. Naismith, Mr. C. M. Marpole, and Mr. G. E. Macdonald being the principal stockholders. The vinegar works will be operated in connection with the distillery, which is now approaching completion at Sapperton, a suburb of New Westminster. The plant of the former will cost about $10,000, and plans are now about ready. Mr. A. T. Morrow, of Hamilton, is in charge of the work at the distillery, having also invested some money in the business, and Mr. J. A. Laing, also of Hamilton, will have charge of the manufacture of the vinegar, which will be supplied to the local trade and for export. At present large quantities of vinegar are imported from England, Crosse & Blackwell's being a favorite article. There is a local product, but it is very unsatisfactory. If the new works put out something good it will find a ready market.

This Summer in Dawson has been one of steady prices, much more so than in former seasons. There have been no jumps or declines since the shipments began in the early part of the season, and the markets have at all times been well supplied with what was going, especially in fruit and vegetable lines. Now is the time that the big consignments of onions, potatoes, eggs, and such like, are going north, and one Dawson firm has 3,000 eggs and a car of butter en route, from eastern Canada.

Dawson is enjoying a very good demand from the creeks and it is now at its height, the miners stocking up in prospect of Winter. There is a keen demand from the Tanana, the new district in American territory which is now opening up, and to which there is a rush of people. Holders of produce, groceries, and other general merchandise of American make have made big profits from the Tanana trade. The American goods have gone in rapidly, while the Canadian goods have been a drug on the market. This is no reflection on Canadian goods, but the American articles were allowed to go in free, while the others were dutiable. It is a very good way the Americans have of sizing up immediately the condition of a market, and securing it for themselves. Canadians might easily and for their own benefit take a pointer from this action. Whenever a new district is opened up, every open advantage is given, while with the Yankees they are very careful to extend the preference only to themselves. One Dawson trader offers several hundred cases of Canadian cream at a profit of ten cents a case, while there is no American cream on the market. On several hundred cases of American cream he made a profit of $1.50 a case. Both creams are put up by the same people, only one factory is on the Canadian side of the line, and the tariff is a barrier. The Tanana trade has had the effect of cleaning the Dawson market of practically all the slow stocks of goods of American make, many of which have been in the warehouses or on shelves for years.

Live stock is being rushed into the Yukon, and a large part of these is for the Tanana also. One firm will attempt to run a drove of cattle over the trail from Valdes to Fairbanks, which is a very risky proceeding. P. Burns & Company and J. La France are the largest dealers from the Canadian side, while American shippers are increasing in number.

Mr. Frank H. Ames, president of the Ames Mercantile Company, is on a trip to Dawson, and announces that his firm will continue business there, only on a cash basis. The field, while not as good as it used to be, is still very promising, and he is thoroughly satisfied with prospects.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,

St. John, N. B., Sept., 1904.

SOME few weeks ago we referred in our report to the intention of a large number of our wholesale grocers forming a company for the importing of molasses. The company has now been incorporated under the name of the New Brunswick Importing Co. Besides St. John merchants the company will include the largest wholesale grocers in Fredericton, Moncton and St. Stephen. The company has power to do business in molasses, sugar, groceries, provisions and other foodstuffs. The main object, however, is the importing of molasses. The several dealers in many cases not wishing to import on their own account will find it to their advantage to be associated together. The company, being very large buyers, will be able to obtain every possible advantage in buying; all are assured of getting their supply at the very lowest figure, and while not standing for an unfair profit, they will see that a fair profit is obtained and no cutting done. It remains to be seen what will be done by those outside. While the company includes almost the entire trade, there is at least one direct importer outside and the representative of the American concern, against whom the fight has been, who, is, now that the wholesale trade have largely withdrawn their business, going direct to the retail buyer.

Another large interest of the week has been the exhibition, which gives promise of being a great success. Our local manufacturers, however, who complain so much when business goes outside, have not given it the support they should, which might stop the loss of business of which they complain. The advance in flour has been the chief matter of interest in markets, the advance now being well over one dollar.

Oil.

There is still no change in the price of burning oil. The booking of Fall business is about completed. In lubricating oils, values are unchanged. The busy season is over. Paint oils show a steady sale at firm prices. Linseed, particularly, is tending higher. In cod oil receipts are not large and prices are lower than last year. The fact that some high priced oil is carried over tends to depress the market.

Salt.

Quite a large cargo of Liverpool coarse salt is just to hand, amounting to about twelve thousand bags. There is a further cargo about due and another to arrive about the last of the month. Prices are firmly held and there is a rather improved demand. In fine salt Canadian holds the market with just fair business. In Liverpool coarse salt it is to the advantage of both importer and buyer to have orders filled from the ship's side.

Canned Goods.

This line shows little of interest. Dealers do not like the withholding of prices so late by the association. Even selling prices will be maintained by practically the entire trade. Outside packers, while they will agree to sell at a stated difference under the association, also withhold prices. Blue berries are quite plentiful. Gallon apples are freely offered but demand is light. Salmon is firmly held, particularly springs. Strawberries and peaches are firm. Local packed fish are just a fair pack.

Green Fruits.

Business is very active. Apples are being freely received and prices are lower. Gravensteins, than which there are no finer Fall apples, are now to hand. The crop in Nova Scotia is large and fine. Ontario grapes are a heavy line at this season. Oranges and lemons are firmly held. Some nice pears are being offered. Nova Scotia stock is plentiful and low. Nova Scotia plums are supplying the market. Peaches come in light supply and the price is too high for active demand.

Dried Fruits.

There seems no bottom to some lines of California fruit. 1903 loose muscatels are again reduced in price. Prunes are also lower. The trade have largely bought their supply. Two grades of seeded are being imported, freshly seeded 1903 stock and new goods, and while the freshly seeded stock are splendid goods they should not be sold as new. Currants are unchanged with prices quite low. Dates are low. In peels citron is rather lower than last year. Evaporated apples are dull. In onions the market is supplied with Valencias. Some Ontario onions were sold for later shipment at very low prices, but higher figures are now quoted. Valencia raisins are quite high and very few are being bought.

Sugar.

Market is very firm with prices unchanged. Dealers are holding full stocks.

Molasses.

A further cargo of Porto Rico arrived this week. Quite full stocks are held. Barbadoes are not so plentiful. Prices remain unchanged.

Fish.

Supply of fresh fish is light and variety small. In dry codfish high prices are still maintained. Pickled herring and smoked herring are both high with supply light. Very few pickled shad are offered. While more finnan haddies are seen, the season is yet early.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

A further advance in flour, particularly in Manitobas, is noted this week. Manitoba and Ontario flours are quite close together. Oats are rather easier with oatmeal unchanged. Local millers of cornmeal have been rather short of corn. Beans, while dull, are quoted higher. Barley has but a light demand. Split peas are high and scarce.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Sept. 17, 1904.

FOR the past week the weather has been very unpropitious and has to a large extent stalled threshing operations throughout the Northwest. The first car of No. 1 hard which arrived in the other day was pronounced by the members of the Grain Exchange an excellent sample. All markets are active and fairly firm with the exception of the flour market, which has taken a sudden jump, and rolled oats which are now quoted all around at 5c advance on last week's market.

Sugar.

The market is still quoting sugar at the advanced price. Montreal granulated in barrels at $5.30, in sacks $5.20; yellows, $4.70; Wallaceburg the market quotes in barrels at $5.20 and in sacks $5.10.

Evaporated and Dried Fruit.

The market continues quite firm. The new stock of Valencia raisins will be available in the course of about two weeks and evaporated apples will be on the market some time in November.

Rolled Oats.

The market is firmer and slightly in advance of last week, quoting 80-lb. sacks at $2.30, 40-lb. sacks at $2.35, 20-lb. sacks at $2.40, 8-lb. sacks at $2.70, and 6-lb sacks at $2.90.

Canned Fruits.

The market is quite firm at present, but, as the canners are now only filling about 50 per cent. of their orders for strawberries owing to the scarcity of this fruit, we may look for an advance in this line. Strawberries at present are quoted at $3.25 per case; raspberries at $3 per case of 2 dozen; jams, including Aylmer's and Upton's in the pails are now quoted at 47 1-2c per pail.

Canned Vegetables.

The market reports a general firmness in all varieties of canned vegetables, quoting canned beans at $1.80 to $1.90 per case; and canned pears at $1.90 per case.

Coffee.

The market is still stiffening up prices. Quotation on green Rio is now 10 1-2 to 11c per lb.

Canned Fish.

Shipments of the new catch of salmon are now on the market, quoting Sockeye salmon at the advanced price of $7 per case.

Flour.

The market has again advanced and now quotes No. 1 patent at $2.90, No. 2 at $2.70, No. 3 at $2.10, and No. 4 at $1.55.

Cornmeal.

The market is firm, quoting cornmeal per sack at $1.75 and 90c per 1-2 sack.

Green Fruit.

The market continues very active. Oranges are quoted according to quality from $5.50 to $6; California lemons at $5; Montana crabapples at $2.25; Washington Italian plums at $1.25; Hungarian plums, $1.50; Washington peaches, $1.25; Washington pears, $1.25 per case; Ontario apples, $3 per barrel; Gravenstein apples, $3.50 per barrel; Ontario basket apples, 75c; Ontario basket tomatoes, 75c; Ontario basket pears, 75c; Ontario basket grapes, 65c; California Tokay grapes, $3 per case; bananas, $2.75 to $3 per bunch; musk melons, per case, $2.50; Chinese figs, per case, $2; dates, per lb., 5 1-2c; green tomatoes, 2 1-2c; sweet potatoes, per case $5: Spanish onions, per case, $1.50; and celery, per dozen bunches, 40c.

Eggs.

The market is very active and slightly firmer with a good demand for strictly fresh eggs. Supplies from the country are very light and eggs are now jobbing to the trade at 20c to 21c per dozen.

IMPORTANT LEGAL DECISION.

THE grocer, as well as the general merchant, will be interested in the ruling of the judge in the recent dispute between H. K. Wampole & Co., proprietary medicine manufacturers, Toronto, and J. T. Lyons, druggist, Montreal, the former of whom petitioned for an injunction to prevent the latter from selling Wampole's Tasteless Cod Liver Oil for less than one dollar. The decision is as follows:

The plaintiff presents a petition for an injunction to prevent defendant, druggist, of Montreal, selling for less than one dollar a preparation of cod liver oil, known as Wampole's Tasteless Cod Liver Oil. He is the manufacturer of this preparation, and an agreement had been made by which the plaintiff agreed to sell the defendant his preparation at a fixed price, equal to 58 cents a bottle, the defendant agreeing not to retail it at less than one dollar a bottle. Plaintiff alleges that defendant has violated his contract by selling it at 85 cents. He even advertises it at 68 cents, thereby causing serious and irreparable damages to plaintiff.

(1) The defendant pleads that the agreement in question is illegal and against the freedom of trade.

(2) That the agreement was cancelled by letter dated June 27, which the defendant had a perfect right to do as said agreement was for no specified time and also that he had sold all the cod liver oil purchased from plaintiff under said agreement.

(3) That the oil he was selling at 68 cents a bottle had not been bought from plaintiff but from other sources. Affidavits were produced from both parties to sustain their pretentions and had not been contradicted.

An interlocutory injunction is asked for to prevent defendant from selling at less than $1 until the case is heard on its merits. On the question of the legality of the contract I see nothing to interfere with freedom of trade or the interest of the public in a manufacturer agreeing with a retailer that his goods be sold at a fixed price when it is to the manufacturer's interest to do so, but what interest has Wampole to stipulate that his preparation be sold at 80 or 90 per cent. profit? When I put the question to petitioner's lawyer, "What interest has your client in asking for this injunction?" he said the object was so as not to confound his preparation with others of inferior quality. This reason which is of doubtful value is not the true reason. I find the reason in the petition, in the contract itself and in an affidavit. The plaintiff's petition alleges that without an injunction to prevent defendant from selling his oil at less than $1.00 the price agreed upon, he would suffer serious and irreparable damages, because he is sure that if he continues to cut the price that all other druggists will do likewise, considering themselves free from their similar contracts. But I do not see in this any great injury, the benefit would be for the public. I can see the injury it will do to retail druggists who reckon more on small sales and large profits; but Lyons, like the departmental stores, believes in a quick turnover and small profits and is satisfied with a profit of 10 cents on each bottle. What injury does this inflict on Wampole who still gets the same amount viz., 58 cents for his preparation? The lowering of the price and competition cannot affect him nor force him to reduce his price to the dealer. It is the Retail Druggist Association combined who have decreed that this oil shall be sold at $1.00 and not less and it is in their interest that Wampole has brought on the present action in which he has no apparent or appreciable interest. This is evident (1) From the heading of Wampole's contract with the wholesalers (exhibit No. 1), where the policy of the members is stated as the price restrictive plan as adopted by the drug section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada.

(2) The contract between Lyons and Wampole (exhibit No. 2) for retailers and which reads as follows:

Contract for Retail Trade.

The Henry K. Wampole Co., of Toronto, for the protection of the trade and in pursuance of an agreement entered into with the Drug Section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, requires the contract set out below to be signed by the retail trade before the retail trade will be entitled to purchase Wampole's Tasteless preparation of Cod Liver Oil, etc.

Lastly, in an affidavit absolutely illegal, produced by the plaintiff wherein D. R. Moore, advocate, pretends to find existence of judiciary proceedings in a similar case where the Ozone Co., of Toronto, sued the present defendant for breaking a similar contract to this one and the existence of a judgment against defendant, but he forgets to state that the injunction referred to was only an interlocutory one. In this illegal affidavit I find, however, the real cause of the action, like the action of the Ozone Co. was because an agreement had been entered into with the retail druggists.

I conclude from these documents and the nature of the agreement that it was the retail druggists, associated and combined, who have in their own interests fixed the price of an article at $1.00 that costs them 58 cents, thereby making a profit of nearly 80 per cent., certainly an exaggerated profit, and against the public interest. He who asks a judge to prevent another from doing a certain thing should prove like all plaintiffs an actual and tangible interest in the case and also prove that without an injunction being granted he would suffer serious and irreparable damages.

Supposing that Wampole had a personal interest in the case he has taken against Lyons for violation of contract, an interest that does not seem to me to exist, the damage would be neither serious nor irreparable. Wampole still has the right to institute an action for damages without the judge's consent. Should he succeed he can force the defendant to pay the amount of the damages. The injury he would have suffered would be reparable.

Injunctions are extraordinary proceedings, and are allowed only in cases determined by law, viz.: When the commission or the continuation of an act or an operation during the time being would cause a serious or irreparable injury.

Another reason for refusing the injunction is that the defendant did not sell any oil at a reduced price that had been bought from plaintiff, but had been obtained from other sources. The agreement between the parties was that in consideration of Wampole supplying the defendant with his oil at a price mentioned in schedule "D" Lyons agrees not to sell at a less price than the one mentioned in schedule "E." What is the meaning of this contract? It means that if Lyons does not carry out his agreement Wampole will not be bound to sell him any more oil at the price. If Lyons had on hand any oil bought under the contract Wampole could, if the contract was a legal one, force Lyons to return it to him on returning him the amount he had paid for it, or, if not, he could claim damages. But when Lyons has no more on hand and can get some elsewhere, what right can Wampole have to prevent Lyons from disposing of it?

Oil bought elsewhere does not come under the terms of the contract. The plaintiff in his petition advances a strange pretention, that is that the contract, being for an indefinite period, cannot be annulled only by the consent of both parties. The fact is the contrary in partnerships. Any partner can terminate a contract at any time, where the length of duration of the contract has not been determined. In the present instance the parties are bound only as long as both parties consent to execute it, only that perhaps the retailer could force the manufacturer to sell him his oil at the price agreed upon as long as he had lived up to his contract. But as soon as the retailer does not wish to buy any more of his oil, or if he wishes to sell it at a reduced price, the manufacturer cannot force the retailer to buy his oil from him.

Lyons has not bound himself to do so, he simply promised to retail at $1 oil bought directly from Wampole. Therefore Lyons, having no more oil purchased from Wampole, there is no reason to prevent him from selling Wampole's Cod Liver Oil at less than $1 a bottle.

For these reasons I refuse the interlocutory injunction asked for, and revoke the order given ex parte in favor of the petitioner, and suspended by us until the actual judgment is given.

2nd September, 1904.

The Court of Appeal on September 16, confirmed the refusal of Judge Pagnuelo to grant the H. K. Wampole Co., an interlocutory injunction restraining J. T. Lyons from selling their dollar bottles of cod liver oil for 85 cents. The court refused to hear the appeal on the ground that an interlocutory judgment could not be carried to the higher courts without permission of a Superior Court judge.

CANADA AND FRANCE.

IN order to mark the establishment of direct communication between Canada and France by the Canadian lines, Mr. Thomas Harling, the agent of the line in Montreal, last week invited the members of the Chambre de Commerce and others interested in trade with France, to go over the steamship Lake Simcoe, which sailed Friday, September 16, for Havre and Rotterdam. Among those who accepted the invitation were Mr. H. A. A. Brault, president of the chambre; the Hon. A. Desjardines, the Hon. J. D. Rolland, the Hon. J. I. Tarte ,M.P., Messrs. Chas. Chaput, M. J. Perrault, S. Lachance, G. Boivin, A. V. Roy, E. Mathieu, D. Pariseau, Jos. Fortier, J. D. Couture, T. O. Labrecque, Catelli, Granger and Brisson. The party expressed admiration for the beautifully finished and comfortable vessel, which is specially designed for carrying passengers.

After lunch the toast of "The King" was duly honored, and Mr. Harling and Captain Ball replied to the toast of success to the line, proposed in felicitous terms by Mr. Brault. Mr. Harling remarked that their object in inviting the Chambre de Commerce there that day was to make the fact known that they had fairly established a direct steamship service between Canada and France. They had now made six voyages. The line was well backed up in England and capital would not be wanting to make the new enterprise a success. He had been in France lately and he found that there was plenty of freight when shippers were assured that there would be a regular service. He had seen many attempts to establish such a service, and he considered the best course was to begin in a modest way and to prove that they were deserving of confidence. In the matter of passenger traffic they were outside that close corporation, the North Atlantic Conference, and in the last few days they had had an instance of the attitude of the conference to outsiders. A passenger agent in Toronto had informed him that on instructions from the conference he could no longer do business for the Canadian lines and so he lost a good man. He had confidence in the future of the enterprise and pointed out that it was deserving of the support of commercial men on both sides because it would be advantageous to both countries to have a direct line.

THE WESTERN FAIR AT LONDON

NOTWITHSTANDING the unfavorable character of the weather, the crowds that daily thronged the exhibition buildings and grounds proved that the Western Fair had lost none of its popularity. It was unfortunate that Wednesday, when a big attendance of rural visitors was expected, turned out both wet and cold, and indeed very little warm weather was experienced during the entire run of the fair.

The Manufacturers Building was, of course, the principal attraction, and while some of the exhibits that have been prominent in previous years were absent the displays of the various manufacturers were, taken as a whole, of a high order and evinced both good taste and painstaking care. Without making invidious comparisons it may be said that perhaps the piano industry had the most complete representation, the exhibits being both numerous and of a high standard of excellence. Soap, too, was much in evidence, and too much credit cannot be awarded to the exhibitors of this necessary article for the originality and beauty of their respective displays.

Looking around the Manufacturers Building one could not but feel that the City of London itself, with its important and growing industries, was somewhat scantily represented. London is lacking neither in brains nor industrial enterprise. It is a fair city, the centre of a rich and prosperous district, and many of its sons have risen to high positions in public life and in public esteem. Yet the stranger who visited the Western Fair (and there were thousands present from every part of the Dominion, from the States and from abroad, both distinguished and obscure) would almost certainly carry away the impression that, as a manufacturing centre the City of London was of little account. Surely there is need for a little more enterprise and patriotism in this matter on the part of local manufacturers. It was a matter of general comment that the cigar industry (in respect of which the City of London ranks second in importance in the Dominion) had but one representative, while the biscuit industry had no representative at all.

Exhibit of Red Rose Tea at the Western Fair, London.

The management are to be congratulated on the handsome new Dairy Building that has been erected since last fair. It attracted great attention, and deservedly so, for it contained a very representative display of dairy appurtenances, while a demonstration of up-to-date butter making was given in the commodious well and followed with great interest by throngs of spectators from the galleries which have been erected around it.

The interior of the Agricultural and Horticultural Building was a thing of beauty and a joy to thousands. The decorations of evergreens were on a lavish scale and the exhibits of flowers and fruits were really above criticism. The display of honey was one that evoked much admiration, and it was a common remark that the exhibit was far in advance of anything that had been shewn in the same line in previous years.

The Machinery Hall was, of course, a strong drawing card, and contained a good representative display chiefly of farming machinery and agricultural implements. It was a little unfortunate, perhaps, that the stove exhibits should have been placed in the wing of this building alongside of a miscellaneous display of implements and other accessories of the farm, but no doubt the management made the best of the situation. Before long it is to be hoped a new building will be devoted exclusively to this important and rapidly growing industry.

It is only necessary to add that the amusements afforded by the midway were of the usual kind and showed no falling off in popularity. A word of praise is due to the management for the really excellent entertainment they provided in front of the grand stand. There was nothing hackneyed or "stale" in the performances of the various artists, and they kept the attention of the vast audiences from start to finish. The fireworks display was of the best and went off without a hitch.

Red Rose Tea.

One of the prettiest and daintiest booths in the Manufacturers Building was that of Red Rose Tea. The space within the booth was entirely given up to the comfort and convenience of the general public who were invited to step inside and partake of the refreshing beverage seated at the numerous tables that were placed there for the purpose On each table which was covered with spotless damask, was placed a vase containing lovely tea roses. The decorations were red and blue and were rendered more effective by a number of Chinese lanterns that swung from the roof. The luxury of a cup of tea amid such surroundings was much appreciated and a constant stream of visitors passed in and out of the booth.

The popularity of Red Rose Tea, especially in Western Ontario, has been growing by leaps and bounds, a result which the proprietor attributes in no small degree to the success of his exhibits at the Western Fair and the fact that Red Rose Tea "is good tea." Mr. Campbell, who was in charge of the booth, remarked how noticeable was the change in the attitude of the visitors since the last fair. Then the common remark was "I don't know your tea at all." Now it is "I am using your tea."

Worthington Stock Food Co.

The Worthington Drug Co., had an excellent display of their stock food in the Agricultural Building. It was built up in very artistic fashion the background being composed of five tiers of 50 and 25-pound pails. In front of these were three pyramids of tins of McDougall's sheep dip for which the Worthington Drug Co. are the Eastern Canadian agents.

The company claim to have revolutionized the price of stock foods. They put out 8-lb. boxes at 50 cents, 25-lb. pails $1.50, and 50-lb. pails $2.75.

Maclure & Langley.

A dainty booth was that of Maclure & Langley, where was displayed the well-known Tobler's Swiss chocolate in the form of tablets, croquettes, etc. Tobler's is one of the oldest brands of Swiss chocolate on the market, and seems to be one of the good things that have come to stay. It only requires to be tasted to be appreciated.

Cowan Co.

Much interest was evinced in the display of chocolates made by the Cowan Co., and in the demonstration of the virtues of their cocoa. The decorations of the booth, which was advantageously situated near the entrance to the Manufacturers Building, were in pink and white, varied by a quantity of yellow streamers.

Comfort Soap.

The first thing that caught the eye of the visitor on entering the Manufacturers Building was the exhibit of the Pugsley, Dingman Co., Limited. On a stand within the railing was placed a colossal bar of Comfort Soap. To the person who made the nearest guess to the weight of this a handsome upright piano was awarded, and, needless to say, there was a great demand for guess coupons. While that was the outstanding feature of the exhibit, it was by no means all. At the further end of the booth was an artistic edifice compiled of cakes of Comfort Soap in the familiar wrappers. Altogether the exhibit was one that reflected the greatest credit on the proprietors of Comfort Soap and the booth was thronged with visitors from early morning till closing time. The exhibit was in charge of Mr. E. J. Ecclestone, the company's western representative. For the comparatively short period that Comfort Soap has been on the market its growth in the public esteem has been phenomenal and the sale is steadily increasing every week. The company attribute a good deal of their success to the various exhibits, all of a high order, that they have made at different fairs.

Richards Pure Soap.

The Richards Pure Soap Co., of Woodstock, certainly hit upon an original idea when they introduced a real live horse into their exhibit (and a very handsome animal at that) and it proved a splendid drawing card. Guessing coupons were provided and the fortunate individual who guessed most nearly the weight of the steed became its happy owner. It was at all times difficult to get near the booth owing to the eager crowds who pressed round to admire the milk white beauty and hazard a guess. The booth itself was in the form of an archway, the pillars on either side being built of packets of Richards Pure Soap in red wrappers. The horse standing beneath the archway was a most fitting accompaniment and gave to the whole a very realistic appearance.

ing been on the market now for 50 years. They have an excellent soap coupon system. The coupon is sold to the customer at the booth and is redeemable at the store of any grocer, thus saving the customer the trouble of carrying the soap round with him.

Sunlight Soap.

The exhibit of Lever Bros. was admittedly one of the most effective in the Manufacturers Building. It took the form of a dome supported by four pillars each ingeniously built of packets of "Sunlight" and "Lifebuoy" soap. The roof was built up in similar fashion and a handsome palm was placed on the apex. In the space within the railing were exposed to view the various dainty toilet soaps manufactured by Lever Bros., including "Silkskin" and "Coral," while the famous "Monkey Brand" was also conspicuous. Mr. Nichols was in attendance along with some lady helpers and all were kept busy supplying the crowds with Sunlight Soap puzzles.

Orange Meat.

Prominent among the cereal exhibits was that of the Frontenac Cereal Co., and many were the demands made on the fair attendants for samples of the popular Orange Meat. The decorations were in blue, yellow and red and the background of the booth was built of the familiar packets of Orange Meat.

Imperial Starch Co.

The Imperial Starch Co.'s exhibit was a notable one. It was in the shape of a triangle, the two sides of which were fitted with stands on which were displayed one above the other long rows of the different packets of the company's laundry starch, golden syrup, corn starch, etc.

Malta Vita.

The Malta Vita Co. had a display of a quiet but effective description. The decorations were in blue and yellow, to harmonize with the Malta Vita packet and the attendants were kept busy dispensing saucers of their nutritious breakfast food.

Canada Maple Exchange.

A good display of maple syrup, maple sugar and maple cream chocolates was made at the booth of the Canada Maple Exchange, Limited, of Montreal. The square booth was entirely occupied by a conical stand on which were displayed tier above tier a complete assortment of these lines.

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS EXHIBITION AT SHERBROOKE.

WITH the exception of the National Exhibition at Toronto, the Eastern Townships Fair, held annually at Sherbrooke, Que., is said to be one of the most important exhibitions in the Dominion. This year the Fair opened on August 27 and lasted until September 30. To use a stereotyped expression, it was larger and better than ever, and the directors deserve congratulation for the excellent management throughout. The exhibits of forest, field, and mines were copious and varied, while the so-called circus attractions were among the best available in vaudeville circles. When it is remembered that the attendance, on what is called the best day, exceeded thirty thousand people, some idea of the magnitude of this Fair may be formed. Owing to a regrettable accident on the Grand Trunk Railway at Richmond the number of visitors to the Fair was considerably decreased on the days following the disaster.

The main building always the centre of attraction, was devoted entirely to special exhibits. One of the most striking of these was that of the Ogilvie Milling Co. whose display accentuated "Royal Household Flour" in such a successful manner as to excite the admiration of hosts of visitors. The ambition of this prominent milling firm surpassed all previous ventures of exhibitors, inasmuch as under the direction of Mr. Allan Reid, they published a daily newspaper in the interests of "Royal Household" flour for three days of the Fair, and held a reception under the supervision of the manager of the Company, Col. E. H. Labelle. The whole town of Sherbrooke was emblazoned with "Royal Household Flour," four of the leading grocers having windows decorated with barrels and sacks of the flour. Mr. Patton, the Eastern Townships representative of the Ogilvie Company, assisted Col. Labelle at the reception, and hundreds of their customers from all parts of the Townships were cordially received by Col. Labelle and himself.

A word might be said about the dairy exhibit, and the special prizes for cheese awarded by the Eastern Townships Bank. The judges of the cheese were Mr. Warrington, of Montreal, and the butter A. J. Bruce and E. A. Bryce of Montreal, respectively. The horticultural exhibit was particularly fine, the corridor outside the Horticultural Building, formerly given up to fruits and vegetables being devoted this year to fruit alone. The display of eight hundred varieties of apples was something never before equalled in the Eastern Townships. Secretary W. Tomlinson was a busy man all the week, and made many friends for the Exposition. The courtesy and attention which the directors generally paid to all visitors and exhibitors deserves nothing short of the highest praise. Among the exhibits worthy of special mention were the following:

Empire Tobacco Company.

The talk of the Fair was the Empire Tobacco Co.'s exhibit just near the main entrance. Colonel Young, the smallest man in the world was there. Piled in neat array were the gifts of the premium department, including silverware of many descriptions, rifles, knives, carpenter's tools, musical instruments, chairs, sewing machines, in fact almost any useful household article. Sometimes Col. Young would stand or sit at the very top of the pyramid of presents, where he looked more a midget than down below. Piles of tobacco showed the purity and excellence of the special chewing and smoking tobaccos. In conjunction with the exhibit was a display of Houde & Co.'s goods, including more especially their Red Cross tobacco for smoking, and which is controlled by the Empire Tobacco Co. P. Menard, the representative of the company made many new friends for the Empire Tobacco Co., his exceptional tact and ability being especially valuable in promoting its interests.

Orange Meat.

The stand occupied by the Orange Meat Co. was so attractive that the Exhibition Co. could very well have paid them for having it there. Crowds of tired people were welcomed to its pleasant precincts and served with samples of delicious breakfast food. The decorations of the stand consisted of bright yellow streamers of twisted ribbon hung first in festoons from the ceiling, then gracefully arranged with curtains of lace and netting. These coupled with handsome posters showing halves of oranges as trade marks of the firm's food made an effect that was pleasing and sensible as an advertising force.

Tables were disposed throughout the booth attended courteously by bright faced girls. The representatives of the company were making friends all the time and in their efforts to make Orange Meat food better known they certainly succeeded to a marked degree. J. C. DePercheron won the good will and respect of all with whom he came in contact, his energy and ability being strong elements in the success of the exhibit.

The Frontenac Milling Co., of Kingston, Ont., who are the proprietors of the Orange Meat, have made a mighty success of their business and deserve congratulation. They have an excellent article and they are putting up a campaign for public favor that is brainy and forceful.

Snowdrop Flour.

C. R. Cousins, wholesale flour, grain and feed merchants, St. Johns, Que., occupied the centre space in the main building, and spared no expense nor pains to make an attractive showing of their famous "Snowdrop" flour. "Snowdrop" which is so popular with the housekeeper, has many special points of merit. It is made from a mixture of Manitoba and Ontario wheat, and is one of the best family flours made. It is suited for either bread or pastry. Another merit, and a strong one, is that it is very easily "worked" which means a great deal to the busy housekeeper. Anyone having their meals at the Protestant Hospital counter could judge of the good qualities of "Snowdrop" flour, for all the bread that was used there exhibition week was made from this excellent flour. To place the "Snowdrop" flour before the public, Messrs. Cousins gave away coupons to the public, which when returned with the name were redeemable with a five pound bag of flour. The coupons were distributed and left at the exhibit, or at R. A. Bartlett's store.

C. R. Cousins is excellently located as regards shipping facilities, at St. Johns, Que., and can fill orders with despatch. Among the other well-known brands of flour which this dealer handles are "Snow Patent," "O.K.," "Strong Baker," "Golden Sheaf," "Hungarian" and "Hudson Bay," which are all strong sellers, and of established popularity. The firm is well and favorably known throughout the Eastern Townships, where it does a large business in mixed cars of flour, feed, grain and ground meals. R. C. Stewart was in charge of the exhibit.

Comfort Soap.

No stand in the main building was more generally attractive than that of Comfort Soap. The array of pictures, dolls. lamps, clocks, placques, flowers, and all kinds of useful and ornamental household articles simply captured the crowds. The gifts distributed included many valuable souvenirs and naturally were appreciated by large numbers. The manner of decoration was so pleasing that the famous catchword: "Comfort Soap, it's all right" was admirably applied to both soap and exhibit.
